are in each of the regional headquarters in (a) the UK, (b) Germany and (c) Cyprus, broken down by role. [138791]

Derek Twigg: Under the direction of the Principal Dental Officers (PDO), Defence Dental Services (DDS) Regional Headquarters are responsible for the efficient and effective delivery of primary dental care to the armed forces in the UK and overseas.

The locations of the nine UK Regional Defence HQs, plus two overseas, and the numbers of DDS personnel at each, broken down by role, are shown as follows. In Germany and Cyprus primary dental care is extended to authorised dependants and other entitled personnel.

[1] In addition there is one army major responsible for clinical operations and one civilian clerk translator.
[2] In addition there is one part time Civilian Orthodontist.

Armed Forces: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to reassess the 50 decibels threshold at which hearing loss due to service can be compensated. [139859]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The compensation threshold for "hearing loss due to service" applies only to bilateral noise-induced sensorineural hearing loss. It does not apply to other forms of hearing loss or injury, such as that caused by blast. The 50 dB threshold was introduced into the war pensions scheme in 1993 as part of a package of changes which focused benefits on the more severely disabled and is also common to the related Civilian Industrial Injuries Disablement Scheme. The same threshold is used for compensating for this condition in the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme, which also focuses on the more severely injured. This approach is based on contemporary scientific evidence and understanding. This has been confirmed in recent years by several reviews carried out by independent audiological experts. There are no plans to review the threshold, although we remain open to consider new evidence that may arise.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what level of protection the Bucher Duro Search Explosive Ordnance Disposal vehicles have against (a) mines, (b) rocket-propelled grenades, (c) improvised explosive devices and (d) small arms fire. [141043]

Mr. Ingram: I am withholding the information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Army Board

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of running the offices of the (a) Adjutant General, (b) Army Board and (c) Chief of the General Staff in 2006; and what change there has been in the cost of each since 2002. [127539]

Derek Twigg: The full cost of running the outer offices of the Army Board members are not recorded separately and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

However, the majority of the costs arise from staff pay and the establishment of each office remained largely unaltered between 2002 and 2006. The 2006 establishment together with the 2006 salary range for each position is shown as follows. These figures do not include civilian overtime or staff car drivers.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many internal flights were taken by the (a) Adjutant General, (b) Chief of the General Staff, (c) non-ministerial members of the Army Board and (d) Assistant Chief of the General Staff in 2006; how many of those flights were with (i) military and (ii) commercial carriers; and what the cost was. [127568]

Derek Twigg: A breakdown of UK commercial and military flights undertaken in 2006 is shown in the following table. The military flights shown form part of wider funded flying activity, which is required to keep pilots trained and aircraft and airfields current and serviceable. The cost for RAF flights is a notional cost only calculated on the basis of a combination of aircraft capitation rates and flying hours. Information on Army flights has not been maintained in a way that would enable a representative notional cost calculation to be made.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what guidance his Department issues on the use of internal flights for travel by non-ministerial members of the Army Board; and what alternative modes of transport are considered; [139870]

(2) whether his Department issues guidance on the use of helicopters for travel by non-ministerial members of the Army Board; and if he will make a statement. [139871]

Derek Twigg: Since February this year the tasking of all military flights, both fixed wing and helicopters has been controlled by a single organisation within the Ministry of Defence acting under central policy direction. This policy requires that a high level of scrutiny is applied to such flights and that a detailed case should accompany each application.

Factors such as time, route, destination, protocol and security are considered, as well as the status of the customer, the availability of other, more cost-effective, methods of transport and the efficient use of our aircraft. Operational taskings always take priority over routine travel.

Army Board: Official Cars

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the criteria used for selecting cars used by non-ministerial members of the Army Board for use in the UK. [135910]

Derek Twigg: The principle guidance which sets out the criteria used for selecting cars used by non-ministerial members of the Army Board for use in the UK is contained in JSP 800, the Defence Movements and Transportation Regulations Volume 5—Road Transport. Chapter 2—First Edition Jan 2007. A copy of this guidance is available in the Library of the House. In addition, any requirements for specialised vehicles, such as armoured staff cars, are considered on a case-by-case basis.

Army: Greater London

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on entertainment by the General Officer Commanding London District in the last 12 months, broken down by event. [137438]

Derek Twigg: The total expenditure on Official Entertainment by the General Officer Commanding (GOC) London District in the financial year 2006-07 was £2,922.26. The expenditure broken down by function, is listed in the table as follows.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 843W, on Army: Greater London, if he will give a breakdown of the (a) staff and (b) maintenance costs as referred to in the answer. [138934]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 23 May 2007]: The current salary range for Ministry of Defence staff working in the household of the General Officer Commanding London District is shown in the following table.

Salary scales have been used for military staff and are indicative only. The original figure of £112,508.69 quoted for staff costs in FY 2005-06 included the costs of a driver. Drivers are appointment related rather than household related and should not have been included in household costs. They have therefore not been included in this answer. Actual salaries are being withheld on the grounds that they represent personal data under the meaning of the Data Protection Act 1998.

Salary details for those civilian staff that are employed by contractors are being withheld for reasons of commercial confidentiality.

Role	Rank	Salary range
House Sergeant	Sergeant	£27,000 to £34,000
Catering/Chef	Civilian
Cleaning Assistant	Civilians

The figure of £4,701.76 previously provided under the generic heading "maintenance" contained £1,000 for planned maintenance. Invoices for planned maintenance totalled £1,036.02 therefore the total spend on maintenance was actually £4737.78. This covered a range of costs, broken down as follows:

Description of maintenance	£
Eradication of mice—initial visit	112.50
Eradication of mice—follow up visit	84.38

Description of maintenance	£
Chimney repairs	1,060.00
Roof repairs	15.65
Shower repair	65.48
Renewal of waste pipes sinks and basins	115.66
Clean carpets to public areas	62.92
Renewal of shower hoses and sprays	59.94
Shower repair	17.68
Remove and later re-fix bath panels	15.26
Renewal of worktops, seal wall joint and make good wall tiling	202.11
Renewal of chromium plated metal support leg to worktop	20.79
Remake bath panel frame	32.74
Check system/rectify faults	316.00

Army: Manpower

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 142W, on the Army: manpower, what the cost was of training the cook in the household of the General Officer Commanding Northern Ireland. [136115]

Derek Twigg: The Chef has been trained as a Corporal Chef Royal Logistics Corps at a cost of £16,500.

Army: North East Economic Forum

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of the Chief of the General Staff's travel to and from the North East Economic Forum. [139861]

Derek Twigg: The cost of the Chief of the General Staff's travel to and from the North East Economic Forum was £1,976.65. This figure is broken down as follows:

Transport	From	To	Cost (£)
Helicopter	Minley	RAF Northolt	598.37
Plane	RAF Northolt	Teesside Airport	648.60
Plane	Teesside Airport	RAF Northolt	729.68
Total			1,976.65

The costs of staff cars cannot be broken down from the central budget and are therefore not included.

The costs of transport to and from other engagements during the day of the North East Economic Forum have not been included.

Astute Class Submarines

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration his Department is giving to further orders for Astute class submarines; and when he expects such considerations to be completed. [140999]

Mr. Ingram: Three Astute class submarines are on order with BAES (Submarine Solutions). I also refer my hon. Friend to my written ministerial statement of 21 May 2007, Official Report, columns 55-56WS, which confirmed the build of a fourth boat.

Further boat orders are being considered, subject to affordability. We are working with industry as part of the Defence Industrial Strategy to achieve an affordable and sustainable submarine programme.

Bermuda Regiment

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the evidential basis was for Colonel Baxter's statement in his Fitness for Role Inspection Report of November 2005 into the Bermuda Regiment that it was readily apparent to the Royal Party that the Regiment were seven minutes late at the ceremony convening the Bermuda Legislature in 2005; and if he will make a statement. [111608]

Mr. Ingram: The Inspection Team had a specific remit to comment on the Bermuda Regiment's ability to perform the ceremonial duties demanded of it. The timings of and performance on both the rehearsal and the actual parade were therefore accurately noted. The principal members of the Royal Party were HRH the Duke of York and HE the Governor of Bermuda. The landau had to progress slowly and then pause between Government House and the Cabinet Office while the gun salute, delayed while the regiment took up post, was completed.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2007, Official Report, column 1260W, on the annual personal weapons test, what figures for shooting standards in part-time military organisations in the UK Colonel Baxter used to reach his conclusion in paragraph 9 of the Fitness for Role Inspection Report of November 2005 relating to the Bermuda Regiment that the shooting standards in the regiment were consistent with other part-time military organisations in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [111613]

Mr. Ingram: The Inspection Team put 46 soldiers (11 per cent.) through their annual personal weapons test over the two days of the inspection, without prior notice and without the individual soldiers having a chance to practise. The team had no exact UK figures as comparators but used its collective military judgment and experience as the basis of their comment: "Although low, this pass rate is consistent with other part time organizations in the UK". The team had some experience of serving with the TA and with the Home Service Part-Time element of the Royal Irish Regiment (and Ulster Defence Regiment before) as well as considerable experience with regular soldiers. It felt that a 70 per cent. "first time" pass rate was probably comparable to (but not quite as good as) that likely to be achieved by part-time British soldiers faced with an equivalent unrehearsed, no-notice test. It also noted that the pass rate would be improved by regular practice.

Chinook Helicopters

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how long the Enhanced Flying Package for Mark 2 Chinooks is expected to remain in service. [141766]

Mr. Ingram: I have taken this question to be relating to the "night enhancement package" (NEP) which was fitted as an urgent operational requirement (UOR) to parts of our Chinook fleet as an aid to pilots in low light levels. Equipments acquired under UOR arrangements are only fitted for the period of the particular military operation for which they were needed, unless a subsequent decision is taken that the requirement is enduring. We are currently reviewing the long term requirement for the NEP.

CMT Dynamics

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) value, (b) purpose and (c) date was of each payment made by his Department to CMT Dynamics since 1997. [141312]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence Financial Management Shared Service Centre has no record of any payments being made to CMT Dynamics.

Departments: BAE Systems

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many current members of the board of BAE Systems have previously worked for his Department; and in what capacity. [141316]

Mr. Ingram: According to our records, none of the current Board of Directors of BAE Systems have worked previously for the Department.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140780]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence collects and collates information on: energy used in its buildings; quantities of aviation, marine and ground fuels supplied to the armed forces and for their logistical support; and road and air mileage travelled by military and civilian personnel and ministers on business. This information is converted to carbon dioxide equivalent emissions using the Government's conversion factors and reported each year in the Department's Sustainable Development Report. Building emissions data are validated by the Building Research Establishment and provided annually to the Sustainable Development Commission for its assessment of the Department's performance against the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate energy efficiency and carbon dioxide emissions reduction targets.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139209]

Derek Twigg: The definition of 'found to have been in breach' can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the Courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140120]

Des Browne: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Pendle

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenditure is planned to be carried out in Pendle by his Department in the years up to 2010; and if he will make a statement. [120614]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence does not plan its expenditure on a regional basis.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what properties his Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139360]

Derek Twigg: Details of properties owned by the Ministry of Defence in the relevant period that are valued at over £1 million can be found in the national assets register, copies of which are available in the Library of the House or at www.official-documents.gov.uk.

Information on properties owned that are below £1 million in value is not held centrally and will take time to collate. Details of properties rented by this Department are not held centrally and it will need to be determined whether the information can be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio. [139382]

Derek Twigg: The 2005-06 Departmental Resource Accounts show the net book value of land and buildings at 31 March 2006 as follows:

	Value (£)
Dwellings	2,912,696,000
Other land and buildings	15,543,467,000

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of leasing buildings and office space was for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139473]

Derek Twigg: The details requested are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139910]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will examine the merits of extending eligibility for the HM armed forces veterans badge to personnel involved in conflicts since 1984; and if he will make a statement. [141503]

Derek Twigg: Over 460,000 veterans badges have been issued since it was launched in 2004 and it is my intention that all armed forces veterans should receive their badge at the earliest opportunity. However, for practical reasons relating to the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency's capacity to handle demand, this has had to be done in stages, commencing with those who served first. Further extensions of eligibility to apply for the badge will follow as soon as practicable.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the principal militias identified as involved in insurgency attacks on UK service personnel in Iraq, together with their known leaders. [139148]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: A small number of individuals are involved in attacks against UK forces deployed on operations in southern Iraq. While some claim membership of a range of militia groups, we assess that the majority of these individuals are affiliated to the militant and extremist elements of Muqtada al Sadr's Jaysh al-Mahdi.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he intends to make publicly available captured (a) munitions and (b) documentation indicating Iranian involvement in insurgency attacks on UK service personnel in Iraq. [139150]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: I am withholding this information as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

Joint Exercises: Kuwait

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any British military personnel took part in United States Lt. General David McKiernan's evaluation exercise Lucky Warrior, conducted in Kuwait in November 2002; whether any outcome of this exercise was passed to British military commanders; and if he will make a statement. [139084]

Des Browne: Records indicate that consideration was given to limited British military involvement in exercise Lucky Warrior, conducted in Kuwait in November 2002, but do not show whether this actually happened. There are no records of any subsequent communication about it to British military commanders. However, 201 Signal Squadron took part in the next Lucky Warrior exercise, in early 2003.

Lynx Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK forces Lynx helicopters are in (a) the UK, (b) Germany, (c) North America, (d) Southern and Central America, (e) Iraq, (f) Afghanistan, (g) Africa and (h) on board Royal Naval vessels. [137381]

Mr. Ingram: I am withholding information about military capability, including numbers of specific aircraft deployed on operations, as it would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to reply to question 127539, tabled by the hon. Member for North Durham on 12 March. [138516]

Des Browne: I replied to my hon. Friend today.

Military Aircraft: Russia

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions RAF aircraft have intercepted Russian military flights in or near British airspace in the last 12 months. [141246]

Des Browne: Twice.

Nimrod Aircraft

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Kapton wiring is used in the Yellow Gate system in place in Nimrod aircraft; when this system was fitted in Nimrods; what wiring is used on other Nimrod electrical systems; and if he will make a statement. [140911]

Mr. Ingram: Kapton wiring is not used in the Yellow Gate system on the Nimrod aircraft but KTCL, a hybrid Kapton wiring, was introduced on the Nimrod MR2 as a part of the Yellow Gate modification programme during the period 1980 to 1985. The wiring used in the electrical systems of the Nimrod MR2 and R1 consists of: Nyvin, Minyvin, Efglas, KTCL, Febsil, ACT260, Raychem 44A and Raychem 55A.

Nuclear Submarines: Scotland

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department has investigated potential scenarios for the basing of nuclear submarines, including Trident, in locations other than Scotland. [140998]

Mr. Ingram: The Royal Navy's nuclear powered submarine fleets, SSN and SSBN, are currently base ported at HM Naval Base Devonport and HM Naval Base Clyde. As announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on 18 September 2006, we are, as part of the Defence Industrial Strategy, conducting a Naval Base Review to ensure that we have the right Naval Base infrastructure to meet the needs of the future fleet. No decisions have yet been taken. However, there are currently no plans to change Naval Base Clyde as the home base of the nuclear deterrent or Devonport as the supporting dockyard.

Nuclear Weapons

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the next generation of the nuclear deterrent since Parliament approved it in principle. [139152]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Since Parliament voted on 14 March to support the Government's decisions, as set out in the White Paper: The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent (Cm 6994), to take the steps necessary to maintain the UK's nuclear deterrent beyond the life of the current system, work has started mobilising MOD and industry to undertake the detailed concept phase for the new class of submarines and on taking forward the UK's participation in the programme to extend the life of the Trident D5 missile.

Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what urgent statements of user requirement were made by commanders in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each of the last five years. [138789]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 154-56W, to the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock). I am withholding details of individual Urgent Statements of User Requirements as the information would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many days of leave in total have been lost by armed forces personnel due to delays in flights from Afghanistan to the UK in each month since the launch of Operation Herrick; [139768]

(2) how many days of leave in total have been lost by armed forces personnel due to delays in flights from Iraq to the UK in each month since the launch of Operation Telic. [139771]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Post-Operational Leave (POL) is additional to an individual's annual leave allowance. A period of POL is only considered to have started after an individual has completed the operational tour and returned to the UK, and therefore it would not be diminished due to any flight delays.

Rest and Recuperation (R and R) is also in addition to an individual's annual leave allowance and is taken in the course of an operational tour. It is a fixed period which includes travel time, and therefore the time spent at home could be diminished where delays occur in travelling. When appropriate, R and R can be extended at the discretion of the commanding officer if time has been lost due to travel delays; this decision will be made on the basis of the current operational tempo and the impact that such an extension might have. Records are not held of the impact delays have had on individuals' R and R, and the information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

RFA Fort Victoria

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to place RFA Fort Victoria into reserve; and what plans he has to replace her medical facilities in the active fleet. [140997]

Mr. Ingram: RFA Fort Victoria is not in reserve. She remains within the Fleet operational cycle and is not planned to be taken out of service until 2019. RFA Fort Victoria has a medical technician and a sickbay on board. She does not provide medical support for the Fleet.

Russia: Nuclear Weapons

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had on recent ICBM tests undertaken by Russia; what assessment he has made of the implications of such tests for UK defence policy; and if he will make a statement. [140710]

Des Browne [holding answer 7 June 2007]: I have had no such discussions. The tests have no significant implications for UK defence policy, as Russia already possesses multiple warhead ICBMs. The tests do not represent an introduction of a new capability, but a gradual replacement and enhancement of an existing one.

Sierra Leone: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 December 2006, Official Report, column 1096W, on casualty reporting, what progress has been made on reconciling casualty data for operations in (a) Sierra Leone and (b) the Balkans since May 1997. [139622]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Historical data on fatalities and casualties for major ongoing operations in Afghanistan and Iraq have now been reconciled and validated. This information is published and updated regularly and can be found at http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets, along with details of fatalities for operations in the Balkans.

Work to date on the compilation and reconciliation of historical casualty data from the Balkans and from other theatres (including Sierra Leone), has indicated that further data collection and analysis is required in order to provide a sufficiently validated product and the focus is on compiling data over the period since January 2001. When this work is complete it will be placed in the public domain.

Warships: Procurement

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to order the seventh and eighth Type 45 destroyers. [141000]

Mr. Ingram: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 537W.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Audio Equipment: Health Hazards

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will bring forward proposals for a statutory warning to be published on the external packaging of personal audio equipment to inform consumers about risks to their hearing. [139154]

Margaret Hodge: It is already widely understood that playing personal audio equipment too loud can damage your hearing. This is usually mentioned as a safety warning in the product instructions. It is not clear what would be achieved by repeating the message on the external packaging.

These products are increasingly being supplied with software controls for limiting volume which parents can set for their children under a security code. Personal audio equipment intended solely for children is already limited to safe volume levels in line with harmonised European standard EN 71-1.

Breast Feeding

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many prosecutions of employers there were for failing to provide breaks for female employees who are breastfeeding after the birth of a child in each of the past 10 years. [139607]

Mrs. McGuire: I have been asked to reply.

There is no legal requirement to provide breaks for female employees who are breastfeeding. Therefore, there have been no prosecutions.

Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he has taken to carry out the duty placed upon him by section 21 of the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 since the passage of that Act. [138721]

Malcolm Wicks: As stated in the recently-published Energy White Paper, the Government are committed to promoting the use of renewable heat.

Many policies are already in place to help reduce carbon dioxide emissions from heat including the climate change levy, tax incentives for combined heat and power, the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, and the energy efficiency commitment. Support has also been made available through the Low Carbon Buildings Programme and the Bioenergy Capital Grants Scheme.

DTI and DEFRA have commissioned a study by Ernst and Young into renewable heat and its potential to make significant carbon savings in the longer term. The study, which is in its final stages, will be published shortly.

The Government have also produced a Biomass Strategy and published it alongside the Energy White Paper. The Biomass Strategy identifies biomass heating as the most cost efficient use for energy and provides a framework for the development of biomass.

It is essential to consider the heat sector holistically and the Government are carrying out further work over the coming months into policy options that could further reduce the carbon impact of heat and its use in order to determine a strategy for heat.

Microgeneration

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking to reduce the cost of microgeneration equipment for domestic households. [140599]

Malcolm Wicks: The main mechanism for reducing the cost of microgeneration equipment for households is through the Low Carbon Buildings Phase I capital grant programme. The 2007 Budget announced a further £6 million to be added to the householder stream of this programme, bringing the total available to approximately £18.7 million.

We have also introduced legislation to make it easier for microgenerators to gain access to the monetary benefits of Renewable Obligation Certificates. And we are continuing to work with larger energy suppliers to ensure transparency of prices offered for exported electricity from microgenerators and to make technical changes that would help suppliers to cut administration costs and make it more cost-effective to offer export tariffs.

The Communities and Local Government Department have recently published a consultation setting out plans to make it easier for householders to install microgeneration equipment without having to go through the planning process and incurring the associated costs.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was raised from the sale of his Department's property in each of the last five years. [139308]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has only sold one property within the last five years and the amount received was £110,000 in financial year 2006-07.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was received by his Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139327]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has received the following income from letting its properties in the last five years;

	Income (£ million)
2003-04	2.32
2004-05	6.48
2005-06	6.57
2006-07	9.99

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what properties his Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139347]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has owned/leased the following buildings in the last five years:

Building	Tenure	Remarks
Core Store, Edinburgh	Freehold
Wrest Park, Bedfordshire	Freehold	Sold 2006
National Physics Laboratory, Teddington	Freehold
151 Buckingham Palace Road, London	Leasehold
Kingsgate House, London	Leasehold
1 Victoria Street, London	Leasehold
10 Victoria Street, London	Leasehold	Let to Home Office 2006
Westfield House, London	Leasehold
Elizabeth House, London	Leasehold	Vacated 2004
Oxford House, London	Leasehold	Vacated 2006
Newtown House, Nottingham	Leasehold	Acquired 2005
Amberley House, Gloucester	Leasehold	Acquired 2005
Abbey Orchard Street, London	Leasehold	Vacated 2005
2a Ryland Street, Warrington	Leasehold	Let to Pension Service
Atholl House, Aberdeen	Leasehold
Tay House, Glasgow	Leasehold
Queensway House, Billingham	Leasehold
St. Marys House, Sheffield	Leasehold

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio. [139366]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's most recent valuation of its property portfolio is £125.33 million.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139476]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The cost of leasing buildings is as follows:

	Value (£ million)
(a) The Department (HQ Estate)
2002-03	[1]
2003-04	28.6
2004-05	29.6
2006-07	30.2
(b) Agencies
2002-03	0.96
2003-04	0.96
2004-05	1.54
2005-06	1.54
2006-07	1.43

[1]Unable to provide figures for 2002-03 due to the disproportionate cost of obtaining this information.

The Insolvency Service have already responded directly.

Departments: Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people took sick leave for stress in his Department in the last 12 months; and what percentage of the total staff number this represents. [135465]

Jim Fitzpatrick: 107 people in the DTI took stress-related sick leave in the last 12 months. This represents 2.7 per cent. of the Department.

Departments: Smith Institute

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what payments were made to the Smith Institute as part of the Government's Review of Maternity Pay and Leave and Parental Leave. [141267]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As far as our records show no payments were made to the Smith Institute as part of the Government's review of maternity pay and leave and parental leave.

European Space Agency

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the membership is of the European Space Agency; how many UK citizens are represented in the agency; and at what levels. [141066]

Malcolm Wicks: The European Space Agency (ESA) has 17 foil member states: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom. Canada, Hungary and the Czech Republic also participate in some projects under co-operation agreements.

ESA employees are drawn from across the member states, ideally in proportion to the contribution of each state.

At 6 June 2007 there were 201 UK nationals employed by ESA:

'HC' band (programme director): 1

'A' band staff (senior managers, technical and administrative): 155

'B' band staff (administrators, technicians, secretarial): 33

'F' band staff (young graduate trainees): 9.

The 'ideal' figure for UK employees in the period 2007-10 and based upon the UK's contribution to the agency should be 256.

Food: Measurement

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to publish proposals for consolidating and simplifying the weights and measures provisions relating to food; and if he will make a statement. [140702]

Malcolm Wicks: We expect to publish proposals to consolidate and simplify the weights and measures provisions relating to food later this year. This will incorporate the implementation of a new European directive to deregulate most specified quantities for foods which is still subject to formal agreement in Brussels.

Media City Development Project: Finance

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what funding has been given to the Media City Development Project by (a) the Northwest Development Agency and (b) other Government agencies. [140086]

Margaret Hodge: NWDA will invest up to £30 million in specific public infrastructure and public realm elements of the "mediacity:uk" project and has recently entered into a funding agreement with Salford city council to this effect.

Metrication

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether traders may weigh, measure and price in imperial units only. [139732]

Malcolm Wicks: No. However, the use of imperial units alongside metric units is permitted by current legislation until 31 December 2009 provided they are not larger or more prominent than the metric units.

Mining: Methane

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much money from the public purse has been paid to companies who extract methane from former colliery sites. [140801]

Malcolm Wicks: I am not aware of any money from the public purse having been paid to such companies.

Nuclear Power Stations

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the nuclear industry on plans for new nuclear power stations. [139724]

Malcolm Wicks: DTI Ministers and officials had discussions with a range of interested parties in preparing for the current consultation on nuclear power, including with companies represented in the nuclear industry and in other energy sectors. The purpose of the discussions was to elicit views on the range of issues that would be relevant to considering whether energy companies should be allowed to invest in new nuclear power stations, in order to ensure that these issues, and issues raised by other interested parties, could inform the development of the consultation document.

Nuclear Power Stations: Decommissioning

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with the Office for Civil Nuclear Security on the adequacy of resources to vet drivers recruited by contractors carrying out the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority's decommissioning programme. [140388]

Malcolm Wicks: In order to comply with the Nuclear Industries Security Regulations 2003, transport companies which hold 'Approved Carrier' status to transport nuclear material must ensure that their drivers are security vetted to a level appropriate to the material they are transporting. Security vetting standards in the civil nuclear industry comply with national standards. The Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS) has adequate resources in their vetting office to meet current demand.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to paragraph 12-17 of the consultation paper on the future of nuclear power, when he expects (a) the final batch of spent nuclear fuel to be reprocessed at Sellafield and (b) the decommissioning of Sellafield's reprocessing plants to start. [140389]

Malcolm Wicks: The NDA Strategy, which was published in March 2006, noted that all current reprocessing contracts for THORP were expected to be completed by about 2010. However, given that the THORP plant has been closed since an incident in April 2005, it is not possible at this stage to say when the final batch of spent fuel will be reprocessed and the decommissioning of the THORP plant will commence. Decommissioning of the Magnox reprocessing plant is expected to begin in around 2016.

Nuclear Power: Public Participation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to ensure publication on receipt of all submissions made to the second round of consultation on nuclear power on his Department's website. [139959]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government will publish all submissions we receive in response to the current consultation on the future of nuclear power, with the exception of those cases where respondents have requested confidentiality. Submissions will be published online after the consultation has closed.

Nuclear Power: Research

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was spent by (a) his Department and (b) research councils on research and development for nuclear power in each year since 1996. [141045]

Malcolm Wicks: DTI has interest in research into power from both nuclear fusion and nuclear fission.

Responsibility for funding of nuclear fusion research was transferred from the DTI's Nuclear Industries Directorate to the Office of Science and Technology in April 2002, and then to the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) in April 2003. The amount of funding from 1995-96 until 2006-07 is given as follows.

1995-96	15.7
1996-97	12.1
1997-98	16.6
1998-99	12.6
1999-2000	14.3
2000-01	17.0
2001-02	14.4
2002-03	14.8
2003-04	15.9
2004-05	22.7
2006-07	25.7

Government expenditure (excluding spending by the Research Councils) on nuclear fission research is as follows:

1995-96	6.0
1996-97	9.3
1998-99	1.6
1999-2000	2.5
2000-01	0.0
2001-02	2.0
2002-03	2.1
2003-04	2.1
2004-05	2.2
2005-06	2.3
2006-07	2.4

Expenditure by the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council on nuclear fission research is as follows:

1995-96	n/a
1996-97	n/a
1997-98	0.04
1998-99	0.08
1999-2000	0.06
2000-01	0.13
2001-02	0.33
2002-03	0.31
2003-04	0.21
2004-05	0.11
2005-06	0.95
2006-07	3.93

Nuclear Power: Security

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what account was taken of submissions to the Energy Review 2006 on nuclear security matters in preparation of paragraphs 6.26 to 6.42 of Chapter 6 of the consultation document on the future of nuclear power. [140567]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government considered information gathered from a wide range of sources, including from the security regulator, the Office for Civil Nuclear Security, in preparing, 'The Future of Nuclear Power, The Role of Nuclear Power in a Low Carbon Economy, Consultation Document, May 2007'.

Oxford-Cambridge Arc

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much his Department has paid Bedfordshire county council in respect of the Oxford-Cambridge Arc. [139986]

Margaret Hodge: No money has been paid directly to Bedfordshire county council in respect of the Oxford-Cambridge Arc.

Along with SEEDA and EMDA, BED A has awarded £70,000 per year over a three year period to Milton Keynes Economic and Learning Partnership to support the Oxford to Cambridge Arc. The funding is used to administer the Oxford to Cambridge Arc Company Ltd.

This company has been established to promote innovation and enterprise in the area between Oxford and Cambridge. The area includes the Milton Keynes South Midlands Growth Area. It aims to support the growth of both Oxford and Cambridge as well as the use of those global brands to support economic development in the Arc, including at Milton Keynes and Bedford.

The funding was given to support the appointment of a director to lead the company and undertake some project work.

Post Offices: Rushden

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the closure of the post office in Rushden town centre against the Government's access criteria. [141473]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Decisions on individual post office branches are operational matters for which the management of Post Office Ltd (POL) have direct responsibility. I understand that the branch will close on 11 June 2007 following the decision by POL's current partners Budgen Stores Ltd to withdraw from providing post office services at the site. I also understand that POL are committed to maintaining a branch in this location and they have two prospective applicants, with suitable premises, currently progressing through their application process. During the period of temporary closure POL's customers are free to visit the branch most convenient to them and I understand that there are several branches in the surrounding area.

Power Stations: Planning Permission

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how long was spent considering the planning applications for each advanced gas-cooled reactor power station; and how long each took from the commencement of building work to reach design output. [140219]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 4 June 2007]: This information is not to hand in the Department given the length of time since advanced gas cooled reactor power stations were approved and constructed.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has for the disposal of nuclear waste. [140355]

Malcolm Wicks: In October 2006, the Government responded to the recommendations of the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM), and accepted that geological disposal coupled with safe and secure interim storage is the way forward for the long-term management of the UK's higher activity radioactive wastes. Government also confirmed they are supportive of exploring an approach based on voluntarism and partnership with local communities. A consultation on the framework for implementing geological disposal is due to be launched during summer 2007.

If, as a result of the current consultation on "The Future of Nuclear Power", Government conclude that nuclear has a role to play in the UK, the Government consider that geological disposal and robust interim storage would also be the best solution for dealing with waste from any new nuclear power stations.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to paragraph 8.2 of the consultation paper on the future of nuclear power, for what reasons he decided to propose co-disposal of legacy and new radioactive waste arising in the same repository facilities; and what account he took of the advice of the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management on this matter as presented to Government in July 2006. [140563]

Malcolm Wicks: If, as a result of the current consultation on 'The Future of Nuclear Power', Government conclude that nuclear has a role to play in the UK, Government consider it to be technically possible and desirable to dispose of both new and legacy waste in the same geological disposal facilities, based on evidence from the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) and overseas waste management programmes.

Advice from the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM) has been taken into account and is discussed in chapter 8 of 'The Future of Nuclear Power'. In particular, the committee drew attention to the important ethical issues around whether to create new nuclear waste. The Government intend that these ethical issues should be considered through the consultation 'The Future of Nuclear Power' launched on 23 May 2007.

As part of the Government's Managing Radioactive Safely (MRWS) programme, a consultation outlining the implementation framework for geological disposal is due to be launched during summer 2007.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what proposals he has to make nuclear plant operators meet the cost of (a) insurance, (b) support provided without cost recovery by the environmental and safety regulators and (c) research and development done on radioactive waste and nuclear decommissioning by Government departments, the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority and the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management. [140566]

Malcolm Wicks: As far as existing nuclear operators are concerned, the Nuclear Installations Act (which implements the UK's obligations under the Paris Convention on Third Party Liability in the Field of Nuclear Energy and the supplementary Brussels Convention) channels liability for incidents to operators, requiring them to maintain insurance or other security to meet potential claims. But these Conventions have recently been revised, and Government are now considering how best to bring the amendments into UK law. The proposals for doing this, on which we anticipate consulting in due course, will have implications for both existing operators and any new owners or operators of nuclear plant.

The environmental and safety regulators already recover the majority of costs in respect of nuclear regulation from operators. There are no proposals to change these existing cost recovery schemes. The HSE is proposing to introduce regulations to recover costs relating to design assessment. The Environment Agency will recover its costs for design assessment, if required, through an agreement with the requesting party under Section 37 of the Environment Act 1995.

The current consultation on "The Future of Nuclear Power" sets out that if Government conclude that nuclear has a role to play in the future UK energy mix, owners/operators of any new nuclear power stations would propose, develop, construct and operate any new plant and cover the full costs of decommissioning and their full share of waste management costs. There are no proposals to change the way in existing operators may fund research and development undertaken by Government departments, the NDA or CoRWM.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what responsibilities the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority has with regard to the setting of packing standards for radioactive waste; and if he will make a statement. [141121]

Malcolm Wicks: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) is responsible for delivering safe, sustainable and publicly acceptable solutions to the challenge of nuclear clean-up and waste management.

Radioactive waste needs to be treated (or 'conditioned') and packaged to make it safer for handling, storage and eventual disposal. The nuclear site licence holders (waste packagers) carry out the physical packaging of the waste and are responsible for the safety of their operations. They are required to demonstrate to the independent regulators that the risks to the public and the environment from these activities are reduced to as low as reasonably practicable.

In support of their safety cases for packaging of radioactive waste, the waste packagers seek advice from the new Radioactive Waste Management Directorate (RWMD) of the NDA. This is done under a system known as the 'Letter of Compliance' process whereby the suitability of waste packages for eventual disposal is assessed.

It is the independent regulators who take decisions on the acceptability of waste conditioning and packaging safety cases submitted to them. Responsibility for securing the safety of the public and the environment rests with the independent regulators—the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and the environment agencies (the Environment Agency, EA, in England and Wales and the Scottish Environment Protection Agency, SEPA, in Scotland).

Wind Power: Coastal Areas

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has for expenditure on offshore wind farms. [140356]

Malcolm Wicks: Government support renewables generation through the renewables obligation. We published a consultation on banding the renewables obligation on 23 May 2007. Banding will mean technologies such as offshore wind farms, which are at an earlier stage of development and face higher costs, will be given additional support allowing them to compete with well established technologies such as co-firing biomass in coal-fired power stations.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what objections have been made to (a) his Department and (b) other planning authorities to the siting of off-shore wind farms off the north east of England coast. [140600]

Malcolm Wicks: The two offshore wind farms off the north east coast for which consents have been sought are the Blyth development, which was built in 2000 and comprises two turbines, and the proposed Teesside project that would comprise a maximum of 30 turbines and which is the subject of an undetermined consent application.

Blyth was consented under the Food and Environment Protection Act and the Coast Protection Act and the Department for Trade and Industry was not, therefore, involved in the decision-making process. Consent applications for the proposed Teesside development are being considered under the Electricity Act, the Food and Environment Protection Act and the Coast Protection Act. Objections to that proposal have been received by my Department, on behalf of the DTI and Defra, from a number of organisations and individuals. The objections will be considered by the Secretary of State in taking his decision on whether to grant consent for the project.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of offshore windfarms. [140601]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government published the White Paper on Energy: "Meeting the Energy Challenge": on 23 May 2007. The White Paper contains proposals to make it easier to connect to the electricity grid, band the Renewables Obligation (RO), and improve the planning consent process, all of which will help the development of offshore wind farm projects.

Banding the RO will mean technologies such as offshore wind, which are at an earlier stage of development and face higher costs, will be given additional support allowing them to compete with well established technologies such as co-firing biomass in coal-fired power stations.

It is also important to provide a long-term market for offshore renewables. The DTI and the Crown Estate have already run two competitions for the development rights for offshore wind farms, granting the rights for 29 offshore wind farms. The White Paper announced the Government's intention to provide regular opportunities for companies to bid for further development rights. The DTI is working with the Crown Estate to explore options for further large-scale offshore wind farms and intends to publish proposals by the end of the year.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the suitability of the North sea off the north east coast for the siting of offshore windfarms. [140602]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has begun to explore options with the Crown Estate, for the siting of further large-scale offshore renewables development. Any consideration of further programmes of commercial-scale offshore wind farms will be based on a strategic environmental assessment (SEA). It may also be necessary to undertake Appropriate Assessments, depending on the locations identified for a further programme. These assessment processes would include consultation with the renewables sector and other parties with interests in or responsibilities for the marine environment.

In the absence of any regional assessments of the suitability of siting offshore wind farms off the north east coast, DTI officials and their partners in DEFRA have been considering the suitability of two demonstration wind farm projects—Blyth (installed) and Teesside (consent application under consideration)—in that area on a case by case basis and taking account of relevant issues.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Charities: Fraud

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the statement of the Parliamentary Secretary in Westminster Hall on 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 324WH, what date has been set for a meeting of stakeholders to discuss bogus charity collection companies. [141499]

Edward Miliband: Since the debate, the issues have been discussed with Clothes Aid and other stakeholders. These include the Crown Prosecution Service, the Trading Standards Institute, the Advertising Standards Authority, the Office of Fair Trading, the Charity Commission, the Local Authorities Coordinators of Regulatory Services and the Association of Chief Police Officers, who have agreed to write to all chief constables to raise awareness of the issues relating to bogus charity collections and theft of charity donations.

Following these discussions with officials from the Office of the Third Sector, on June 18, we will be bringing together the key stakeholders and representatives of the sector to agree the next steps.

Charities: Gift Aid

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the recent levels of gift aid relief for charities. [141476]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Guildford (Anne Milton) on 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 794W.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139363]

Hilary Armstrong: For information about freehold properties owned by the Department, I refer you to the National Asset Register published by HM Treasury. The Department currently occupies leased properties in London at 9 Whitehall, 1 Horseguards Road, 35 Great Smith Street, 67 Tufton Street, 10 Great George Street and Dover House. Outside London, the Cabinet Office occupies leased properties at Grosvenor House, Basingstoke, Birchwood Park, Warrington, and the National Computing Centre, Manchester. Since 2006 the Cabinet Office has also been responsible for two floors at 77 Paradise Circus, Queensway, Birmingham, which provide accommodation for two executive non-departmental public bodies. In the last five years, the Cabinet Office has previously occupied leased property in London at Stockley House, 11 Belgrave Road, 7 St. James's Square and 2 Little Smith Street.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will place in the Library copies of her Department's employee surveys for (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [142027]

Hilary Armstrong: Staff surveys are valuable tools used by Departments to help them improve performance. The results of the 2005 Cabinet Office survey are available on the civil service website with comparison with 2004 results at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/news/staff_survey/index.asp

Intelligence Services: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the real terms percentage change in funding for the intelligence and security services was in each year since 1997. [133295]

The Prime Minister: I have been asked to reply.

The security and intelligence agencies are funded from the Single Intelligence Account (SIA). SIA Accounts are published annually; copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Party Leaders: Elections

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) if she will place in the Library all guidance given to special advisers regarding the deputy leadership of the Labour Party elections within the last six months; [140839]

(2) whether guidance has been issued to special advisers on activity relating to the Labour Party leadership and deputy leadership campaigns. [142470]

Hilary Armstrong: Guidance to Departments was issued by the Cabinet Secretary and placed in the Library for the reference of Members in December 2006 and May 2007. The Code of Conduct for Special Advisers is also relevant and is also available in the Library.

Project George

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2198W, on Project George (1) whether she expects the works to incur expenditure beyond that required for routine maintenance and repair; [141724]

(2) how many full-time equivalent staff and consultants are working on Project George. [141725]

Hilary Armstrong: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave him on 8 March 2007, Official Report, columns 2198-99W.

Voluntary Work

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, what progress her Department has made with establishing a British volunteering corps further to the Chancellor's announcement on 31 January 2005. [140006]

Edward Miliband: The independent youth-led charity v was launched on 8 May 2006 with the mission of delivering a step change in the quality, quantity and diversity of youth volunteering opportunities to engage and encourage 1 million more young people to volunteer within five years.

To date, v has created nearly 120,000 volunteering opportunities for young people through grant funded and match funded projects.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

City Academies

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what target he has set for the number of city academies to be established in England by May 2010. [140969]

Jim Knight: The Government are firmly committed to establishing 400 Academies over time. The formal target for 2010, as announced in the Government's five-year strategy for education of July 2004, is for 200 academies to be open or in the pipeline by 2010.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many academy schools (a) are taking students, (b) will open to students before the end of 2007, (c) have opened and (d) he has discussed with sponsors. [140972]

Jim Knight: There are 47 academies now open. We anticipate that a further 36 will open before the end of 2007. As part of progress towards the target of 400 academies, the Department is in discussion with sponsors, schools and local authorities about 47 open academies; 25 academy projects in their implementation phase; and 68 projects where the Secretary of State has agreed a formal expression of interest with a sponsor for an academy project.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills who decides whether an academy school has a sixth form; and how many academies have no sixth form. [140974]

Jim Knight: The general policy is for academies to be post-16 providers in their own right to address low participation rates by adding to the diversity and quality of local provision. Where an academy proposal does not include post-16 provision, the Government would need to be assured that arrangements for post-16 students leaving the academy are comparable to those which could be provided by the academy itself. If, during the course of the consultation process that all academy projects are subject to, convincing arguments were put forward as to why the community would benefit more from an 11 to 16 than an 11 to 18 academy, this would of course be taken into account on a case by case basis.

Of the 47 open academies, three have no post-16 provision.

City Academies: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of pupils at state city academies obtained five or more A*-C passes at GCSE in 2006. [141022]

Jim Knight [holding answer 7 June 2007]: 49.4 per cent. of pupils in academies achieved five or more A*-C passes at GCSE or equivalent in 2005/06. This percentage is based on number of pupils on roll at the end of Key Stage 4 in the 2005/06 academic year and includes attempts and achievements by these pupils in previous academic years. The establishments included are those 24 academies with GCSE results open in 2005/06.

City Academies: Special Educational Needs

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of pupils in each academy school have special educational needs; and what proportion of pupils take free school meals. [141034]

Jim Knight: The number and proportion of pupils with special educational needs (with and without a statement), and the number and proportion of pupils known to be entitled to free school meals in each of the 46 academies open in January 2007 is included in the following chart (sourced from School Census provisional data for January 2007).

City Academies: Sponsorship

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many academies are sponsored by (a) religious groups, (b) educational groups, (c) companies and (d) individuals. [140971]

Jim Knight: There are 47 academies now open. We do not classify sponsors according to whether they are religious groups, educational groups, companies and individuals as these categories will frequently overlap. Some academies have more than one sponsor, usually from more than one of the categories included in the question.

The list of open academies and their sponsors are included in the following table.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what promotional rights are available to a private sector company sponsoring a city academy. [140977]

Jim Knight: Funding Agreements for academies do not place any restrictions on promotional activities by sponsors. However, the use of data held by academies on individual pupils is restricted by the Data Protection Act.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) educational experience and (b) advisory staff he requires sponsors of academies to have; and how he assesses their ability to make an educational contribution to the schools they sponsor. [141046]

Jim Knight: Sponsors come from a wide range of backgrounds, including universities, educational foundations, businesses, individuals and faith communities. There is no set requirement of prior educational experience, nor a requirement for specific advisory staff. The suitability of sponsors and their ability to make a significant contribution to the academies programme is assessed during the process of brokering a project before an expression of interest is agreed by the Secretary of State.

The Department carries out rigorous checks to establish the suitability of individuals and organisations wishing to become sponsors of academies. These include checking their financial viability to supply the funds pledged as well as their general suitability.

Potential sponsors should be able to demonstrate:

Transparency of business arrangements (both in the EU and overseas) and ability to account for funds (including donations from other parties);

Evidence of a successful business background including evidence of consistent and sustained trading (where appropriate);

A long-term commitment to the UK education sector and the aims of the academies programme;

Potential to run a successful school and to contribute towards raising standards;

Ability to enhance the reputation of the academies programme;

Ability to promote community cohesion;

Financial status commensurate with academy sponsorship and/or evidence of ability to raise the necessary funds.

Classroom Assistants: Mathematics

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what schemes are in place to support school pupils' mathematics education by using university students to mentor them; and how many pupils are participating in such schemes. [141266]

Jim Knight: The Department for Education and Skills currently funds, through the Training and Development Agency for Schools, the Student Associates Scheme. The scheme's twin aims are to encourage undergraduates into teacher training and to use the undergraduates as role models for school pupils with a view to increasing participation into higher education. Undergraduates spend up to 15 days in a school working with individual pupils, groups and whole classes. The majority of placements are in secondary priority shortage subjects. In the academic year 2006/07, we expect that, of a total of 7,955 potential allocated places, approximately 1,390 will be mathematics placements. Provisional allocations for the academic year 2007/08 suggest that the mathematics figure will arise to around 1,415.

Departments: Pressure Groups

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what meetings took place between Ministers in his Department and outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March; and what the date was of each such meeting. [131029]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State and Ministers had the following meetings with outside interest groups between 1 January and 31 March 2007:

Faith Schools

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many new faith schools have been established in the last 10 years; and what proportion of these schools receive state funding. [141087]

Jim Knight: Some 490 faith schools have been established since 1 January 1997. These comprise: 253 local authority maintained schools, 16 academies and 221 independent schools. A significant proportion of the maintained schools and academies were established in place of one or more closing faith schools. The local authority maintained schools and academies are funded from the public purse and, therefore, 55 per cent. of these new or replacement faith schools receive state funding.

Faith Schools: Catholicism

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children meeting the demonstration of faith criteria for acceptance to a Catholic secondary school were unable to obtain a place at a Catholic secondary school in (a) the London borough of Richmond-upon-Thames, (b) the London borough of Kingston-upon-Thames and (c) London as a whole in the last three years for which figures are available. [139943]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Faith Schools: Islam

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many Muslim faith schools there are; what estimate he has made of the likely number in 2010; and if he will make a statement. [141071]

Jim Knight: There are 123 Muslim faith schools open as at 5 June 2007. These comprise: 116 independent schools and seven voluntary aided schools, with a further three voluntary aided schools planned to open on 1 September 2007.

The provision of state school places is determined by each local authority, with the provision of independent school places being a matter for each business provider. As such, it is not possible to give an estimate of the number of Muslim schools in 2010.

Foster Care: Death

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many fatalities of young people in (a) foster and (b) residential care have taken place in England since 2000. [139796]

Mr. Dhanda: Information on the number of fatalities of young people in (a) foster and (b) residential care that have taken place in England since 2000 is not collected centrally by the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

Foundation Degrees

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of colleges which are likely to gain powers to award foundation degrees in each region by (a) 2010, (b) 2012 and (c) 2014. [140717]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 6 June]: The Department has not produced any estimate of the number of further education institutions that are likely to be granted foundation degree-awarding powers under proposals in the Further Education and Training Bill. However, it is likely that only a small number, mostly from the mixed economy group of colleges which currently provide 14 per cent. of all foundation degree provision, will be able to satisfy the criteria necessary to be awarded foundation degree-awarding powers.

Guidance issued to applicants will specify that an institution will be expected to have at least four years' experience, immediately prior to the year of application, of delivering higher education programmes at a level equivalent to the foundation degree. An applicant institution will also undergo a rigorous process of assessment by the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education. The required standards will be high, and it is to be expected that only top-performing further education institutions with a strong track record of delivering foundation degree courses will be recommended to the Privy Council for the powers to award foundation degrees.

GCE A-Level

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what average A-level results were obtained by pupils at (a) state city academies and (b) other schools at A-level in 2006. [141023]

Jim Knight [holding answer 7 June 2007]: The information required is in the following table.

2006 average Level 3 QCA point score for pupils attending academies and other schools

	Average QCA point score by candidates[1] achieving all Level 3 qualifications[2,3]
Academies	620.2
Schools excluding academies	768.3
All schools	767.8

[2] GCE or VCE A level or other Level 3 qualification equivalent in size to an A-level.
[3] Cumulative results obtained in academic years 2004/05 and 2005/06.

GCSEs

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 692W, on GCSEs, (1) what proportion of 15-year-olds attending (a) independent mainstream schools and (b) maintained mainstream schools achieved five or more GCSEs at A*-C including English and mathematics in each year since 1997 (i) in total and (ii) as a proportion of pupils entered for a full GCSE in both English and mathematics in each year since 1997; [130267]

(2) when he expects to answer question 130267, on GCSEs, tabled by the hon. member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton on 22 March 2007; [134335]

(3) when he will answer question 130267, on the educational attainment of 15-year-olds, tabled by the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton on 22 March 2007. [139095]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table.

	Percentage of 15-year-old[1] pupils at mainstream schools to get five or more A-C at GCSE including English and Mathematics*		Percentage of 15-year-old[1] pupils at mainstream schools to get five or more A-C at GCSE including English and Mathematics as a percentage of those to attempt a full GCSE in English and Mathematics*

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Science

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he has taken to evaluate (a) the 21st century science GCSEs and (b) other new syllabi. [141486]

Bill Rammell: As part of their remit to develop the 21st century GCSE, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority commissioned an evaluation of the pilot programme; the findings were published in 2005. An independent evaluation was also carried out by the University of Leeds, and published in February 2007.

These evaluations are helping to inform QCA's wide ranging evaluation of the changes made to the Key Stage 4 curriculum from September 2006, which is currently under way.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of (a) maintained, (b) specialist science, (c) grammar and (d) independent schools offer separate science GCSEs in physics, chemistry and biology. [141487]

Jim Knight: The Government collect information on schools that entered pupils for the three separate science GCSE examinations, rather than schools which offered these subjects. This information for pupils taking their exams in 2006 is summarised in the table.

If a school offers the three subjects, but pupils elect not to take them, the school will not be classified as offering the separate sciences.

School type[1]	Total number of schools	Schools offering separate science GCSEs, 2006	Percentage of schools offering separate science GCSEs
Independent[2]	615	408	66
Grammar	164	118	72
Science colleges	234	135	58
Other maintained mainstream schools	2,727	706	26
Total	3,740	1,367	37

[1] Schools are only included once in the first category that applies
[2] Only independent schools with more than 20 pupils at the end of KS4 and one or more pupils gaining 5+ A*-G (used as a proxy for offering GCSEs).

Head Lice

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what estimate he has made of the incidence of head lice amongst school children in England in each of the last five years; [141763]

(2) what guidance her Department provides to primary care trusts on head lice control; and how frequently such guidance is updated. [141751]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

Information on the incidence of head lice infestation is not collected centrally. Our policy, which is shared by the Department for Education and Skills, is to encourage a whole school approach. This entails encouraging parents to check their children and other family members for head lice as need arises and arranging treatment where necessary, with advice and support from the local primary health care team.

The Department has produced a leaflet containing guidance on the prevention and treatment of head lice.

The leaflet, which has recently been reprinted, is widely available from locations that include schools and general practitioners surgeries and copies are available in the Library and at:

Head Teachers

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school head teachers resigned from their posts within 12 months of an Ofsted inspection in each of the last five years; [140737]

(2) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school head teachers in England and Wales left their posts prior to retirement age in each of the last five years. [140738]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The information is not available in the format requested.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with educational representatives on the reasons for recent trends in applications for headships of primary and secondary schools. [140736]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The Department does not collect data about the number of applications for headships. However, according to research undertaken by Howson[1], while there has been a decline in the number of applications for headships in primary schools between 2004-05 and 2005-06, there has been an increase in the number of applications in secondary schools. In addition, the Department's official statistics show that since 1997, head teacher vacancies have remained low and fairly stable. Provisional figures for 2007 show a fall in the head teacher vacancy rate from 0.8 per cent. in January 2006 to 0.6 per cent. in January 2007. However, we know that some types of schools such as church schools, schools in London and some small schools in rural areas find it harder to recruit senior staff than others and also that more heads are reaching retirement age.

Our focus is therefore on ensuring that we have sufficient numbers of high quality school leaders now and coming through the system for the future. The Secretary of State asked the National College for School Leadership (NCSL) for advice on succession planning and on the back of this announce an additional £10 million to support their work in this area. In preparing the advice, the NCSL have consulted widely with schools, school leaders, local authorities, dioceses, professional associations, and governor bodies. This included nine regional succession planning conferences, attended by over 500 school leaders and an ongoing Succession Planning Advisory Group with senior education representatives which meets regularly. The Department also commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to conduct an independent study into school leadership, which reported in January.

Higher Education: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will estimate the number of (a) faculties, (b) chairs and (c) other facilities in relation to Islamic studies in universities which are funded from abroad. [141338]

Bill Rammell: This information is not collected centrally, but I have recently announced that we will work with the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) and the university sector to develop a comprehensive long term project to address the gaps in Islamic studies teaching and research. £1 million has been committed from HEFCE to start this work. By designating Islamic studies as a strategically important subject, we can help ensure that the study of Islamic studies within higher education is up to date and focuses on relevant issues, whatever the source of funding for particular faculties, chairs or other facilities.

Languages: Mandarin

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) pursuant to his answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1390W, on Mandarin if he will take steps to encourage schools to offer Mandarin as a subject at all levels; and what steps he is taking to increase the pool of teachers qualified to teach Mandarin; [141444]

(2) what discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on the teaching of Mandarin and its potential impact on the preparedness of the UK workforce for dealing with China; [141553]

(3) what steps his Department is taking to promote Mandarin to young people as an academic subject. [141555]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to my written reply of 14 May. We have now received the Qualification and Curriculum Authority's advice on the revised Key Stage 3 languages curriculum. We are considering that advice and will be responding shortly. Schools are already free to teach any language they choose at Key Stage 2.

We are working with partners, including the China National Office for Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language (Hanban), on a range of initiatives to promote the teaching of Mandarin at all levels, including high profile events such as the HSBC China Conference, and arranging for secondary school pupils from the UK to attend summer schools in China. The Training and Development Agency for schools is working with initial teacher training providers to develop their ability to offer more places for major world languages such as Mandarin within their PGCE programmes.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no recent discussions with Ministerial colleagues about the teaching of Mandarin and its impact for the UK workforce.

Learning and Skills Councils: Reorganisation

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the changes to staff numbers and structures which will result from the reorganisation of the learning and skills councils proposed in the Further Education and Training Bill. [139274]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Further Education and Training Bill makes provision to streamline the non-executive structure of the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) by removing the requirement to have local learning and skills councils (of which there are 47) and replacing them with new regional committees (to be known as regional councils, of which we intend there to be nine). It also removes the requirement to have an adult and young people's learning committee and reduces the minimum size of the LSC's national council. Overall the number of non-executives will reduce from around 750 to around 150.

The LSC has also been undergoing a restructuring exercise which will result in some 1,100 fewer staff posts across the whole of the organisation. This exercise is expected to be completed later this summer, and is important preparation for the LSC's role in implementing the reforms set out in the Further Education White Paper "Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances", and for taking forward the skills challenges identified in the Leitch Report.

Local Education Authorities: Worcestershire

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on what basis he has allocated funding to Worcestershire local education authority; and if he will make a statement. [141241]

Jim Knight: The core funding for schools is delivered through the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) which was introduced in 2006-07 following two public consultations in 2005. DSG is calculated using the spend plus methodology set out as follows.

Each local authority's total DSG for 2006-07 and 2007-08 was calculated by multiplying their full-time equivalent pupil numbers (aged three to 15) from the January 2006 and 2007 pupil counts by their DSG per pupil Guaranteed Unit of Funding. The DSG Guaranteed Unit of Funding is unchanged from that set in December 2005 and in:

2006-07 was based on spend per pupil in 2005-06, with: a basic increase of 5 per cent. per pupil (5.1 per cent. for London authorities); and headroom allocated to reflect five ministerial priorities.

2007-08 was based on the 2006-07 DSG Guaranteed Unit of Funding, with: a basic increase of 5 per cent. per pupil (5.1 per cent. for London authorities); and headroom allocated to reflect three ministerial priorities. See Jacqui Smith's statement to the House setting out the details (21 July 2005, Official Report, column 126-37WS).

We have just consulted on the DSG arrangements for 2008 to 2011. We are currently examining the consultation responses and we will announce details of the school funding system for 2008 to 2011 in the summer.

New Arrivals Excellence Programme: Somerset

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding from the New Arrivals Excellence programme has been made available to each local authority area in Somerset since the initiation of the programme. [141230]

Jim Knight: The New Arrivals Excellence Programme was announced in October 2006, with resources to be launched in July 2007. The programme does not devolve funding to local authorities but is a central resource, which local authorities, schools, specialist and mainstream teachers can look to for advice, guidance and 'signposting' towards the best training opportunities.

The programme will have a clear focus on helping local authorities and schools who have received a large number of new arrivals and where local authorities have little experience of working with those with little or no English. Outreach workers will be available as part of the programme, to provide additional focused support within those local authorities.

Materials available to local authorities will include a DVD of effective practice, a website and on-line forum and a training module. The programme will link securely with the work of the National Strategies, whose primary and secondary programmes are now expanding to include work on new arrivals.

Overseas Students

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects to publish a revised action plan for the implementation of the International Education Strategy. [139029]

Bill Rammell: Implementation of the International Education Strategy is on-going. An update to the action plan will be made available on the DfES Global Gateway and TeacherNet by the end of June.

Pre-school Education: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 17 May 2007, Official Report, columns 856-8W, on pre-school education: finance, what assessment he has made of whether local authorities are funding nursery providers equitably, fairly and transparently. [140658]

Beverley Hughes: The code of practice on the delivery of nursery education for three and four-year-olds requires local authorities to ensure settings are funded equitably, transparently and fairly, reflecting local need and circumstances. My letter in December 2006 to all local authority chief executives reiterated this point and asked them to reassure themselves that their funding levels support a diverse local child care market and take into account the impact on provider sustainability.

The Schools, Early Years and 14-16 Funding consultation which closed on 1 June set out a number of proposals for changes to the way the early years funding system operates. As part of our consideration of these options and to assess their impact, the Department is developing a more comprehensive evidence base of current practice around the country. We have asked all local authorities to complete a questionnaire, setting out how they allocate and distribute free entitlement funding to maintained schools and to private, voluntary and independent (PVI) providers. We are also working with authorities to produce estimates of the level of funding allocated to early years in each local authority and its distribution between the PVI and maintained sectors in 2005-06 and 2006-07.

We intend to collate and publish both the questionnaire responses and the levels of funding in each local authority so that authorities can benchmark their approaches to funding the free entitlement.

Pupil Exclusions: Education

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what discussions he had with Ministers in the (a) Department for Communities and Local Government and (b) Home Office on his Department's decision to require schools to provide full-time education for any pupil excluded for six days or longer; and if he will make a statement; [140751]

(2) what account was taken of the Government's (a) policy on localism and (b) Respect agenda before his Department's decision to require schools to provide full-time education for any pupil excluded for six days or longer; and if he will make a statement; [140758]

(3) what the basis was for his decision to require schools to provide full-time education for pupils excluded for six days or longer from September 2007; [140759]

(4) what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact on (a) numbers of exclusions and (b) school discipline of his decision to require schools to provide full-time education for pupils excluded for six days or longer; and if he will make a statement. [140761]

Jim Knight: The requirement for schools to provide full-time education for pupils excluded for more than six days was set out in the Schools White Paper "Higher Standards, Better Schools for All—More Choice for Parents and Pupils" on 25 October 2005 and enacted in the Education and Inspections Bill in February 2006. This was cleared with Cabinet colleagues including the Deputy Prime Minister, then responsible for local government, and the Home Secretary. Requiring schools and local authorities to provide education for pupils who have been excluded ensures that no child misses out on their education when excluded from school and that they are not left to wander the streets during schools hours, in line with the Respect agenda. This particular requirement is part of a range of powers and duties in the Education and Inspections Act 2006 and is intended to benefit pupils who are excluded rather than impact directly on school behaviour. We will be monitoring the volume and pattern of exclusions from September 2007 but do not expect to see significant changes as a result of the introduction of this requirement, as decisions about whether or not to exclude a pupil should only be taken in response to serious instances of misbehaviour as outlined in the school's behaviour policy. Real progress has been made since 1997 in tackling poor behaviour in schools. Ofsted indicate that pupil behaviour is good in most schools and permanent exclusions are 25 per cent. lower than in 1997.

Pupils: Intimidation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding was allocated to tackling bullying in schools in each financial year since 1997-98. [141379]

Jim Knight: The figures for the anti-bullying strand of the Improving Behaviour and Attendance Programme are given in the table:

2004/05	1,613,000
2005/06	1,145,000
2006/07	1,400,000
2007/08	1,700,000

Figures for earlier years are not available because the anti-bullying strand of behaviour work was not disaggregated.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which organisations his Department is working with to tackle bullying in schools; and in what year his Department commenced joint working with each such organisation. [141381]

Jim Knight: The Department works with a number of organisations to tackle bullying in schools. We have been working with and funding the following organisations:

Childline in Partnership with Schools (CHIPS) (since 2002);

Parentline Plus (since 2002);

Anti-Bullying Alliance (since 2004);

Diana Princess of Wales Awards Scheme (since 2004);

BeatBullying (since 2006);

Childnet International (since 2006).

In addition, we have also been working closely with the National Strategies in developing the SEAL strategy for social and emotional learning since 2003, and they are currently working with my Department and Ofsted to identify schools with weak and ineffective anti-bullying policies and to provide targeted support to those schools. And we are working with a number of internet service and mobile phone providers to see what we can all do to address cyber bullying among school pupils.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Ms Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department spent on education per pupil in Brent in (a) 1997 and (b) 2006. [140968]

Jim Knight: Total funding per school pupil aged 3-19 in 1997-98 was £3,840. In 2005-06, the latest information collected by the Department was £5,350.

Notes:

1. Price Base: Real terms at 2005-06 prices, based on GDP deflators as at 27 September 2006.

2. Figures reflect relevant sub-blocks of Standard Spending Assessment / Education Formula Spending (EFS) settlements and exclude the pensions transfer to EFS and LSC.

3. Total funding also includes all revenue grants in DfES Departmental Expenditure Limits relevant to pupils aged 3-19 and exclude education maintenance allowances (EMAs) and grants not allocated at LEA level.

4. The pupil numbers used to convert £ million figures to per pupil are those underlying the SSA/EFS settlement calculations plus PLASC 3-year-old maintained pupils and estimated 3 to 4-year-olds funded through state support in maintained and other educational institutions where these are not included in the SSA pupil numbers.

5. Rounding: Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

6. Status: Some of the grant allocations have not been finalised. If these do change, the effect on the funding figures is expected to be minimal.

Pupils: Special Educational Needs

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children were given an individual education plan in each of the last 10 years. [141221]

Jim Knight: Individual education plans (IEPs), although recommended by the Special Educational Needs Code of Practice, are not statutory. Information on how many children have IEPs is not collected centrally.

Regional Development Agencies: Standards

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with regional development agencies on setting regional targets and priorities for skills. [141247]

Bill Rammell: RDA chairs meet Government Ministers, including DfES Ministers, regularly to discuss a range of RDA business including their role in skills.

RDA business priorities, including skills, are set out in the RDA Tasking Framework introduced in April 2005. Each RDA has agreed output targets for skills which include:

(a) the number of people assisted in their skills development as a result of RDA programmes;

(b) the number of adults gaining basic skills as part of the Skills for Life Strategy that count towards the Skills PSA Target;

(c) the number of adults in the workforce who lack a full level 2 or equivalent qualification who are supported in achieving at least a full level 2 qualification or equivalent.

As key members of Regional Skills Partnerships, RDAs have a central role in determining regional priorities on skills and report every six months on progress to DfES Ministers.

School Sanitary Provision

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 8 February 2006, Official Report, column 994W, on school sanitary provision, how many times he has directed (a) schools and (b) local education authorities to meet the regulations concerning the provision of school toilets and drinking water for pupils. [137376]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have record of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Skills having directed schools or local education authorities to meet the regulations concerning the provision of school toilets and drinking water for pupils.

Schools: Closures

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State, for Education and Skills what weight a local authority should give to a consistent rating of "excellent" when considering a small rural school for closure under a surplus places reduction strategy. [140876]

Jim Knight: Before publishing proposals to close a school a local authority must consult all interested parties on its proposals, including the school's staff, governors and parents, and other schools and local authorities likely to be affected. The authority must provide sufficient information and allow adequate time for those being consulted to form a view and make their views known, and it must take those views into account in deciding whether to go ahead and publish its proposals.

When deciding proposals to close a school the local authority must take account of statutory guidance issued by the Secretary of State. The guidance does not specify the weightings that decision-makers should apply to the various factors they take into account, but it makes clear that they must be satisfied that closing the school would contribute to raising the standard of provision locally and lead to improved attainment for children. The statutory guidance also includes a presumption against closing rural primary schools. Although this does not mean that no rural primary school will ever close, the case for closure needs to be strong.

Schools: Crime

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools recorded incidences of (i) theft, (ii) criminal damage and (iii) assault in each of the last 10 years; how many of these incidents were committed by (A) staff and (B) pupils; and how many of those incidents resulted in the removal of the perpetrator from the school in question. [140779]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

For the academic years 2003/04 and 2004/05 information is available on the reasons for pupil exclusions. These reasons include 'theft', 'damage' and 'physical assault against an adult or pupil'.

The tables provide a breakdown of the number of pupils who have been excluded for a fixed period or permanently from maintained primary and secondary schools for theft, damage and physical assault against an adult or pupil.

Maintained primary and secondary schools[1]: Number and percentage of fixed period exclusions for theft, damage and physical assault against an adult or pupil[2], 2003/04 and 2004/05, England

Schools: Fire Extinguishers

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding he plans to make available for sprinkler systems in schools in (a) Richmond upon Thames, (b) the Royal Borough of Kingston upon Thames and (c) London. [140813]

Jim Knight: We do not propose to provide additional funding for the provision of sprinkler systems in new schools. An analysis of recently completed secondary schools showed that with good design and effective project management it is possible to cover the costs of sprinklers within existing funding.

It is our expectation that all new schools will have fire sprinklers installed, but this is subject to a risk assessment.

Schools: Sanitation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what steps his Department is taking to inform (a) local education authorities, (b) governors and (c) schools of their responsibility for ensuring the standard and cleanliness of school toilet facilities; [141077]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to ensure that (a) local education authorities, (b) governors and (c) schools are made aware of the recently published guidance on school toilets issued as part of the Building Schools for the Future programme; [141078]

(3) what plans he has to monitor improvements in the provision of school toilets as a result of the recently published guidance on school toilets. [141079]

Jim Knight: The day-to-day responsibility for ensuring the standard of cleanliness of school toilet facilities lies with the school governors with, in general, the local authorities having an overarching responsibility. This is laid out within the Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999, SI No.2 1999.

The guidance referred to in PQ 141078 is 'Standard Specifications, Layouts and Dimensions SSLD 3: Toilets in Schools'. This guidance has been developed to inform the building schools for the future (BSF) programme. It sets out standards of performance for toilet facilities and shows how they might be delivered through design examples. The aim of the SSLD series of specifications is to disseminate best practice and avoid "reinventing the wheel" every time a school building is designed so that consistently high quality environments can be delivered, offering best whole-life value for money. The new guidelines also seek to address the issue of bullying in toilet blocks, helping ensure that cramped, dirty and vandalised toilets become a thing of the past. Toilets in BSF schools will no longer provide bullies with places that lend themselves all too readily to antisocial behaviours.

School building clients, their professional advisers, contractors and their supply chains will use the guidance at the early stages of a project's development whether for new build, extension or refurbishment.

The guidance was published on both the Department[1] and Partnerships for Schools' websites and local authorities will be informed through newsletters that the guidance exists. The guidance is being reflected in the BSF standard documentation. The published guidance applies to new toilet facilities only.

The Department has no plans to monitor improvements in provision of school toilets.

Secondary Education

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on how many occasions his Department has issued (a) directives, (b) requirements and (c) advice to (i) primary schools and (ii) secondary schools in the last 12 months. [138853]

Jim Knight: The Department only sends information automatically to schools in England in exceptional cases having stopped regular paper mailings in December 2004.

Discussions with head teachers and detailed research showed that schools wanted to be able to choose the printed publications they needed, when they needed them, and to be able to order multiple copies.

Instead, the Department has successfully introduced an online ordering service where schools are able to either download or order paper based copies of publications including guidance. A regular fortnightly e-mail is sent to schools to inform them of new publications. In addition, Spectrum provides schools, head teachers and chairs of governors with a summary of all the latest resources, publications, guidance and regulations. It is available online and can also be requested in paper copy.

Students: Loans

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when the departmental inquiry on student loan fraud took place; what its nature was; who conducted it; what its scope and duration was; and when he expects to report its findings to the House. [140576]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 June 2007]: We constantly review procedures to ensure we can prevent and detect fraud, while making it straightforward for genuine students to obtain the funds they need to pursue their studies.

Over the last year, DfES officials—in conjunction with the student loans company and local authorities—have investigated a number of cases of suspected fraud, including some involving the use of stolen birth certificates to create false identities, which resulted in successful prosecutions. Alongside this the NHS Counter Fraud and Security Management Service has estimated the fraud rate for student support at around 0.6 per cent. of applications in 2005/06. We will work to reduce it further, but it is appreciably lower than other similar systems which involve payments.

Targeted Capital Fund

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether the Targeted Capital Fund will be accepting applications in the 2008-09 financial year. [141500]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is considering his priorities for capital investment for 2008-09 to 2010-11, including the Targeted Capital Fund. As part of that, the focus and operation of the Targeted Capital Fund are under review. This is to ensure that investment best meets national education objectives, such as school kitchens to support healthy eating.

We will announce our capital programmes later this year, together with the arrangements for the Targeted Capital Fund.

Teachers: Sustainable Development

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will make it his policy to ensure that training courses for new teachers and headteachers include learning about sustainable development; [141192]

(2) if he will make changes to schools' curriculums to include more content about sustainable development; [141193]

(3) what support his Department provides for the eco-schools programme; and if he will adopt a target to make every school an eco-school; [141194]

(4) if he will introduce beacon school status for those schools which put sustainable development into practice; [141195]

(5) if he will make it his policy to require Ofsted (a) to inspect and (b) to report on schools' commitment to sustainable development in (i) teaching and (ii) property management. [141208]

Jim Knight: Building on school workforce remodelling and the reform of teachers' pay, we are working with social partners to deliver a new teacher professionalism in which all teachers are engaged in ongoing professional development that takes account of individual development needs, career aspirations and school's improvement priorities, along with national, regional and local priorities. Sustainable development can easily be incorporated into courses as part of a qualified teacher's professional development.

The National College for School Leadership already covers learning on sustainable development on the National Professional Qualification for Headship (NPQH) as part of 'Developing a Strategic Educational Vision for the School'. The NPQH will be a mandatory qualification for new head teachers from April 2009.

Sustainable development is already a statutory part of the National Curriculum in citizenship, design and technology, geography and science. The current review of the secondary curriculum will mean that there is a sharper focus on sustainable development in these subjects. QCA will be developing supporting material to demonstrate how sustainable development can be taught across the curriculum.

Beacon school status was phased out in 2005 as part of a streamlining of existing programmes. The Government wants all schools to put sustainable development into practice and is encouraging them to do so through the current sustainable schools year of action. We value award schemes like Eco-schools and also local schemes such as Sandwell's Sustainable Schools Charter. DEFRA has provided £65,000 this year to the Eco-schools programme. The Department has no plans to adopt an Eco-schools target but all schools are encouraged to be sustainable schools by 2020.

We believe that school inspection should recognise where the efforts made to create sustainable schools are having a significant impact on a school's overall effectiveness.

As stated in 'Sustainable Schools for Pupils, Communities and the Environment – an action plan for the DfES', published in March 2007, we will be discussing with Ofsted how best to ensure that sustainable development is recognised during school inspections. The Department has developed a tool linked to the Ofsted self-evaluation form to enable schools to record and report their efforts on sustainable development. Sustainable Development is an important part of value for money in property management and as such should already be factored into inspectors' judgments.

Vocational Education: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to replace the access course in Gloucestershire in order to provide trainees with sufficient skills to progress from education to employment. [139286]

Bill Rammell: The LSC will be continuing to fund engagement provision throughout Gloucestershire in 2007/08 aimed at the same vulnerable learners that have been provided for through the access course. The local partnership team will shortly begin contracting discussions to take the work forward.

Written Questions: Administrative Delays

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects to answer questions (a) 115508 on GCSEs tabled on 10 January 2007, (b) 116080 on GCSEs tabled on 11 January 2007, (c) 115509 on GCSEs tabled on 10 January 2007, (d) 117405 on GCSEs tabled on 17 January 2007, (e) 110498 on history and geography tabled on 17 January 2007, (f) 110756 on data security in schools tabled on 18 January 2007, (g) 110754 on the e-Learning credits tabled on 18 January 2007, (h) 110753 on e-Learning credits tabled on 18 January 2007, (i) 112155 on the 14 to 19 implementation plans tabled on 24 January 2007, (j) 117653 on GCSE results tabled on 25 January 2007, (k) 117650 on GCSEs tabled on 25 January 2007, (l) 117655 on GCSEs tabled on 25 January 2007 and (m) 117654 on GCSEs tabled on 25 January 2007, by the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton. [122125]

Young People: Sexual Offences

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on therapeutic services for children and young people who display sexually harmful behaviour in 2006-07. [140586]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

This specific information is not available. However, improving Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services (CAMHS) is a priority for the Government. The commitment to improve CAMHS is backed up by significant additional funding, with over £400 million in the four years to March 2007 made available to local authorities and the NHS. Over £100 million has also been made available for 2007-08. An element of these funds will have been used on services for young people who have sexually abused and who need CAMHS.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans the Government have to promote and implement the new national strategy on young people who sexually harm others. [140609]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The development of a cross Government National Policy Framework for the development of services for young people who sexually abuse is being led by the Department of Health and the Ministry of Justice. The framework will aim to use existing resources in a more coherent and consistent approach. A major focus is to build on and bring together what is known about the best practice and most effective treatment interventions so that practitioners at the local level can share these and define responsibilities more clearly. The intention is to publish this document by the end of the year.

Youth Opportunity Fund

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 15 May 2007, Official Report, columns 672-75W, on the Youth Opportunity Fund, which local authorities made unsuccessful applications for funding from the (a) Youth Opportunity Fund and (b) Youth Capital Fund in each of the last two years; and for what reasons their applications were unsuccessful. [140656]

Mr. Dhanda: No local authorities have been refused funding. Every local authority in England receives a grant funding allocation, based on the size of the local 13-19 population and indices of deprivation. It is up to the local authority to operate the funds within the conditions of the grant.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 15 May 2007, Official Report, columns 672-5W, on the Youth Opportunity Fund, what the reasons are for the regional disparities in local authority allocation for the (a) Youth Capital Fund and (b) Youth Opportunity Fund. [140657]

Mr. Dhanda: Funds are allocated to all local authorities on the basis of the local 13-19 population and indices of deprivation. These produce different grant allocations for each LA area.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Cemeteries: Inspections

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many gravestones were deemed dangerous by inspectors in 2006. [140522]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) does not consider the risk posed by toppling gravestones to be a priority as compared to other workplace risks. Therefore, HSE would only inspect a graveyard following a serious incident. There were no reported incidents that warranted an inspection by HSE in 2006.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many graveyards were inspected by the Health and Safety Executive in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [140507]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) does not consider the risk posed by toppling gravestones to be a priority as compared to other workplace risks. Therefore, HSE would only inspect a graveyard following a serious incident. There were no reported incidents that warranted an inspection by HSE in 2006.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the minimum height is of a gravestone or memorial requiring inspection under Health and Safety Executive guidelines. [140524]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) does not consider the risk posed by toppling gravestones to be a priority as compared to other workplace risks. Therefore, HSE has not produced any guidelines on this issue. Additionally, whether the gravestone is secure and the condition of the surrounding ground are the factors more likely to effect the stability of gravestones and memorials.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incidents of falling gravestones and memorials were reported to the Health and Safety Executive in each of the last 20 years. [140535]

Mrs. McGuire: Reliable data for the period requested are not available. However, the available data show that, 21 serious accidents, caused by falling gravestones and memorials, were reported to the Health and Safety Executive over the last seven years.

Child Support Agency: Administration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the processing of clerical Child Support Agency cases. [138730]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 11 June 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will make a statement on the processing of clerical Child Support Agency cases. [138730]

In September 2006 the Agency transferred all of its clerical cases to the CSA Bolton site managed by Vertex. Cases are processed clerically when, due to technical issues, they cannot be progressed on our computer system. CSA Bolton is currently processing over 28,000 Agency cases, and has delivered more than £14m in maintenance payments since its launch in September 2006.

Moving the clerical caseload to one site released a large number of Agency people to work on other important work outlined in the Operational Improvement Plan, including reducing the number of uncleared applications and strengthening enforcement. Over 400 Agency people have already been redeployed as a result of the contracting out of clerical casework.

This is the first time any of the Department's agencies have contracted out core work on this scale and as with any significant change, some areas have not progressed as smoothly as we wanted. We have identified those areas where lessons can be learned for the future and are working hard to improve client service.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Poverty

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of children were living in households below (a) 60 per cent., (b) 50 per cent., (c) 40 per cent., (d) 30 per cent. and (e) 20 per cent. of median income (i) before and (ii) after housing costs in at least three out of the last four years in each year since 1991. [135401]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 2 May 2007]: The available information for children in households below 60 per cent. of median income is shown on pages 44-45 of the publication "Low-Income Dynamics 1991-2004 (Great Britain)" released by DWP in July 2006. This is available in the House of Commons Library.

Information for children in households below lower thresholds of median income is not available because the sample sizes for these estimates are too small.

Employment: Lone Parents

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what level of lone parent employment he estimates will be required in order to meet the Government's child poverty target by 2010-11. [132037]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 18 April 2007]: The Government's child poverty target can only be achieved through a combination of increased parental employment, financial support and high quality public services for children and their parents. No estimate has been made of the specific level of each component which would be necessary. The Government are committed to a target of 70 per cent. lone parent employment.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people received (a) housing benefit but not council tax benefit, (b) council tax benefit but not housing benefit and (c) housing benefit and council tax benefit in each region in each year since 1997. [140591]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people receiving (a) housing benefit but not council tax benefit, (b) council tax benefit but not housing benefit and (c) housing benefit and council tax benefit face benefit withdrawal rates of more than 40 per cent. against marginal income. [140592]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Numbers of people facing marginal deduction rates in excess of 40 per cent.

	Number
Housing benefit but not council tax benefit	200,000
Council tax benefit but not housing benefit	100,000
Housing benefit and council tax benefit	200,000

Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest 100,000.
Source:
Family Resources Survey

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average duration of a housing benefit claim was in each year since 1997. [140593]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available. Data on durations of housing benefit claims are not collected.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the claimant (a) on-flow rates and (b) off-flow rates for housing benefit (i) have been since 1997 and (ii) are estimated to be in the period up to 2019-2020. [140595]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claimed (a) incapacity and (b) another inactive benefit on grounds of rheumatoid arthritis in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the north east and (iv) England in each year since 1997. [140825]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available.

Incapacity Benefit: Disqualification

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many benefit sanctions were imposed on incapacity benefit claimants in each quarter since 1997. [123578]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 26 February 2007]: Other than sanctions in relation to Pathways districts, the information is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

For the available information on sanctions in relation to Pathways districts, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to him on 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 349W.

Income Support: Lone Parents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many lone parents have made repeat claims for income support in each month since January 1992. [138725]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 23 May 2007]: The information is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

Industrial Health and Safety: Directors

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the legal responsibility of company directors for health and safety. [139747]

Mrs. McGuire: At the Government's request, in 2005 the Health and Safety Commission (HSC) undertook an evaluation of the effectiveness of the current arrangements on director leadership for health and safety. Following its evaluation, the HSC chair advised Ministers on how best to strengthen these arrangements. In particular, revised guidance for inspectors has been produced that clearly sets out when it is possible to prosecute a director; and new guidance on director leadership is being developed, under the oversight of a stakeholder steering group led by the Institute of Directors.

Industrial Health and Safety: Noise

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many venues on the Public Entertainment Licence Register were served improvement notices under section 3 of the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 to reduce the noise exposure of customers in each of the last five years. [139165]

Mrs. McGuire: The HSE does not record the number of improvement notices issued against venues on the Public Entertainment Licence Register and therefore the information requested is not available.

Industrial Health and Safety: Playgrounds

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many fatalities there have been resulting from play activities in public playgrounds in the UK in each year since 1997. [136537]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive is aware of four fatal accidents arising from play activities in playgrounds since 1997. Of these, two involved playground equipment (swings, in 1997 and 1999), one occurred in a school playground during a sports lesson (in 2001), and the last occurred in a skateboard park (in 2003).

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many recorded injuries, excluding fatalities, there have been resulting from play activities in public playgrounds in the UK in each year since 1997; and what the nature of these injuries was. [136538]

Mrs. McGuire: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of claims for jobseeker's allowance made by (a) telephone, (b) post and (c) an online claim form have taken (i) up to four weeks and (ii) four or more weeks from receipt of claim to payment of benefit in the last 12 months; [140393]

(2) what proportion of claims for incapacity benefit made by (a) telephone, (b) post and (c) an online claim form have taken (i) up to four weeks and (ii) four or more weeks from receipt of claim to payment of benefit in the last 12 months. [140396]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 11 June 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking about the proportion of claims to Jobseeker's Allowance and Incapacity Benefit made by telephone, by post and on-line that are cleared in under four weeks and over four weeks. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The information is not available in the format requested. The information that is available is contained in the following tables.

Jobseeker's allowance—cumulative 12 months May 2006 to April 2007

Time band	Percentage processed
One to 21 working days	84.2
22 plus working days	15.8

Incapacity benefit—cumulative 12 months May 2006 to April 2007

Time band	Percentage processed
One to 40 working days	92.3
41 working days plus	7.7

We cannot identify the time taken to process claims by method of claim.

Pension Credit: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what percentage of pensioners (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the north-east are entitled to claim (i) the savings pension credit and (ii) the guarantee pension credit; and what percentage of those entitled to claim each credit do so; [139738]

(2) what estimate he has made of the amount of unclaimed (a) guarantee pension credit and (b) savings pension credit (i) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (ii) on Teesside and (iii) in the north-east; [139937]

(3) many pensioners (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the north-east are entitled to claim (i) the guarantee pension credit and (ii) the savings pension credit. [139737]

James Purnell: Estimates of eligibility and therefore take-up and amounts of unclaimed benefit are not available below the level of Great Britain. It is not therefore possible to say how many people are eligible to pension credit, what the take-up rate is or what amount of pension credit is unclaimed in the geographical areas specified in the questions.

Latest estimates of the amount of pension credit left unclaimed and the number of pensioners who were eligible for pension credit in Great Britain were published in 'Pension Credit Estimates of Take-Up in 2005/2006'. A copy of the report is available in the Library.

The following table shows the number of households in the north-east, Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency and Tees Valley district local authorities receiving pension credit.

Pension credit household recipients

North-east	157,270	37,680	81,370	38,220
Tees Valley district local authorities
Hartlepool	6,220	1,490	3,140	1,590
Middlesbrough	8,290	2,330	4,170	1,790
Redcar and Cleveland	8,100	2,100	3,970	2,030

Pension credit household recipients

Region	Total	Guarantee credit only	Guarantee credit and savings credit	Savings credit only
Stockton-on-Tees	9,260	2,340	4,520	2,400
Darlington	5,510	1,460	2,670	1,370
Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency	5,140	1,230	2,630	1,270

Notes:
1. The figure provided is an early estimate. The preferred data source for figures supplied by DWP is the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS). However, the figure provided is the latest available figure, which is taken from the GMS scan at 2 March 2007. These are adjusted using the historical relationship between WPLS and GMS data to give an estimate of the final WPLS figure.
2. Caseloads are rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory and are therefore based on the 2005 parliamentary boundaries.
4. Households are those people who claim Pension Credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

DWP 100 per cent data from the Generalised Matching Service (GMS) Pension Credit scan taken as at 2 March 2007.

Social Security Commissioners

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the target time is for responses to queries referred to the Social Security Commissioners; and what the most recent figure is for the time taken to respond to such queries. [140910]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

We aim to deal with correspondence within 10 working days. Obviously this may depend upon the complexity of the query. The weekly statistics for week commencing 28 May 2007 show that 97 per cent. of correspondence was dealt within 10 days.

I have been informed that the question is regarding a complaint. The MOJ definition of a complaint is any expression of dissatisfaction with service or facilities that needs a response. Our target for answering complaints is 10 days.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Building Regulations

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the circumstances in which registered installers must provide local authority building control departments with a certificate to state that the work undertaken complies with building regulations. [141874]

Angela E. Smith: Regulation 16A(3) of the building regulations 2000 (as amended) provides that persons carrying out work under self certification schemes shall, within 30 days of completion of the work, give the local authority a certificate of compliance with building regulations or notice to that effect.

Departments: Buildings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of leasing buildings and office space was for (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139475]

Angela E. Smith: The rent paid for the space occupied by Communities and Local Government, and its predecessor the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, on leased property for the last five years was approximately:

£ million

	Communities and Local Government	Planning Inspectorate Agency
2002-03	21.56	1.58
2003-04	22.83	1.57
2004-05	22.77	1.56
2005-06	19.79	1.56
2006-07	19.38	1.56

The figures include payments direct to the landlord where Communities and Local Government is the leaseholder, and contributions towards rent to other Government Departments where Communities and Local Government is the minor occupier. The rent paid to landlords excludes the amounts which are either recovered from other Government Departments where they occupy CLG managed buildings or property that is sub-let. The Planning Inspectorate figure excludes the amount recovered from other Government Departments.

This answer does not include land or buildings occupied by Government Offices, which carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was received by her Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139340]

Angela E. Smith: The amounts received by Communities and Local Government, its agencies and its predecessor Department, in rent from lettings, including receipts from Crown Bodies, for each of the last five years was approximately:

£ million

	Communities and Local Government	Fire Service College
2002-03	5.05	1.14

£ million

	Communities and Local Government	Fire Service College
2004-05	6.90	1.22
2005-06	6.90	1.33
2006-07	6.8	1.42

Note:
The figures include VAT where applicable.

This answer does not include land or buildings occupied by Government Offices, which carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139362]

Angela E. Smith: During the last five years Communities and Local Government and its predecessor Department has retained the following freehold properties: Old Burlington House, New Burlington House and Hangar 97 Little Rissington.

The Fire Service College, an Executive Agency, occupies a freehold site owned by Communities and Local Government in Moreton in Marsh. The Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre, an Executive Agency, occupies a freehold site owned by the Department in Westminster.

The Department leased the following properties:

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Ashdown House Victoria	v	v	v	v	v
Eland House	v	v	v	v	v

Marchington secondary site	—	v	v	—	—
West Point Manchester	v	v	v	v	v
Calthorpe House Birmingham	v	—	—	—	—

The Planning Inspectorate, an Executive Agency has leased Temple Quay House in Bristol during these years.

Properties are also occupied under minor occupancy agreements with other Government Departments. These include Exchange Tower, Allington Towers, Ashdown House Hastings, Temple Quay House Bristol, Stockley House, and Titchfield Hampshire.

The current occupation of Portland House, Allington Towers and Stockley House are temporary while the Open Space Project, designed to improve the density of Eland House, is completed. This is planned for the end of this year.

This answer does not include land or buildings occupied by Government Offices which carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Disabled People: Access

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to ensure that local authority planning departments work with local fire safety departments on the provision of disabled access rooms in multi-storey buildings. [142107]

Angela E. Smith: In England and Wales, where building work is being carried out the building regulations provide for access for disabled people under Part M (Access to and use of buildings) and means of escape in case of fire under Part B (Fire safety). There are statutory provisions, and associated guidance, for consultation between building control bodies and fire and rescue authorities. Guidance has also been produced to generally advise on providing suitable means of escape for disabled persons in the event of a fire. This guidance has been endorsed by the Disability Rights Commission. Different provisions apply in Scotland.

Home Information Packs

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department has taken to ensure that the work of home inspectors complies with article 8 of the Human Rights Act. [125350]

Ruth Kelly: The work of home inspectors will be contracted by home sellers on a voluntary basis and as such does not impinge on article 8 of the Human Rights Act.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government from which budget her Department's advertising campaign to promote home information packs which commenced on 25 March was funded. [134663]

Ruth Kelly: The campaign to promote home information packs was funded from the home information pack programme's service budget.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home inspectors qualified to produce the energy performance certificates required in home information packs will be in place in time for the introduction of the packs on 1 June. [137090]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the statement I made to the House on 22 May 2007.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will consult mortgage lenders on the possible requirements of both house sellers and house purchasers to obtain home information packs. [139763]

Ruth Kelly: Mortgage lenders have been consulted regularly throughout the development of home information packs. The Housing Act 2004 makes it clear that the responsibility to obtain a home information pack is on the seller.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the consequences for home inspectors of her decision to phase in home information packs. [140432]

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) on what date the revised home information pack regulations are expected to be laid before the House; [140865]

(2) what the timetable is for home information packs to become compulsory for the marketing of domestic dwellings other than four bedroom homes; [140857]

(3) whether the Government intend to consult on the proposal that home information packs will be required for a four bedroom home from 1 August before that date. [140856]

Yvette Cooper: Regulations relating to home information packs and the energy performance of buildings are being laid before Parliament today. These regulations will implement home information packs, including energy performance certificates, on a phased basis in England and Wales from 1 August 2007.

The Home Information Pack (no. 2) Regulations 2007 include a number of transitional provisions that the Secretary of State outlined to Parliament on 22 May 2007. These are intended to ensure that the implementation of HIPs will be achieved in a way that ensures the availability of sufficient assessors and inspectors.

The Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) (Amendment) Regulations 2007 make the changes necessary to bring the implementation of energy performance certificates into line with home information packs from 1 August 2007.

As well as the explanatory memoranda and impact assessments that accompany the regulations, we are placing in the House Library further information about how the operational delivery of the phased roll-out will take place, building on the current progress in the certification of inspectors and accreditation of assessors.

Further consultation on the age of the Energy Performance Certificate will commence in due course.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a home information pack will be required if a home is repossessed and subsequently sold or auctioned. [140863]

Yvette Cooper: As announced last month, EPCs and HEPs will be phased in starting with four bedroom homes and larger properties—rolling out to other sized properties once sufficient energy inspectors are in place, nationally and regionally to meet demand, taking into account market conditions and evidence from implementation. This will include the marketed sales of properties that may have been repossessed, assuming they are not covered by any other exceptions.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps are being taken to prevent home and energy inspectors receiving financial inducements from householders or estate agents. [140873]

Yvette Cooper: HIs and DBAs are required to join approved accreditation schemes before working. All accreditation schemes have codes of conduct and systems in place to avoid conflicts of interest. There is a clear duty for accreditation schemes to ensure that checks including criminal records have been carried out as well as checks such as references. These checks are stronger than those carried out on other groups who have access to people's homes such as gas inspectors. We consulted the police who were content with this approach.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) timetable is and (b) terms of reference are for the consultation on energy performance certificates; and if she will make a statement. [141723]

Yvette Cooper: The Department will carry out a public consultation this summer on what, in the longer term, the maximum age of an Energy Performance Certificate within a Home Information Pack should be when residential property is first marketed for sale. This consultation will be in accordance with Cabinet Office guidance and include an impact assessment to estimate the costs and benefits for a range of validity periods from three months up to 10 years.

Housing: Energy

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 124W, on housing: energy, how many (a) domestic energy assessors and (b) home inspectors have failed their qualification examinations. [136949]

Ruth Kelly [holding answer 14 May 2007]: The overall pass rate for the three awarding bodies which offer the diploma in domestic energy assessment is 71 per cent.

The overall pass rate for the two awarding bodies which offer the diploma in home inspection is 63 per cent.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 124W, on housing: energy, how many practising (a) domestic energy assessors and (b) home inspectors there are in each region in (i) England and (ii) Wales. [137011]

Yvette Cooper: The most recent data from home inspector certification schemes and domestic energy assessor accreditation schemes show the following information on certifications and accreditations by region. There are a small number who come from companies with national coverage or who have not provided a valid postcode—these have been categorised as 'not known'.

Government office region	Accreditations or certifications
East Midlands	83
East of England	136
London	70
North East	31
North West	104
South East	214
South West	119
Wales	50
West Midlands	101
Yorkshire and the Humber	79
Not known	63
Total	1,050

Schemes have received a further 1,380 applications for accreditation. A total of 4,735 have now passed their exams.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the requirement for building control permission for the installation of an additional bathroom in a domestic dwelling which does not otherwise require planning permission. [141819]

Angela E. Smith: Part G of the building regulations (hygiene) requires any dwelling to have at least one bathroom with a fixed bath or shower; and the guidance in Approved Document G describes how sanitary conveniences, washing facilities etc. should be constructed and installed, whether located in the required bathroom or elsewhere. Building regulations apply to controlled building works irrespective of whether planning permission is required.

Housing: Waiting Lists

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many families are on waiting lists for housing; and how many of those are (a) UK citizens and (b) immigrants. [139261]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities in England report the numbers of households (not families) on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. However, information on how many (a) UK citizens and (b) immigrants are on waiting lists for housing is not held centrally.

The number of households on local authority housing waiting lists, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. The link for this table is given as follows and a copy has been place in the Library of the House:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/pub/853/Table600_id1163853.xls

Planning

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she received from non-governmental organisations representing planning and environmental concerns on the planning system prior to the publication of the planning white paper, Cm 7120; and what responses she made in each case. [139958]

Yvette Cooper: A number of non-governmental organisations representing planning and environmental interests wrote or e-mailed with their views on the Barker report on Land Use Planning and the Eddington Review of Transport Infrastructure. There was also a wide range of meetings, discussions, and events at which representatives of those organisations presented their views.

The feedback we received from the range of events and representations from these organisations helped inform the development of the proposals which have now been put forward in the white paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (Cm 7120). There is an on-going process of stakeholder engagement in developing proposals for further reform of the planning system. We have invited views on a number of key proposals and other issues in the white paper and issued four consultation papers alongside the white paper on a number of detailed proposals. Formal consultation on these proposals will run until 17 August 2007.

Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of the guidance to local authorities on (a) bidding for and (b) spending the funding from the Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund. [141731]

Ruth Kelly: I have placed a copy of the guidance on the funding process ('Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Guidance Note for Government Offices and Local Authorities in England', Feb 2007) in the Library of the House.

Public Service: Somerset

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of key workers living in (a) Somerset and (b) Taunton constituency. [141227]

Yvette Cooper: The Key Worker Living programme does not currently operate in the south-west region. Therefore, we have made no estimate of the number of key workers living in Somerset and Taunton.

Rented Housing

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the relationship between the number of buy-to-let properties and trends in rent levels in the private rental sector in (a) Luton, (b) Bedfordshire and (c) England. [139979]

Yvette Cooper: Figures from the Council of Mortgage Lenders show that the number of outstanding Buy-to-Let mortgages in England has increased from around 120,000 in 2000 to around 850,000 in 2006. Despite this increase, the private rented sector as a whole only increased over this period from about 10 per cent. to 12 per cent. of the total housing stock[1].

Table 1 demonstrates that between 2000 and 2006 the number of BTL mortgages rose considerably more rapidly than the private sector rents index[1].

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Private sector rent index (Base 2000)	100	109	116	123	124	123	130

[1] These figures are best viewed graphically.

In recent years, due to the increase in supply of private rented properties, driven by the growth in Buy-to-Let, private sector rents have not been rising as fast as house prices suggesting that the private rented sector provides a more affordable alternative to owner-occupation. This relationship is displayed in Table 2.

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Private sector rent index (Base 2000)	100	109	116	123	124	123	130
House price index (Base 2000)	100	110	128	149	165	173	182

Information is not held centrally on the number of Buy-to-Let properties below the national level.

Valuation Office: Contracts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether information held by Rightmove from home condition reports and home information packs will be included within the current and historic database that the Valuation Office Agency has access to under its ongoing contract with Rightmove. [124475]

Ruth Kelly: There is no requirement for information from home information packs to be placed on the Rightmove website. Only information that has previously been freely available to the public on Rightmove's website is accessed by the Valuation Office Agency.

Written Questions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to Question 137090, on home inspectors, tabled by the hon. Member for Cotswold on 9 May. [140350]

Ruth Kelly: I have now replied to the hon. Member's question.

TREASURY

Annuities: East Midlands

Annette Brooke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken to process tax rebates for senior citizens with annuities through the Leicester and Northampton tax office was in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [141762]

Ed Balls: HMRC receives just under half a million repayment claims after the end of each tax year from customers who are outside PAYE or self assessment and who have had tax deducted from investment income, including retirement annuities. The Department aims to deal with 97 per cent. of repayment claims within 15 days and has exceeded this target during April and May 2007. Average time, or separate information for retirement annuitants or senior citizens, is not available. Recent changes mean that most retirement annuitants will no longer need to make annual claims.

Arthritis: Young People

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many children under the age of 16 years in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK died from the juvenile form of rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997; [140826]

(2) how many adults died in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK from rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997. [140828]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent questions asking how many children under the age of 16 years in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK have died from the juvenile form of rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997 (140826); and how many people have d[illegible] in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South

Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK from rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997 (140828). I am replying in her absence.

The attached table provides the number of deaths from juvenile rheumatoid arthritis in children under 16, rheumatoid arthritis (not juvenile) in persons aged 16 and over, and rheumatoid arthritis (either juvenile or not) in people of all ages, in (a) Jarrow parliamentary constituency, (b) South Tyneside local authority, (c) North East government office region, and (d) the UK, from 1997 to 2005 (the latest year available).

Number of deaths with a cause of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis (under 16 years) or rheumatoid arthritis (16 years and over): 1 Jarrow parliamentary constituency, South Tyneside local authority, North East Government Office Region, and UK, 1997-2005[1]

All rheumatoid arthritis	900	871	798	819	1,134	1,115	1,038	923	970

[1] Cause of death for juvenile rheumatoid arthritis was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes 714.0-714.9 and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes M05.0-M06.9, M08.0, M08.2, M08.3 and M08.9, where there was any mention of these codes on the death certificate, and the person was aged under 16 years. Cause of death for rheumatoid arthritis (16 years and over) was defined using ICD-9 codes 714.0-714.9 and ICD-10 codes M05.0-M06.9, M08.0, M08.2, M08.3 and M08.9, where this was recorded as the underlying cause of death, and the person was aged 16 years or over. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from this cause before 2001 are not completely comparable with later years.
[2] Based on parliamentary constituency and local authority boundaries as of 2007.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Charitable Donations

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised for charities through payroll giving in the last year for which figures are available. [141391]

Mr. Timms: The amounts raised through payroll giving for years up to 2005-06 are published on the HMRC website in table 10.8:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/menu.htm

The table will be updated with the result for the year 2006-07 at the end of June 2007.

Child Benefit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of raising child benefit for oldest children by (a) £2, (b) £4, (c) £6, (d) £8, (e) £10, (f) £12 and (g) £14. [137544]

Ed Balls: The estimated annual cost of raising the rate of child benefit for the only or oldest qualifying child is shown in the following table:

Estimated cost of increasing the rate of child benefit for eldest children

8	3.1
10	3.8

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate how many children would be taken out of poverty assessed as 60 per cent. of median income if child benefit for oldest children was increased by (a) £2, (b) £4, (c) £6, (d) £8, (e) £10, (f) £12 and (g) £14. [137545]

Ed Balls: Estimated impacts on child poverty in 2007-08 of raising the rate of child benefit for eldest children is shown in the following table .

Estimated impact on child poverty of increasing rate of child benefit for eldest children

Increase in weekly rate for eldest child (£)	Estimated reduction in child poverty in 2007-08 (thousand, OECD scale)
10	300

Poverty is assessed as less than 60 per cent of median household income with reference to the modified OECD equivalisation scale; figures are rounded to the nearest 50,000.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the value of child benefit and tax credit payments made in relation to children from birth to 19 years old as an average for those eligible for such tax credits. [139540]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The amount of financial support that a family will receive between the birth of a child and them leaving education will depend on families' circumstances and income in each year.

For 2007-08, the maximum amount of financial support from the Child Tax Credit and Child Benefit is £3,330 a year for the first child and £2,475 a year for second and subsequent children, assuming there is no eligibility for disabled child elements or the under-ones family element.

Child Benefit: Migrant Workers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether child benefit is payable to migrant workers living in the UK in respect of children living abroad in other (a) EU and (b) non-EU countries; and if he will make a statement. [135531]

Mr. Timms: A person may not claim child benefit if he or she is subject to immigration control. Migrant workers cannot usually claim child benefit in respect of children living in a non-European economic area (EEA) country.

However, benefits for EEA workers' families—including child benefit—are governed by European Community law. Consequently, migrant workers from other EEA member states or Switzerland may qualify for child benefit even if their children are resident in another EEA member state or Switzerland.

Crown Estate: Annual Reports

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the cost was of producing the Crown Estate's annual reports in each of the last three years; [140469]

(2) how much the Crown Estate spent on (a) public relations and (b) corporate hospitality in each of the last three years; [140470]

(3) what the staff costs of the Crown Estate's Communication Department were in each of the last three years. [140478]

John Healey: The information requested is given in the table:

	2004-05	2005-06
Annual Reports (including Corporate Responsibility Report)	131	132
Public Relations	443	462
Corporate hospitality	10	6
Communications Department	131	235

Financial information for 2006-07 is not yet available.

Crown Estate: Wind Power

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much income was received by the Crown Estate from wind-powered electricity generating installations situated offshore in each financial year since 2004-05. [140466]

John Healey: £181,000 in 2004-05 and £386,000 in 2005-06. Financial information for 2006-07 is not yet available.

Departments: ICT

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by his Department on IT procurement in each year since 1997. [134595]

John Healey: The IT related procurement expenditure for financial years 2003-04 onwards was:

£ million

2003-04	1.30
2004-05	3.27
2005-06	3.04
2006-07	2.36

Information on years prior to 2003-04 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Internet

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for which Government websites he is responsible; how many visitors each received in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost (a) was of establishing and (b) has been of maintaining each site. [135740]

John Healey: For previous answers referring to website costs and visitors I refer the right hon. Member to the answers given on 25 July 2006, Official Report, column 1352W; 10 October 2005, Official Report, column 285W, 24 June 2004, Official Report, column 1470W, 14 April 2003, Official Report, column 548W, 22 October 2002, Official Report, column 219W.

The cost of establishing websites operated by the agencies and departments for which the Chancellor of the Exchequer is responsible, plus costs and traffic figures for each website during the 2006-07 financial year, are as follows:

1. These figures include all direct costs, for example web hosting, software support, and infrastructure

Departments: Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which items with his Department's logo were (a) produced and (b) bought by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each year since 1997; and what the cost was of those items. [141309]

John Healey: The Treasury's accounting records do not distinguish between the cost of items that carry the Department's logo and the cost of those that do not. Therefore the information requested is not held.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by his Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139454]

John Healey: I refer to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 24 July 2006, Official Report, column 1064W. The Treasury does not record public relations expenditure as a separate category but a check of supplier and expenditure records for the financial year 2006-07 has revealed no payments to suppliers that are known to be public relations companies. A more comprehensive answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Freedom of Information: Regulation

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions (a) he and (b) other Treasury Ministers have had with the Ministry of Justice on amendments to the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and associated regulations in the last six months. [141390]

John Healey: Treasury Ministers have discussions with a wide range of ministerial colleagues as part of the process of policy development and collective Cabinet responsibility. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Incentives: Informers

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when his Office last exercised its prerogative power to reward an informer providing information that led to a recovery of money for the Crown. [140753]

John Healey: The last reward paid by HMRC for the recovery of cash was in March 2007.

Monetary Policy Committee: Public Appointments

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) in what circumstances Monetary Policy Committee members are (a) invited to serve a second term and (b) allowed to apply to serve a second term; [142093]

(2) what criteria he uses when deciding whether to re-appoint Monetary Policy Committee members. [142097]

John Healey: The Chancellor appoints members of the Monetary Policy Committee in accordance with the criteria laid out in the Bank of England Act 1998.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many members of the Monetary Policy Committee have been appointed for a second term since 1997; and how many have served only one complete term. [142096]

John Healey: A full list of individuals that have served on the Monetary Policy Committee since 1997, alongside meeting attendance and voting records, is available from:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/monetarypolicy/mpcvoting.xls

Since 1997, two external members of the Monetary Policy Committee have served two full three-year terms. The remainder have served for one full three-year term.

Taxation: Charitable Donations

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what tax incentives are available to individuals wishing to make financial donations to arts institutions in the UK; and what the cost of these incentives was to the public purse in each of the last 10 years. [140750]

Mr. Timms: There are several tax incentives available to individuals wishing to make financial donations to arts institutions in the UK, provided the organisation is a registered charity. These include gift aid, payroll giving, relief on gifts of shares, securities and land and buildings. Gifts of assets to charities or for national purposes are also exempt from inheritance tax and capital gains tax. Guidance about tax effective giving by individuals to charities is available on the HMRC website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/charities/donors/tax-efficient.htm.

It is not possible to ascertain the amounts of these reliefs in respect of arts organisations because HMRC records do not distinguish amounts repaid to or claimed by charities according to the type of charity. However, estimates of the aggregate costs of reliefs on donations to charities by individuals are published on the HMRC website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/menu.htm.

Taxation: Insolvency

Colin Burgon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will assess the implications of recent events at Leeds United Football Club for the effectiveness of the rules for the taxation of companies in administration. [141258]

John Healey: I cannot comment on the affairs of any particular taxpayer.

When companies enter administration they remain liable to pay taxes. Their affairs come under the control of the administrator who should on their behalf pay taxes arising during administration as an expense of and subject to the assets available in the administration.

VAT: Overpayments

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases remain to be dealt with following the Michael Fleming/TA Bodycraft case; how many full-time equivalent caseworkers have been allocated to deal with these matters; and when such cases are likely to be concluded. [140880]

John Healey: As at 31 May 2007, 740 claims were being processed by HMRC following the Michael Fleming/TA Bodycraft case. A central team of four manages the handling of the claims but they are supported by many staff in other parts of the department who deal with the tax affairs of the relevant businesses. For this reason it is not possible to quantify the total resource allocated to this work.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to the public purse has been of implementing the (a) child tax, (b) working tax and (c) pension tax credit schemes since inception; and what the cost has been of recovering overpayments for each scheme. [136255]

Ed Balls: The cost of introducing, managing and paying child and working tax Credits are published in note 3 of the trust statement to the Inland Revenue and HMRC annual report and accounts, for each year since their introduction. Information on payments of entitlement is also published in note 3 of the same publication, which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/annual reps.htm

The cost of recovering overpayments of child and working tax credits is not available centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pension credit is not a tax credit.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many and what proportion of people who are eligible but not claiming tax credits have incomes which are at or above 60 per cent. of median income; [139794]

(2) what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) value of tax credit payments which would need to be made to increase the income of those people who are eligible for but not claiming such payments to 60 per cent. of median income. [139795]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Estimates for the number of in-work families who were eligible but not claiming tax credits, by income used to calculate entitlement, is presented in table 4 of the publication "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit. Take-up rates. 2004-05." This is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/takeup-rates2004-05.pdf

No estimate has been made yet, which is consistent with the published statistics on tax credits take-up, of the position within the household income distribution of those families who are eligible but not claiming tax credits.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the next set of data on tax credit take-up rates will be released; and what official releases of data in relation to tax credits there will be in each month from June 2007 to June 2008. [141428]

Mr. Timms: No release date has been set as yet for the publication of the 2005-06 tax credit take-up statistics.

Information on official release dates of HMRC Tax Credit National Statistic publications are detailed in the Annual Updating Plan, which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/updates/index.htm

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the potential annual saving from reducing the current tax credits disregard on income increases from £25,000 to zero; and if he will make a statement. [141485]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 22 February 2007, Official Report, column 851W.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were taken to court for non-payment of tax credit overpayments in each month from April 2003 to June 2007; and if he will make a statement. [141489]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 2963W.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2007, Official Report, column 965W, on agriculture: subsidies, when his Department expects to make the 2005 single farm payment to Mr. Francis, single business identifier number 106302271, a constituent of the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey. [141579]

Barry Gardiner: Mr. Francis will be paid his 2005 single payment scheme payment within 28 days.

Animals: Circuses

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 1 March 2007, Official Report, column 1457W, on animal: circuses, when he expects to announce the findings of his Department's Circus Working Group. [140678]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Circus Working Group will shortly provide a report setting out its findings to DEFRA Ministers. We hope to have draft regulations available for full public consultation later this year, with the aim of them coming into force in 2008.

Cattle: Exports

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with dairy farmers on ending the export of live calves. [140614]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is in regular contact, on a range of issues, with bodies that represent farmers.

I am aware of the public concern over the trade in live calf exports. However, this is a lawful trade and European Union (EU) law must be observed. The United Kingdom (UK) cannot place a unilateral ban on the export of calves. The Government have consistently said that we prefer a trade in meat to the long distance transport of live animals to slaughter.

Consequently, we are seeking to encourage the industry to develop alternative uses for calves other than live export, and welcome the joint initiative from Compassion in World Farming and the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to bring together welfare groups, the dairy and beef industry and the retail sector to discuss this issue. They hosted an event last July which I attended.

The industry has developed domestic veal rearing systems that satisfy robust welfare requirements, but the opportunities to sell the product in the UK are very limited while there remains strong commercial demand for veal calves on the continent. DEFRA recently commissioned a study to look at the economic drivers and potential for developing alternative markets to the export of veal calves. The report confirmed that the domestic market for home-produced veal is resistant to growth. It did, however, conclude that there are commercially attractive opportunities for rearing dairy calves for the growing domestic market for manufacturing beef. This is promising and DEFRA will continue to play its part in encouraging such alternative uses.

Coastal Erosion

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his European Union counterparts on dealing with coastal erosion; and if he will make a statement. [141350]

Ian Pearson: The Department meets regularly with European Union and other European counterparts at official level to exchange ideas on dealing with coastal erosion. Forums include, for example, the informal North Sea Coastal Managers Group. There have not been any recent official discussions at ministerial level, however I have discussed flood and coastal erosion issues informally with EU counterparts.

Coastal Erosion: Demolition

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what grants or financial assistance are available to those who are obliged to demolish their property due to coastal erosion; and what changes he plans to make to such provision. [141303]

Ian Pearson: In general, property owners are responsible for ensuring their buildings do not present a safety hazard. There are no grants available from central Government to assist with demolition.

Approaches to helping communities adapt to a changing coastline are being considered in a project, under the cross-Government "Making space for water" programme, to assess the scale and effect of concerns and to develop a broader portfolio of options for addressing them. This includes looking at the current powers local authorities have in relation to helping communities at risk from a changing coastline.

Dolphins: Conservation

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to protect dolphins internationally. [140391]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 5 June 2007]: The Department works with other countries, through the Agreement on the Conservation of Small Cetaceans of the Baltic, North East Atlantic, Irish and North Seas (ASCOBANS) toward the prevention of significant disturbance to cetaceans.

The Department has implemented a comprehensive system of by-catch monitoring under the requirements of the EC Habitats Directive and Council Regulation 812/2004. In 2003, the UK was the first member state to publish a response strategy for the monitoring of small cetaceans by-catch. In December 2004, the UK banned pelagic pair trawling for bass by UK vessels within 12 miles off the south-west coast of England. The Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU) regularly reports the results of its research on by-catch monitoring which covers all relevant UK fishery sectors, including the bass pair trawl fishery to the Department and has recently presented us with their 2006 findings. This report will be submitted to the European Commission and published on DEFRA's website in due course. The Commission evaluate all contributing member states' schemes.

The Department also provides funding for the Institute of Zoology and Natural History Museum Cetacean (and Turtle) Strandings Scheme, which monitors and investigates porpoise and dolphin strandings around the UK. This long-running DEFRA-funded contract showed a slight increase in strandings around the UK coast in 2006 compared to 2005. The latest report is scheduled to be published soon and will be available on DEFRA's website.

The latter two schemes have been extended until 2010.

EU and DEFRA-funded SMRU work continues on by-catch mitigation measures in the bass pair trawl fishery. The final results will be presented to the European Commission in the next two to three months.

The UK Government have also identified the potential benefits of acoustic devices such as pingers in reducing bycatch in fixed gear fisheries and argued successfully for these devices to be required in certain fisheries by EU legislation. Prior to enforcing the use of pingers under Council Regulation EC 8121 2004, the UK Government wants to ensure that those we recommend to be used are safe and cost effective for the industry and offer the maximum protection to porpoises.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what base year was used in calculations of local authority populations in his Department's new waste strategy for England; and what account has been taken of significant future population and housing growth in designated growth areas in setting targets. [141947]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste Strategy is a national strategy for England as a whole and does not contain local targets. As such, no calculations were carried out which required data relating to local authority populations.

The modelling that informed the setting of national targets for municipal solid waste assumed that the number of households will grow at 0.8 per cent. per annum until 2020. The national targets for reducing residual waste per head use the 2004-based principal population projections produced by the Government Actuary's Department (October 2005).

Elephants: Poaching

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his assessment is of (a) the quality of the data produced by the Monitoring the Illegal Killing of Elephants system and (b) its ability to detect changes in poaching rates. [141251]

Barry Gardiner: I am satisfied that the standards established for the Monitoring the Illegal Killing of Elephants (MIKE) system, together with the governance arrangements, including advice from the MIKE-ETIS Technical Advisory Group, ensure that the data gathered are of sufficient quality.

Similarly, I am content that the data available to MIKE are fit for the purpose for which they are intended, namely:

(a) to measure levels and trends in the illegal hunting of elephants;

(b) to determine changes in these trends over time; and

(c) to determine the factors causing or associated with such changes, and to try and assess, in particular, to what extent observed trends are a result of any decisions taken by the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES).

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme on emissions of carbon dioxide in (a) the UK and (b) other participating nations in each year since its commencement; and if he will make a statement. [141655]

Ian Pearson: The approved UK national allocation plan (NAP) for phase I (2005-07) of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme is set to deliver carbon dioxide emissions savings of around 65 million tonnes (roughly 8 per cent.) below the projected business as usual emissions of the installations covered by the scheme during phase I. The rationale behind emission trading is to ensure that the emission reductions take place where the cost of the reduction is lowest thus lowering the overall costs of tackling climate change. The emissions reductions referred to above may not therefore all take place in the UK.

Comparing 2003 and 2005 emissions in the UK from incumbent installations in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme shows a reduction of around 10 million tones (Mt) of carbon dioxide (CO_2). This equates to 4 per cent. However, a number of new installations commenced operation and entered the scheme in 2004 and 2005, emitting a total of around 5 Mt CO_2 in 2005. Therefore, the net total reduction in emissions from UK installations (incumbent and new) in the EU ETS was approximately 5 Mt CO_2 between 2003 and 2005.

The 2006 EU ETS results in the UK show an increase in emissions from 2005 of 8.8 Mt CO_2. This increase was due mainly to unusually high international gas prices leading to a switch to coal in electricity generation. It is difficult to assess what the level of emissions would have been if the scheme had not been in place, but they are likely to have been higher.

A study carried out last year estimated that emissions reductions (abatement) across the EU resulting from the implementation of EU ETS in 2005 could be somewhere in the region of 50 Mt CO_2 to 200 Mt CO_2. We are not aware of similar analysis for 2006.

The Government are committed to a strong and effective carbon market as a key factor in combating climate change. Phase I of the scheme is a learning phase and, for this reason, caution should be exercised when trying to draw conclusions from the results.

Ivory: Botswana

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the proposal by the Government of Botswana to allow the trade in stockpiled ivory on an annual basis; and if he will make a statement. [141252]

Barry Gardiner: The Government of Botswana's proposals, for annual sales and an increase in the size of any one-off stockpile sale, are to be discussed in the course of the 14th Conference of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) Parties. The UK, along with EU member states, is currently looking at these proposals. We are clear that an annual quota for certain Southern African countries could only go ahead after the one-off sale has taken place and in circumstances where that sale's impact on the conservation status and poaching of all elephant populations has been fully assessed.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the proposal put forward by the Governments of Botswana and Namibia for the unlimited commercial trade in raw ivory at the forthcoming UN Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species conference. [141253]

Barry Gardiner: I am not aware of any proposals by the Governments of Botswana and Namibia for the unlimited commercial trade in raw ivory.

Ivory: Kenya

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the 20-year moratorium on the trade of ivory proposed by the Governments of Kenya and Mali for the forthcoming UN Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species conference; and whether this proposal will have the support of UK delegates. [141255]

Barry Gardiner: While I appreciate the reasons given for the proposed 20-year moratorium, I do not agree with the principle and the UK will therefore oppose the proposal. Such a position would be against the tenet of the Convention; that decisions are taken on the basis of the best available scientific and trade data available at the time. In practice, no worthwhile purpose would be served, as a moratorium could be reconsidered and reversed at any subsequent Conference of Parties.

Ivory: Trade

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment his Department has made of the level of the international illegal trade of elephant ivory. [141254]

Barry Gardiner: The UK has seen, and is satisfied with, the assessments of the level of the international illegal trade in elephant ivory made by the Elephant Trade Information System (ETIS). Indeed, since 2003, the UK has contributed £119,200 toward the ETIS programme.

Oil: Pollution

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, columns 44-45W, on Oil: Pollution, whether he intends to pursue additional measures against oil pollution in those regions where the total number of private and commercial oil pollution incidents has risen between 2002 and 2006; and if he will make a statement. [141677]

Ian Pearson: The latest figures on oil pollution incidents show a clear downward trend in most English regions. This suggests that the measures in place are the right ones. The Environment Agency, as regulator, will consider whether additional enforcement action is required where the downward trend is not in evidence.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the targets set in the Guidance Notes for the Control of Pollution (Oil Storage) (England) Regulations 2001 of reducing oil related water pollution incidents by about half between 1999 and 2005 have been met; and if he will make a statement. [141678]

Ian Pearson: I understand from the Environment Agency that the reduction in oil-related pollution incidents between 1999 and 2005 is substantial. I shall write to the hon. Member when I have the precise figures from the Agency to confirm whether the target has been met. I will arrange for copies of the letter to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Packaging: Recycling

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to encourage retailers to provide on-pack information about recyclability of packaging. [140805]

Mr. Bradshaw: Most, if not all packaging is recyclable. Commission Decision 97/129/EC provides for numbering and abbreviations to identify packaging materials. While the marking system is voluntary, we would encourage manufacturers to use the markings, wherever possible, to aid the process of sorting and recycling of packaging waste.

Poultry: Auctions

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects it to be safe to allow poultry auctions to reopen. [141020]

Mr. Bradshaw: At present, there are no bans on poultry auctions. The temporary ban on gatherings involving chickens and ducks during the recent case of low pathogenic H7N2 avian influenza was lifted on Friday 1 June. Bird gatherings, including auctions, can now proceed as before, subject to the usual biosecurity, notification and record keeping conditions in the general licence, which can be found on the DEFRA website.

Recycling: Regulation

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Government plan to review regulations for the operators of green waste recycling centres; and if he will make a statement. [141685]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environmental Permitting Programme, launched by DEFRA in partnership with the Environment Agency and Welsh Assembly Government, seeks to combine the Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control (IPPC) and waste management licensing systems into a common permitting and compliance system.

The new system, consisting of fewer, simpler rules and clearer guidance, will result in a simpler and more unified approach allowing industry, regulators and the public to focus more on environmental outcomes and less on how they are achieved. A simpler approach should allow businesses to more easily diversify into new areas of waste management—for example, the new system will allow a waste operator to extend their site more easily.

There is also an exemption from the need for a permit for smaller composting operations.

All of the exemptions are currently being reviewed with the aim of revising them by April 2009.

Recycling: Voluntary Organisations

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the impact on voluntary sector recycling projects of the introduction by local authorities of twin bins. [140920]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 7 June 2007]: No such estimate has been made by my Department.

Waste Management

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what expenditure from the public purse on (a) anaerobic digestion and (b) composting of waste was in each of the last three years; what it is expected to be in each of the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [140638]

Mr. Bradshaw: My Department is providing a range of targeted support to help increase the UK's processing capacity for organic waste and develop markets for its end products. Projects are being delivered by DEFRA's Waste Implementation Programme, the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) and the Environment Agency.

Composting

DEFRA provided £3,266,000 in 2004-05, £3,587,000 in 2005-06 and £3,479,000 in 2006-07 for delivery of WRAP's Organics programme, which is aiming to increase the UK's composting capacity by 23 per cent. A further £6.4 million has been allocated for 2007-08. Funding for future years has not yet been decided.

For every £1 spent within the Organics programme, an investment of approximately £2.80 has been made into the corporate industry by the private sector.

WRAP's Home Composting Programme was allocated £7,045,000 in 2004-05, £13,085,000 in 2005-06 and £10,116,000 in 2006-07. A further £300,000 was awarded to WRAP in 2006-07 for their Food Waste Collection Trials and £110,000 has been allocated to them for their work on anaerobic digestion in 2007-08. The aim of this programme is to increase waste diversion through home composting, where local authorities are WRAP's main delivery partners.

Anaerobic Digestion

The Waste Implementation Programme's £30 million New Technologies Programme, has contracted with four anaerobic, aerobic and in-vessel composting organisations to provide demonstrator projects. A total of £5,917,576 has been allocated to four plants.

In addition, approximately £600,000 will be spent over the next two years on research and development projects running alongside each demonstrator.

Expenditure over the last three years has been as follows:

2004-05	—	0
2005-06	Total	1,139,749
	Bioganix	125,348
	Envar	280,563
	Biocycle	733,838
2006-07	Total	1,225,320
	Premier	911,263
	Bioganix	314,057
2007-08	Total	3,022,004
	Bioganix	85,595

	Envar	788,596
	Premier	1,610,651
	Biocycle	537,162
2008-09	Total	530,417
	Envar	152,417
	Premier	378,000

[1] Projects are expected to be completed in 2008-09.

Under the auspices of the Methane to Markets partnership, DEFRA hosted a high-level international workshop in November 2006. Its objective was to identify the policies needed to grow markets for anaerobic digestion in order to reduce global levels of agricultural methane emissions. We contributed £58,241.96 to the cost of the event.

DEFRA has also spent £52,000 in 2004-05 £3,000 in 2005-06 and £132,000 in 2006-07 on research and development of anaerobic digestion. Resource allocation for future research has yet to be determined, but DEFRA is committed to ongoing funding for research in this area.

Un-ringfenced funding is also provided to local authorities under the Waste Performance and Efficiency Grant, which is supporting new and more efficient ways to deliver waste reduction, increase recycling and divert waste from landfill. Local authorities are free to choose which projects they support to achieve these objectives. Local authorities received £45 million in 2005-06, £105 million in 2006-07. £110 million is allocated for 2007-08.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Government plans to put in place targets for the anaerobic digestion of (a) household organic waste and (b) agricultural waste; and if he will make a statement. [140645]

Mr. Bradshaw: My Department has no plans to set specific targets for anaerobic digestion. However, we are committed to making the most of the potential of anaerobic digestion to contribute to a number of our key objectives: reducing greenhouse emissions, improving air and water quality, and a growth in the production of renewable energy.

The UK Biomass Strategy and the recently published Waste Strategy for England 2007 set out the important contribution which anaerobic digestion can make to achieving these objectives. Waste Strategy for England 2007 identifies anaerobic digestion as the preferred technology for recovering energy from waste and outlines measures to promote its greater uptake. It particularly encourages local authorities and businesses to consider using anaerobic digestion to treat separately collected food waste.

In the Energy White Paper, the Government announced that we would be consulting on the banding of the renewables obligation. Under these proposals, electricity produced by anaerobic digestion would receive two renewable obligation certificates per megawatt hours.

The Environment Agency has agreed to develop a standard for digestate in 2007-08. This will allow modern regulatory principles to be applied to the use of this material and bring certainty to when this material is considered to be "fully recovered". This should help to facilitate the development of markets for digestate.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of (a) household organic and (b) agricultural waste was (i) aerobically and (ii) anaerobically digested in each of the last seven years; how much he expects to be digested in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [140646]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total organic household waste collected by local authorities in England for central composting since 2000 is shown in the following table[1]. This is also expressed as a percentage of total household waste arisings. 2006-07 figures are not yet available. Based on an extrapolation from historical growth rates, the Waste and Resources Action Programme estimates the figure is likely to be between 2.9 million and 3.2 million tonnes.

	Compost tonnages (Thousand tonnes)	As percentage of total household waste
2000-01	798	3.2
2001-02	954	3.7
2002-03	1,189	4.6
2003-04	1,362	5.4
2004-05	1,960	7.6
2005-06	2,439	9.6

DEFRA does not hold specific figures for the amount of waste that is aerobically or anaerobically digested. However, a report from the Composting Association estimated that less than 1 per cent. of total waste was composted at centralised sites using anaerobic digestion. This estimate is based on a sample of compost producers which responded to the Composting Association survey.

Agricultural waste was not classified as controlled waste until the Waste Management (England and Wales) Regulations 2006 came into force on 15 May 2006, so no figures are available for management of agricultural organic waste. The Composting Association report[2] estimates that on-farm composting grew by 40 per cent. from 2003-04, from 0.25 million tonnes (Mt) to 0.35 Mt, but on-farm processing still represented just 13 per cent. of the overall organic waste processed in 2004-05.

[1] Municipal Waste Statistics

[2] 'The State of Composting and Biological Waste Treatment in the UK, 2004-05'

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Department for Communities and Local Government on the implementation of joint waste authorities; and what estimate he has made of the number of local authorities likely to adopt such schemes. [140804]

Mr. Bradshaw: My officials and I have held a number of discussions with our counterparts in the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) on proposals to allow local authorities to work together to deliver waste services, through the establishment of statutory joint waste authorities.

The Secretary of State for the Department for Communities and Local Government (Ruth Kelly) announced the Government's intention to introduce these powers in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill on the 22 January.

No estimate has been made by my Department on the number of local authorities likely to apply to create a joint waste authority.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Aung San Suu Kyi

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking in response to the ongoing imprisonment of Aung San Suu Kyi. [140979]

Mr. Hoon: We have repeatedly condemned the continuing detention of Aung San Suu Kyi. My right. hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a statement on 26 May condemning the Burmese government's decision to extend Aung San Suu Kyi's house arrest by a further year and called for her release and that of all other political prisoners in Burma. The EU also released a similar statement on 25 May.

On 28 May, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, (Mr. McCartney), met the Burmese Foreign Minister at the Asia/Europe Foreign Ministers meeting in Hamburg and called again for the Burmese government to release Aung San Suu Kyi.

With the UN and other key partners, we will continue to press for an open and inclusive political process in Burma, and an improvement in the human rights situation. The release of Aung San Suu Kyi is central to both objectives.

Chagos Islands

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further action the Government plans to take in relation to (a) compensation and (b) repatriation for the Chagos Islanders; and if she will make a statement. [141056]

Mr. Hoon: The Chagossians have already received compensation to the value of £14.5 million at today's prices through two payments made in the early 1970s and 1982. They were also given the right to apply for British citizenship by the British Overseas Territories Act 2002.

In 2004, the Court of Appeal, following a two year litigation, confirmed the decision of Mr. Justice Ouseley in rejecting all claims by the Chagos Islanders to additional compensation from the Government.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will consider the 23 May judgment of the Court of Appeal carefully. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reserves the right to petition the House of Lords to grant permission to appeal, as she is entitled to do within one month. The Government's policy in relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory therefore remains the subject of possible ongoing legal proceedings and it would be inappropriate to comment further.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the return of the Chagossians to the Chagos Islands following the Court of Appeal ruling that the orders in council preventing them from returning were unlawful. [142051]

Mr. Hoon: The Court of Appeal handed down its judgment on the 2004 Orders in Council on 23 May. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will consider it carefully and reserves the right to petition the House of Lords to grant permission to appeal, as she is entitled to do within one month.

The Government's policy in relation to the British Indian Ocean Territory therefore remains the subject of possible ongoing legal proceedings and it would be inappropriate to comment further.

Chechnya

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the situation in Chechnya; and if she will make a statement. [138244]

Mr. Hoon: We monitor the situation in Chechnya and the wider north Caucasus regularly. Recent years have seen a gradual improvement in the security situation in Chechnya, resulting in the UN downgrading its security classification for Chechnya from Phase 5 to Phase 4 in August 2006. But the security situation in neighbouring Ingushetia and Dagestan is increasingly concerning.

The death of Shamil Basayev in 2006 was followed by an amnesty under which over 500 rebel fighters were reported to have surrendered, creating the opportunity for a process of reconciliation that could underpin long-term security. Although the general security trend is positive and large-scale military action by federal troops has now ceased, low-intensity clashes with separatist groups continue to be reported.

We believe that the best prospect for political stability in the republic is for the federal and local authorities to work together towards democratic accountability of government structures and to address the social and economic needs of the population.

We remain concerned about reports of human rights abuses in the north Caucasus. There are reports of forced disappearances, torture and extra-judicial killing in the republic. We believe that security measures which do not respect international human rights law are counter-productive and that a long-term solution to the region's problems is only possible once an end has been put to human rights violations. It is important that President Kadyrov ensures that all government agencies operate within the law and that all security measures are combined with a full respect for human rights.

The situation in Chechnya and the wider north Caucasus remains an issue of importance in our continuing bilateral and EU discussions with Russia. With EU partners, we raised the latest developments in Chechnya with the Russian government at the EU-Russia Human Rights Consultations on 3 May.

The Government are also active in assisting development in the north Caucasus through individual projects supported by the global conflict prevention pool, our bilateral £1 million north Caucasus education initiative, and the €20 million technical aid to the Commonwealth of independent states special assistance programme, which was agreed under the UK's EU presidency in 2005.

Departments: Ministerial Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many of her Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the code of conduct for special advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140125]

Margaret Beckett: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the code of conduct for special advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Ethiopia: Political Prisoners

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further steps she has taken since October 2006 to secure the release of Kifle Tigneh Abate and other opposition political leaders being detained by the Ethiopian government; and if she will make a statement. [140922]

Mr. Hoon: We continue to make representations to the Government of Ethiopia to ensure that the continuing trials of all opposition political leaders, including Kifle Abate, are swift, transparent and fair, and that their individual human rights are respected.

On 11 December 2006 our Ambassador in Addis Ababa raised the case with the Ethiopian Minister and State Minister for Justice. On 3 January and 26 May he met Kifle Abate's wife to discuss his ongoing trial.

Our Ambassador in Addis Ababa has raised the opposition trials with Prime Minister Meles Zenawi on several occasions, most recently on 11 May.

Embassy officials in Addis Ababa continue to monitor Kifle Abate's trial. At the last hearing on 14 May, the judges dismissed the charge of attempted genocide against him and released 14 of his 32 co-defendants. The court will reconvene on 19 October to consider the charge of "outrage against the constitutional order".

EU Constitution Treaty

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had on the EU constitutional arrangement; and if she will make a statement. [141475]

Mr. Hoon: EU institutional reform will be discussed at the European Council on 21-22 June. We expect the presidency to issue a report on its consultations with member states before the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 18 June.

We have made clear to partners our belief that the EU should return to the model of an amending Treaty. The principles behind the Government's approach remain those set out in my written ministerial statement of 5 December 2006, Official Report, columns 10-11WS.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Department's policy is on transferring additional powers to the European Union as part of any new constitutional treaty; and if she will make a statement. [141933]

Mr. Hoon: EU institutional reform will be discussed at the European Council on 21-22 June. We expect the presidency to issue a report on its consultations with member states before the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 18 June.

We have made clear to partners our belief that the EU should return to the model of an amending treaty. The principles behind the Government's approach remain those set out in my written ministerial statement of 5 December 2006, Official Report, columns 10-11WS.

Foreigners: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what account is taken of past convictions for violent crimes when considering whether to issue visas to foreign nationals. [141362]

Dr. Howells: In accordance with paragraph 320(18) of the Immigration Rules, an Entry Clearance Officer will normally refuse an entry clearance application if the applicant has been convicted of an offence in any country, which, if committed in the UK, would be punishable by imprisonment of 12 months or more.

Iran: Afghanistan

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of Iran's decision to expel illegal Afghan migrants; and what steps she plans to take in response in Afghanistan. [140156]

Dr. Howells: We have received a number of reports from our embassies in Tehran and Kabul about the expulsion of illegal Afghan immigrants from Iran. The Iranian Government estimates that there are about 1 million unregistered Afghans in Iran who do not have refugee status and it has made it clear that it intends to expel them. Iran is also host to 1 million documented Afghan refugees.

In mid April the Iranian authorities launched a repatriation campaign for these illegal refugees, focusing particularly on moving them out of Iranian Sistan-Baluchistan (with the movement of 3,000 refugees from Iran into the Afghan province of Nimroz in the first month of the campaign).

Against a backdrop of public and parliamentary disquiet the Government of Afghanistan is looking at ways to manage the situation. It has convened its National Emergency Response Commission, with the Refugee Ministry in the lead. The Afghan Foreign Ministry is in discussions with Iran to ensure better procedures to deal with the return of Afghan nationals.

We remain in touch with the Government of Afghanistan and office of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees on this issue.

Iran: Nuclear Programme

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what International Atomic Energy Agency supervision the Iranian Government would be required to accept in order for the UK Government to be satisfied that uranium enrichment in Iran would be confined to entirely peaceful purposes; and if she will make a statement. [139826]

Dr. Howells: After many years of hiding its nuclear programme from the world, Iran needs to satisfy the international community, and not just the UK, that its programme is for purely peaceful reasons. The generous and far-reaching proposals presented to Iran on behalf of the E3+3 (France, Germany, UK + China, Russia, US) by Dr. Javier Solana in June 2006 would give Iran everything it needs to develop a modern civil nuclear power programme. These remain on the table and we stand ready to negotiate with Iran on the basis of these. But Iran first needs to suspend its enrichment-related activities, as repeatedly required by the UN Security Council and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Board of Governors, to gain the confidence of the international community.

We will not be satisfied that Iran's nuclear programme is for entirely peaceful purposes until Iran meets in full the requirements of the international community. These include Iran's obligations under UN Security Council Resolutions 1696, 1737 and 1747, as well as the requirements under IAEA Board of Governors decisions and resolutions. In particular, as the Director-General of the IAEA has stated many times, unless Iran addresses the long outstanding verification issues, and implements the Additional Protocol which it has agreed with the agency, as well as essential transparency measures, the IAEA will not be able to fully reconstruct the history of Iran's nuclear programme and provide the international community with assurances about the exclusively peaceful nature of that programme. The Director-General has also stated that these required transparency measures would need to go further than the measures prescribed in the Safeguards Agreement and Additional Protocol, given the 20 years of undeclared nuclear activities in Iran. In the Director-General's most recent report on Iran on 23 May, he noted that the agency's level of knowledge of certain aspects of Iran's nuclear related activities had deteriorated over the past year.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response she has made to proposals for (a) further incentives for Iran to suspend Iranian enrichment and (b) a further round of sanctions against the Iranian regime; and if she will make a statement. [140157]

Mr. Hoon: The report by the Director-General of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), Dr. ElBaradei, of 23 May made clear that Iran had not complied with UN Security Council Resolution 1747. As envisaged in the resolution, the Security Council will respond accordingly and will adopt further sanctions on Iran. We remain committed to the twin-track approach and stand ready to enter negotiations with Iran, once they comply with the Security Council Resolutions and the IAEA Board of Governors, on the basis of the generous and far-reaching proposals presented to Iran by Javier Solana in June 2006 on behalf of the E3+3 (France, Germany, UK + China, Russia, US).

Iraq: Foreign Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in setting up co-operation programmes between Iraq and its neighbours on (a) border security, (b) energy and (c) refugees. [140376]

Margaret Beckett: Following agreement at the Iraq Neighbours Conference on 4 May, we understand that the Government of Iraq plans to hold the first meetings of the working groups on energy, security and refugees between 5-15 June.

Iraq: International Assistance

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what body will have responsibility for the co-ordination and monitoring of the international compact with Iraq; and when this body is planned to be formed; [140372]

(2) if she will make a statement on the broader international assistance in the development of Iraqi security forces which is described in the international compact with Iraq; which countries are to be involved; and what form this assistance is to take; [140373]

(3) how often and at what level the participants in the Iraq compact are expected to meet; and if she will make a statement. [140374]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

The international compact for Iraq (ICI) is an opportunity for the Government of Iraq to set out its economic and political priorities for the next five years, with the help of the United Nations and the international community. It will develop the key reforms necessary to enable Iraq to make the most of its own resources and build a strategy for longer-term growth. The focus will be to build a framework for Iraq's economic transformation and integration into the regional and global economy. Its scope will cover short-term and long-term economic goals to enable Iraq to become financially self-sufficient, in order to ensure economic development and sustainable growth. The UK is pleased that the Government of Iraq is tackling these important issues and we hope that regional and international partners will support their efforts.

The Security context of the compact stresses the importance for the Government of Iraq to work with international partners to develop the Iraqi Security Forces (ISF). Security assistance is provided to Iraq under the auspices of the multi-national force for Iraq. This force is in Iraq at the request of the Iraqi government and is mandated by UN Security Council Resolutions 1546 and 1723 to develop stability and security in that country; 25 countries contribute to it, all with the common objectives of helping to provide security, training and mentoring to the Iraqi security forces until they are fully able to manage the security situation.

Implementation of the compact priorities will be overseen by the compact secretariat which was established on 28 May in Baghdad. The secretariat will operate out of the Deputy Prime Ministers' Office and will be supported by a Steering Committee and a number of sector working groups. The secretariat will be responsible for coordinating, implementing and monitoring performance of the policies and reforms laid out in the joint monitoring matrix.

The Government of Iraq plans to meet regularly with the international community to keep them updated on progress. They will produce monthly/quarterly reports on progress against indicators in the compact. Such reports will be passed for discussion to the Baghdad coordination group (BCG), which includes all participants in the Iraq compact based in country. There will also be regular meetings with donors as part of sector working group discussions.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the impact of the US surge strategy for Baghdad on security levels in the city; and if she will make a statement. [141658]

Mr. Hoon: The increase in US forces in Baghdad and the surrounding provinces, as part of the Multinational Force in Iraq, is intended to support the Iraqi-led Baghdad Security Plan, which also involves the deployment of additional Iraq security force personnel as well as a range of political and economic activities. It would be premature to judge the success of the plan before all the additional US forces are in theatre.

Ultimately, the strategy is designed to create the political space necessary for progress by the Government of Iraq and other Iraqi parties and communities on national political issues, including reconciliation. We continue to provide encouragement and practical support for this process.

Iraq: National Reconciliation Plan

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made in establishing a national dialogue and reconciliation in Iraq. [140375]

Margaret Beckett: High levels of violence have undermined progress on the Iraqi Government's national reconciliation plan published last year, but reconciliation and power-sharing between Iraq's different communities remains central to the country's future. We welcome the establishment of an Executive Council comprising Prime Minister Maliki, President Talabani and the two Vice-Presidents, which first met on 15 May. The Council will allow for high-level cross-sectarian oversight of, and co-operation on, key policy issues.

The Iraqi Government is conducting dialogues with various opposition groups and tribes, and there is evidence of Sunni tribes in Anbar Province working with the authorities to confront al-Qaeda in Iraq. We are also encouraged by the constructive approach taken by all representatives on the Constitutional Review Committee, which is considering issues central to reconciliation, including federalism and distribution of resources. We hope that the recent Iraq Neighbours Meeting in Sharm el Sheikh will lead to greater regional support for the reconciliation process.

Islam: Democracy

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to promote and embed democracy in the countries of the Islamic world; and if she will make a statement. [141070]

Dr. Howells: We support efforts to promote democratic principles in the Islamic world, including through our contacts with governments and civil society, and projects both bilaterally through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Global Opportunities Fund and multilaterally, including through the G8-Broader Middle East and North Africa and Euromed processes.

Kyrgyzstan: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to improve consular services in Kyrgyzstan; and if she will make a statement. [138548]

Mr. Hoon: The Government retain the services of an honorary consul in Bishkek, overseen by our embassy office in Almaty. The honorary consul is trained to provide consular services and assistance to British nationals who find themselves in need. The current level of demand for these services does not indicate that any increased resource is needed at present, but the situation is kept under review.

Lancaster House

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) conferences and events and (b) visitors there were at (i) Lancaster House and (ii) Marlborough House in each of the last five years. [141429]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) hosted the following conferences/meetings and functions at Lancaster House in the period 2002-06.

	Conferences/Meetings	Functions
2002	29	65
2003	23	51
2004	29	64
2005	38	59
2006	27	44

Although the FCO arranges occasional informal tours of Lancaster House no statistics are kept on the number of visitors.

The FCO does not have responsibility for the management of Marlborough House, which is carried out by the Commonwealth Secretariat. No FCO events were hosted there from 2002-06.

Lebanon: Armed Forces

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the UK is giving to the Lebanese armed forces. [140367]

Margaret Beckett: The UK is committed to helping Lebanon to implement UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1701. As part of this, we spent approximately 1 million to support the Lebanese security sector, including the Lebanese armed forces (LAF), last financial year (2006-07). This included providing 47 Land Rovers to the LAF to increase their mobility and their capacity to implement UNSCR 1701. Our current programme of assistance includes a security sector advisor, public order training and equipment and human rights training for the LAF. We plan to maintain our engagement with and support of the LAF going forward.

Lebanon: Islamic Extremists

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the (a) origin, (b) affiliation and (c) role of extremist Islamist groups in Lebanon; and if she will make a statement. [140368]

Margaret Beckett: The Government have received reports on the origin, affiliation and role of Islamic extremist groups in Lebanon from a range of different sources. These include diplomatic, intelligence, press and academic reports.

We judge that there are a number of extremist Islamist groups operating in Lebanon, of different affiliations and with different and constantly changing allegiances and objectives. Hezbollah is the main force among the Shiite population. There are also several small extremist Sunni groups operating in Lebanon; this includes Fatah Al Islam.

We continue to be concerned by the presence of such groups in Lebanon and their effect on the country's long term stability. We support full implementation of UN Security Council Resolution 1559 which calls for the disbanding and disarmament of all militias in Lebanon.

Lebanon: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals have been put forward by the United Kingdom to resolve the impasse over the formation of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon; and if she will make a statement. [140377]

Margaret Beckett: The UK is determined that those responsible for the assassination of Rafik Hariri should be brought to justice. In November 2006, with the UK's support, the then UN Secretary-General wrote to Prime Minister Siniora inviting the Lebanese Government to approve statutes for the Special Tribunal for Lebanon. In the context of the political impasse in Lebanon this was not possible, and Prime Minister Siniora and the Lebanese parliamentary majority wrote to the UN Secretary-General asking him to explore alternative ways forward. We have since worked with Security Council partners to assist Lebanon in setting up the Tribunal. UN Security Council Resolution 1757, formally establishing the Tribunal, was successfully passed on 30 May. We will work towards its full implementation.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place with the Government of Lebanon on initiatives to make political progress in Lebanon; and if she will make a statement. [140378]

Margaret Beckett: The Government have remained in regular contact with the Government of Lebanon throughout the political crisis of recent months. My hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East, (Dr. Howells), and I have both recently visited Lebanon to show our ongoing support for the democratically elected Government and to discuss ways forward with both the Government and opposition. The UK is also active on the ground through our ambassador in Beirut. The UK has supported a number of regional and international efforts by Saudi Arabia, the Arab League and the UN to resolve the crisis. We continue to call on all sides in Lebanon to show flexibility and engage constructively to resolve the current political impasse.

Lebanon: Sanctions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries are believed to be breaching the UN arms embargo on Lebanon set out in UN Security Council Resolution 1701(2006); and what recent steps have been taken to improve the implementation of the arms embargo. [140369]

Margaret Beckett: In March, the UN Secretary-General reported that there was mounting evidence that Hezbollah was rearming and smuggling arms across the Syria/Lebanon border in breach of UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1701. While the UN Secretary-General's report did not specifically identify the supplier of these arms, we continue to judge that both Syria and Iran are involved in providing Hezbollah with weapons in breach of UNSCR 1701. This is a serious concern.

The UK continues to work for the full implementation of UNSCR 1701. Bilaterally, the UK has provided the Lebanese armed forces with 47 Land Rovers to increase their mobility and capacity to implement UNSCR 1701. We are also supporting a German-led initiative to improve Lebanese border monitoring capacity.

The UK fully supported the UN Security Council decision to mandate a border assessment mission to visit Lebanon. The Lebanon Independent Border Assessment Team is currently in Lebanon assessing the current border security arrangements in support of UNSCR 1701. On its return, the team will provide recommendations to both the Secretary-General and the Government of Lebanon for improving the security of the Syria/Lebanon border.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what UN mechanisms exist for the review of the implementation of the restrictions set out in UN Security Council Resolution 1701(2006). [140370]

Margaret Beckett: The UN Secretary-General is required to report on the implementation of UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1701 every three months. The UK fully supported the UN Security Council decision to mandate a border assessment mission to visit Lebanon. The Lebanon Independent Border Assessment Team is currently in Lebanon assessing the current border security arrangements in support of UNSCR 1701. On its return, the Team will provide recommendations to both the Secretary-General and the Government of Lebanon for improving the security of the Syria/Lebanon border.

Mexico: Overseas Trade

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she plans to take to increase contacts and trade with Mexico. [141413]

Mr. Hoon: The UK's relationship with Mexico has broadened and deepened over recent years and contacts have increased. We expect this to continue, not least through Mexico's participation in the G8 plus five outreach group.

We now hold annual high level talks and in 2007 will introduce annual economic talks at senior official level. Ministers and officials also hold many other meetings with their Mexican opposite numbers. In January, President Calderon visited the UK. His programme included meetings with my right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Chancellor of the Exchequer and in addition key UK business leaders through a Confederation of British Industry event. During the visit my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met with Foreign Minister Patricia Espinosa.

Most recently, my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, met Mexican Foreign Minister Espinosa on 20 April at the EU Rio ministerial meeting in Santo Domingo. In addition, officials from the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs visited Mexico City in April to discuss UK/Mexico co-operation on sustainable development and climate change. We also liaise closely with the Mexicans over their role on the G8 plus five outreach group.

On the trade front, UK Trade and Investment's (UKTI) strategy 'Prosperity in a Changing World' has a particular focus on deepening our trade and economic relationship with emerging markets, and Mexico is identified as one such emerging market. As a result, UKTI's network in Mexico has been increased by five members of staff. Mexico has also been identified as a potential source of inward investment and has a new dedicated inward investment team based in Mexico City.

Middle East

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2006, Official Report, column 1511W, on the Middle East, what proposals the UK has put forward for the strengthening of the Lebanese border with Syria; and if she will make a statement. [140354]

Margaret Beckett: The Government continue to attach importance to strengthening the Lebanon/Syria border in the context of implementation of UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1701. The UN Secretary-General has recently voiced his concerns about arms smuggling across the border.

The UK fully supported the UN Security Council's decision to mandate a border assessment mission to visit Lebanon. The Lebanon Independent Border Assessment Team is currently in Lebanon assessing the current border security arrangements in support of UNSCR 1701. On its return, the team will provide recommendations to both the Secretary-General and the Government of Lebanon for improving the security of the Syria/Lebanon border. We are also supporting a German-led initiative to improve Lebanese border monitoring capacity and bilaterally with the Lebanese armed forces to build their capacity.

Middle East: Gaza Strip

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the security situation in the Gaza Strip. [140381]

Margaret Beckett: We are very concerned by the on-going violence in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. Since 13 May, when Palestinian factional violence erupted, over 45 Palestinians have been killed. Two Israelis have been killed in Qassam rocket attacks, and over 45 Palestinians, including seven children, have been killed in Israeli air force air strikes since 17 May. We welcome Palestinian President Abbas' efforts to restore calm and hope that all sides can exercise restraint. The cycle of violence and the humanitarian situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territories underlines the need for the current on-going political processes. We welcome the fortnightly discussions between Israeli Prime Minister Olmert and President Abbas as well as US Secretary of State Rice's recent efforts and those of the Arab League.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any progress has been made by the Palestinian Authority towards meeting the Quartet conditions; and if she will make a statement. [140380]

Margaret Beckett: We will judge the Palestinian Government by its platform and actions and respond accordingly. We have always been willing to work with anyone who endorses the Quartet (EU, US, UN and Russia) principles: renunciation of violence; recognition of Israel; and acceptance of previous agreements and obligations. The US and EU also support this position. No Hamas members of the current Government have yet made clear that they have accepted these principles. We are working with those members of the Government who do.

Pakistan: Security

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the security situation in Pakistan; and if she will make a statement. [141741]

Dr. Howells: The security situation in Pakistan remains fragile. There is a high threat from terrorism and sectarian violence throughout the country. Internal security in the border provinces remains volatile, where there has been a series of recent attacks and suicide bombings targeted against both the authorities and the public. Since March, following the Government of Pakistan's decision to suspend the Chief Justice, there have also been frequent, sometimes violent, protests in major cities throughout the country.

We are closely following the situation and will amend Foreign and Commonwealth Office travel advice if we assess that the security situation has changed.

Palestinians: Security Forces

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the UK is providing to assist the strengthening of the Palestinian security forces; and if she will make a statement. [141740]

Dr. Howells: The UK has seconded staff to the EU Police Mission in the Occupied Palestinian Territories and EU Border Assistance Mission Rafah and the US Security Co-ordinator General Dayton. In addition, we have provided non-lethal equipment to the presidential guard and radio equipment to the Palestinian civil police.

Poland: Environment Protection

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government intends to make an intervention to the European Court of Justice in the case of the European Commission and Poland, on the construction of those parts of the Augustow and Wasilkow road bypasses that will pass through the Rospuda Valley and Knyszyn Primeval Forest; and if she will make a statement. [141119]

Mr. Hoon: In April, the European Court of Justice ordered interim measures halting construction work, and a date to be fixed for a hearing to clarify factual matters. If the case goes to a full hearing, once details are published in the Commission's Official Journal, we will consider whether to intervene.

Russia: Estonia

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to (a) Russia and (b) Estonia on the recent confrontation over the movement of a war memorial; and if she will make a statement. [138144]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not made any recent representations to either the Russian or Estonian governments on the dispute over the relocation of the "Bronze Soldier" war memorial. The Estonian Foreign Minister briefed my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and other EU Foreign Ministers on relations with Russia at the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 14 May. The Government fully support the EU Presidency and NATO statements, which expressed grave concern over the safety of the Estonian embassy and its staff in Russia, and urged Russia to fulfil its international obligations under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations. We see this as an internal matter for Estonia and we recognise the right of the Estonian government to relocate memorials and war graves. We note this has been done with due sensitivity and respect.

Terry Lloyd

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions her Department has had in response to the finding of the coroner in October 2006 that ITN correspondent Terry Lloyd was killed unlawfully; and if she will make a statement. [140908]

Dr. Howells: We have asked US officials whether they plan to take any action on Terry Lloyd's case following the Oxfordshire coroner's ruling last October that Mr. Lloyd was unlawfully killed. The US has confirmed that no action is planned.

The Crown Prosecution Service is considering Mr. Lloyd's case. We await the outcome of their deliberations and will consider any further action at this time.

PRIME MINISTER

First Ministers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister what the status was of the meeting with the Welsh First Minister and the Scottish First Minister in January 2007; and in what capacity he attended the meeting. [140841]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Islam: Conferences

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Prime Minister whether his Office helped to organise the guest list for the recent conference on Muslims and Islam in the World Today held by Cambridge university in London. [141342]

The Prime Minister: Cambridge university organised the conference on 4 June, in consultation with a number of partners including the Coexist Foundation, which is an interfaith charity, the Weidenfeld Institute for Strategic Dialogue and the Government.

JUSTICE

Crime: Victims

Ms Keeble: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what support her Department provides for victims of crime. [141130]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government provide a wide range of emotional, practical and financial support to victims of crime.

The code of practice for victims of crime gives victims a statutory right to receive information, support and advice about their case.

The Government fund the voluntary organisation, Victim Support, £30 million annually to provide a nationwide service of practical and emotional support to victims and witnesses of crime. Last year almost 1.4 million people were referred to Victim Support.

The Victims' Fund, established in 2004, has so far distributed £5.25 million to fund specialist support services.

The Government fund the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority which awards about £170 million annually in financial compensation to blameless victims of violent crime (including terrorism).

In addition there are 165 witness care units in England and Wales, ensuring that witnesses receive a tailor-made service from the point of reporting a crime, so that they are supported through the court process.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much was spent by her Department and its predecessor on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139397]

Ms Harman: Information on how much the Department has spent on legal fees in each of the last five years cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs.

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the total value of private finance initiative projects included in her Department's balance sheet (a) is and (b) was in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137824]

Ms Harman: Information on total capital value of on-balance sheet PFI deals by project is contained in the following table.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the value was of annual private finance initiative payments made by her Department from (a) capital and (b) revenue budgets in each of the last five years. [137825]

Ms Harman: Information on annual unitary charge payments is contained in the following table, with all payments coming from revenue budgets:

	Annual unitary charge (£ million)
2006-07	181.04
2005-06	211.44
2004-05	183.47
2003-04	234.72
2002-03	423.76

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what value of annual private finance initiative payments by her Department was classified as (a) identifiable and (b) non-identifiable in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137826]

Ms Harman: All payments made under PFI are identifiable. Prior to a PFI contract being signed the profile of unitary charge payments is agreed between the contractor and the public sector, subject to the operation of the payment mechanism.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what value of annual private finance initiative (PFI) payments were (a) to repay capital and (b) expenditure on other parts of each PFI contract, broken down by project in each of the last five years. [137827]

Ms Harman: The Department does not hold records on this centrally. The information is not therefore currently available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Travel Agency Fees

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much her Department, its predecessor and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139911]

Ms Harman: It is not possible to list the costs spent on travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997 without incurring disproportionate costs as the expenditure is not separately identifiable within the Department's accounts.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the ministerial code and 'Travel by Ministers', copies of which are available in the Library of the House for the reference of Members. All official travel by civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the 'Civil Service Management Code', a copy of which is also available in the Library of the House for the reference of Members.

Expert Evidence: Expenditure

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what proportion of the legal aid budget dedicated to public law Children Act matters was spent on expert witnesses in each year from 2001-02 to 2005-06. [141096]

Vera Baird: The information is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Prison Service: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) prison governors and (b) prison officers are suspended pending investigation at each prison establishment; and if she will make a statement. [141278]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of public sector Prison Service employees, of any grade, suspended pending investigation is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Prison Service: Injuries

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many prison officers were refused payment of a section 11 benefit award following the issuing of a certificate of permanent injury qualification in each of the last five years. [141431]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Prisoners

David Davis: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how prison population projections are calculated; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the models used to do so. [140913]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The models used to calculate the current prison population projections are described in Annex 2 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 11/06, 'Prison population projections 2006-2013, England and Wales', published on the Home Office website in July 2006. There are five elements to the modelling. In the very short term (the first three months) the X12-ARIMA method developed by the USA Census Bureau is used. This method is publicly available at:

www.census.gov/srd/www/xl2a/.

In the short term (between four months and two years) the population is modelled by a stock-and-flow model. This is not publicly available as it links to Prison Service databases that cannot be published. In the longer term (between two and seven years) the Grove-Macleod model is used. This has been published in OR Insight Vol. 11 Issue 1, January-March 1998, pp. 3-9, 'Forecasting the prison population'. More detail is also available in Occasional Paper 80, 'Modelling crime and offending: recent developments in England and Wales' published on the Home Office website in 2003. The impacts of some changes in legislation and operational procedures are estimated using the Criminal Justice System Model and, if necessary, one-off bespoke calculations. The Criminal Justice System Model is owned by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform and is available to CJS practitioners but is not publicly available. Any one-off calculations are described in the aforementioned mentioned Home Office Statistical Bulletin.

Prisoners: Suicide

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) convicted prisoners and (b) remand prisoners committed suicide in each financial year from 2000-01 to 2006-07. [141563]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested in respect of self-inflicted deaths according to legal status is provided in the following table.

Remand/convicted self-inflicted deaths[1]: 2000-01 to 2006-07

Remand[2]	34	28	41	35	27	26	22
Convicted unsentenced[3]	8	10	15	16	17	11	7
Sentenced	35	37	50	42	42	37	44
Total	77	75	106	93	86	74	73

[1] Self-inflicted deaths include all deaths where it appears the individual acted specifically to take their own life, not only those that received a suicide or open verdict at inquest.
[2] Includes some with detainee status.
[3] Includes some with J/R status (judgment respited, convicted but awaiting further reports before sentencing).

Prisons

Mr. Howard: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1148W, on prisons, how many prison places have been provided (a) under the private finance initiative, (b) via other sources of funding and (c) in response to prison overcrowding. [141576]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Under the private finance initiative (PFI) the number of prison places provided (i.e. delivered) under this administration is 5,397, of which 894 places were contracted under the previous administration but delivered by this one.

Between the end of April 1997 and the end April 2007 a further 13,126 places have been provided through funding other than PFI. This includes a number of places in public sector managed prisons whose contract to build new accommodation will have been signed before 1 May 1997. It is not possible to identify those additional places associated with those contracts.

All this additional operational capacity has been provided as a response to increasing population pressures.

Prisons: Catering

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will list the prison establishments that have reported difficulties with catering deliveries following the introduction of the shared service centre; what the cost of the shared service centre project has been; which prison establishments have returned to purchasing from local shops for catering purposes; and if she will make a [illegible]tement. [140055]

[illegible]r. Sutcliffe: Difficulties with catering deliveries [illegible]t directly and definitively be attributed to the [illegible]uction of the shared service centre. As such there are no comprehensive central records that detail them exhaustively and compiling such a record would be prohibitively expensive.

The total cost of the shared service centre project is £84.8 million. This excludes capital costs and ongoing running costs.

Purchasing from local suppliers on an ad hoc basis is a recognised and legitimate contingency measure when failures are experienced in the main supply chain for foodstuff. For example, recent difficulties getting the bulk supply of long-grain rice from North America has caused the Prison Service to purchase existing stocks from local suppliers.

Royal Courts of Justice: Library

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether she plans to re-open the library at the Royal Courts of Justice to the public. [140831]

Ms Harman: There are no plans to re-open the library at the Royal Courts of Justice for use by the public.

Solicitors Regulation Authority

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice which solicitors were disciplined by the Solicitors Regulation Authority in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007 to date. [140914]

Bridget Prentice: The Solicitors Regulation Authority has advised that only a limited amount of information is publicly available on solicitors whom it has disciplined. However, an individual may contact the SRA directly to find out about an individual solicitor or firm of solicitors.

In 2006 there were 743 matters involving 1094 individuals that had a disciplinary decision recorded against the solicitor (as listed). There were also 495 matters involving 529 individuals that were referred to other bodies, including the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal (SDT) and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO).

So far in 2007 there have been 396 matters involving 596 individuals with a decision recorded, and there have been 252 referrals of matters involving 334 individuals.

In extracting these figures the Solicitors Regulation Authority have defined "disciplined" as having one of the following decisions:

Disapproval

Finding and Warning

Intervention (this information is available to the public)

Practising Certificate—suspended under Section 13B of the Solicitors Act 1974 (this information is available to the public)

Reprimand

Reprimand severely

Vest Discretion (this information relates to conditions imposed on practising certificates and is available to the public)

The SRA defines a "matter" as a complaint or allegation. A single matter could be about a firm and the disciplinary decision made against some or all of the partners; therefore a single matter can result in multiple decisions.

Young Offender Institutions: Suicide and Self-Harm

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) suicides and (b) incidents of self-harm took place at each young offender institution in (i) 2002-03, (ii) 2003-04, (iii) 2004-05, (iv) 2005-6 and (v) 2006-07. [141564]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested in respect of suicides in young offenders institutions is provided in the following table.

YOI self-inflicted deaths[1]: 2002-03 to 2006-07

Establishment	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Castington	2	—	—	—	—
Hindley	1	—	—	—	—
Aylesbury	1	1	—	—	—
Glen Parva	—	—	—	2	1
Lancaster Farms	—	1	1	—	—
Portland	—	1	—	—	—
Stoke Heath	—	—	1	—	—
Brinsford	—	—	1	—	1
Reading	—	1	—	3	—
Swinfen Hall	—	1	—	—	—

[1] Self-inflicted deaths include all deaths where it appears the individual acted specifically to take their own life, not only those that received a suicide or open verdict at inquest.

The exact information requested at (b) is not available. Self-harm figures are derived from a national recording system of each incident of self-harm in prison, the majority of which are minor, and can be considered only as an estimate.

Young Offenders

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what criteria determine whether a 2052 SH form should be opened on a prisoner detained in a young offenders institution; and if she will make a statement. [141557]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The F2052SH (self-harm at risk form) has been replaced by an improved assessment and care planning tool known as the ACCT Plan (Assessment, Care in Custody and Teamwork). As with the F2052SH, in the event of any incident of self-harm, or whenever a member of staff believes a prisoner/trainee is at risk of suicide or self-harm, they must (where there is not one open already) open an ACCT Plan.

HEALTH

Bicycles: Trains

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on the carriage of bicycles on trains; and if she will make a statement. [139955]

Caroline Flint: There have been no specific meetings on this issue. The discussions between the Department and Department for Transport Ministers in the context of the inter-ministerial group on physical activity have covered broader issues on the importance of walking and cycling to the physical activity agenda.

Blood: Contamination

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many known haemophiliacs who acquired HIV and hepatitis C through blood transfusions there are in (a) Kent and (b) the UK. [140358]

Caroline Flint: Data are not collected on the number of patients with haemophilia infected with HIV and hepatitis C who are living in Kent. Data for the United Kingdom are provided in the table.

	Estimated number of haemophilia patients infected through contaminated blood products who are alive
Hepatitis C[1]	2,538
HIV[2]	360

[1] Estimated data from the United Kingdom Haemophilia Centre Directors' Organisation National Haemophilia Database.
[2] Data from the Macfarlane Trust.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women are on the waiting list for an appointment at the North London Breast Screening Service; and if she will make a statement. [139009]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Strict quality assurance is operated across the national health service breast screening programme at a cost of £4 million a year and the performance of local screening services is kept under close review.

Following concerns in relation to the North London Breast Screening Service, it was temporarily suspended on 29 December 2006.

In April 2007, a report by NHS cancer screening programmes into services in North London was passed to Enfield primary care trust, and it, together with other stakeholders, reviewed the report's findings and recommendations and developed an action plan for improvement. As a result, the screening service resumed on 14 May 2007 and is being closely monitored to ensure quality and safety.

Cervical Cancer: Vaccination

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when she expects to make a decision on the implementation of the human papilloma virus vaccine following the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation meeting on 28 June 2006; [139170]

(2) if the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation will bring forward the date of its meeting on the human papilloma virus vaccine; and if she will make a statement; [139171]

(3) if she will ensure that she makes a decision on the introduction of the human papilloma virus vaccine as soon as possible after the relevant meeting of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation; and if she will make a statement; [139172]

(4) what discussions her Department has had with the Scottish Executive on the school-based vaccination programme for the human papilloma virus in Scotland; and if she will make a statement. [139174]

Caroline Flint: We are currently seeking expert advice from the independent Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) on the efficacy, safety and benefits that new vaccines against human papilloma virus (HPV) may offer. It is important that they thoroughly consider all the available evidence around HPV vaccines and that they only make recommendations when they are sure that all relevant information has been considered.

No decisions will be taken on introducing these vaccines into the immunisation programme until the main JCVI present their recommendations to Ministers for consideration.

Officials in my Department and the Scottish Executive have had discussions on this matter.

Dental Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance her Department has issued to primary care trusts on how they should interpret their duty to meet all reasonable requirements for NHS dentistry under the Health and Social Care Act 2003. [138262]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The commissioning framework set out in the Annex to "Health Reform in England", published by the Department in July 2006, sets out guidance for commissioning national health service services. Further guidance on commissioning is set out in the "Commissioning framework for health and well-being" published in March 2007. The principles and features of good commissioning set out in these documents, including the importance of assessing local needs, reviewing service provision, deciding priorities, designing services and seeking public and patient views, apply to commissioning primary dental care services.

Dental Services: Dorset

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dental practices in (a) North Dorset Primary Care Trust; (b) South and East Dorset Primary Care Trust and (c) South West Dorset Primary Care Trust accepted NHS patients in the 12-month period up to April 2006. [140700]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on dental practices accepting national health service patients is not held centrally. However, information on the number of NHS dental practices and dentists in the North Dorset, South and East Dorset and South West Dorset Primary Care Trusts (PCT) in the 12-month period up to April 2006 is shown in the following table.

General dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS): Total numbers of GDS/PDS dentists and practices in specific primary care trusts (PCTs) as at 31 March 2006

Primary care trust	Total number of GDS and PDS dentists[1]	Number of dental practices
North Dorset	40	13
South and East Dorset	70	29
South West Dorset	65	30

[1] Data are extracted from NHS Dentist Statistics for England Quarter 3: 31 December 2006 report published by The Information Centre on 23 March 2007.

Notes:

1. Dentists will be counted more than once if they have contracts in more than one PCT.
2. The areas have been defined using practice postcodes within the PCT.
3. Dentists consist of principals, assistants and trainees. Prison and emergency contracts are excluded.
4. A dentist with a contract may provide as little or as much NHS treatment as he or she chooses.

Business Services Authority
The Information Centre for health and social care

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dental practices within Dorset Primary Care Trust are accepting NHS patients. [140701]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on national health service dental practices accepting new NHS patients are not available centrally under the new contractual arrangements. However, data on the number of NHS dentists (performers) contracted to perform NHS dental work at primary care trust (PCT) level are available.

Data on the number of NHS dentists (performers) are available quarter ending 30 June, 30 September and 31 December 2006 at England, strategic health authority and PCT levels in section G of annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England Q3:31 December 2006 report published by The Information Centre for health and social care. This table also includes the population per NHS dentist.

This report has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-for-england-q3:-31-december-2006

Data for the quarter ending March 2007 will be published 19 June 2007.

Doctors: Training

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements her Department (a) has made and (b) plans to make to analyse the security implications of the recent Medical Training Application Service website security breach for the Connecting for Health IT project. [136007]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 8 May 2007]: The Department has investigated the Medical Training Application Service (MTAS) security breach and discovered that it resulted from a failure on the part of those contracted by the Department to provide this service to apply appropriate security safeguards.

MTAS was not implemented by the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency, nor developed by any of its systems suppliers. There are no security implications for any of the applications or services which the agency is providing for the national health service via the national programme for information technology.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding her Department has provided for drug rehabilitation in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139014]

Caroline Flint: Funding which has been made available, in the form of the pooled drug treatment budget (PTB) and local mainstream funding, for the treatment of drug misuse for England in each of the last five years is shown in the following table.

£ million

	PTB	Local funding	Total
2002-03	191	131	322
2003-04	236	200	436
2004-05	253	204	457
2005-06	300	208	508
2006-07	385	212	597

The PTB is allocated to drug action teams throughout the country, who use the funding to commission all forms of drug treatment services to best meet local need.

A further £54.3 million of capital funding was identified in 2006 to improve inpatient and residential drug and alcohol facilities and access to those services. There was a national bidding process held and the money will be available to fund the successful building projects over the next two years.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many places for drug rehabilitation were made available in each of the last five years, broken down by region; and if she will make a statement. [139021]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Ephedrine and Pseudoephedrine

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what legal limit applies to the quantity of ephedrine and pseudoephedrine that can be bought on the internet and imported to the UK; and whether her Department plans to criminalise such imports. [134666]

Caroline Flint: In the United Kingdom, there are strict legal controls on the retail sale, supply and advertisement of medicinal products. Pharmacy medicines must be supplied from a registered pharmacy by, or under the supervision of, a pharmacist. These controls apply equally to medicines sold or supplied through internet transactions and mail order. If supply is made through a UK pharmacy-based internet transaction then there is currently no legal restriction of quantity, although a pharmacist would use their professional judgment whether or not to supply the quantity sought.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) monitors the online availability of medicines. UK based websites which are identified dealing in breach of medicines legislation are referred for appropriate enforcement action. Websites discovered operating illegally outside of the UK are referred to the relevant authority in the country concerned for appropriate action.

As precursors that can be used in the manufacture of illicit drugs, ephedrine and pseudoephedrine are subject to the 1988 UN Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances and are scheduled as category 1 precursors under European legislation. Anyone who imports any quantity of ephedrine and pseudoephedrine is required to obtain a license from the Home Office. The Home Office is currently preparing legislation, to supplement European Union regulation, which will impose criminal penalties for the importation of scheduled substances, including ephedrine and pseudoephedrine, without a valid importation authorisation.

Fats: Health Hazards

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the typical unsaturated fat content of a serving of (a) oven chips, (b) deep fried chips, (c) chicken masala, (d) fish and chips and (e) samosa. [139727]

Caroline Flint: Data on the unsaturated fatty acid content of foods can be found in McCance and Widdowson's The Composition of Foods series. Latest data from this series published in 2002 are set out in the following table.

Food	Total unsaturated fatty acids (9/100g)[1]	Typical portion size (g)[2]	Total unsaturated fatty acids per serving (g)
Oven chips, frozen, baked	2.2	165	3.6
Chips[3], retail, fried in blended oil	10.7	210	22.5
Chicken tikka masala, retail	6.6	300	19.8
Fish[4] and chips[3], fried in blended oil	11.7	380	44.6
Meat samosas, takeaway	11.8	70	8.3

[1] Data from Food Standards Agency (2002) McCance and Widdowson's The Composition of Foods, Sixth summary edition. Cambridge: Royal Society of Chemistry.
[2] Portion size information taken from Food Standards Agency (2002) Food Portion Sizes, 3rd Edition, London, HMSO.
[3] The fat content of chips will be variable and dependent on a number of factors related to their preparation, including how thick they are cut and their shape, i.e. crinkle as opposed to straight cut.
[4] Based on cod, in batter, fried in blended oil.

Folic Acid: Flour

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's policy is on adding folic acid to flour. [139191]

Caroline Flint: The Department is expected to receive advice from the Food Standards Agency (FSA) on the issue of folic acid fortification.

At its open meeting in May 2007, the FSA Board recommended the mandatory fortification of bread or flour. The Board will consider whether to fortify bread, flour, or flour for bread making purposes only, at its open meeting in June 2007, after which it will submit its advice to United Kingdom Health Ministers.

Food Poisoning

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many recorded incidents of food poisoning there were in each of the last 10 years. [140174]

Caroline Flint: The number of notified cases of food poisoning in England and Wales reported to the Health Protection Agency (HPA) each year since 1996 is shown in the following table. Total notifications have shown a decrease since 1996.

Annual corrected food poisoning notifications. England and Wales 1996 to 2006[1]

	Formal notifications	Notifications otherwise ascertained[2]	Total
1996	50,718	32,515	83,233
1997	54,233	39,668	93,901
1998	53,764	40,168	93,982
1999	48,454	37,862	86,316
2000	46,481	40,047	86,528
2001	46,768	38,700	85,468
2002	38,541	34,108	72,649

Food: Additives

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when she last met the Hyperactive Children's Support Group to discuss children's food additives; and if she will publish the minutes of the meeting; [140175]

(2) what assessment she has made of the initial findings of research by the University of Southampton commissioned for the Food Standards Agency on children's food additives; when she expects the report to be published in full; and if she will make a statement; [140176]

(3) what recent assessment she has made of the levels of public trust in food safety; and if she will make a statement; [140177]

(4) when she last met the Food Standards Agency to discuss additives to children's food; and if she will publish the minutes of the meeting; [140192]

(5) what recent discussions she has held with Ministers of other EU states on food additives. [140193]

Caroline Flint: No recent discussions have been held with the Food Standards Agency (FSA) on additives in children's food, nor have there been any meetings with the Hyperactive Children's Support Group.

The findings of the research by Southampton University on food additives and children's behaviour are currently undergoing a process of peer review by experts from one of the Government's independent advisory committees (the Committee on Toxicology of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Products and the Environment) and as part of the process of publication in a scientific journal. This peer review process ensures that the validity of the research is confirmed. The full technical report from the study is currently being finalised and will be published after the scientific papers are published in a scientific journal. Prior release of the results of the research would jeopardise the publication of the scientific papers.

There have been no discussions with other Ministers from European Union member states on food additives; however, discussions between EU member states are currently on-going concerning revisions to the harmonised food additive legislative framework. The European Food Safety Authority has commenced a review of the safety of all food additives, starting with colours, and the FSA will inform the European Commission when the Southampton University research is published so the results can be considered as part of the EU review.

An assessment of the levels of public trust in food safety is made annually, using the FSA's Consumer Attitudes Survey which is published on their website at:

www.food.gov.uk/science/surveys/foodsafety-nutrition-diet

From this survey the proportion of UK adults saying they are concerned about food safety remained constant between 2000 and 2005.

Food: Advertising

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will hold discussions with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport to ensure the Committee for Advertising Practices revised non-broadcast code makes a difference to the nature and balance of advertising of foods high in fat, sugar and salt to children under the age of 16 years; and if she will make a statement. [140584]

Caroline Flint: Departmental officials and I meet regularly with our counterparts in the Department of Culture, Media and Sport to discuss the CAP, BCAP and Ofcom rules regarding the advertising and promotion of food in non-broadcast and broadcast media. The Government are committed to reviewing the change in the nature and balance of food advertising and promotion to children in 2008 and will consider further action based on the outcome of that review.

Food: Labelling

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the Food Standards Agency's colour-coded food labelling recommendations on consumer behaviour. [139743]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has made a commitment to independently evaluate front of pack nutrition signpost labelling schemes in operation in the United Kingdom and their effect on consumer behaviour and understanding. A study will be commissioned later this year to carry out a comparative evaluation of the three main front of pack labelling approaches currently in use in the UK marketplace, including the FSA's recommended colour coded scheme.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of (a) food labelling expressing guideline daily amounts and (b) other food labelling differing from the Food Standards Agency's recommendations. [139744]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency has made a commitment to independently evaluate front of pack nutrition signpost labelling schemes in operation in the United Kingdom and their effect on consumer behaviour and understanding. A study will be commissioned later this year to carry out a comparative evaluation of the three main front of pack labelling approaches currently in use in the UK marketplace.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the level of implementation of the Food Standards Agency's colour-coded food labelling recommendations. [139940]

Caroline Flint: Current adopters of the Food Standards Agency (FSA's) front of pack signpost nutrition labelling approach tell us that by the end of 2007 over 8,000 own label retailer products and 100 manufacturer product lines will carry signpost labelling based on the FSA's core principles. This includes products by Boots, Marks and Spencer, Sainsbury's, Waitrose, the Co-operative Group, Virgin trains, Avondale, Britannia, The New Covent Garden Soup Company, McCain, Moypark, Bernard Matthews, S&B Herba Foods, Bombay Halwa and Budgens/Londis.

A number of additional companies are in the process of putting traffic light front of pack signpost labelling on their products, so these figures are likely to increase later in the year. A full list of those who are using the traffic light signpost can be found on the FSA's eatwell website at www.eatwell.gov.uk.

Food: Safety

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what further steps she plans to take to ensure that food that is past its use-by date is not sold to the public. [139236]

Caroline Flint: Legislation requires that food business operators ensure that all food sold or supplied is safe for human consumption. Most pre-packed food must also be labelled with a use-by date or a best before date as an indication of minimum durability. It is illegal to sell food after its use-by date.

Responsibility for enforcing this legislation falls to local authorities, who carry out checks to ensure that hygiene and labelling requirements are met, taking enforcement action where appropriate.

Health Hazards: Noise

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department has taken to educate people about the risk to their hearing from over exposure to loud noise; and if she will make a statement. [139164]

Caroline Flint: The Department has set up an ad hoc advisory group to advise about the effects of environmental noise on health, which includes the risk to hearing from over exposure to loud noise. This group is currently producing a report on these matters, which is due to be published later this year.

The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) produce a leaflet entitled 'Protect your hearing or lose it', which looks at noise and health issues in the workplace. This is available on the HSE website at www.hse.gov.uk/pubns/indg363.pdf, and a copy has been placed in the Library.

Hybrid Embryos

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance her Department has given to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority on the use of hybrid embryos; and if she will make a statement. [139189]

Caroline Flint: No advice or guidance has been given to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority on the use of hybrid embryos.

In Vitro Fertilisation

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what consultation her Department is undertaking with health authorities on the implementation of Government guidance that they should provide infertile women with one round of IVF on the NHS; [138586]

(2) how many strategic health authorities are implementing the Government guidelines on providing women with one cycle of IVF on the NHS; [138587]

(3) what estimate her Department has made of the cost to the NHS of implementing Government guidelines that women suffering from infertility should be able to get one cycle of IVF on the NHS. [138588]

Caroline Flint: We are funding the patient support organisation Infertility Network UK to work with primary care trusts (PCTs) to identify and share good practice in the provision of fertility services, including in vitro fertilisation. The implementation of guidelines produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), including the NICE fertility guideline, is a matter for individual PCTs, in discussion with local health bodies and patient groups, and taking account of local circumstances. There is no firm central estimate of the current cost to the NHS of providing one cycle of IVF. When the fertility guideline was published, NICE issued a costing template for use by individual PCTs.

Insulin

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 595W, on insulin, on which of the dates referred to she met Dr. Sue Roberts and Dr. Nick Summerton of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to discuss the Institute's future programme on insulin treatments; and what the outcome of such discussions was. [141912]

Caroline Flint: I was not present at any of the meetings between Dr. Sue Roberts and Dr. Nick Summerton, where I understand they discussed the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) future programme on diabetes. A further meeting was held on 17 May 2007. These meetings are part of a series of meetings with the NICE and I understand that discussions are still ongoing.

Malaria: Travel Information

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health from where (a) general practitioners and (b) pharmacists draw their information on the malarial status of destinations for UK travellers; and how frequently this information is updated. [138999]

Caroline Flint: Guidelines for use by healthcare workers on malaria prevention for travellers from the United Kingdom are formulated by the Health Protection Agency's (HPA) Advisory Committee on Malaria Prevention in UK Travellers (ACMP). The 2007 guidelines, and any change to advice arising since publication, are posted on the web at www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/malaria/guidelines.htm. Hard copies are available free of charge on request. The guidelines will be reviewed yearly by ACMP and updated as necessary. The British National Formulary (BNF), issued free to general practitioners and pharmacies by the Department, makes recommendations based on the guidelines.

The ACMP guidelines and any changes to advice are also available to professionals via the National Travel Health Network and Centre (NaTHNaC) website at www.nathnac.org and from the TRAVAX website at www.travax.nhs.uk (The A to Z of Healthy Travel; maintained by the Travel Health Division of Health Protection Scotland). NaTHNaC is funded by the Department to promote clinical standards in travel medicine, and has a telephone advice line for health professionals. The departmental publication 'Health Information for Overseas Travel' is available on the NaTHNaC website. The BNF references the HPA guidelines as well as the NaTHNaC and TRAVAX websites.

Mental Health Services: Greater London

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many secure places there are for psychiatric patients in London hospitals; and how many there were in each year between 2004 and 2006. [137020]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The data collected record the number of mental health and learning disability secure unit beds in national health service units, not the number of psychiatric secure unit beds.

The following table shows the average daily number of available secure unit beds, both mental illness and learning disability secure unit beds, in NHS organisations in London between 2003-04 and 2005-06.

Department of Health form KH03.

Note that these beds are from mental health providers in the London area, so they may not all be available for residents in London. There may be beds outside the London area that are used for residents within London. This can be due to the placement needs of individuals.

The source for these figures is the 'Department of Health Dataset KH03' and the definitions for the purposes of this collection are as follows.

These figures do not represent the full level of secure services available to the NHS. Low secure mental health services are not consistently defined and may well fall outside the definitions below. This means that the figures above mainly show the numbers in high and medium secure mental health services in NHS units. These figures also show NHS beds only and not those commissioned by the NHS and provided by independent sector providers.

The definitions of mental health and learning disability secure unit beds, for the purposes of the KH03 annual beds collection, are:

Mental illness—other ages, secure unit

An age group intended of National Code 8 'Any age', a broad patient group code of National Code 5 'Patients with mental illness' and a clinical care intensity of National Code 51 'for intensive care: specially designated ward for patients needing containment and more intensive management. This is not to be confused with intensive nursing where a patient may require one to one nursing while on a standard ward'.

Learning disabilities—other ages, secure unit

An age group intended of National Code 8 'Any age', a broad patient group code of National Code 6 'Patients with learning difficulties' and a clinical care intensity of National Code 61 'designated or interim secure unit'.

Methylphenidate

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 6 November 2006, Official Report, columns 775-6W, on methylphenidate, what progress has been made with updating the product information for methylphenidate to advise about serious cardiovascular adverse effects. [141744]

Caroline Flint: Following Europe-wide discussions, the product information for Concerta was revised in November 2006, to advise about serious cardiovascular adverse effects, and to recommend that methylphenidate should not be used in children or adolescents with known serious structural cardiac abnormalities. The product information for Ritalin was revised accordingly in June 2007, and the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency is currently in discussion with the licence holder for Equasym.

Copies of the most up-to-date product information for Ritalin, Concerta and Equasym can be found in the Electronic Medicines Compendium available at www.medicines.org.uk. This includes the patient information leaflet provided for patients with their medicines and summaries of product characteristics which provide information for doctors and pharmacists.

Milton Keynes Hospital: Armed Forces

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what policy is in place in Milton Keynes General Hospital for the treatment of reservists on return from operational service. [141575]

Andy Burnham: The national health service has effective arrangements in place for the reception and treatment of reservists returning from operational service, and all necessary care is provided within the NHS.

Musgrove Park Hospital: Parking

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) revenue income and (b) estimated overhead cost of the parking charges scheme at Musgrove Park hospital in Taunton constituency was in each of the last 10 years. [141502]

Andy Burnham: Information is not available in the precise format required.

Data on the gross income that national health service trusts receive from car parking charges paid by staff and visitors have been collected since 2000. Information in respect of Musgrove Park hospital is in the table.

The Department does not collect information about the overhead costs that trusts will incur in providing car parking facilities.

	Total income from car parking fees (£)
2000-01	147,000
2001-02	146,000
2002-03	293,000
2003-04	517,466
2004-05	560,500
2005-06	362,157

NHS: Drugs

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 606W, on NHS: drugs, what recent discussions she has had on limits on the length of prescription periods. [138870]

Caroline Flint: We have had no such discussions. Responsibility for prescribing, including the issue of repeat prescribing and the length of prescriptions, rests with the clinician who has clinical responsibility for that particular aspect of a patient's care.

Nutrition: Pupils

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the decision to award the contract for a seminar on the Effects of Nutrition on School Attainment under the auspices of the Food Standards Agency to the Smith Institute was the subject of a competitive process; and if she will make a statement. [141256]

Caroline Flint: In line with HM Treasury and European Union public sector procurement rules, contracts worth less than £25,000 are not normally subject to formal competitive processes because of the disproportionate effort in relation to value. However, all proposals are assessed on a value-for-money basis and given the costs of staging seminars of this kind the Smith Institute proposal represented good value for money.

Nutrition: Training

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions Ministers and officials of her Department have had with (a) officials from the Sector Skills Development Agency, (b) regional development agencies and (c) representatives of the catering industry on training in nutrition and its relationship to health and well-being for chefs. [139951]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency have informed me that they have not had any discussions with the Sector Skills Development Agency nor the regional development agencies on the subject of training for chefs. They have, however, had discussions with People1st, the Sector Skills Council for hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism, which is responsible for identifying and tackling skills gaps in that sector.

Following the 2005-06 review of national occupational standards for food preparation and cooking, a specific unit was created on preparing and cooking healthier dishes. This unit is now available to those training to be chefs who are taking the National Vocational Qualification in food preparation and cooking. In addition, newly developed qualifications in professional cookery contain a mandatory unit on healthier eating and special diets. This means that chefs catering the industry with this qualification will have gained an understanding of the importance of healthier eating.

Obesity

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the reasons for recent trends in rates of obesity; and what steps she is taking to encourage physical exercise. [139799]

Caroline Flint: Although the rise in obesity cannot be attributed to any single factor, it is the imbalance between energy in (through the food choices we make) and energy out (mainly through physical activity) which is the root cause.

Following input from academic, commercial and voluntary sector sources, the Medical Research Council report reviewing the evidence for behaviour change goals is now complete and was launched on 14 March 2007.

"Choosing Activity: a physical activity action plan" was published on 9 March 2005. This represents the first truly cross-Government plan to co-ordinate action aimed at increasing levels of physical activity across the whole population. In August 2006 I was asked by the Prime Minister to work across Government on a new strategy, building on Choosing Activity to increase the public's fitness and activity levels in the run up to the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress is being made in the Government's obesity social marketing campaign. [140606]

Caroline Flint: We have developed a robust social marketing/consumer insight framework to inform and enable targeted work at a national, regional and local level to tackle childhood obesity. We have also been working closely with a wide range of stakeholders across the food and activity spectrum, including representatives from Government, commercial and not-for-profit sectors. A core expert review group have validated the approach taken and outputs to date.

The first initiative in the programme, the "5 A DAY Top Tips for Top Mums" campaign, was launched in March. The campaign encourages families to think more about how they can improve their diet and increase fruit and vegetable consumption among children between the ages of two and 11, specifically those in low-income young families.

Obesity: Departmental Co-ordination

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions she has had with the Department for Education and Skills and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on (a) progress on tackling obesity and (b) cross-departmental working on the matter. [140605]

Caroline Flint: The obesity public service agreement (PSA) target is jointly owned by the Department, the Department for Education and Skills and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in recognition that delivery will depend on a joined up effort across Government.

The three Departments are working on six fronts: to change population attitudes towards eating and activity; helping children to be active and eat healthily; supporting targeted local-level obesity interventions in children; raising awareness of the importance of healthy weight to children and parents; working with local partners on delivery; and developing the knowledge base.

There are a number of mechanisms to ensure that the Departments are working effectively in partnership. Ministers, and also permanent secretaries, who are responsible for the PSA target have held regular meetings to monitor progress and identify areas for action.

The target is co-ordinated by a cross-Government team, led by a cross-Government programme manager and senior officials who are the senior responsible officers for each Department. The PSA programme board brings in delivery chain partners and senior officials from other Government Departments beyond the target-holding Departments.

Radiotherapy

Mr. Horam: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many intensity modulated radiation therapy machines are in regular use in the NHS; and if she will make a statement on progress in introducing these machines. [140407]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A survey of radiotherapy equipment is currently under way, and the results of this are expected to be published in the summer.

The survey includes questions regarding which radiotherapy centres are undertaking intensity modulated radiotherapy, and the numbers of patients they treated in the financial year 2006-07 for each disease application of the technology (prostate, lung and head and neck cancers). It does not ask centres to identify which machine(s) they are using to treat these patients.

Society for the Protection of the Unborn Child

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received from the Society for the Protection of the Unborn Child in the last 12 months. [139008]

Caroline Flint: A range of Government Departments and stakeholders, including the Society for the Protection of the Unborn Child (SPUC), were consulted earlier this year on the implications of the legislation proposed in the Termination of Pregnancy Bill.

In addition, over the last 12 months, the Department has received approximately 5,300 letters enclosing correspondence from SPUC on issues including abortion, euthanasia and the Mental Capacity Act.

Skin Cancer: Health Education

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the priorities of the SunSmart campaign will be during the summer. [139255]

Caroline Flint: The key messages for the next phase of SunSmart (2007-10) are:

the importance of early detection;

avoidance of burning;

the dangers of sunbed use (especially by those under 18); and an emphasis on highlighting those most at risk of skin cancer (i.e. people with fair skin, lots of moles or freckles or a family history of skin cancer).

The target audience for 2007 is holidaymakers.

Information about the SunSmart campaign and available resources are on the SunSmart website at:

www.sunsmart.org.uk.

Smoking: Public Places

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she is providing to those responsible for the management of (a) places of worship and (b) listed buildings on the legal requirements to display no smoking signs. [138702]

Caroline Flint: Section 6 of the Health Act 2006 sets out a duty for any person who occupies or is concerned in the management of smokefree premises to make sure that no-smoking signs complying with the requirements of the new law are displayed. The new law will require virtually all enclosed workplaces and public places to be smokefree, including places of worship or listed buildings.

Through the Smokefree England communications campaign, the Department has made guidance available on the new legislation. The guidance makes specific reference to the display of no-smoking signs in heritage buildings within the frequently asked questions section. Guidance has been posted to employing businesses across England, and is also available from the Smokefree England information line on freephone 0800 169 169 7 or to download on the Smokefree England website at:

Local councils can also provide advice and support on the new law.

Departmental officials have met representatives from the Church of England and the Churches Main Committee regarding smokefree legislation. Meetings have also been offered to other faith groups. A Smokefree England fact sheet on smokefree legislation and places of worship has also been produced.

The Smokefree (Signs) Regulations 2007 set out requirements for the display of no-smoking signs in smokefree premises and vehicles. These regulations have been drafted in a way to afford maximum flexibility within the requirements in the Health Act 2006 for the display of no-smoking signs.

No-smoking signs may be displayed in a way that fits the decor of premises, as long as the minimum requirements set out in the regulations are met. A sign will need to be displayed in a prominent position at each entrance to smokefree premises. However, it need not be permanently mounted on the building because, for example, the display of a sign on a moveable stand at each entrance would satisfy the legal requirement.

To support the implementation of smokefree legislation, the Department is making no-smoking signs that meet the legislative requirements freely available to businesses and organisations.

South East Strategic Health Authority: Redundancy

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many individuals employed by the South East strategic health authority have been made redundant since its inception; what percentage of staff this represents; and what the total cost of redundancy payments has been. [141346]

Caroline Flint: There were 241 compulsory redundancies made in South East Coast strategic health authority in the 2006-07 financial year.

This represents 0.25 per cent. of the total workforce of 97,980 in the September 2006 census.

The costs of redundancy payments have not yet been collected centrally.

Strokes: Diagnosis

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were diagnosed with a stroke in the most recent year for which figures are available. [140921]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 7 June 2007]: Hospital Episode Statistics from 2004-05 suggest there were around 73,000 emergency admissions with a primary diagnosis of stroke. However, this figure under-represents the true incidence of stroke for two reasons: firstly some hospital patients who have a stroke may also have another condition as their primary diagnosis; secondly, not all stroke patients currently attend hospital.

Academic estimates suggest there are around 110,000 strokes in England per annum.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration Policy Enforcement

10. Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures he is taking to enforce immigration policies. [141133]

Mr. Byrne: What people want to see is the UK's immigration system working fairly and effectively.

That is why we have:

Removed more failed asylum seekers and illegal migrants than ever before; stopped 180,000 people from boarding aircraft to Britain through our airline liaison officers and revamped the old IND turning it into the new Border and Immigration Agency, making it more open and more accountable

We want go further—that is why we are:

Recruiting more immigration officers and police officers; introducing tougher powers for front line staff; and introducing a migration management system which gives those who can contribute the most the best chance of entering this country.

Asylum Seekers

11. Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to remove failed asylum seekers. [141134]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency employs a raft of measures to maximise the number of failed asylum seekers removed.

13. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of measures to deport failed asylum seekers. [141137]

Mr. Byrne: The effectiveness of measures deployed to remove failed asylum seekers are assessed on an ongoing basis. These measures have ensured that the removal of failed asylum seekers has been steadily increasing over the past few years.

Jamil el-Banna

12. Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the immigration status of Jamil el-Banna. [141136]

Mr. Byrne: Mr. el-Banna was recognised as a refugee by the United Kingdom in 1997, and was granted indefinite leave to remain in 2000. That leave has now lapsed.

Safer Neighbourhood Teams

14. Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what role he expects Safer Neighbourhood Teams to play in reducing the number of criminal damage offences. [141138]

Mr. Coaker: Neighbourhood Policing Teams can play a vital role with others in tackling criminal damage.

They get to know people in their local neighbourhoods so that they have a better understanding of the nature and extent of the problem and what contributions others can make to reducing it.

They can then work with a range of agencies who can take action in line with local priorities, as well as taking police enforcement action where appropriate.

Special Constables

16. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he has taken to encourage staff in retail establishments to join the special constabulary. [141140]

Mr. Coaker: In February 2004, the Home Office, Metropolitan police, Dixons, and Woolworths launched the Shopwatch initiative, which recruits employees as special constables from the retail establishments to patrol specific retail areas.

The Shopwatch programme was piloted in the general Camden area, Regent/Oxford street and the Birmingham Bullring Palisades.

The Shopwatch programme has succeed in reducing retail crime by 50 per cent. in 2004 in participating retail stores.

The Shopwatch programme is a prime example of proactive partnership working across the community and forces.

Knife Crime

18. Mr. Jim Cunninghani: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests for knife-related crime there were in each of the last four years. [141142]

Mr. Coaker: The main arrests collection held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform covers persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by main offence group (ie violence against the person, robbery, burglary etc.) only.

Knife related offences are not specifically defined by statute, and details of the individual circumstances of arrests are not asked for as part of the Arrests for Recorded Crime (Notifiable Offences) collection.

Immigration System

19. Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will increase the staffing resources dealing with priority legacy immigration cases. [141143]

Mr. Byrne: The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency, Lin Homer, wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 19 February with an update on the Legacy Programme. Her letter confirmed that a new directorate had been established to deal specifically with legacy cases, with significant case-working capability.

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress is being made in reviewing the immigration system; and if he will make a statement. [141139]

Mr. Byrne: We are making good progress against the milestones published in the IND Review, which was published last year. This includes meeting almost all of the milestones we had set to achieve by April 2007.

Intelligence Sharing

20. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with West Yorkshire police on the exchange of intelligence between them and the security services. [141144]

Mr. McNulty: I have not had any discussions with West Yorkshire police on the exchange of intelligence between them and the Security Service.

It is not appropriate to discuss operational matters. The sharing of intelligence is a matter for the agencies involved.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

21. Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to visit the Immigration and Nationality Directorate before he leaves office. [141145]

Mr. Byrne: As part of my ongoing programme of regional visits to the Border and Immigration Agency (BIA) operations in Croydon and around the UK, I discuss the services provided by managed migration, asylum and enforcement with both staff and stakeholders. I also regularly discuss the efficiency of the service with the chief executive of BIA, and other senior officials.

Antisocial Behaviour

22. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with Ministers and officials in the Ministry of Justice on combating anti-social behaviour. [141146]

Mr. Coaker: I have had no formal meetings with Ministers or officials in the Ministry of Justice, since its inception last month, specifically concerning antisocial behaviour.

Ministers and officials in the Home Office engage in regular discussions with their counterparts in the Ministry of Justice, and other Government Departments about combating antisocial behaviour and other issues.

Asylum

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what provisions are in place to help asylum-seekers gain a better understanding of the UK asylum process. [140649]

Mr. Byrne: Within a week of making their asylum application an applicant meets their case owner. The case owner remains the applicant's single point of contact for all aspects of their asylum application. At this first reporting event, the case owner fully explains to the applicant how the asylum process works and answers any questions. They also provide information about access to legal representatives. The applicant is able to contact their case owner at any time during the asylum process with any queries or concerns they may have.

Accommodation providers and voluntary sector organisations also deliver briefings to applicants about the asylum process and applicants' rights and responsibilities while they are in the UK. We are currently working with them to update this briefing to ensure it properly reflects our process and is fully up to date.

The Border and Immigration Agency public website also contains information about asylum policies and procedures.

Asylum: Fraud

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were convicted in 2006 of conspiracy to help people gain asylum fraudulently; and how many of those were deported. [138600]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 May 2007]: The information could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual case records only at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: Gender

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of New Asylum Model case owners in each region are (a) male and (b) female; and if he will make a statement. [140902]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information is shown in the table.

Regional asylum teams	Percentage case owners
	Male[1]	Female[1]
North East	45	55
Wales and the South West	52	48
West Midlands, East Midlands and East of England	26	74
North West	40	60
London and the South East	41	59
Scotland and Northern Ireland	38	62

[1] Percentages are based on management information.
[2] Includes Detained Fast Track teams at Harmondsworth and Yarl's Wood.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Border and Immigration Agency is expected to have the capacity to allow asylum seekers at screening stage to express a preference as to the sex of the New Asylum Model case owner to be allocated to them and for that request to be met; and if he will make a statement. [140903]

Mr. Byrne: Applicants can request a gender specific case owner at any time, including during the screening interview. All requests will be met where it is operationally possible to do so.

Community Support Officers: Protective Clothing

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will issue guidance to all chief constables in England and Wales advising them of the benefits of stab vests for police community support officers. [123882]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 27 February 2007]: The Home Office Scientific Development Branch produces standards for body armour which incorporate a number of different protection levels. These standards were last published in 2003 but we plan to issue revised standards in the next month. All body armour is tested against these standards at Home Office approved test houses.

In 1995 the Home Office Scientific Development Branch, in collaboration with the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), developed a Police Operational Requirement (POR) for body armour. This requirement states that the protection provided by ballistic and stab resistant body armour must be sufficient to prevent the wearer from sustaining serious or permanent injury. To achieve this, five vital organs located within the torso must be protected: the heart, lungs, liver, spleen and kidneys.

The provision of police equipment is a matter for chief officers. However I have written to the forces which do not provide protective armour to police community officers to ask them to clarify the reasons for their decision, and I will let my hon. Friend know the responses of the four forces at the earliest opportunity.

Convention on the Rights of the Child

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the merits of withdrawing the UK's reservation to the UN convention on the rights of the child. [141141]

Mr. Byrne: We have reviewed the need to retain this Reservation a number of times. Our own legal advice is that effective immigration control would be compromised were we to withdraw this Reservation.

Criminal Records

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the review of his Department's systems in relation to the recording of crimes committed abroad will be completed. [141135]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Secretary has asked Sir Ian Magee to undertake a review of the ways in which information about criminality is recorded, used and shared for public protection purposes.

It will be a two stage process and the overall duration will be determined once the first stage has been completed. That first stage will be brisk and will focus on scoping the problems, assessing what deficiencies there are and where they lie. The second stage will constitute the substance of the work and will concentrate on conclusions and recommendations for improving the relevant systems.

The review will take account of the report of the inquiry into the handling of overseas convictions. Whatever the review recommends, we will only be able to reduce risks rather than remove them altogether.

Departmental Expenditure

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the original predicted cost was for the (a) CJS Exchange, (b) EDRM, (c) Adelphi, (d) immigration and nationality directorate's points based system, (e) Mycroft, (f) NSPIS Case and Custody, (g) IMPACT Nominal Index, (h) Cross Regional Information Sharing Project (CRISP), (i) WITR, (j) WISP, (k) Warnings Index Portfolio, (l)

Departments: Ministerial Statements

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's policy is on the announcing of statements to the media; and if he will make a statement. [140189]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Statements to the media are made in line with the Ministerial Code and Cabinet Office propriety guidance provided by the Government Communications Network (GCN). I have arranged for a copy of the recently revised guidance to be placed within the House Library.

This guidance can also be accessed online via the following weblink:

http://www.comms.gov.uk/Public_Website/guidance/propriety.aspx

Departments: Public Expenditure

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on (a) advertising, (b) refreshments and (c) stationery by his Department in each year since 2005. [137023]

John Reid: The Department's expenditure on advertising, refreshments and stationery in each of the last two years was:

	2005-06	2006-07
Advertising	15.83	10.64
Refreshments	1.13	1.25
Stationery	6.58	7.02

The numbers for advertising include expenditure on publicity and the numbers for refreshments are a combination of refreshments and working lunches. To show advertising and refreshments separately could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Electronic Tagging

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the merits of deploying human radio-frequency identification (RFID) microchipping; what meetings he has held on such microchipping; what representations he has received from civil liberties groups on RFID microchipping; and if he will make a statement. [141784]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

We have looked into the merits of deploying this technology in the past but we have not seen any evidence that it would work successfully.

On that basis there have been no representations received by stakeholders from civil liberties groups as there is currently no intention of using this technology.

Instead, a pilot for the use of satellite tracking technology to monitor the compliance of offenders who are subject to exclusion conditions, and to monitor offenders' whereabouts as a condition of a licence on release from prison, took place from September 2004 until June 2006. The pilots are currently the subject of a comprehensive review and an independent evaluation, the results of which are due out later this year.

Firearms: Crime

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many individuals in each police force area (a) were convicted and (b) received upon conviction a minimum five-year sentence for possessing an illegal firearm in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement; [121512]

(2) how many individuals in each constituency (a) were convicted and (b) received upon conviction a minimum five-year sentence for possessing an illegal firearm in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [121514]

Mr. Coaker: The minimum five year sentence applies only to persons aged 18 or over and came into force for offences committed from 22 January 2004. The information requested, relating to England and Wales for the years 2004 and 2005, is shown in the following table. Information for 2006 will be available in the autumn.

Court proceedings data cannot easily be related to constituency areas as they are collected by police force area and local justice area.

Firearms: Sentencing

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many and what percentage of people convicted of carrying an illegal firearm under the Criminal Justice Act 2003 have received the mandatory sentence established by the Act since it came into force, broken down by age group; [129923]

(2) what the average sentence handed down to people convicted of carrying an illegal firearm under the Criminal Justice Act 2003 was in each of the last three years. [129924]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 27 March 2007]: The minimum five year sentence (three years for those aged 16 or 17) came into force on 22 January 2004. The available information, relating to England and Wales for 2004 and 2005, is contained in table one. Data sent to the Home Affairs Select Committee on 5 June (see table 2) show that the average sentence for firearms possession has increased from 27.3 months in 2003 to 47.3 months in 2005. The equivalent figures in 1995 were 12.1 months.

Figures for 2006 will be available in the autumn.

Genetics: Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals' records are held on the National DNA Database, broken down by (a) age, (b) ethnicity and (c) the police force which provided the profile. [139976]

John Reid: Tables showing the information requested will be placed in the Library. These show the number of profiles on the database as at 31 January 2007 broken down by gender, police force, age when the profile was taken, and ethnic appearance, as recorded by the officer taking the DNA sample. Some people arrested by a force live in the area of another force—the force shown is the one which took the profile. The number of profiles is 13.7 per cent. higher than the number of individuals because of duplicate records. There were 37,476 profiles on the database where the gender was not recorded, and these have not been included in the figures.

Immigration Controls: Luton Airport

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received from London Luton Airport on the number of HM Immigration Service staff at London Luton Airport. [140636]

Mr. Byrne: A letter was received from the Managing Director of London Luton Airport Operations Limited on 30 April 2007 making representations about the level of border control staff at London Luton.

Immigration: Detention Centres

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance his Department has issued to (a) HM Prison Service and (b) private sector contractors on recommended staff/detainee ratios in immigration removal centres. [136974]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency does not provide guidance on staff detainee ratios to HM Prison Service as they have vast experience in operating custodial environments.

The Border and Immigration Agency does not provide guidance on staff/detainee ratios to private sector organisations. Staffing levels are none the less a key area of evaluation during the competitive tender process for the operation of removal centres. All contractors are required to provide a safe environment at all times for detainees, staff and visitors.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer the letter dated 23 April 2007 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. Qaisar Ilyas. [141076]

John Reid: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 5 June 2007.

Naturalisation: English Language

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for naturalisation as a British citizen were (a) delayed and (b) refused because of concerns about the veracity of the evidence supplied by the applicants on his or her knowledge of English in the last period for which figures are available. [121153]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Police: Community Support Officers

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department has taken to promote public awareness of the difference between police officers and police community support officers. [140198]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Home Office has focused on raising public awareness of the new role of police community support officers (PCSOs) and neighbourhood policing teams, which are now being implemented across England and Wales. A successful national PCSO recruitment campaign in 2006 was designed not only to encourage applications but also to help explain the role of a PCSO. This campaign included television and radio adverts, poster campaigns and national and local press advertising.

In addition, a six-part documentary series followed the work of PCSOs in Lancashire and the Thames Valley. The series ran between October and December 2006 on ITV (England) and achieved an average audience of 2.3 million rising to 3 million. All of this activity has raised the profile of PCSOs and the neighbourhood policing teams in which they serve. It has also supported the police service in their drive to increase PCSO numbers to 16,000 across England and Wales.

Neighbourhood policing teams will consist of police sergeants, constables and PCSOs, and may also comprise special constables, wardens, neighbourhood managers, housing managers, youth workers and other community partners, depending on the needs and priorities of the community that the team serves. In promoting neighbourhood policing teams the Home Office and the police service has celebrated the diverse and complementary nature of the various ranks and roles within these teams which join together to provide a visible and accessible service to the communities they serve.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police liaison officers there are in England and Wales, broken down by police force area. [140776]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally in the police personnel statistics.

Police: Pensions

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average contribution from gross pay was by individual police officers towards pension funds in the latest period for which figures are available. [140886]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not held centrally. Police officers contribute either 11 per cent. or 9.5 per cent. of their pensionable pay depending on whether they are members of the Police Pension Scheme 1987 or the Police Pension Scheme 2006 respectively.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the average lump sum pension payment was to (a) female and (b) male police officers in the latest period for which figures are available; [140887]

(2) what methodology and calculations are used to work out the lump sum pension payment for (a) female and (b) male police officers. [140888]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested about the average size of a pension lump sum is not held centrally. Under the Police Pension Scheme 1987 a lump sum is not paid out automatically but only where the officer chooses to convert (commute) part of his or her pension into a lump sum. The size of a lump sum depends on the officer's pensionable pay, his or her length of pensionable service, the proportion of pension that the officer chooses to commute, and the commutation factor to be applied to the surrendered portion of pension in order to convert it into a lump sum.

The Police Pensions Regulations 1987 require that the lump sum be determined as the actuarial equivalent of the surrendered portion of the pension at the date of retirement, calculated from tables prepared by the Government Actuary. The commutation factors used for the 1987 Scheme are graduated according to the age and gender of the officer concerned in order to reflect the fact that, on average, women live longer than men and younger people have a longer remaining life expectancy than older people. Pension scheme actuarial factors are exempted from the legal requirements for sex and age equality.

Police: Telephone Services

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1420W, on police telephone services, when he expects the target times for answering (a) emergency and (b) non-emergency calls under the National Call Handling Standards to be (i) collated nationally and (ii) implemented by all police forces. [138780]

John Reid [holding answer 23 May 2007]: Data relating to emergency (999) calls are being collated by the Home Office for the first time this year. Data will be gathered on a quarterly basis as part of an Annual Data Requirement. At present, there are no plans to collate at a national level data relating to non-emergency calls.

The National Call Handling Standards were agreed by ACPO in November 2006. An implementation review is being undertaken by the National Policing Improvement Agency with a target completion date of November 2007.

Prisoners: Females

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women (a) are being held in UK prisons and (b) were being held in each year since 2000. [141412]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

Figures showing the numbers of female prisoners in all prison establishments in England and Wales between 2000 and 2006, as at 30 June each year, and for April 2007, can be found in the following table.

	Number
2000	3,355
2001	3,713
2002	4,394
2003	4,595
2004	4,452
2005	4,514
2006	4,463
2007 (April)	4,502

The figures between 2000 and 2005 were taken from table 8.1 of the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005, a copy of which is held in the House of Commons Library. The figures for June 2006 and for April 2007 were taken from the published Population in Custody monthly tables.

The Scottish Executive and the Northern Ireland Prison Service are able to give the figures for prison establishments in Scotland and Northern Ireland.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible data entry and processing errors.

Terrorism Act 2000

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 92W, on the Terrorism Act 2000, how many people were awaiting trial under terrorism legislation during the period 1 January to 1 April 2007. [140546]

John Reid [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Statistics for this period are not yet available. However, as soon as they are finalised they will be placed on the Home Office website.

As stated in a previous answer of 8 May 2007, there were 98 individuals at or awaiting trial for terrorist offences as of 31 December 2006.

Terrorism: Hotline

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed to handle calls to the anti-terrorism hotline; what the total cost of their annual salaries is expected to be in 2007-08; and what the annual cost is of the salary of the head of the anti-terrorism hotline. [139595]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The total number of people employed to handle calls on the anti-terrorism hotline is not fixed.

The Metropolitan Police Service (MPS) Counter Terrorism Command has a dedicated team of 16, led by a detective sergeant. This team provides a 24/7 communications capability and are responsible for initial receipt of all communications including the anti-terrorism hotline. It is not possible to establish what proportion of time is spent solely on the hotline.

The annual budget for this team is £472,446 and the salary for the team manager is drawn from within this amount.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Bookmakers: Licensing

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received on the level of licence fees from the Gambling Commission for bookmakers; and if she will make a statement. [142184]

Mr. Caborn: My Department has received 246 responses relating to this issue. This includes 134 formal responses to the consultation exercise in 2006 and 112 associated follow-up queries. We have also had a number of meetings with representatives of the betting industry, including with the Association of British Bookmakers.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what methodology is used by her Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140781]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has not formally adopted a methodology to account for its carbon emissions. We calculate our carbon emissions following DEFRA guidelines.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by her Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139416]

Mr. Lammy: The Department's public relations spend in the last five years occurred only in 2004-05 and 2005-06 and relates to the digital campaign, aimed at increasing public awareness of digital switchover, and the licensing campaign aimed at small businesses to increase awareness of the implications of the Licensing Act.

	Spend (£)
2004-05	100,000
2005-06	250,000
2005-06	24,300

Departments: Sign Language

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the merits of providing British Sign Language (BSL) videos on her departmental website for the benefit of those whose first language is BSL. [142490]

Mr. Lammy: My Department has made no assessment of the merits of providing British Sign Language videos on its departmental website.

National Lottery

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many representations she had received as of 4 June 2007 on the Gambling (Lottery Machine Interval) Order; what assessment her Department has conducted of the likely effect of the implementation of such an order on small clubs; what discussions she has had with representatives of licensed establishments that cannot sell lottery tickets from vending machines concerning the order; and if she will make a statement. [141769]

Mr. Caborn: The consultation on the Gambling (Lottery Machine Interval) Order 2007 closed on Friday 18 May. The Department received 18 formal responses. In addition, more than 200 clubs and a number of hon. Members wrote to the Department.

A partial regulatory impact assessment was issued alongside the consultation and is available on the Department's website at http://www.culture.gov.uk/what_we_do/Gambling_racing/QuickLinks/Consultations/?expand=2007_closed_consultations

A full regulatory impact assessment is currently being prepared and will be available shortly in the House Library.

Ministers and officials have met representatives of the clubs sector on a number of occasions to discuss the order.

National Lottery: Sales

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the monthly sales of the Olympic lottery game have been since its launch; and what the monthly sales of all other lottery games have been over the same period. [142162]

Mr. Caborn: The table (provided by the National Lottery Commission) shows the split between sales of National Lottery games designated to support the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games and all other National Lottery games. The figures are monthly and go back to July 2005 when the first game designated to support the Olympics went on sale.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Basic Skills

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) adults and (b) adults over 25 years received (i) Learning and Skills Council funding and (ii) funding through Train to Gain in (A) 2003-04, (B) 2004-05 and (C) 2005-06. [138367]

Phil Hope: Figures for adults funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) can be derived from the Individualised Learner Record (ILR). The following table shows the number of adult learners (aged 19 and over) and adult learners aged 25 and over on LSC-funded further education, Work Based Learning and Adult and Community Learning provision in 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06.

	Adults	Thousand Adults aged 25+
2003/04	4,587.8	3,801.8
2004/05	4,547.1	3,731.1
2005/06	3,872.4	3,125.4

The Train to Gain programme was piloted from April 2006 onwards. A full rollout of Train to Gain commenced from 1 August 2006. To January 2007 there have been 89,000 learners who have enrolled on Train to Gain.

Pre-School Education: Codes of Practice

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if his Department will commission an independent regulatory impact assessment on the 2006 Code of Practice on free entitlement to nursery education; and what assessment he has made of the impact of the implementation of the code on the number of children's nurseries. [141426]

Beverley Hughes: The single substantive change to the delivery of the free early education entitlement, set out in the 2006 code of practice, was the extension of the minimum free entitlement from 33 to 38 weeks. Following full public consultation, we made clear our recognition that not all providers would be able to extend their provision to 38 weeks and that, at each local authority's discretion, they could be funded for the provision they actually delivered. Furthermore, all local authorities received additional funding to support the extension to the free entitlement. We therefore concluded that there should not be a substantive regulatory impact and that a regulatory impact assessment was not required. We have no plans therefore for an independent impact assessment.

We have no evidence of the code of practice having a significant impact on the number of early years settings.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consideration local authorities give to the level of private, voluntary and independent nursery sector provision when determining the levels of funding under the free entitlement requirements for providers in the area. [141425]

Beverley Hughes: Funding for nursery education provision is provided to local authorities through the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG). Local authorities—in consultation with their School Forums—are responsible for deciding how best to apply their total school and early years funding across all age groups and between different types of provider, based on an assessment of local circumstances.

The code of practice on the provision of free nursery education places for three and four-year-olds requires local authorities to ensure settings are funded equitably, transparently and fairly, reflecting local need and circumstances. My letter in December 2006, to all local authority chief executives reiterated this point and asked them to reassure themselves that their funding levels support a diverse local child care market and take into account the impact on provider sustainability.

Vocational Training: Finance

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) adult learners and (b) adult learners over 25 years receiving Learning and Skills Council funding excluding funding through Train to Gain were given workplace training in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05 and (iii) 2005-06, broken down by number of hours of workplace training given. [138364]

Phil Hope: Figures for adults funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) can be derived from the Individualised Learner Record (ILR). The following table shows the number of adult learners (aged 19 and over) and adult learners aged 25 and over on LSC-funded work based learning provision in 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06.

2003/04	235.7	3.0
2005/06	217.6	9.0

It is not possible to break down these figures by number of hours of work place training given as this varies for each type of provision and subject sector. The Train to Gain programme was piloted from April 2006 with a full rollout commencing from 1 August 2006 and Train to Gain activity is recorded for the first time in the 2006/07 ILR.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's employee surveys for (a) 2001, (b) 2002, (c) 2004 and (d) 2005. [142025]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Staff surveys are valuable tools used by Departments to help them improve performance. The results of the recent Department of Trade and Industry survey are available on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov/uk/management/statistics/news/staff_survey/index.asp

Employment: North West Region

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will break down by employer the number of jobs safeguarded or created as mentioned on page two of the Northwest Development Agency's Improving the Economic Performance of England's Northwest document, dated February 2007. [140087]

Margaret Hodge: The NWDA does not collect data in the form requested. The agency has safeguarded or created 161,208 jobs between 1999 and 2006 as reported in the Improving the Economic Performance of England's Northwest report. The breakdown, by Regional Economic Strategy (RES) theme, is as follows:

Employment 1999-2006

	Number
Business Growth
Exploiting the growth potential of business sectors, for example through cluster programmes and international trade	19,476
Improve the competitiveness and productivity of businesses
Providing high quality business support, supply chain development, management and work force development, and exploiting the region's knowledge base	23,569
Urban, Rural and Economic Inclusion
Implementing the Urban Regeneration Companies, regenerating deprived areas, brownfield land, housing, implementing the Regional Rural Recovery Plan and market towns, encouraging social enterprise, start ups from ethnic minorities, community finance and addressing barriers to work	105,986

Employment 1999-2006

	Number
A Healthy Labour Market
Improving adult basic skills, the demand for and participation in learning, graduate retention, and the integration of business support and skills development activities	698
Strategic transport, communications and infrastructure
Identifying and championing the implementation of strategic transport initiatives, preparing a Regional Transport Strategy, supporting Regional Planning Guidance, broadband and regional cities	833
Employment sites
Securing the development of strategic regional sites and a portfolio of sub-regional and local employment sites	10,106
Image
Regional marketing programmes, culture, tourism and major events in the region	540
Total	161,208

Of the 161,208 jobs, 100,283 jobs were created or safeguarded between 1999 and 2002. Examples of some of the larger inward investments from this period include:

Company	Jobs created/safeguarded
MBNA	1,200
HJ Heinz	1,300
QVC	100
Vauxhall	850
Fujitsu	1,000
Ryder Group	470

The following table provides a breakdown, by year, of the 28,965.5 jobs created or safeguarded through inward investment projects 2002-06.

	New jobs	Jobs safeguarded
2002-03	8,143	1,558
2003-04	4,400	6,539.5
2004-05	3,214	2,389
2005-06	1,872	850
Total	17,629	11,336.5

Examples of some of the larger inward investments from this period include:

Company	Jobs created/safeguarded
MBNA	2,000
Caudwell Communications	1,000
INEOS Chlor	3,500
Bentley	886

It is not possible to provide a full breakdown by employer as this information is confidential and commercially sensitive.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many claims by former miners or their families have yet to be settled in respect of compensation for (a) chronic bronchitis, emphysema or other respiratory diseases, (b) vibration white finger, (c) carpal tunnel syndrome and (d) pneumoconiosis in (i) Stoke-on-Trent Central, (ii) Stoke-on-Trent North, (iii) Stoke-on-Trent South, (iv) Stone and (v) Stafford constituencies; and how many claimants in each category have received interim payments. [141242]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The following tables show the information requested. Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) covers chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

		Stoke-on-Trent, Central constituency		Stoke-on-Trent, North constituency		Stoke-on-Trent, South constituency
		Miners	Families	Miners	Families	Miners	Families

	Claimants who received an interim	21	3	—	—
	Total outstanding	9	1	—	—
	Total settlements	27	2	—	—

Note: The figures include almost 5,000 overseas claims.

The Department is unable to identify those COPD claims which include a pneumoconiosis element. However, under the Coal Workers Pneumoconiosis Scheme (CWPS) we have received 83,759 claims, 82,595 of which have been settled by payment, denial or withdrawal.

We have realised that there was an error in the answer given to the parliamentary question tabled on the 6 June 2007, recorded in Hansard on 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1351W, regarding the figures for pneumoconiosis under CWPS. I have written to you about the error and will place copies of the letter in the Libraries of the House.

Leeds United Football Club

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will assess the implications of Leeds United Football Club's move into administration for the effectiveness of the regulation relating to companies entering administration where a party involved in the decision to initiate the process has a commercial interest in the assets of the company. [141250]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 11 June 2007]: I should state at the outset that the Secretary of State has no powers to impede a company moving into administration as this process is commenced by way of a court order or as a result of a qualifying floating charge holder, company or its directors filing a Notice of Appointment at court.

Administrators, as licensed insolvency practitioners, are regulated professionals and are obliged by law to perform their functions in the interests of the company's creditors as a whole. Accordingly, where there is a sale of assets to a connected party of the company in administration, the administrators will need to have satisfied themselves that they are not only achieving the best possible price in the circumstances but that it is an arm's length transaction. Such a sale is sometimes the best option for delivering value for creditors. The Secretary of State has no power to stop a sale and even if he did, such a power could harm the interests of creditors of the company, many of whom have already lost considerable sums as a result of the failure. It is only a creditor or member of a company in administration that can apply to the court if they consider the administrator is acting, has acted, or proposes to act so as unfairly to harm the interests of the applicant (whether alone or in common with some or all members or creditors).

I believe it is important to emphasise that in the specific case mentioned, the administrators agreed to the sale of assets on the condition that it would be approved by the body of creditors as part of a proposal to put the company into a Company Voluntary Arrangement (CVA) and that this arrangement was approved on 1 June by more than 75 per cent. of creditors in value.

This Government want to promote an effective framework for corporate activity, to give confidence to investors, business and other stakeholders. Within that framework it is essential that we have an insolvency regime, which, while encouraging enterprise and reducing the stigma associated with failure, deals fairly and effectively with financial failure and at the same time deters fraud and misconduct. I can assure you that we are fully committed to tackling abuse and misconduct and that we have in place, and in use, mechanisms to deal with that abuse.

You may be interested to know under the Insolvency Act 1986 (before it was amended) the only option to floating charge holders would have been to have put the company into administrative receivership. Under this procedure the administrative receiver's main duty was to the appointing floating charge holder. Under the provisions of the Enterprise Act this was amended to give the option of administration so that now the interests of the creditors as a whole are taken into account. The Insolvency Service is undertaking an evaluation to assess to what extent the provisions introduced by the Enterprise Act meet the policy objectives. The final evaluation reports will be published later this year.

I am therefore content that the existing regulatory framework is sufficiently robust to prevent abuse.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Magilligan Prison

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects to announce the decision on the replacement of Magilligan prison, County Londonderry. [141632]

Paul Goggins: I announced on 21 February that I had tasked the Prison Service to provide me with a comprehensive options appraisal by the end of this summer. This is intended to enable me to announce the decision on the location of the replacement to the existing Magilligan prison before the end of the year.

Paedophilia

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to pilot in Northern Ireland the North Somerset pilot project of permitting parents to know if known paedophiles are residing nearby. [133030]

Maria Eagle: We will be carefully studying the recommendations in the Child Sex Offender Review and how they could be applied in Northern Ireland. Some are likely to be subject to pilot schemes in England and Wales and we will await the outcome of those trials before decisions are taken on the way forward.

TRANSPORT

Aircraft: Prime Minister

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made with purchasing a new aeroplane for use by the Prime Minister; what the cost of purchasing the aeroplane will be; and by what date he expects the purchase to be complete. [141271]

Gillian Merron: On 23 May 2007, the Secretary of State for Transport announced the launch of the formal procurement process and a Prior Information Notice to potential suppliers was published in the Official Journal of the European Union on 25 May 2007.

Sir Peter Gershon's Independent Air Travel Review, copies of which are available in the Library, set out the estimated cost and timescale for delivery of this service.

Eddington Report

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 149, on the Eddington Report, which carriages will be available on the rail network by the end of 2008; and on which routes they will be available. [141037]

Mr. Tom Harris: I anticipate that orders for additional carriages will be placed between now and 2010, the first of the carriages becoming available on the network by the latter part of 2008, with a view to completing delivery between 2009 and 2013. The precise phasing of the orders will reflect where crowding relief is most urgently needed; Network Rail's timetable for any platform-lengthening or increase in power supply which is required to accommodate longer trains; and the capacity of the suppliers of rolling stock.

It is too early to say where precisely the additional rolling stock will be used. The deployment of the new rolling stock will be agreed with the industry following the publication of the High Level Output Specification and the long-term rail strategy this summer, in accordance with the periodic review timetable set out in the Office of Rail Regulation's advice to Ministers published in February 2007.

Park and Ride Schemes

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will list the park and ride schemes which made a loss during the last 12 months for which figures are available; and what the amount of the loss was in each case; [142081]

(2) if he will initiate a nationwide audit of park and ride schemes to assess their worth and the on-going cost to public funds of their operation. [142083]

Gillian Merron: Local authorities are responsible for funding most park and ride schemes and for monitoring their financial results. The Department for Transport does not request or require returns from local authorities about the financial performance of these schemes.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many grants his Department gave for park and ride schemes in each year between 2000 and 2006. [142084]

Gillian Merron: Most park and ride schemes are implemented by local authorities at their discretion from the general transport funding provided by Government. In addition, the Department provides project-specific funding for the construction of larger transport schemes. Between 2000 and 2006, nine of these schemes have included elements of park and ride.

Funding for each scheme may span a number of years. The following table shows a breakdown of the nine schemes according to the year their funding began.

2000	0
2001	0
2002	1
2003	0
2004	4
2005	1
2006	4

Park and Ride Schemes: Bridlington

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria were used by his Department in approving a park and ride scheme for Bridlington. [142082]

Gillian Merron: The Bridlington Integrated Transport Scheme, which includes a park and ride element, was given an initial approval (Programme Entry) by this Department in July 2006.

The decision to fund the scheme was based on the Department's assessment of East Riding of Yorkshire Council's business case. This assessment looks, in particular, at the strategic case, value for money, deliverability, and financial and commercial aspects. The value for money assessment takes into account economy, safety, integration, environment and accessibility.

All new major local authority schemes for which project-specific funding is sought are assessed according to these criteria.

Parking: Cycleways

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ban the parking of cars in bicycle lanes. [141414]

Gillian Merron: Cycle lanes are marked on the carriageway. There are two types:

the mandatory cycle lane (with a solid white line) supported by a traffic regulation order, which prohibit the use of the lane by motor vehicles during its hours of operation and can prohibit parking; and the advisory cycle lane (with a broken white line), which while not prohibiting entry by motor vehicles can be useful in giving space to cyclists at places where the carriageway may be too narrow to safely accommodate a mandatory lane.

As with any section of carriageway, parking in cycle lanes may be prohibited by yellow line restrictions subject to a traffic regulation order made under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Public Transport: Crimes of Violence

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many incidents of violent behaviour were reported to the British Transport Police in each police authority area in each of the last five years; [141035]

(2) how many violent offences were dealt with by the British Transport Police in each police authority area in each of the last 12 months; [141036]

(3) how many crimes were reported to the British Transport Police in each police authority area in each of the last five years; and how many of these crimes were solved; [141052]

(4) how many people were convicted of violent behaviour on the rail network and subsequently sentenced to a prison sentence in each of the last 12 months. [141058]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk

Public Transport: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding the local transport authority in East Sussex received (a) in total, (b) per mile of road and (c) per head of population in each year since 1997. [138057]

Gillian Merron: The following table shows the total funding allocated to East Sussex council in the local transport capital settlements in each year between 1997-98 and 2006-07 (inclusive) in terms of (a) totals (b) per mile of road and (c) per head of population.

East Sussex Council

	Total funding (£000)	Funds per mile (£000)	Funds (£ per head)
1997-98	9,047	4.29	18.21
1998-99	5,449	2.59	10.97
1999-2000	5,478	2.60	11.03
2000-01	8,043	3.82	16.19
2001-02	10,061	4.78	20.26
2002-03	10,767	5.11	21.68
2003-04	10,694	5.08	21.53
2004-05	11,955	5.67	24.07
2005-06	10,931	5.19	22.01
2006-07	10,473	4.97	21.09

The Government also support local transport authorities through the general revenue support and councils do spend some of this support on highways and transport services according to their own priorities. In addition, the Government are providing record levels of funding for railways infrastructure through the passenger franchises and by direct grant to Network Rail. This funding is not classified by local authority area, but all local authorities have benefited from work by Network Rail to address the rail infrastructure renewals backlog. Additional support for public transport over this period has seen East Sussex being awarded a total of £3,671,920 for eight bus project schemes which include both rural and urban bus challenge schemes and for 2007-08 they received £953,263 in rural bus subsidy grant. In addition East Sussex receives Bus Service Operator Grant (BSOG) and funding for concessionary fares (through the revenue support grant).

Tankers

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the Marine Coastguard Agency involvement was with the tanker West Sailor in the Pentland Firth on 2 June; and if he will make a statement. [141511]

Dr. Ladyman: On 2 June, at 0846, the Aberdeen Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre (MRCC) of the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) received a call from the chemical tanker West Sailor, on passage through the Pentland Firth, stating she had engine room difficulties and needed to anchor to carry out repairs to the engine water cooling system.

Aberdeen MRCC coordinated the attendance of the RNLI Longhope lifeboat. In addition the MCA Emergency Towing Vessel was brought to immediate readiness and sent to the scene.

By 1133, the ship had successfully repaired the engines and was under way and resuming passage. The RNLI lifeboat escorted the ship through the Pentland Firth.

The Secretary of State's Representative for Maritime Salvage and Intervention (SOSREP) was kept fully apprised of the situation.

Tolls

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to introduce road user charging schemes in (a) Gravesham, (b) the Thames Gateway and (c) Kent. [141618]

Dr. Ladyman: None. Decisions on whether to introduce road user charging schemes in those areas would be for the relevant local authorities.

Vehicle Number Plates: Fire Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are to integrate on-board cameras on fire engines into the Automated Number Plate Recognition database. [141825]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no plans to integrate on-board cameras on fire engines with the DVLA's Automatic Number Plate Recognition [ANPR] database of unlicensed vehicles. DVLA's ANPR system is subject to stringent type approval testing by the Home Office to enable detected offenders to be taken to court for prosecution direct from the digital image captured by the cameras. Other cameras are not type approved and therefore offenders detected by other cameras would not be subject to prosecution.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will re-examine the position of commoners associations as the vehicle for making single farm payments to those who graze on commons; and which cases of such payments have been suspended. [133133]

Barry Gardiner: A number of claims have been submitted under the single payment scheme by commoners associations and those that the Rural Payments Agency have confirmed meet the scheme eligibility criteria have been allocated entitlements and received associated payments. The eligibility status of remaining claims is being considered on a case-by-case basis with the commoners associations concerned.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which farm payment deadlines missed by the UK in 2003-04 led to the European Commission's recovery of 53.7 million euros; and from which budget he expects funds recovered to be paid. [134683]

Barry Gardiner: This sum represents the deductions made to UK re-imbursements in the 2004 EU financial year in respect of mainly bovine direct aid payments relating to earlier scheme years. While the relevant Commission decision has only recently been published, the deductions were applied at the time and there will be no further impact on the UK Exchequer in relation to them.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which EU member state was subject to the greatest financial correction as a result of non-respect of payment deadlines in 2003-04. [134684]

Barry Gardiner: On the basis of decisions published to date, the UK.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what percentage of claimants in (a) Torridge and West Devon and (b) the south-west for the single farm payment scheme in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006 have been paid their payments (A) in full and (B) in part. [140797]

Barry Gardiner: As of 6 June 2007, a total of 104,618 farmers in England have received either a full or partial payment under the 2006 single payment scheme year. This total includes 98,750 full and 5,868 partial payments. This represents 96 per cent. of the estimated total claimant population of 109,000.

RPA's target is to pay 96.14 per cent. of the total value of the fund by 30 June 2007.

Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the single payment scheme is not yet available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Carbon Emissions

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what rate of change in carbon dioxide emissions was recorded in (a) the EU and (b) the US in 2006. [140976]

Ian Pearson: In 2005, the latest year for which information is available, carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions from the EU-15 were 0.9 per cent higher than 1990 levels, although total emissions of all greenhouse gases decreased by 4.0 per cent. Emissions data to 2005 for the EU-27 are not yet available, although statistics for the EU-25 show that net CO_2 emissions decreased by 2.4 per cent. between 1990 and 2004.

CO_2 emissions in the US in 2005 were 20 per cent. above 1990 levels and total emissions of all greenhouse gases were 16 per cent. above 1990 emissions.

Between 2004 and 2005 CO_2 emissions in the EU-15 decreased by 1.2 per cent., while CO_2 emissions in the US increased by 0.4 per cent.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the percentage change in carbon dioxide emissions by the Government was over the course of 2006. [140988]

Ian Pearson: Energy data compiled for the Sustainable Development Commission's Sustainable Development in Government Annual Report 2006 show that there was a 2.3 per cent. reduction (after correcting for weather variations) in annual carbon emissions from Government buildings during the period April 2005 and March 2006.

Figures for the financial year to March 2007 are currently being compiled and will be published by the Sustainable Development Commission later this year.

Crops: EC Law

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the compatibility of his Department's proposals on the coexistence of GM, conventional and organic crops with European law. [140798]

Ian Pearson: We are confident that our coexistence proposals are consistent with EU law.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library the (a) name of the consent holder, (b) crop trailed, (c) location of the test sites based on six figure map references, (d) conditions placed on the consent and (e) post release assessments reports for each of the part B experimental consents 94/R20/1, 98/R28/2, 00/R20/4 and 00/R20/5 issued under EC Directive 90/220. [140875]

Ian Pearson: I have arranged for the information requested to be placed in the House Library.

EC Environmental Policy

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the inclusion of Ministers from the devolved Administrations in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales in the United Kingdom delegation at future EU ministerial negotiations on (i) fisheries, (ii) agriculture and (iii) environmental policy. [139883]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 4 June 2007]: As specified in the memorandum of understanding between the UK Government and the devolved Administrations, decisions on ministerial attendance at EU Council meetings will be taken on a case-by-case basis by the lead UK Minister. In reaching decisions on the composition of the UK team, the lead Minister will take into account the extent to which substantive discussion is expected of matters likely to have a significant impact on devolved responsibilities.

Environmental Stewardship Scheme

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many applications for the higher level stewardship scheme were (a) made and (b) granted in each Government region in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [140799]

Barry Gardiner: The following table shows the number of higher level stewardship applications received and granted in each of Natural England's regions in 2005-06.

Region	Received	Granted
East	69	56
East Midlands	38	30
North-east	51	48
North-west	137	119
South-east	116	92
South-west	235	182
West Midlands	225	202
Yorkshire and the Humber	57	46

In 2006-07, the number of higher level stewardship applications received and granted in each of Natural England's regions were as follows:

Region	Received	Granted
East	236	127
East Midlands	194	108
London	6	3
North-east	127	59
North-west	161	71
South-east	253	166
South-west	376	128
West Midlands	206	94
Yorkshire and the Humber	154	78

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) highest, (b) lowest and (c) average value of award made under the higher level stewardship scheme was in each government region in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [140800]

Barry Gardiner: For 2005-06, the highest, lowest and average value of annual payments made under higher level stewardship in each of Natural England's regions are set out in the following table:

Region	Highest	Lowest	£ Average
East	127,583.97	6,547.83	33,306.46
East Midlands	66,466.32	4,228.90	20,160.76
North-east	300,583.13	2,609.15	32,763.34
North-west	21,465.80	6,18.75	7,560.48
South-east	80,918.61	3,276.83	19,164.00
South-west	83,731.58	826.95	13,271.12
West Midlands	83,878.21	800.00	14,018.73
Yorkshire and the Humber	29,616.27	1,185.95	10,752.87

For 2006-07, the highest, lowest and average value of annual payments made under higher level stewardship in each of Natural England's regions were as follows:

Region	Highest	Lowest	£ Average
East	328,689.74	310.80	28,439.21
East Midlands	82,815.17	1,444.62	20,472.84
London	48,982.08	14,936.00	31,959.00
North-east	88,793.15	1,730.91	20,896.62
North-west	109,956.40	1,212.23	13,326.24
South-east	315,214.00	748.58	22,125.65
South-west	183,576.75	284.32	17,439.23
West Midlands	81,849.61	480.00	14,646.17
Yorkshire and the Humber	101,078.80	1,326.77	14,865.21

Floods: Databases

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what proportion of the recent pilot mailings by the Environment Agency to households and businesses about the Floodline Warnings Direct service was sent to households or businesses which are not above the threshold level of flood risk; [140836]

(2) what the threshold level of flood risk is above which households and businesses are included in the Floodline Warnings Direct database; [140833]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of households and businesses excluded from the Floodline Warnings Direct database in error which are above the threshold level of risk from floods; [140834]

(4) what estimate he has made of the number of households and businesses included in the Floodline Warnings Direct database in error which are below the threshold level of flood risk. [140835]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency (EA) incorrectly sent a letter about Floodline Warnings Direct to 50 households at moderate flood risk. This represents 0.1 per cent. of the recent Floodline Warnings Direct recruitment mailings that the EA has sent to households across England. The EA have confirmed this as an error isolated to Congresbury, North Somerset and has contacted the 50 householders concerned to apologise.

The EA takes into consideration the source, the risk and the impact of flooding on a community when evaluating where it provides a flood warning service and the method by which flood warnings are communicated to the public.

The EA offers Floodline Warnings Direct to those households and businesses with a high risk of flooding.

We define high risk as flooding at, or greater than, the 1 in 100 year return period (1 per cent. probability of occurring in any year) for flooding from rivers and the 1 in 200 year return period (0.5 per cent. probability) for flooding from the sea.

However, in some locations the EA has offered the Floodline Warnings Direct service to households and businesses up to the Extreme Flood Outline which represents the 1 in 1,000 year flood (0.1 per cent. probability) due to the predicted impacts of flooding on the community.

The EA does not offer the flood warning service to properties outside the Extreme Flood Outline. Therefore, the EA has not excluded any households or businesses in error from Floodline Warnings Direct which are above the threshold level of risk from flooding.

In March 2007, the EA mailed 9,166 of the 195,000 properties registered with Floodline Warnings Direct in England who no longer require warnings as they are not within the Extreme Flood Outline. The EA has not included these 9,166 properties in Floodline Warnings Direct in error as since the properties were included their level of flood risk has been updated with more accurate information.

Gardens: Heating

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the (a) carbon dioxide and (b) greenhouse gas emissions created by outdoor patio heaters in (i) the most recent year for which information is available and (ii) the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement on the expected effect on the (A) use of and (B) volume of emissions from outdoor patio heaters resulting from changes to legislation related to smoking in public places from 1st July 2007. [140639]

Ian Pearson: Currently, only limited information is available about the number of outdoor patio heaters in use in the UK.

The market transformation programme (MTP) estimates that the number of liquid petroleum gas (LPG) patio heaters is around 630,000 in the domestic sector and between 3,000 and 12,500 in the hospitality sector (pubs, restaurants and hotels). This does not include electric outdoor heating appliances, however, which appear to be gaining market share.

The LPG Association has provided sales figures for LPG supplied in cylinders sized for outdoor heating appliances each year. From the association's 2005 figures, the MTP estimates that annual carbon dioxide emissions from patio heaters in the UK are around 22.2 thousand tonnes. No information on other greenhouse gas emissions from outdoor patio heaters is available.

The MTP estimates are not derived from surveys or detailed research, and should not be interpreted as accurate data on energy consumption and carbon emissions. Information about emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases is not available for future years.

There is currently no information available on the expected effect on the use and volume of emissions from patio heaters resulting from changes to legislation related to smoking in public places from 1 July 2007. However, the MTP is currently updating its briefing note 'Outdoor Heating for Comfort' to look at the possible impacts of the smoking ban on UK carbon dioxide emissions. This is available on the MTP website.

This updates the information I gave in my answer to the hon. Member for South Derbyshire (Mr. Todd) on 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 474W.

GMOs: Crops

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to what use the residues produced by the processing of BASF's GM starch altered potato (EU marketing application EH92-527-1) will be put. [140877]

Ian Pearson: No consent to cultivate or market this potato product has yet been granted. However, the conditions of the draft Commission decision on it require BASF to include a label informing operators and final users that products containing or consisting of potato tubers of line EH92-527-1 cannot be used for human or animal consumption. The draft decision also states that material should be exclusively used for industrial purposes or destroyed.

Hill Farming

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average age is of a hill farmer in England; and if he will make a statement. [140424]

Barry Gardiner: In 2005, the average (median) age of a holder in a less favoured area in England was 58 years. This excludes holdings where the holder is a legal entity, as well as group holdings where there is no single holder.

Japanese Knotweed

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to define standards for eradication of Japanese knotweed; and if he will make a statement. [141298]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA partially funded, and fully supports, the guidance set out in the Environment Agency's "Knotweed Code of Practice: Managing Japanese Knotweed on Development Sites", which was published in September 2006. This sets out advice on how to deal with Japanese knotweed to an acceptable standard of effectiveness. It also advises on relevant pesticide, environmental protection and controlled waste legislation and the offence under section 14 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 of planting or causing Japanese knotweed to grow in the wild.

The Secretary of State may approve any code of practice relating to species covered by section 14 of the 1981 Act. Any such code is then admissible in any court proceedings and must be taken into account by a court in any case in which it is deemed to be relevant. The Japanese knotweed code is one that we will be considering for such approval.

National Parks: South Downs

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to make an announcement on a National Park covering the South Downs. [140757]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA will shortly be inviting further representations on matters that were not able to be addressed by the South Downs Inquiry. In the light of responses received, Ministers will consider whether it is appropriate for the inquiry to be re-opened. If the inquiry is re-opened, an announcement on the decision whether to create a South Downs National Park is expected no later than autumn 2008. If it is not re-opened, an announcement early in 2008 will be possible.

Waste Management

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil servants are working on policy on aerobic composting, broken down by grade; and if he will make a statement. [140637]

Barry Gardiner: No DEFRA officials work exclusively on aerobic composting. However, a number of officials in the Waste Strategy, Waste Management, Air and Environment Quality, Waste Implementation Programme, and Endemic Diseases divisions work on issues relating to aerobic composting. These issues include policy and targets, the regulatory system for the composting process and its outputs, the demonstration of new composting technologies and animal by-product processing.

SCOTLAND

Employment

7. Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the employment levels were in Scotland in each of the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [140958]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In the final quarter of the last four years the employment levels in Scotland were:

2.39 million in 2003;

2.45 million in 2004;

2.46 million in 2005; and

2.50 million in 2006.

11. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the most recent figures for overall employment levels in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [140964]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In the first quarter of 2007 the employment level in Scotland stood at 2.53 million. This marks a record high for the number of people employed.

Business Environment

8. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps the Government are taking to ensure a long-term stable environment for Scottish business. [140959]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Scottish economy continues to benefit from the domestic stability delivered by the UK Government's strong macroeconomic framework, which has delivered sustained growth, low interest rates and stable inflation. This Government have facilitated the strongest Scottish labour market in decades with employment and unemployment around their historically best positions.

Civil Service Jobs

9. Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on numbers of civil service jobs in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [140960]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend on a range of issues.

Broadcasting

10. Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with Scottish Ministers on the further devolution of broadcasting powers. [140961]

David Cairns: Parliament decided in the Scotland Act 1998 that broadcasting should be a reserved issue and there are no plans to change that.

Carbon Capture: Peterhead Project

12. Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the future of the Peterhead carbon capture project. [140965]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I discuss a wide range of subjects with ministerial colleagues on a regular basis.

Research and Development

13. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent estimate he has made of the number of research and development projects being undertaken in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [140966]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not compile such estimates but I note that a survey for IBM last autumn showed Scotland's success in attracting 19 per cent. of all UK research and development projects in the UK—well above our population share.

Absent Voting

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will conduct an investigation into the postal ballot delays for the Scottish elections on 3 May. [136137]

David Cairns [holding answer 8 May 2007]: The Electoral Commission has appointed Mr. Ron Gould to lead the statutory review of the May elections. The Electoral Commission published the terms of reference of this review on 21 May, confirming that Mr. Gould will consider the arrangements for postal voting.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what his estimate is of the number of voters in Scotland who will be unable to cast their vote for the Scottish Parliamentary and local government elections as a result of the delay in sending out the postal ballots; and if he will make a statement. [136138]

David Cairns [holding answer 8 May 2007]: This information is not available because there is no way of knowing, from those who do not return their postal votes, how many simply chose not to return their ballot papers and how many were not able to return them for practical reasons, for example, being on holiday. I understand that the majority of postal votes were received by voters a week before polling day, or even earlier.

Devolution: Co-operation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of processes in place to facilitate co-operation between the Scottish Executive and the Government. [140962]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A memorandum of understanding sets out the over-arching principles that underpin relations between the UK Government and the devolved Administrations. The Government have no plans to revise this memorandum of understanding.

Drugs: Misuse

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what measures are being taken to combat illegal drug use in Scotland. [140963]

David Cairns: Operational responsibility for tackling illegal drug use in Scotland is devolved and is the responsibility of the Scottish Executive.

Elections

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland on what dates in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007 (i) Ministers and (ii) officials in his Department had meetings regarding the running of the Scottish elections on 3 May 2007. [136139]

David Cairns [holding answer 8 May 2007]: Scotland Office Ministers and officials had meetings every month since January 2006 about the Scottish Parliament elections on 3 May 2007. Ministers had 13 meetings and officials had 158.

Elections: Ballot Papers

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what role (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department played in the negotiation of the contracts with private companies to carry out the printing, collating and distribution of postal ballot papers for the elections in Scotland on 3 May. [136136]

David Cairns [holding answer 8 May 2007]: The responsibility for handling postal ballot papers rests with Returning Officers. The printing of postal ballot papers formed part of the contract to deliver an electronic counting service. This contract was negotiated through an electronic counting project board, consisting of representatives of Returning Officers, Scottish Executive and Scotland Office officials, and DRS. Decisions relating to the e-counting contract with DRS were taken by the electronic counting project board. The collation and distribution of postal ballot papers for the elections were handled through separate, individual, contracts between the Returning Officer and their suppliers.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Council Tax Benefit: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Warrington are in receipt of council tax benefit, broken down by ward of resident; and what the average award made was in 2006-07. [142483]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. Information for council tax benefit is not available at ward level.

As at November 2006, the most recent available information, there were 13,770 households in receipt of council tax benefit in the Warrington borough council area; the average weekly amount of council tax benefit was £12.71.

Council Tax Benefits: Reform

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the Government's timetable is for reform of council tax benefit further to the recommendations of Sir Michael Lyons. [142263]

Mr. Plaskitt: There is a great deal for the Government to consider, arising from Sir Michael Lyons report, much of it identified as being for the longer term.

We already have in place more accessible council tax benefit arrangements for pension credit customers, and we are considering whether these can be further improved.

In the longer term, we want to ensure that council tax benefit is delivered as accessibly, simply and securely as possible. We intend to carry out more research into the feasibility of using data held across Government Departments in order to build up profiles of people likely to be entitled. We also intend to develop the concept of a "single point of contact" for pensioners for access to their benefits, coupled with alignment of application processes. This would produce a better public service as well as greater efficiency.

We will consider, in our research, the impact on fraud and error and issues of practicality and affordability, alongside priorities for the tax and benefits system as a whole. We will also consider the relative merits of piloting any changes and rolling them out nationally.

Council Tax Benefits: Scotland

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is on the provision of council tax benefit in Scotland. [142356]

Mr. Plaskitt: Council tax benefit is a national benefit and we have no plans to change this.

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139449]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department buys advertising through the Central Office of Information (COI). Under the terms of COI framework agreements, advertising agencies are contracted to supply advertising services only. Advertising agencies on COI's roster do not supply broader consultancy services. On occasion wider ranging consultancy projects may inform campaign work, but the costs would not be attributed to the campaign.

Where consultancy is provided by other organisations it usually results in a range of communication activities which may or may not include advertising; it is not possible to distinguish the cost of providing consultancy for advertising from that for other forms of communication.

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much revenue his Department received from advertisements on his Department's (a) public information leaflets and (b) public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [140668]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions has not received any revenue, over the last 10 years, from either (a) public information leaflets or (b) public websites.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the code of conduct for special advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140135]

Mrs. McGuire: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the code of conduct for special advisers, including section 22(iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Flexible Working

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress his Department has made in extending the right to request flexible working arrangements to cover care of older children further to the consultation strategy published in February 2005. [141265]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The responses to the Work and Families consultation in February 2005 showed that carers should be the priority group in any extension of the right to request flexible working. As a result we extended the right to 2.65 million carers of adults in April. We are currently keeping the law under review.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on housing benefit in each year since 1997; and what percentage of the non-pension welfare budget was spent on housing benefit in each year. [140585]

Mr. Plaskitt: For details of housing benefit expenditure, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the right hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1160W. Information on the proportion of the non-pension welfare budget spent on housing benefit is in the following table.

Proportion of the non-pension welfare budget spent on housing benefit: Great Britain

	Percentage
1997-98	14.8
1998-99	14.3
1999-2000	14.0

Housing Benefit: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claims for housing benefit were dealt with by Warrington borough council in each of the last five years; and what the average award was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [141013]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Housing benefit (HB) claims in Warrington borough council

	Number of HB claims
2002-03	5,014
2003-04	n/a
2004-05	3,469
2005-06	4,124
2006-07	2,940

n/a = Not available

Notes:

1. Figures are for financial years.
2. For 2006-07 the data are from April to December 2006.

As at November 2006, the average weekly amount of housing benefit in Warrington borough council was £58.21.

Performance management information returned by local authorities to the Department is published on the Housing Benefit Operational Database (HoBOD). HoBOD can be accessed using the following link:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/hobod

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken by Warrington borough council to process a claim for housing benefit was in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what the average time was in comparable local authorities. [141014]

Mr. Plaskitt: The average time taken by Warrington Borough Council to process a claim for housing benefit up to 31 December 2006 is 25 days. For the same period the national average time for local authorities to process a housing benefit claim is 34 days.

Performance management information returned by local authorities to the Department is published on the Housing Benefit Operational Database (HoBOD). HoBOD can be accessed using the following link:

Income Support: Lone Parents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many lone parents (a) claiming income support and (b) who had been claiming income support for longer than five years had children aged (i) under three years, (ii) under five years, (iii) between five and 11 years, (iv) between three and 11 years and (v) over 11 years in each month since January 1992. [138726]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 23 May 2007]: The information is not available in the format requested. Because of changes in methodology comparable figures are not available prior to 1999. The available information is in the following tables.

International Labour Organisation

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which Ministers attended the International Labour Organisation's annual conference in each year since 2000. [141415]

Mrs. McGuire: The following Ministers have attended the International Labour Organisation's annual conference since 2000:

Right hon. Tessa Jowell 2000 and 2001;
Malcolm Wicks 2002;
Maria Eagle 2003;
Chris Pond 2004; and
James Plaskitt 2005, 2006, and 2007.

New Deal for Disabled People

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many participants in the new deal for disabled people left the scheme for sustainable employment in each month since it was initiated. [137922]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 18 May 2007]: Up to the end of November 2006, new deal for disabled people (NDDP) had been successful in helping 134,160 people into work, including 101,720 people who had registered with, and received assistance from, an NDDP job broker.

Information on job sustainability is available to March 2006. Of the 78,970 people who had gained a job through a job broker to March 2006, 54,090 had gained a sustained job.

A new deal for disabled people (NDDP) job is regarded as sustained when a person who has been placed into work through an NDDP job broker remains in work for 13 out of 39 weeks. Prior to October 2003, an NDDP job was regarded as sustained when a person, placed into work through an NDDP job broker, remained in work for 26 out of 39 weeks.

Information on those who are recorded as leaving NDDP with an immediate destination of employment, which was also recorded as a sustained job, is in the following table.

Remploy: Closures

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria were used to determine whether a Remploy factory would be eligible for (a) closure and (b) merger. [139196]

Mrs. McGuire: In deciding eligibility for potential closure Remploy took into account several factors: the market for the product made at the factory, the likely ability to achieve acceptable losses per disabled employee in the future, the percentage of cost which is covered by income from customers and the local employment market.

For mergers the company not only took into account the above factors, but also considered the proximity to another factory which was not potentially closing.

We will consider the company's final proposals once they have been submitted later in the year following consultation. No decision by the Secretary of State on the future of the company will take place until then and the Government encourage participation in the consultation process by contacting Bob Warner on tel: 02476 515810 or writing to him at: Remploy, Stonecourt, Siskin Drive, Coventry, CV3 4FJ.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what representations were made by (a) management and (b) staff regarding the possible closure of the Remploy factory in Hartlepool; [139197]

(2) what consideration was given to merging the Hartlepool and Stockton Remploy factories as an alternative to closure. [139199]

Mrs. McGuire: In drawing up the closure proposals Remploy took into account the market for the product made at their factories, their likely ability to achieve acceptable losses per disabled employee in the future, the percentage of its cost which is covered by income from its customers and the local employment market. The proximity to another factory which was not closing was considered.

The Remploy Board's proposals signal the next phase in the development of a five-year modernisation plan—a formal consultation with trade unions and employees and a disability impact assessment as part of Remploy's Disability Equality Duty obligations.

The Government will consider the company's final proposals once they have been submitted later in the year following consultation. No decisions by the Secretary of State on the future of the company will take place until then.

No representations have been made to Government on the proposed closure of the Hartlepool factory. If there are strong arguments against the proposed closure of the Hartlepool factory, the Board of Remploy would be happy to fully consider them.

The Government encourage participation in the consultation process by contacting Bob Warner Chief Executive of Remploy on tel: 02476 515810 or in writing at: Remploy, Stonecourt, Siskin Drive, Coventry, CV3 4FJ.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans his Department has for simplifying the benefits system for people with disabilities. [141474]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell) on 27 February 2007, Official Report, column 1208W.

Social Security Benefits: Payments

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many days in advance of payment to claimants of (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance, (c) disability living allowance and (d) pension credit his Department transfers funds to banks. [141422]

Mr. Plaskitt: Funds for the payment of DWP benefits and allowances are transferred to banks on day three of the BACS processing cycle. This is normally the same day that payment is credited to the claimant's bank account.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment he has made of the implications of changes in energy prices for the level of the winter fuel allowance. [141261]

James Purnell: The winter fuel payment is a significant contribution to winter fuel bills which account for around 60 per cent. of the year's total fuel bill. It has risen from £20 to £200 from winter 2000-01 and to £300 for people aged 80 or over from winter 2003-04.

Fuel prices are volatile, and can fall as well as rise. Although fuel prices have risen since 2003 this follows a period of no change between 1997 and 2003, and following recent falls in wholesale gas prices, companies are now starting to announce reductions in retail prices. It would not be sensible for the rate of winter fuel payments to track the upward and downward movement of fuel prices.

DEFENCE

Air Force: Manpower

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is for ensuring that there are sufficient numbers of pilots qualified and able to serve as fast jet pilots; and if he will make a statement. [141932]

Mr. Ingram: There is a robust process to establish and sustain the requirement for pilots qualified and able to serve as fast jet pilots. The process for the RAF is undertaken by RAF manpower planners who compare the forecast requirement for fast jet pilots against the forecast strength. Any anticipated gap is then adjusted by modifying the forecast number of fast jet pilots required to graduate from the operational conversion unit as necessary. The RN process is very similar. The process helps to predict manning trends such as premature voluntary release, medical discharge, promotion and normal retirement.

Armed Conflict: Journalism

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions his Department has had with (i) European partners and (ii) others to seek the earliest possible compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 1738 on the protection of journalists reporting on armed conflict; and if he will make a statement [140892]

Mr. Ingram: Her Majesty's Government strongly support UNSCR 1738. We acknowledge the importance of ensuring that journalists, media professionals and associated personnel are provided with the protection they need.

The MOD already affords journalists the same protection rights as civilians in conflict areas, providing they do not take action adversely affecting their status, in accordance with article 79 of additional protocol 1 of the Geneva conventions. To assist the process of ensuring that international law is respected and enforced, and to raise awareness of violence directed against journalists in conflict zones, the UK tabled UNSCR 1738 jointly with our EU partners in December 2006. This called on parties involved in conflict to stop deliberate attacks against journalists and respect them as civilians under international law.

While we have had no recent correspondence with our EU partners about resolution 1738, we continue to work with them and others to support efforts to promote and strengthen respect for international law.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions his officials have had with (i) NATO partners and (ii) others (A) on respect for the professional independence and rights of journalists, media professionals and associated personnel during armed conflict and (B) to obtain universal compliance with obligations under international law to end impunity and prosecute those responsible for serious violations of international law against such persons; and if he will make a statement. [140895]

Mr. Ingram: Her Majesty's Government are committed to promoting freedom of expression worldwide and to defending and protecting the professional independence and right of journalists and media professionals to work without fear of reprisal during armed conflict. Although we have had no recent correspondence on these matters with NATO partners or others, we work with them and others to support efforts to promote and strengthen international law. An essential part of this is our strong support for the international criminal tribunals which are a key element of international efforts to combat the most serious crimes of concern to the international community.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures have been introduced by his Department to ensure the UK's compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 1738, on the protection of journalists in armed conflict; and if he will make a statement. [140896]

Mr. Ingram: UK armed forces protect journalists in the same way they protect civilians in theatre, provided they do not take action adversely affecting their status under international law. This is enshrined in our instructions on the practical arrangements for enabling correspondents to report from operational theatres and in the training provided to our personnel.

Armed Forces: Burma

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the British Government provide pensions to any Burmese soldiers who fought alongside the British in the second world war. [141984]

Derek Twigg: The British Government no longer provide pensions to Burmese soldiers who fought alongside the British forces in the second world war. Responsibility for the payment of these pensions was transferred to the Government of Burma in 1947, ahead of Burma gaining independence in January 1948.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour interval was for (a) Army, (b) Royal Navy, (c) Royal Air Force and (d) Royal Marine personnel in the latest period for which figures are available. [128238]

Mr. Ingram: The average tour interval for land units is 26.5 months.

	Infantry	Royal Armoured Corps	Royal Artillery	Royal Engineers	Royal Signals	Royal Logistic Corps
Tour interval (months)	24.7	39.1	22.4	19.7	25.4	28.0
Tour interval (average)	26.5 months

For Royal Navy personnel, deployments are not to be longer than nine months. A ship's programme aims for 60 per cent. of the time on deployment and 40 per cent. of the time alongside at the base port over a two-year rolling period. Current activity for surface ships is approximately 53 per cent. away, 47 per cent. at home.

Tour intervals for the Royal Marines in 3 Commando Brigade RM varies between units but on average is 34 months, although this does not reflect individual company deployments which have been more frequent.

Data on RAF average tour intervals are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) longest, (b) shortest and (c) average period of time was taken to make repairs to a forces' accommodation property after a call out in the last period for which figures are available. [142100]

Derek Twigg: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff were employed at the Modern Housing Solutions helpdesk in Speke, Liverpool in each month since it was established. [142103]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is set out in the following table:

	Number employed
2005
July	1.0
August	2.0
September	2.0
October	2.0
November	2.0
December	19.0
2006
January	63.0
February	68.5
March	63.0
April	85.0
May	85.0
June	98.5
July	100.5
August	113.0
September	122.0
October	114.0
November	102.5
January	108.0
February	106.0
March	99.0
April	101.0

There was no specific "go-live" date for the helpdesk. The contract was dated 14 November 2005 and was rolled out on a regional basis from January 2006. Modern Housing Solutions built up the helpdesk during that period. Staff were in place before the contract was signed as MHS knew from April 2005 that it was the preferred bidder.

When MHS began delivering services, the number of calls received was higher than anticipated, requiring additional staff to be employed on the helpdesk. Over time, however, the need has reduced for these additional staff, resulting in a reduction in staff between April and May 2007.

Armed Forces: Pay

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Army personnel were mispaid in the May pay run for the Army by Joint Personnel Administration; and if he will make a statement. [139858]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 June 2007]: 169 Army personnel were mispaid during May. All of these cases related to errors in the payment of allowances and will be corrected in the June pay run.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what amount the operational allowance will be increased for fiscal year 2007-08 to take account of the rate of inflation. [141616]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 11 June 2007]: For the financial year 2007-08, the operational allowance for Iraq and Afghanistan will increase by 3.6 per cent. and this will be backdated to 1 April 2007. The allowance is based on the tax and national insurance paid by a private soldier, lower band pay range, level 5, on his/her income and longer separation allowance, while deployed on operations. Therefore, backdated to 1 April 2007, the daily rate of operational allowance will increase from £12.31 to £12.75. Consequently during a six month tour of duty it will increase from £2,240 to £2,320. However, due to the improved security situation in the Balkans, personnel serving in this area will no longer qualify for the operational allowance from 1 September 2007.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) awarding retrospectively armed service pensions to all those armed service personnel who do not receive pensions and (b) providing pensions on retirement to those service personnel who are currently not likely to be entitled to a pension. [138022]

Derek Twigg: No specific estimate has been produced regarding the cost of backdating armed forces preserved pensions before 1975. However, in view of the fact that this issue is common to other public service schemes not just the armed forces, the cost, whether to the armed forces or more widely, would be considerable and could run into billions of pounds.

The only individuals currently serving who will not be entitled to a pension are those who do not serve the two years necessary to qualify for an armed forces pension. However, they may transfer their notional benefits out of the armed forces pension scheme into another public sector scheme.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1289W, on the armed forces: pensions, how much it would cost to obtain the information. [141921]

Derek Twigg: There are currently in excess of 350,000 pensions in payment and, although the sums being paid can be accessed, it is not possible to tell whether the amount is in respect of a "full career pension" or a lesser period. The cost of scrutinising each file to check the length of each individual's reckonable service would be in excess of £900,000.

Armed Forces: Personal Records

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information his Department records on (a) Service personnel and (b) Service families. [136411]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 10 May 2007]: The Ministry of Defence records a wide range of information on Service personnel. This information is used to support effective administration of Service personnel and to inform policy on, for example, pay, allowances, accommodation, training, health care, health and safety management, and career management. Statistics on Defence personnel are published regularly by the Defence Analytical Services Agency, and these are available on their website and in the Library of the House.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with his United States counterpart on the deployment of missile defence systems in Europe. [141588]

Des Browne: It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign Governments as this would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations. The position on missile defence in Europe is as set out in my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's reply of 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 237W, to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague).

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139431]

Derek Twigg: The only advertising undertaken by the Ministry of Defence is recruitment related.

Armed forces recruitment advertising is bought through the Central Office of Information (COI). Under the terms of the COI framework agreements advertising agencies are contracted to supply advertising services only and not to supply broader consultancy services.

The Royal Navy uses two advertising agencies for its recruit advertising activities, procured through the COI. These are Wright Collins Rutherford Scott, and Glue London. No additional external organisations are used to provide consultancy services.

The Army has not bought any advertising services outside of those procured through the COI. Currently, the Army is working with Zenith Optimedia to deliver advertising campaigns.

The Royal Air Force currently works with the advertising agency Delaney Lund Knox Warren to deliver its advertising campaigns. It has not procured any organisations to supply wider consultancy services for those campaigns.

Information on the recruitment of civilian staff is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many ex-servicemen and women in Somerset (a) applied for and (b) were subsequently issued with (i) an HM Armed Forces Veterans Badge and (ii) a UK Merchant Seafarers Badge. [141504]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The information on Veterans Badges is not held in a format that identifies how many badges were applied for and subsequently issued; it is possible to give information only on how many are issued. I can confirm that 3,060 Veterans Badges have been issued to ex-servicemen and women in Somerset since 2004.

Information relating to the Merchant Seafarers Badge is not held in a format that allows counties to be readily identified. However, I can confirm a total of 5,634 badges have been issued since the scheme began on 27 June 2006.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to reply to Question 127568, tabled by the hon. Member for North Durham on 12 March 2007. [138517]

Derek Twigg: I replied to my hon. Friend on 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 752W.

Warships

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for how many days the Sea Dart missile system was fully operational for each of the eight remaining Type 42 destroyers in (a) the last 12 months and (b) 2006. [141002]

Mr. Ingram: The Sea Dart missile system has a good record for reliability and effectiveness. I am withholding the detailed information as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

TREASURY

Departments: Drama

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much it cost to run the interactive drama training sessions in each year since their introduction. [139998]

John Healey: In common with most other public and private sector organisations, the Treasury occasionally uses role-playing techniques in its training programmes, for example on teaching interview and management skills, and on improving diversity awareness. However, the costs of these elements of training programmes are not separately recorded.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people with epilepsy are employed by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [139101]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury publishes a wide range of data on disability and diversity in its annual report and on its website (www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/about_disability_equality.cfm). The number of officials with epilepsy is not detailed as this could identify individual members of staff.

Departments: Meetings

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each meeting he attended on 10 May. [140007]

John Healey: On 10 May the Chancellor attended Cabinet and then Treasury oral questions. It is not the practice of this or other administrations to release the minutes of Cabinet or other meetings.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many claims have been made against (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Sex Discrimination Act since 1997; and what the outcome was of each such case. [139997]

John Healey: The information is as follows:

Department	Response	Outcome
HMT	None	Not applicable
Royal Mint	One case	Settled out of court
DMO	None	Not applicable
HMRC	69 cases The above figure includes figures for Inland Revenue and Customs and Excise prior to the establishment of HMRC. However, the 'Customs and Excise' element of these figures is for the last five years only as earlier figures are not available.	Number of claims withdrawn: 26 Claims upheld: None Claims not upheld: 16 Claims settled out of court: 27
VOA	VOA is unable to provide any information earlier than 2001-02 without incurring disproportionate costs. Since 2001-02 there have been 34 cases.	Claims not upheld: Five Claims settled out of court: four One case remains pending an employment tribunal hearing, and 21 further cases remain pending on the outcome of an employment tribunal on a common issue. Two pending internal investigation One pending outcome of an employment tribunal claim
NS&I	None	Not applicable
OGC	None	Not applicable
ONS	Two cases	Cases not upheld: Two

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's employee surveys for (a) 1998 and (b) 1999. [142024]

John Healey: HM Treasury began employee surveys in 2002.

EC Budget: Contributions

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the United Kingdom's (a) gross and (b) net annual contributions to the European Union are expected to be in each of the next six years; and if he will make a statement. [142023]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 31 January 2006, Official Report, columns 398-400W.

Later calendar year estimates for the United Kingdom's contributions to the EC Budget will be published annually in the Government's "European Community Finances" White Paper. The 2007 edition of this White Paper (Cm 7090) was published on 22 May 2007.

Eligo International Limited

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) date, (b) value and (c) purpose was of each payment made by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies to Eligo International Limited since 1997. [141270]

John Healey: None of the Chancellor's departments or agencies has found any records of payments to Eligo International Limited within the last five years. Changes in accounting systems mean that a positive confirmation for all bodies over the whole period since 1997 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Goodison Review

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the estimated cost of implementation of the Goodison Review is, broken down by main budget headings; [140766]

(2) what progress his Department has made in implementing the recommendations in the Goodison Review for which his Department has responsibility; which recommendations relating to direct taxation have been implemented; and which of the recommendations in the review have yet to be implemented. [140768]

Mr. Timms: The Government implemented a number of Sir Nicholas Goodison's recommendations and continue to keep those relating to direct taxation under review.

There are a variety of tax reliefs available to encourage private and corporate giving and the Government will, over the summer, consult with the sector on measures to increase the take up of Gift Aid, in addition to conducting an awareness raising campaign.

The information on costs requested is not available.

Government Departments: Buildings

Colin Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of commercial sector buildings in the UK were occupied by the central Government estate in each of the last five years. [141068]

John Healey: Figures based on floor space data are available centrally only for 2004, 2005, and 2006 and then only for England and Wales.

The percentage occupation from the commercial sector in each of those years is approximately as follows:

	Percentage occupation
2004	7
2006	8

Colin Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of Government estate buildings were (a) leased and (b) owned in each of the last five years. [141069]

John Healey: Figures are available centrally only for 2004, 2005, and 2006.

The breakdown in percentages between freehold and leasehold Government buildings is approximately as follows:

	2004	2005	2006
Freehold	34	35	40
Leasehold	26	28	29

The remainder of Government buildings were occupied predominantly under PFI/PPP arrangements.

HM Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the time taken by the HM Revenue and Customs office in Cardiff to reply to letters from members of the public; and if he will make a statement. [139192]

John Healey: There are a number of HMRC offices in Cardiff. In the main HMRC office, which deals with PAYE and self assessment customers, the vast majority of correspondence is dealt with within 20 days. The office does take longer to deal with some more complex or specialist correspondence but as of 18 May 2007 4 per cent. of correspondence only was more then 20 days old.

Lone Parents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Office for National Statistics most recent estimate is of the number of lone parents; and how many lone parents claim tax credits. [142318]

Mr. Timms: The Office for National Statistics (ONS) and HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) use different definitions of lone parents and the statistics they produce refer to different time periods and are therefore not comparable.

The tax and benefit system defines a couple as either a man and a woman who are either married or 'living together as husband and wife' or two people of the same sex who are either civil partners or living together as such. The Labour Force Survey (LFS) asks about the adults living in a household, and it counts an adult as being single if they do not declare another adult in the household as being their partner.

ONS estimates that there are 1.9 million lone parents in the UK, based on the 2006 Labour Force Survey data. The HMRC 2005-06 Finalised Award data show that on average 2.1 million families claimed child tax credit, or the equivalent via benefits, as a single adult.

National Insurance Contributions

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the (a) level of revenue which would be foregone were national insurance contributions classes 1 and 4 to be abolished and (b) level to which the basic rate of income tax would need to be raised to recoup such revenue. [141945]

Ed Balls: The estimate of the total amount of class 1 (employee and employer) and class 4 (self-employed) NICs revenue that would be foregone is £95 billion for 2007-08. Individuals would have to pay basic rate income tax of 33 per cent. for 2007-08 to recoup the £40 billion of employee and self-employed NICs foregone. This estimate does not allow for any behavioural effects.

Pension Funds: Taxation

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what projection he has made of how the changes to income tax and national insurance announced in the Budget will affect the value of tax relief on pension contributions in future years. [141540]

Ed Balls: No projections have been made of how the changes to income tax and national insurance announced in the Budget will affect the value of tax relief on pension contributions in future years. Estimates of the annual cost of tax relief on approved pension schemes are publicly available. I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 27 March 2007, Official Report, column 1513W.

Planning Gain Supplement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 189W, on Planning Gain Supplement, by what criteria consideration will be given as to whether Planning Gain Supplement should be deemed to be workable and effective. [142389]

John Healey: The Government stated in Budget 2006 that it would continue to assess PGS against the following objectives:

- to finance additional investment in the local and strategic infrastructure necessary to support growth, while preserving incentives to develop;
- to help local communities to better share the benefits of growth and manage its impacts;
- to provide a fairer, more efficient and more transparent means of capturing a modest portion of land value uplift; and
- to create a flexible value capture system that responds to market conditions and does not inappropriately distort decisions between different types of development.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what criteria his Department uses to compare value for money in a private finance initiative proposal and financing the same scheme from taxation. [140978]

John Healey: Government Departments use the Treasury's value for money guidance in making assessments about the suitability of PFI as opposed to conventionally financed programmes, both at a project and programme level. This is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/additional_guidance/ppp_vfm_index.cfm

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's contingent liability is in the event that all private finance initiative and public-private partnership schemes fail. [140986]

John Healey: The Government constantly monitor risks and liabilities relating to PFI but do not undertake a central assessment of liabilities in the event that all PFI/PPP schemes fail, not least because any such figure would be dependent on a number of variables surrounding the specific circumstances of the termination.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance he has issued to Departments on the criteria to be used in deciding priorities for the type of projects to be supported using private finance initiative credits. [141370]

John Healey: The Project Review Group, which oversees the approval process for local authority PFI projects that receive Government support via PFI credits, has an established evaluation framework. This framework covers the criteria on which projects seeking approval will be assessed. Additionally, Departments are required to use the PFI value for money assessment guidance issued by HM Treasury. These documents are available through the Treasury PPP website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_projectreview_group.cfm

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/additional_guidance/ppp_vfm_index.cfm

Beyond this, Departments determine their own priorities reflecting public service agreements and wider Government objectives in deciding which projects are put forward for PFI credits.

Publications: Waste Disposal

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what guidance his Department has issued on the secure disposal of final review reports where a decision has been taken not to publish them; [141364]

(2) what guidance the Treasury has provided to the Office of Government Commerce on the retention of documents associated with Gateway reviews. [141387]

John Healey: None. The Treasury conforms to civil service guidelines on the retention and disposal of official information.

Social Security Benefits: Migrant Workers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many claims for (a) child benefit and (b) child tax credit were (i) made by and (ii) paid to migrant workers for children (A) living in the UK and (B) living abroad in each year since 2003-04; and if he will make a statement; [141091]

(2) how much (a) child benefit and (b) child tax credit was paid to migrant workers for children (i) living in the UK and (ii) living abroad in each year from 2003-04 to 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [141092]

Mr. Timms: The additional information requested is not available.

The Accession monitoring report, last published on 22 May 2007 on the Home Office Borders and Immigration Agency website http://www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/accession_monitoring_report provides detailed information including the total number of workers from the new member states of the EU which acceded on 1 May 2004 and who have made a claim for child benefit and tax credits.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the Government's policy is on payment of child tax credit to migrant workers in respect of children living outside the UK if such individuals receive child related benefits in the home country; and if he will make a statement; [141093]

(2) which social security benefits are payable to the (a) children and (b) spouses of EU migrant workers who are in the UK for dependants who are living abroad but in the EU; and if he will make a statement. [141090]

Mr. Timms: The main purpose of child tax credit (CTC) and child benefit (ChB) is to support families living in the United Kingdom. The general rules for these benefits do not provide for them to be paid in respect of children who reside outside the UK. However, these general rules are supplemented by the co-ordinating rules in EC Regulations 1408/71 and 574/72, which the United Kingdom has applied since it joined the European Economic Community in 1973. The Regulations protect the acquired social security rights of European Economic Area (EEA) workers and their families moving within the Community.

The Regulations have detailed rules that determine which scheme a worker should contribute to, and which state has responsibility for the payment of family benefits. In general, it provides that the worker pays into the social security scheme of the member state where the work takes place and that state is responsible for the payment of family benefits. If entitlement to family benefits arises in more than one member state, the Regulations contain priority rules to determine who has responsibility for paying. More detailed information relating to these Community rules can be found in leaflet SA29 "Your social security insurance, benefits and healthcare rights in the European Economic Area", published by the Department of Work and Pensions and available on their website.

Tax Allowances: Rented Housing

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of how much would be raised if tax relief was withdrawn for (a) buy-to-let mortgage owners, (b) corporate landlords and (c) homeowners renting out their own homes. [141943]

John Healey: Reliable estimates of the yield from withdrawing tax relief for (a) buy-to-let mortgage owners (b) corporate landlords and (c) homeowners renting out their own homes are not available.

Tax Credits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the statement by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury on 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 303WH, on tax credits, when he expects to publish the results of the pilot into payments of tax credits at the time of relationship breakdown. [141985]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 11 June 2007]: HMRC are currently assessing the outcome of the pilot into the payment of tax credits at the time of a relationship breakdown. They will publish their findings and how they intend to take those findings forward in due course.

Tax Revenue: Health Foods

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the taxation revenues generated from the specialist natural health product manufacturing and retailing sectors in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [142114]

John Healey: It is not possible to estimate the taxation revenues generated from the specialist natural health product manufacturing and retail sectors in the last 12 months.

Taxation: Charitable Donations

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the gross cost of gifts and shares given to charities was in each year since the implementation of the current regime for such giving. [140762]

Mr. Timms: Relief from income tax is available to individuals making qualifying gifts of shares to charities. The value of such gifts where tax relief was claimed is as follows:

Year of donation	Value of gifts of shares (£ million)
2000-01	220
2001-02	160
2002-03	90
2003-04	210
2004-05	200

A corresponding figure for 2005-06 will be published in Table 10.2 on the HMRC website at the end of June 2007.

Figures for donations of shares to charities from companies are not available.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent studies he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on private philanthropy. [140764]

Mr. Timms: The Government are committed to encouraging philanthropy and published a report on 4 May this year entitled "Charitable Giving By Wealthy People". The report was commissioned to identify the incentives for wealthy people to engage in charitable giving as well as the barriers that may prevent them from doing so. The report can be found on the HM Revenue and Customs website: www.hmrc.gov.uk.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what tax incentives relating to giving to charities are in place; and what the cost of each was to the public purse in each of the last five years. [140765]

Mr. Timms: There are several tax incentives available to individuals wishing to make financial donations to charity. These include gift aid, payroll giving, relief on gifts of shares and securities and land and buildings. Gifts of assets to charities are also exempt from capital gains tax and the value of outright gifts and bequests by individuals to UK charities are completely free of inheritance tax, subject to certain provisions preventing donors retaining some degree of interest. Full details are available on the HMRC website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/charities/donors/tax-efficient.htm.

Estimates of the costs of reliefs on donations to charities by individuals are also published on the HMRC website.

Figures for the basic rate relief on gift aid donations can be found at table 10.1 http://www.hmrc. gov.uk/stats/charities/table10-1.xls

Table 10.2 http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/table10-2.xls contains the costs of the following reliefs to individuals:

Higher rate income tax relief on gift aid donations;

Income tax relief on payroll giving donations;

Income tax relief on gifts of shares, securities and real property;

Inheritance tax relief on bequests to charities.

Figures for relief from capital gains tax and corporation tax on charitable donations are not available.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overseas Residence

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people who continued to be UK taxpayers ceased to be eligible for (a) tax credits and (b) child benefit as a result of working outside the EU in each year since 2003-04; [140671]

(2) what the cost to the public purse was of paying (a) tax credits and (b) child benefit to those working outside the EU who continue to be UK taxpayers in the latest period for which figures are available. [140672]

Mr. Timms: This information is not available.

Written Questions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to question number 135531, on child benefit, tabled by the hon. Member for Yeovil on 30 April 2007. [141088]

Mr. Timms: I have done so.

JUSTICE

Absent Voting

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what estimate her Department has made of the proportion of postal vote identifiers which were checked in the 2007 local elections. [141722]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have asked the Electoral Commission to review and report on the introduction of personal identifiers for absent voting in England and Wales and, in particular, the use of the personal identifiers at the 3 May 2007 elections in England and Wales. We expect to have a clearer picture of the proportion of postal vote personal identifiers which were checked when the Electoral Commission produces its report, which it has been asked to do by 31 July 2007. A copy of the report will be made publicly available when it is produced.

Returning officers were required to check the personal identifiers on at least 20 per cent. of returned postal votes at the local elections on 3 May 2007. From discussions we have had with electoral administrators, we understand that the level of checking at these elections varied across local authorities.

Administration of Justice: Reviews

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice when the review of the oral hearing process ordered by Mr. Justice Sullivan will be completed. [138710]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We are not aware of any order made by Mr. Justice Sullivan that requires a review of the oral hearings process to be carried out. He is, however, reviewing the case of a prisoner serving an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment for public protection who has brought a judicial review in respect of his parole board hearing. The case is due to be reviewed on 22 June.

Constituencies

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the timetable is for the new Parliamentary boundaries in England (a) to be fully ratified and (b) to come into operation. [141711]

Bridget Prentice: Following approval by both Houses of Parliament, the draft Parliamentary Constituencies (England) Order was submitted to Her Majesty in Council for approval and making. The draft Order appears on the agenda for the meeting of the Privy Council of 13 June 2007.

The terms of the draft Order provide that it comes into force on the fourteenth day after it is made. The new constituencies will be used at the next general election on or after the date on which the Order comes into force, in accordance with section 4(6) of the Parliamentary Constituencies Act 1986.

Court of Appeal

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what discussions have been held with the Criminal Cases Review Commission on its judgment of the likely success rate of references to the court of appeal; how many cases were reviewed in each of the last five years; and how many were referred to the Court of Appeal. [141505]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The rate of convictions quashed by the Court of Appeal following referral from the Criminal Cases Review Commission is around 70 per cent. We understand that the Court of Appeal regard this rate as broadly satisfactory and we have noted that position in discussions with the Commission. The answer to the second part of the question is contained in the following table.

31 March to 1 April each year	Number of cases completed	Number of cases referred
2002-03	1,012	38
2003-04	931	35
2004-05	825	45
2005-06	1,012	47
2006-07	968	38

Courts: Small Claims

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what (a) primary and (b) delegated legislation regulates small claims courts; what changes have been made to each since their enactment; what further amendments are planned; and if she will make a statement. [141457]

Vera Baird: The Civil Procedure Act 1997 and the Civil Procedure Rules (CPR) regulate the small claims procedure, specifically Part 26 of the CPR which deals with the allocation to the small claims track and Part 27 which sets out the procedures. Other parts of the CPR may apply to small claims cases in certain circumstances. The CPR also regulates other types of civil court proceedings. There have been a number of changes made to the CPR since their introduction in April 1999 which can be viewed on http://www.justice.gov.uk/civil/procrules_fin/update.htm.

There are no current plans to make changes to the rules in relation to small claims.

eConveyancing Programme

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the (a) original planned completion date, (b) original estimated cost, (c) current planned completion date and (d) current estimated cost of all IT projects associated with the eConveyancing Programme is; and if she will make a statement. [141464]

Vera Baird: The original approved Business Case for the Electronic Conveyancing Programme (2005) estimated that full implementation would occur by 2013-14 with whole life costs to that date in the range of £270 to £310 million. Land Registry's latest estimate of completion is 2014-15 with a revised estimated cost of about £227 million.

The introduction of Electronic Conveyancing in England and Wales is one of this Government's priority programmes of work that will make the conveyancing process simpler and more transparent for both conveyancers and their clients. The Programme's implementation plan is constantly reviewed and updated by Land Registry to ensure that each new service and product is fully tested and that customer feedback is taken on board. This has led to some slippage in the overall programme with a consequent reduction in the running costs contained in the original costing.

An early prototype of the Chain Matrix ™ has already been launched and is being tested by a number of conveyancers in the Southwest of England. A pilot of electronic conveyancing will follow once the necessary legislation is in place.

Elections: Standards

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether any manual counts have taken place in local election pilot areas which used electronic counting (a) in 2007 and (b) in previous pilots to verify the accuracy of the counting machines. [141704]

Bridget Prentice: Since 2000, no manual counts have taken place in electoral pilot schemes to verify the accuracy of electronic counting machines. However, pre-election quality assurance audit and acceptance tests have been conducted to verify the accuracy of machinery and software before the systems are used to count in an electoral pilot scheme.

Electoral Register

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what estimate her Department has made of the cost implications of linking the electoral registration process to the National Identity Register. [142069]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have not made an estimate of the cost implications of linking the electoral registration process to the National Identity Register.

Electronic Tagging

Anne Moffat: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether her Department is undertaking a review of the electronic tagging operations of Group 4 Securicor. [141442]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Following the allegations against Group4Securicor (G4S) in the BBC Programme "Inside Out" in March 2007, the National Offender Management Service required G4S to investigate the allegations. G4S undertook an internal and external audit of its electronic monitoring operations in all three contract areas. The National Offender Management Service undertook its own investigation. Following consideration of both investigations, a rectification notice was issued on the East Midlands Region of G4S at the end of April, requiring the remedy of the defaults within 60 days.

Feltham Young Offender Institution and Remand Centre

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether she has received the official report into the so-called Muslim Olympics racist incident at HM Young Offenders Institution Feltham; what action she has taken to address the management issues leading to the incident; if she will place a copy of the report in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [141674]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The hon. Member is referring to allegations of inappropriate racist behaviour. An investigation took place leading to a disciplinary hearing and the dismissal of two members of staff. No management issues lead to this incident. It is not Prison Service policy to publish investigation reports.

Group 4 Securicor

Anne Moffat: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what representations her Department and its predecessors have received on Group 4 Securicor. [141443]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Following the allegations about the electronic monitoring service provided by Group4Securicor (G4S) in the BBC Programme "Inside Out" in March 2007, the National Offender Management Service fully investigated the matters raised and issued a rectification notice requiring the remedy of the defaults within 60 days. No representations have been received from Members of Parliament or national organisations relating specifically to these allegations. G4S is contracted to provide other services to the Ministry of Justice and Home Office, including contracts to run Parc prison and Oak Hill Secure Training Centre. Such representations have not been received regarding these or other contracts.

Joint Ministerial Committee

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice on which dates the Joint Ministerial Committee has met in plenary form in the last two years; and if she will make a statement. [141556]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member for Aylesbury to my written answer of 7 June 2007, Official Report, column 688W. The Joint Ministerial Committee (JMC) exists in both plenary and functional formats, where the latter focuses on specific areas such as health, poverty, the knowledge economy and Europe. There have been no plenary meetings of the JMC over the last two years, but there have been at least 11 meetings of the JMC in its functional format over this same period.

Parole: Waiting Lists

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many oral hearings are waiting to be considered by the Parole Board; what the (a) average waiting time is and (b) longest waiting time is; and what the corresponding figures were in May 2006. [138711]

Mr. Sutcliffe: 2,138 oral hearings are currently waiting to be considered by the Parole Board. Figures for the average waiting time and longest waiting time are not recorded centrally. The time taken to arrange hearings depends on the circumstances of the case.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment her Department has made of the reasons for delays in Parole Board hearings; and what steps she is taking to reduce such delays. [138713]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Parole Board hearings to review whether offenders should continue to be held in custody require information to be collected from a variety of sources within the criminal justice system. There are also large numbers of hearings to be conducted any one time. Sometimes, therefore, delays regrettably occur. I am assured by the Parole Board, however, that every effort is continuing to be made to ensure that all hearings are conducted as expeditiously as possible.

Prison Service: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many people are employed by HM prisons in (a) England and (b) Wales. [141806]

Mr. Sutcliffe: On 31 May 2007, the number of people employed in prisons and young offender institutions was 48,822 in England and 1,485 in Wales. It was not possible to provide data in the timescale available for answering this question for the contracted establishments of Bronzefield, Forest Bank and Peterborough.

Prison Service: Professional Standards Unit

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the functions are of the Professional Standards Unit at HM Prison Service in the (a) gathering and (b) evaluation of intelligence about misconduct among (i) staff and (ii) inmates at prison establishments; and if she will make a statement. [141272]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service Professional Standards Unit receives, develops and analyses intelligence on staff misconduct. The gathering and evaluation of this intelligence is carried out by area and local professional standard managers.

It is not within the remit of the Professional Standards Unit to be involved in prisoner-related intelligence unless there is a staff misconduct element.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what (a) mechanisms and (b) resources exist within the Professional Standards Unit Investigation Support Section at HM Prison Service to conduct investigations into alleged staff misconduct; and if she will make a statement; [141273]

(2) how many investigations were conducted by the Professional Standards Unit Investigation Support

Section at HM Prison Service into alleged staff misconduct in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [141274]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Investigation Support Section is an administrative function set up to register, track and store all formal investigations commissioned in the Prison Service. It also monitors the progress of investigations, maintains a register of trained investigators and provides advice and statistical reports. The section does not conduct investigations. Instead, conducting investigations is the responsibility of the management line.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many staff are employed in the Professional Standards Directorate at HM Prison Service; and if she will make a statement; [141275]

(2) how many staff are employed in the intelligence section of the Professional Standards Unit at HM Prison Service; and if she will make a statement. [141277]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Professional Standards Unit currently employs 14 staff. Of those 14, eight are allocated to the Intelligence Support Section.

Prisoners: Contraception

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much has been spent on condoms and lubricants for distribution to prisoners by the Prison Service in the latest year for which figures are available. [141156]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not held centrally.

Prisoners: Repatriation

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1257W, on prisoners: repatriation, when she expects discussions with other Governments regarding prisoner transfers to commence. [141925]

Mr. Hanson: The United Kingdom has prisoner transfer arrangements with 96 countries and territories. The majority of these countries are signatories to the Council of Europe Convention on the Transfer of Sentenced Persons. On 3 and 4 of May 2007 preliminary discussions were held in Strasbourg to discuss a Greek proposal for a second additional protocol to the Convention. This would extend the circumstances under which a prisoner can be transferred without his or her consent. The United Kingdom is supporting this proposal.

The UK has concluded 20 bilateral prisoner transfer agreements from which we hold about 400 sentenced prisoners. While this number is not insignificant, resources are at present dedicated towards negotiating agreements that are likely to deliver significant benefits such as the EU prisoner transfer agreement and the second additional protocol to the Council of Europe Convention.

Prisons

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans her Department has to increase the capacity of prisons in England and Wales. [141805]

Mr. Hanson: A new capacity-building programme which will deliver 8,000 new prison places by 2012 was announced as part of the Criminal Justice Review in July 2006.

The 8,000-place programme comes on top of already planned expansions at existing prisons.

Overall, in 2007, capacity will increase by around 2,200 places.

Prisons: Sex Offender Treatment Programme

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will make a statement on the effectiveness of the Sex Offender Treatment Programme (SOTP) for (a) high, (b) medium and (c) low risk offenders; and what the subsequent reconviction rates are for offenders from each of these categories who took part in the SOTP since its inception. [141289]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most robust evaluation of the Sex Offender Treatment Programme (SOTP) in England and Wales (Home Office, 2003) examined the impact of the prison-based programme. This compared two-year reconviction rates for prisoners who participated in the programme with those who did not.

Findings indicated that the SOTP had an impact on reconvictions for sexual and/or violent offences (as a combined measure). An explanation for this effect could be that a proportion of violent reconvictions were sexually motivated offences. Sexual reconvictions were combined with those for violent offences because sexual offenders (in the absence of intervention) are reconvicted for sexual offences at a very low rate—less than 5 per cent. over two years. Any decrease in this rate as a result of treatment is therefore unlikely to be statistically significant.

For combined sexual and violent reconviction, the treatment group showed a statistically significantly lower rate of reconviction overall than the comparison group (4.6 per cent. and 8.1 per cent. respectively, see Table 4 in Home Office Research Findings No. 205). Treatment participants in the medium-low and medium-high risk groups showed a statistically significantly lower rate of reconviction than respective risk groups in the comparison sample (see Table 4 in HORF 205).

For general and sexual reconviction rates, the treatment group showed lower rates of reconviction than the comparison group although differences were not statistically significant (see Tables 5 and 3 respectively in HORF 205). No statistically significant differences were found among risk groups.

These findings relate to offenders who completed the SOTP between 1992 and 1994. A programme of research is planned to examine the impact of the prison-based SOTP delivered to offenders post-1994 in terms of both short-term change in relation to treatment targets (e.g. victim empathy) and longer-term change in terms of future re-offending.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans she has to increase resources for the Sex Offender Treatment Programme at each prison where the number of prisoners exceeds the programme capacity; and if she will make a statement. [142456]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The National Offender Management Service has set up a standing group to take forward work on a treatment strategy for sex offenders to ensure that effective treatment is delivered to sex offenders in custody and the community as part of a broader package of interventions and management controls to reduce the risk of re-offending. As part of this work provision for sex offenders in custody will be considered.

Victim Support Schemes: Counselling

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many victims of miscarriages of justice and their families have been offered post-traumatic stress counselling in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement; [141507]

(2) how many prisoners were released after the quashing of their convictions by the Court of Appeal following a reference from the Criminal Cases Review Commission in each of the last five years; what support and after care they were offered; and if she will make a statement. [141508]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We do not collect data on the number of prisoners released after the quashing of their convictions by the Court of Appeal.

The Criminal Cases Review Commission (CCRC) an executive NDPB which was set up under the Criminal Appeal Act 1995 and which became operational in January 1997 aims to review alleged and suspected miscarriages of justice, and to refer them to the Court of Appeal, whenever they consider that there is a real possibility that a conviction, verdict, finding or sentence would not be upheld.

Support and after care is offered to victims of miscarriages of justice from the Miscarriages of Justice Support Service, operated by the Citizens Advice Bureau at the Royal Courts of Justice, by the Ministry of Justice. It is funded under a three-year contract. It aims to ensure that victims of miscarriages of justice receive appropriate advice, guidance and support. Advice and support is offered at every stage of the process. This includes: finding accommodation; establishing income; applying for national insurance credits; registering with a GP and accessing appropriate healthcare and counselling; opening a bank account and budgeting; family/relationship issues; employment and training needs; finding a solicitor to deal with compensation claims.

All clients of the Miscarriages of Justice Support Service are offered counselling as part of their initial assessment interview with an adviser. In the past 12 months, 25 new cases have been taken on by the service, and seven clients have received an assessment by a consultant forensic psychiatrist. Following assessment, the psychiatrist refers the client for appropriate ongoing counselling. Families are not part of this assessment, but the psychiatrist may recommend that they are involved in family therapy if appropriate.

Weare Prison

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 1 May 2007, Official Report, column 1584W, on Weare Prison, if she will place in the Library a copy of the investment appraisal on HMP Weare. [141924]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are no plans to disclose the detailed appraisal.

Young Offender Institutions: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) assaults by prisoners on staff and (b) assaults by prisoners on other prisoners there were in each young offender institution in each year since 2003. [141559]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is set out in the following table. The data are taken from the Prison Service Incident Reporting System and the figures therefore relate to incidents reported.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alexander Litvinenko

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what recent discussions his Department had with the Crown Prosecution Service on the case of Alexander Litvinenko; [139194]

(2) what discussions his Department has had with the Russian authorities on the case of Alexander Litvinenko in the last three months. [139195]

Joan Ryan: Discussions have taken place between the Home Office and the CPS about mutual legal assistance issues including mutual legal assistance requests that were made, via the UK Central Authority at the Home Office, to a number of other countries during the course of the domestic police investigation into the death of Alexander Litvinenko. Home Office officials also spoke with the Crown Prosecution Service concerning the transmission of the extradition request for the person alleged to have murdered Mr. Litvinenko.

Home Office officials have also been in contact with the Russian Prosecutor General's office, by both letter and telephone to provide updates on progress being made with the Russian request for assistance in their investigation into the case, and concerning the documentation of the extradition request.

Animal Experiments: EC Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure that all British animal research and breeding establishments will be compliant with the new Europe-wide guidelines on laboratory animal housing and care as set out in the revised Appendix A to the Council of Europe Convention ETS 123 which will come into force on 15 June; [141326]

(2) by what date he estimates that all British animal research and breeding establishments will be compliant with the revised Appendix A to the Council of Europe Convention ETS 123. [141327]

Joan Ryan: Council of Europe Convention ETS 123 makes provision for the protection of vertebrate animals used for experimental and other scientific purposes. The UK Government have signed and ratified the Convention.

In implementing the Convention, parties are required to have regard to the guidelines for the accommodation and care of protected animals set out in Appendix A to the Convention. A revised Appendix A, to which the UK Government made a significant contribution, was adopted in June 2006.

The Home Office has actively advised those seeking to commission, refurbish, operate and equip animal facilities to have regard to the revised Appendix A guidelines in their planning, policies and practices both as the new provisions emerged during the revision process and following their formal adoption. In addition, we have widely circulated a note for users, prepared by the Animal Procedures Committee, explaining the key features of the revised Appendix. Work has also begun on amending the current Home Office Codes of Practice to take account of its revised provisions.

As a result of the actions we have taken so far, we are already seeing the revised guidelines reflected in United Kingdom practice. However, it is not possible to estimate by what precise date all animal research and breeding establishments will be fully compliant. Further information on the relevant transitional arrangements and timescales will be set out in the revised Codes of Practice which we aim to publish in 2008 after the requirements for consultation and Parliamentary scrutiny, set out in sections 21(3) and 21(5), respectively, of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, have been met.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were breached in (a) England and Wales and (b) Gloucestershire in each year since the introduction of the penalty; and if he will make a statement. [125680]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 6 March 2007]: Antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) breach data are currently available up to 31 December 2005 for ASBOs issued since 1 June 2000. The available information is given in the following table.

Number of persons proven in court to have breached their ASBO in England and Wales and in the Gloucestershire criminal justice system (CJS) area[1] in each year

Area	2000[2]	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
England and Wales	13	124	254	715	1,864	3,390
Gloucestershire	—	1	1	5	13	36

[1] ASBOs may be issued in one area and breached in another. In this table ASBOs breached in Gloucestershire are counted irrespective of whether issued in Gloucestershire or not.

[2] From 1 June 2000. No ASBO breach data are available prior to this date.

Notes:

1. It is possible for an individual to breach their ASBO in more than one year, so persons may be counted more than once in this table.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

OCJR Court Proceedings Database

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 23 February 2007, Official Report, column 985W, on antisocial behaviour orders, how many and what percentage of antisocial behaviour orders included (a) an individual support order and (b) an intervention order in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [133347]

Mr. Coaker: Information is given in the table on the number of individual support orders given in 2005 (latest available). This pre-dates the joint campaign by the Home Office, Youth Justice Board and her Majesty's Court Service to increase take up which began early in 2006 and is continuing. Data for subsequent periods will be published in due course.

Number of individual support orders[1] given at the magistrates court, in addition to an antisocial behaviour order, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, 2005—England and Wales

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were (a) issued and (b) breached in each month of the last five years in (i) each region and (ii) each London borough. [132639]

Mr. Coaker: Data collected centrally on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued are compiled on a quarterly basis. Data, up to 31 December 2005 (latest available), broken down by Criminal Justice System (CJS) area are given in table A.

Information on the number of ASBOs issued by the local authority area within which prohibitions have been imposed is published annually. It can be found on the crime reduction website at: http://www.crimereduction.gov.uk/asbos/asbos2.htm and is given in table B.

ASBO breach data are available annually by CJS area only. Information is given in table C.

1. This local authority area table differs from criminal justice system (CJS) area tables in that an issuing court can be outside the area in which the restrictions have been imposed.

[1] ASBOs may be issued in one area and breached in another. Breaches are counted in this table on area of BREACH.

Notes:
1. It is possible for an individual to breach their ASBO in more than one year, so persons may be counted more than once in this table.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many antisocial behaviour orders were breached in Lancashire in each of the last five years; [125048]

(2) how many antisocial behaviour orders were breached in Lancashire in each of the last five years. [126602]

Mr. Coaker: The available information (up to 31 December 2005, latest available) is given in the following table.

Number[1] of persons proven in court to have breached their ASBO in the Lancashire criminal justice system (CJS) area in each of the last five years

CJS area	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005

[1] ASBOs may be issued in one area and breached in another. In this table ASBOs breached in Lancashire are counted irrespective of whether issued in Lancashire or not.

Notes:

1. It is possible for an individual to breach their ASBO in more than one year, so persons may be counted more than once in this table.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: North East Region

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued in (a) the North East and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland; what percentage have been breached in each case; and what percentage of recipients went on to re-offend. [134763]

Mr. Coaker: The number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued at all courts in the north-east region (comprising the Cleveland, Durham and Northumbria Criminal Justice System (CJS) areas) from 1 June 2000 to 31 December 2005 (latest available) is 513. ASBO data are not available at parliamentary constituency level. The number of ASBOs issued at all courts, by the local government authority area in which prohibitions have been imposed in the Cleveland CJS area, is given in the table.

Information on the number of ASBOs breached is available at CJS area level only. From 1 June 2000 to 31 December 2005 54 per cent. of ASBOs issued in the north-east region were subsequently proven in court to have been breached at least once and 37 per cent. on more than one occasion. The corresponding figures for the Cleveland CJS area are 64 per cent. and 43 per cent. respectively.

Number of ASBOs issued at all courts, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, where restrictions are imposed within local authority areas in the Cleveland Criminal Justice System (CJS) area, 1 June 2000[1] to 31 December 2005

CJS area	Total issued
Cleveland	114
Of which:
Hartlepool borough council	14
Middlesbrough borough council	65
Redcar and Cleveland council	18
Stockton-on-Tees borough council	17

[1] From 1 April 1999 to 31 May 2000 data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area (pfa). During this period one ASBO was reported issued in the Cleveland pfa.

Notes:

1. This local authority area table differs from criminal justice system (CJS) area tables in that an issuing court can be outside the area in which the restrictions have been imposed.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. Anti-Terrorism Control Orders

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of the current level of police resources on the ability of law enforcement agencies adequately to monitor individuals subject to control orders; and if he will make a statement. [141510]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office undertakes a regular assessment of resources allocated to the police. Funding allocated to the police has increased significantly. Between 2005-06 and 2007-08 we have increased overall police funding by £978 million and within this, counter-terrorism specific funding by over £144 million. Responsibility for monitoring and enforcement of control orders lies with the police and is managed from within their overall budget.

Arrests

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were arrested for non-recordable offences in each of the last five years. [141356]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

Information is not collected centrally on persons arrested for non-recordable offences. The main arrests collection, held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, covers persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences), by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group only within the 43 police force areas in England and Wales.

Assets Recovery Agency: Northern Ireland

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will place in the Library figures to show how much of (a) the total resource budget, (b) the total capital budget and (c) total public spending by the Assets Recovery Agency in each year since 2003-04 relates to the work of the agency in Northern Ireland. [141574]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The information available is set out in the tables. The information in the tables on the operating costs of the Assets Recovery Agency (ARA) in Northern Ireland in 2005-06 varies slightly from that provided in my written answer of 24 January 2007, Official Report, column 1823W, to the hon. Member for East Londonderry (Mr. Campbell). The revised figures are the result of a more appropriate reapportionment of associated overhead costs between the London and Belfast offices.

I am placing this information in the Library of the House.

Net operating costs—GB	8,568,941.18	10,350,309.56	11,770,198.08

[1] the total resource budget figure excludes recovered assets applied against receivers' fees, as this funding does not come from the public purse. All other income is netted off against total resource budget, including training income despite not being obtained from public purse. This latter amount is not included due to its relative immateriality.

Total capital budget—GB	679,875.97	18,942.85	147,253.12

Note:
The proportion of capital expensed in the relevant year (depreciation) has already been included in the net operating costs figures. Therefore, the capital figures should only be used as memorandum figures to the net operating costs.

2006	3,389	3,983

[1] This table contains full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items

[2] Full-time equivalent excludes those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave

Citizenship

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have (a) taken and (b) passed the Life in the UK test since November 2005; and how many in each category have been refused citizenship. [138875]

Mr. Byrne: The number of Life in the UK tests taken between 1 November 2005 and 30 April 2007 is 270,149. Of those, 184,798 were passed (68.4 per cent.). Information relating to the number of people who took the test and then were refused citizenship could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual case records only at disproportionate cost. The Life in the UK test is only one of the ways of satisfying the knowledge of language and life in the UK requirement and applications may be refused for other reasons.

Counterfeit Manufacturing: Documents

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what studies have been (a) undertaken and (b) commissioned by his Department into the prevalence of companies that advertise and sell false official documents and employment records via the internet; and if he will make a statement. [141399]

John Reid: There have been no studies undertaken or commissioned by the Home Office into the advertisement or sale of such documents on the internet.

Crime: Databases

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the potential effect on costs in (a) the private sector and (b) the public sector of the introduction of data-sharing measures under part 3 of the Serious Crime Bill. [141509]

Mr. Coaker: A public sector cost/benefit analysis of the data sharing measures under part 3 of the Serious Crime Bill can be found in the regulatory impact assessment published on the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/Serious-Crime-Bill-RIA.pdf

We do not envisage the powers leading to additional costs or burdens on the private sector. Our expectation is that where the powers are taken up they will help to lead to reductions in the cost of fraud in both the public and private sector.

Demonstrations: Parliament Square

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has happened to the (a) signed poster designed by Banksy and (b) other materials seized from Brian Haw by the Metropolitan police on his removal from Parliament Square. [141299]

Mr. Coaker: Following a police operation on 23 May 2006 a quantity of property, including banners and posters, was taken by the Metropolitan Police Service from the site of Mr. Haw's demonstration in Parliament Square. Mr. Haw has subsequently collected some of his property.

Mr. Haw has been advised by the Metropolitan Police Service that he may take possession of the remainder of his property at any time provided it is not used to breach the conditions currently imposed upon his demonstration.

Driving Offences

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he has taken to tackle drivers avoiding prosecution through being untraceable to an address. [141300]

Mr. Coaker: Difficulties with drivers avoiding prosecution do not come primarily from their being untraceable to an address. In 97.5 per cent. of cases, it is possible to trace a vehicle from the database maintained by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA). The DVLA has firm measures in place to guard against the inclusion of false details. Of those it is not possible to trace, not all will be deliberately seeking to avoid detection.

Any problem is rather with the difficulty of identifying the person driving a vehicle at the time of an alleged offence. The Road Safety Act 2006 increases the penalty for a vehicle keeper's failure to identify the driver to six penalty points.

The key to tackling offending driver behaviour is effective police enforcement, including targeting suspect vehicles, individuals and sites and the use of Automatic Number Plate Recognition Technology to detect vehicles of interest.

The police can then take immediate action using the existing powers we have given them. These include the power to seize vehicles being driven antisocially, or without appropriate licence or insurance and the powers to arrest for any offence if necessary to confirm name and address or to prevent hindrance of a prosecution by the disappearance of the suspected offender.

Drug Interventions Programme

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 803W, on the Drug Interventions Programme (DIP), what the DIP budget allocation was for each intensive DIP area in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05 and (c) 2005-06. [140107]

Mr. Coaker: My reply of 16 May referred to the Drug Interventions Programme (DIP) Main Grant allocations for 2007-08. As the DIP has evolved, there have been changes to the funding mechanisms each year. These changes have reflected some short-term funding streams and also some integration of separate funding streams to make administration easier at local level.

Similarly, unlike the constituency of my hon. Friend, not all the areas named in my reply have been part of the programme since 2003. It is accordingly not possible, except at disproportionate cost, to provide DIP budget allocations for each intensive area for (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05 and (c) 2005-06 comparable to that in my reply of 16 May.

But allocations to areas such as the constituency of my hon. Friend have been based on the same criteria and I shall be writing to her with a more detailed explanation of the processes and to see if my officials are able to assist her with the purpose of her inquiry.

DNA Database

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children in Solihull have their DNA stored on a database; and how many of those have been charged with committing a criminal offence. [141196]

Joan Ryan: As of 6 June 2007, there were an estimated 229,389 individuals with a DNA profile on the National DNA Database (NDNAD) taken by West Midlands police, of which 19,380 were under 18 years of age at that date. Information held on the NDNAD is available on a police force area basis only. Although the DNA sample in these cases was taken by West Midlands police, the individuals to whom the sample relates will not necessarily be resident in the West Midlands police area.

The purpose of the National DNA Database is to hold a record of a person's DNA which can be matched against DNA taken from crime scenes. It does not hold data on arrests, charges and convictions—that is held on the Police National Computer. Information on whether under 18s whose DNA has been sampled by the West Midlands police have been charged could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by cross-searching the NDNAD profiles against records held on the Police National Computer.

Human Trafficking: Females

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what progress Project Reflex has made in combating the trafficking of women to the UK to work as prostitutes; [140746]

(2) what schemes are in operation to assist women who have escaped prostitution and who were originally trafficked into the UK; [140748]

(3) what steps he is taking to prevent human trafficking in the UK; and what progress is being made in prosecuting those who participate in the trade. [140749]

Mr. Coaker: Reflex, the multi-agency Government taskforce on organised immigration crime was set up in March 2000 and has been successful at disrupting organised immigration crime gangs leading to a large number of arrests and seizure of criminal assets. The co-ordination of enforcement work on human trafficking has now moved on with the establishment of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) and the UK Human Trafficking Centre in 2006.

Reflex under SOCA continues to result in the disruption of organised crime gangs involved in trafficking women for sexual exploitation and has a number of multi-agency programmes of activity in this area. These programmes build on the strategies developed under Reflex. Organised Immigration Crime is SOCA's second priority after drug trafficking.

The Government have funded the POPPY project since March 2003 to provide safe shelter and support to assist in the recovery of adult female victims who have been trafficked into the UK for the purposes of sexual exploitation.

The Government's strategy to prevent human trafficking has a number of different elements. These include research and intelligence gathering to improve our knowledge and understanding of the scale and nature of human trafficking in the UK; awareness raising and capacity building in source and transit countries; and measures designed to address the demand for trafficked persons.

The Government are also working with source countries to tackle the problem of trafficking at its root. We have provided funds for various anti-trafficking projects in the Western Balkans region, West Africa (including Benin, Burkina Faso, Gabon, Ghana, Niger and Togo) and in the Greater Mekong region (parts of Cambodia, China, Laos, Thailand and Vietnam).

The UK Action on tackling human trafficking published on 23 March 2007 provides further details of the work being undertaken across Government to tackle human trafficking.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate the Government have made of the number of women trafficked into the UK in 2006 for the purpose of sexual exploitation. [141472]

Mr. Coaker: The majority of our knowledge regarding the extent of human trafficking in the UK relates to trafficking for sexual exploitation. It remains difficult to make an accurate assessment of the extent of the problem although intelligence suggests there has been an increase in the trafficking problem over the last two or three years. The findings from a Home Office research paper suggests that at any one time in 2003 there were in the region of 4,000 victims of trafficking for prostitution in the UK. In 2006, a police led multi agency operation on trafficking for sexual exploitation led to the identification of 87 victims from 22 different countries, predominantly from Eastern Europe, China/ South-East Asia, Africa or Brazil.

Immigrants: Employment

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many employers have been prosecuted for illegally employing irregular migrants during the last 12 months. [134817]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual records at disproportionate cost.

Published statistics are not available for the period requested; the latest 12 month period for which information can be provided is 2005. In 2005, 23 employers were proceeded against under section 8 of the Asylum and Immigration Act 1996 (employing a person aged 16 or above subject to immigration control and who is not entitled to work in the UK or to undertake the employment in question) in the magistrates courts. No persons were tried for the same offence at the Crown court in 2005.

We recognise that the number of prosecutions under section 8 is low, and that is why we have committed to bring forward the introduction of measures contained in the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 to tackle illegal migrant working, which will provide the Border and Immigration Agency with a range of tools with which to tackle non-compliance. The 2006 Act introduces a system of civil penalties for employers who through negligence employ illegal migrant workers, alongside a tough new offence for those knowingly employing illegal workers, which will carry a maximum two year prison sentence and/or an unlimited fine. These new measures will come into force in late 2007.

On 15 May 2007 the Border and Immigration Agency published 'Prevention of illegal working: Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006; Consultation on the implementation of new powers to prevent illegal migrant working in the UK'. This document contains our action plan for tackling illegal working. Copies have been placed in the House Library and can be downloaded from the Border and Immigration Agency website at:

http://www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk/lawandpolicy/consultationdocuments/currentconsultations

Immigration: Appeals

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time a Home Office presenting officer spent on (a) a deportation appeal, (b) an asylum appeal and (c) an immigration appeal, excluding the time spent travelling and waiting for, and presenting, an appeal hearing, over the last 12 months. [141409]

The Solicitor-General: I have been asked to reply.

According to the records kept by the Treasury Solicitor's Department, the average time spent when instructed in Asylum and Immigration Tribunal appeals for the financial year 2006-07 was 21.6 hours per case. The Treasury Solicitor's Department does not keep records that differentiate between the time spent on different types of appeals heard before the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal and therefore cannot state the average time spent on each of the categories of appeal set out in the question.

Independent Police Complaints Commission

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the administration of police investigations. [141471]

Mr. McNulty: Since 2003, crime has fallen by 10 per cent; since 2002, the rate of offences brought to justice has increased by 39.6 per cent.; and sanction detection rates have increased from 19 per cent. in 2003-04 to 24 per cent. in 2005-06.

In 2004-05 and 2005-06 the effectiveness of volume crime investigation has been assessed as one of 23 frameworks in Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary's baseline assessment of police forces.

Over the past three years, the Home Office has commissioned Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) to audit the quality of police detection data recording, and the results are used to improve administration and record-keeping.

Intimidation: Pupils

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers are involved in tackling bullying in schools as part of their duties. [141294]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally as part of the police personnel statistics.

Police: Labour Turnover

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of police officer recruits left the police force within two years of joining in each of the last 10 years. [140775]

Mr. McNulty: The available data on the length of service on leaving the force are available from 2002-03 onwards, and are given in the following table.

Number of police officers leaving[1] within 2 years of joining the service, from 2002-03 to 2005-06

Headcount

	Number of officers leaving within two years	Percentage of officers leaving within two years from total number of leavers
2002-03	1,273	15.1
2003-04	1,250	16.7
2004-05	1,164	15.0
2005-06	861	9.8

[1] Includes transfers to other England and Wales forces but does not include officers leaving after a period of secondment.

Police: Manpower

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there are (a) in the North East, (b) on Teesside and (c) in the area corresponding as closely as possible to Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland; and how many there were in 1997. [139813]

Mr. McNulty: The corresponding data for the requested areas are: (a) the North East Government Region (encompassing Cleveland, Durham and Northumbria police force areas); (b) the Cleveland police force area; and (c) the Basic Command Units (BCUs) within the Cleveland police force area, namely Hartlepool, Langbaurgh, Middlesbrough and Stockton.

Data are not available at the BCU level for 1997; and the available data are given in the following tables.

1. Police officer strength (FTE)[1] in the North East Government region as at 31 March 1997 and 31 March 2006

	31 March 1997	31 March 2006
North East Government office region	6,597	7,359

[1] Full-time equivalent figures rounded to the nearest whole number. All officers excluding those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave (comparable with previously published figures). Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.

2. Police officer strength (FTE)[1] in Cleveland police force area as at 31 March 1997 and 31 March 2006

Cleveland police force	1,459	1,677

1. Full-time equivalent figures rounded to the nearest whole number. All officers excluding those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave (comparable with previously published figures). Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.

3. Police officer strength (FTE)[1] in the Basic Command Units within Cleveland police force area as at 31 March 1997 and 31 March 2006[2]

	31 March 2006
Hartlepool BCU	187
Langbaurgh BCU (Redcar and Cleveland)	232
Middlesbrough BCU	287
Stockton BCU	277
Central Services BCU	720

[1] Full-time equivalent figures rounded to the nearest whole number. All officers excluding those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.

[2] Basic Command Unit data are not available for 1997.

Prisoners: Correspondence

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether correspondence between hon. and right hon. Members and inmates is routinely opened by HM Prison staff before it reaches recipients; and if he will make a statement. [141263]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply.

Correspondence between Members of Parliament (acting in their constituency capacity) and prisoners is not routinely opened by prison staff. Under confidential access arrangements operated by the Prison Service such letters are not opened, read or stopped unless there are exceptional reasons for doing so.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, columns 110-11W, on speed limits: cameras, what additional duties have been given to traffic police officers since 1997 in addition to their basic function as traffic regulators. [141418]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The Roads Policing Strategy Statement, agreed in January 2005 between the Home Office, Department for Transport and the Association of Chief Police Officers sets five main objectives for roads policing, whether undertaken by dedicated traffic police officers or others. These are: to deny criminals the use of the roads, to reduce road casualties, to tackle thee threat of terrorism, to reduce antisocial use of the roads and to enhance public confidence and reassurance by patrolling the roads. Within this framework, the allocation of resources and use of officers for different functions is an operational matter for individual chief officers.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, columns 110-1W, on speed limits: cameras, what (a) average and (b) total overtime was worked by dedicated traffic patrol police officers in each year between 1997 and 2006; what the (i) average and (ii) total mileage per annum of police traffic patrol vehicles was in each year; and how many dedicated police traffic patrol vehicles were in operation in each year. [141419]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 June 2007]: This information is not collected centrally.

Stop and Search

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many stop and searches were carried out by police under Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 in each year since the Act's introduction; and how many and what percentage of those searches resulted in an arrest. [140774]

John Reid: Information on stop and searches and resultant arrests under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 from 2001-02 to 2004-05 (latest available) is given in the following table.

2005-06 data[4] will be available later this year.

Searches of vehicles[1] and occupants, and pedestrians under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000[2] and resultant arrests[3], England and Wales, 2001-02 to 2004-05

	Stop and searches in order to prevent acts of terrorism
	Total searches	Resultant arrests[3]	Percentage of arrests
2001-02	10,200	189	2
2002-03	32,100	380	1
2003-04	33,800	491	1
2004-05	35,800	455	1

[1] Searches may be conducted on vehicles only, occupants only or both may be searched. Where a vehicle and driver occupier are searched simultaneously, the search is recorded against the driver (occupant). Any other passengers searched are recorded as occupants.

[2] The Terrorism Act 2000 came into force on 19 February 2001.

[3] Includes arrests under the Terrorism Act, arrests for terrorist related matters and other serious crimes.

Note:

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police officers. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Surveillance

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many intrusive surveillance warrants were issued in each of the last five years. [141785]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The number of authorisations granted, under section 32 of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000, for the carrying out of intrusive surveillance is included in the Annual Report of the Chief Surveillance Commissioner to the Prime Minister and to Scottish Ministers which is laid before each House of Parliament and published. For the last five reports, the numbers have been:

	Number
2001-02	493
2002-03	475
2003-04	447
2004-05	461
2005-06	435

Terrorism

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the recent tracer gas trials in the Westminster area as part of the Department's Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear Science and Technology Programme; what discussions he has held on further such trials; and if he will make a statement. [141700]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 June 2007]: It is not clear what type of assessment the question refers to. The trial is ongoing and the results will be assessed in due course to improve our understanding of the movement of material in the urban environment.

Further discussions have taken place in respect of the planned second phase of the trial which will be undertaken in early 2008 following analysis of the first phase results.

We encourage the publication of research results but this may be restricted for reasons of national security.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the statement of 17 May 2007, Official Report, column 46WS, on Westminster tracer gas trials, what non-toxic gases were used in the Westminster area as part of the Department's Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear Science and Technology Programme. [141788]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The non-toxic gases used in the trial belong to the family of chemicals known as cyclic perfluorocarbons. The actual gases released are: perfluoro methyl cyclohexane; meta perfluoro dimethyl cyclohexane; and para perfluoro dimethyl cyclohexane.

Terrorism: Crime Prevention

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what consideration he has given to the compatibility of proposed changes to counter-terrorism legislation with Article 6 of the European Convention on Human Rights; [141216]

(2) what representations he has received on the conformity with Article 6 of the European Convention on Human Rights of the changes he is preparing to propose to anti-terrorism legislation. [141318]

Mr. McNulty: The European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR) is a binding international agreement that enshrines fundamental civil and political rights. The Human Rights Act 1998 incorporates ECHR into UK law.

My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced on 7 June 2007, Official Report, column 421, the Government's intention to bring forward a Bill later this year. We are currently embarking on a wide ranging consultation to determine what measures should go into the Bill. Development of the new Counter Terrorism Bill therefore remains at an early stage.

Consideration of the impact of legislation on the European Convention on Human Rights will be considered as part of the consultation process. Prior to introduction of any Bill into Parliament a memorandum will be produced setting out the Bill's compatibility with the Convention rights, and a written statement on compatibility will be made to each House.

Terrorism: Detainees

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions since 25 July 2006 the police have been obliged by the 28-day pre-charge detention period to release terrorist suspects whom they still wished to detain beyond that period; and what the (a) date and (b) circumstances were of each case in which no legal proceedings are active. [141259]

John Reid [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The police do not centrally hold information on the circumstances of each terrorist case where a suspect is not charged within the 28 day pre-charge detention period.

Terrorism: Stop and Search

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he had with Cabinet colleagues prior to announcing to the media the proposals to extend counter-terrorism stop and search powers to the police. [141067]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary did not announce any such proposals to the media—the news reports were the result of a leaked document. All Bill proposals that are intended for inclusion in legislation are subject to Cabinet agreement before they can be discussed during a consultation.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in her Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141961]

Hilary Armstrong: No Ministers in the Cabinet Office are allocated a ministerial residence.

Slade Green

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister without Portfolio what the itinerary was for her visit to Slade Green in the Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency on 5 June. [142292]

The Minister without Portfolio: This visit was not made in my ministerial capacity.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Cyprus

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the implementation of the proposal of the UN Special Representative Ibrahim Gambari to start discussions on the technical committees and working groups as delineated in the agreement between President Papadopoulos of Cyprus and the Turkish Cypriot leader of 8 July 2006; for what reasons the process has not yet started; and what steps the Government are taking to make progress on the process. [142117]

Mr. Hoon: The Government welcomed the 8 July 2006 agreement brokered by former UN Under Secretary-General Ibrahim Gambari, and remains fully supportive of the efforts of the UN Secretary-General's Representative in Cyprus, Michael Moller, to launch the technical committees and working groups. The recent report of the UN Secretary-General on Cyprus (accessible at: http://www.un.org/Docs/sc/sgrep07.htm) outlines in detail the reasons why this process has not yet started. The key obstacle is disagreement between the two sides on what constitutes a day-to-day matter, and the mechanisms for resolving disagreements.

We are disappointed at the lack of progress to date and have raised our concerns at the highest levels. We consider that the status quo is unacceptable and that negotiations on a final political solution have been at an impasse for too long. Time is not on the side of a settlement. We will continue to urge both sides to show the political will and flexibility to bridge the gap between words and deeds, and to engage constructively with the UN's efforts to broker a comprehensive and durable settlement.

Departments: Eligo International Ltd

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) date, (b) value and (c) purpose was of each payment made by her Department or its agencies to Eligo International Ltd since 1997. [141915]

Mr. Hoon: There is no record of payments made by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) in the UK to Eligo International Ltd in this time frame. To establish whether FCO missions overseas have made payments to the company would require each post to check accounts for each of the last 10 years. This would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent by her Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139424]

Mr. Hoon: The following totals have been identified as having been spent on public relations by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO):

Financial year (FY)	£
2001-02	1,700
2002-03	18,825
2003-04	9,503
2004-05	8,534
2005-06	13,104

The figures for FY 2006-07 are not available as the 2006-07 resource accounts are currently being audited by the National Audit Office.

The aforementioned figures are for expenditure explicitly identified, according to the FCO's accounting systems, as public relations expenditure. Invoices charged to account codes for specific events or projects in these years are likely to have included public relations activities, but it is not possible to identify the public relations elements of this expenditure without incurring disproportionate cost.

In addition, the FCO Communication's Directorate (including Press Office, Stakeholder Management and Public Diplomacy departments, for example) undertakes public relations work. It is not possible to identify this expenditure.

Iran: Terrorism

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the role of the Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) in the funding and support of terrorism in the Middle East; in which countries IRGC members are known to be active in this way; and if she will make a statement. [136493]

Margaret Beckett: The Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps is an official organisation of the Iranian Government. We remain deeply concerned that Iran is undermining the prospects for stability, peace and democracy in the region. Iran continues to support those engaged in acts of terrorism, including arming and financing groups which have no regard for securing a peaceful Middle East. We firmly believe that Iran should co-operate fully with the rest of the international community against international terrorism, as required by UN Security Council Resolution 1373 and subsequent Resolutions, including 1701 and 1747. Iran has underlined its commitment to counter terrorism. We look to it to turn words into deeds.

Iraq: Politics and Government

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the security threat facing Iraqis who have worked in a civilian capacity for UK and multi-national forces in Iraq; what measures the Government are taking to improve the safety of such individuals; and if she will make a statement. [140496]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 7 June 2007]: Violence in Iraq continues at appallingly high levels, affecting all Iraqis. We continue to do what we can to try to help those Iraqis who face a particular threat as a result of having worked for us. Any applications for assistance we receive from current or former staff are considered on a case-by-case basis, taking account of the particular circumstances of the individuals concerned.

Ultimately, only a reduction in the overall level of violence in Iraq will address this problem at source. This is what we are working hard with the Government of Iraq, our coalition allies and others to try to bring about.

Lancaster House: Official Hospitality

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the projected cost is of the valedictory function at Lancaster House honouring the Prime Minister's Special Envoy to the Middle East; and from which budget the cost will be met. [142116]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, is hosting a farewell reception for my noble Friend Lord Levy, in recognition of his nine years of service as my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's Special Envoy to the Middle East, at Lancaster House on 19 June. The estimated cost of this event is £6,000, which will be met by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's entertainment budget.

Russia: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Russian diplomats have been asked to leave London for activities incompatible with their diplomatic status in the last 12 months. [141244]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 11 June 2007]: No Russian diplomat has been asked to leave London for activities incompatible with their diplomatic status in the past 12 months.

Russia: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on President Putin's threat to acquire new targets in Europe for Russian nuclear missiles. [141417]

Mr. Hoon: The UK supports US plans to deploy missile defence assets in Europe. These limited deployments can not undermine a Russian deterrent with missiles still numbered in the hundreds and warheads in the thousands. President Putin since said, in the margins of the G8 Summit, that Russia is proposing co-operation with the US on Ballistic Missile Defence which "will allow Russia not to change our position on not targeting our missiles".

Sri Lanka: Peace Negotiations

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have been held with the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, other Tamil groups and the Government of Sri Lanka on a possible ceasefire agreement; and if she will make a statement. [141506]

Dr. Howells: I visited Sri Lanka on 11 June and held discussions with President Rajapakse, senior Government Ministers, the Leader of the Opposition, a senior Tamil National Alliance parliamentarian and representatives of non-governmental organisations. UK Government officials also have occasional contact with the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam in pursuit of the peace process. We urge all the parties to the conflict in Sri Lanka to stop using violence. There can be no military solution.

Turkey: Religious Freedom

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the murders of Tilman Geske, Necati Aydin and Ugur Yuksel on 18 April 2007 in Malatya, Turkey; what representations she has made to the Government of Turkey on violence against Christian minorities; and if she will make a statement. [140923]

Mr. Hoon: The Government condemn the recent attack in Malatya and welcome the Turkish Government's determination to bring the perpetrators to justice. We note the detention of 10 suspects and continue to follow developments closely.

Our embassy in Ankara reports regularly on human rights issues in Turkey, including freedom of religion. We also receive reports from the European Commission and other international organisations.

Through regular bilateral discussions, we continue to urge Turkey to keep up the momentum of its human rights reform and to ensure that implementation of EU standards is full and consistent.

USA: Ballistic Missile Defence

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with (a) the United States Administration and (b) her European Union counterparts on the effects on European security of the placing of anti-ballistic missile systems in eastern European Union countries; and what representations she has made to the Russian Government on President Putin's criticisms of anti-ballistic missile systems deployment. [141622]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague) on 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 237W, and the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East to the hon. Member for Mid-Norfolk (Mr. Simpson) on 28 February 2007, Official Report, column 1375W. I have had no additional discussions with the US Government or EU Foreign Ministers. The UK is engaged in discussion of this issue through NATO (including the NATO-Russia Council) and other forums.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Extremism

21. Mr. Hendrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent meetings she has had on tackling extremism. [141608]

Ruth Kelly: As part of my Department's work to tackle all forms of extremism, I have undertaken a range of meetings with stakeholders both inside Government and in local communities and from overseas.

Faith Schools: Admission Policies

22. Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect on community cohesion and the integration of young people from different religious and racial backgrounds of the practice of discrimination on religious grounds in the admission policies of faith schools. [141609]

Mr. Woolas: All school governing bodies now have a duty to promote community cohesion and this element of what they do will be inspected by Ofsted from September this year.

Road Markings and Signs: Advertising

23. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1813W, on road signs and markings: advertising, what further progress has been made on the removal of unauthorised roadside advertisements. [141610]

Angela E. Smith: The recent introduction of the unlawful advertisements and fly-posting database has given local planning authorities a better opportunity to work together to secure prosecution of persistent offenders. Local planning authorities have enthusiastically welcomed the database. There are 162 local planning authorities using the database and 185 records of successful prosecution cases on it.

Affordable Housing

24. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the contribution of the social rented sector in providing affordable homes; and if she will make a statement. [141611]

Yvette Cooper: We are on course to deliver 30,000 social rented homes by the end of 2007-08, and we expect 160,000 households to enter into home ownership through public and private shared equity schemes in the five years to 2010.

We are also supporting local authorities to take a lead role in developing more social housing, using surplus land.

Future delivery will be subject to the outcome of Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. The delivery of affordable housing will be a key priority for CSR07.

28. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on increasing spending on affordable housing via the next comprehensive spending review process. [141615]

Yvette Cooper: I have had wide-ranging and regular discussions with ministerial colleagues in Treasury about preparations for the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, as a matter of key importance to the Department for Communities and Local Government's medium and long term planning.

Home Information Packs

25. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what compensation is available to (a) business and (b) individual providers who have undertaken preparation and training for the introduction of home information packs. [141612]

Yvette Cooper: The proposals we set out on 22 May will mean assessors will be able to begin work shortly. From 1 August, assessors will also start work with four-bedroom properties and larger. We are inviting councils and registered social landlords to work with us to pilot the introduction of Energy Performance Certificates on a voluntary basis in social housing.

Lyons Inquiry

26. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for implementing the recommendations of the Lyons inquiry. [141613]

Mr. Woolas: Sir Michael Lyons' work played a major contribution in the development of the Local Government White Paper, which is being implemented through the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill. His report and recommendations will continue to inform the development of Government policy.

Digital Challenge

27. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the digital challenge. [141614]

Angela E. Smith: The digital challenge is a cross-Government initiative to address social exclusion and community deprivation through the use of digital technology. The winner Sunderland is hosting a major conference in July to showcase its progress, and all 10 regional finalists continue to work with my Department as regional champions. They are developing key projects including community support for digital inclusion, the 'Homeshoring' call centre model to create jobs in deprived areas and work to explore the environmental impact of technology.

Green Belt

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 119W, on green belt, what the net change in the area of designated green belt over the period 2003 to 2006 was, broken down by region of the UK. [136888]

Yvette Cooper: The net changes, by region, in the areas of designated green belt are set out in the following table. The 2003 figures for London and south-east include 47,300 hectares of green belt in New Forest district council and Test Valley borough council which were re-designated as New Forest National Park in 2005. Leaving aside the New Forest there was an overall national increase in green belt land of about 7,500 hectares between 2003 and 2006. It is the responsibility of planning authorities to establish or review green belt boundaries through the plan making process.

Areas of designated green belt land by region

Region	2003 area	2006 area	Change	Percentage change
North-east	66,300	71,910	5,580	8.41
North-west	260,610	260,310	-300	-0.12
Yorkshire and the Humber	262,640	264,930	2,290	0.87
East Midlands	79,520	78,900	-620	-0.78
West Midlands	269,140	269,256	116	0.04
East Anglia	26,690	26,302	-388	-1.45
London/wider south-east (excluding New Forest)	553,170	553,886	716	0.12
South-west	106,180	106,330	150	0.14
England[1] (excluding New Forest)	1,624,280	1,631,824	7,544	0.45

[1] In 2005, the green belt land in New Forest DC and Test Valley, BC (47,300 hectares) was designated as part of New Forest National Park. The 2003 figure excludes this figure for true comparison.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes have been made in the Government's policy on the protection of the greenbelt surrounding conurbations in the south-east of England over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [132075]

Yvette Cooper: National planning policies on green belts, as set out in Planning Policy Guidance note 2 (PPG2), are essentially unchanged from those published in 1995.

Green belt boundaries are determined in plans drawn up by local planning authorities. Government policy in PPG2 states that changes to boundaries should be made only in exceptional circumstances when those plans are being reviewed.

The Government are committed to the principles of the green belt and will make no fundamental change to planning policy as set out in Planning Policy Guidance note 2.

Regional Planning and Development: Blackpool

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who is represented on the Blackpool task force she announced on 28 March 2007; what progress has been made in the work of the task force; what additional support has been provided through the task force (a) by her Department and (b) other Departments; and what the nature is of such support. [142324]

Mr. Woolas: The Blackpool task force comprises representatives from: the North West Development Agency; Government Office for the North West; Blackpool Urban Regeneration Company; North West Business Link, English Partnerships and Blackpool borough council.

The work is progressing well, with a report expected to be presented to Ministers by 28 June. The recommendations within the report will reflect the needs of Blackpool and the Regional Economic and Spatial Strategies. The task force has significant support from Communities and Local Government through the regional agencies.

The task force was set up to reflect regional and local knowledge with staff being drawn from relevant agencies and organisations. Government Ministers will respond to the recommendations within the report as appropriate to their own Departments.

Communities and Local Government has committed £1 million to the task force and has also made up to £2 million available in the current year through English Partnerships, subject to the quality of the proposals made, to enable an early start on housing and other work to regenerate the inner area.

Unitary Councils

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether parish councils are included as partners and stakeholders to be consulted on any proposed unitary structure. [140544]

Mr. Woolas: Yes.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to discourage binge-drinking. [140463]

Caroline Flint: In the Government's "Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy", published in 2004, binge drinkers were a key target audience for new messages to be targeted by Government in their communications. This supported a wider programme of action by the Home Office to bear down on alcohol-related antisocial behaviour involving young people.

As a result, the Department launched "Know Your Limits", the Government's first national campaign regarding alcohol. It focuses on young people who binge drink because research shows that 18 to 24-year-olds are most likely to drink irresponsibly and cause harm to themselves and others. Evaluation of the campaign demonstrated that it has been highly effective in raising awareness and has had a high level of recall among young people.

The Government's renewed alcohol strategy, "Safe. Sensible. Social. The next steps in the National Alcohol Strategy" was published on 5 June 2007, and contains a detailed programme of work to minimise the health harms, violence and antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol, while ensuring that people are able to enjoy alcohol safely and responsibly.

To help deliver this commitment, the Government are committed to continuing its investment in the "Know Your Limits" campaign and will run activity before peak drinking times, such as Christmas and new year. We will also seek ways to broaden and widen the audience reach.

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to address alcohol abuse among (a) children and (b) adults. [140465]

Caroline Flint: We are preventing the sale of alcohol to children by cracking down on irresponsible retailers and working with the alcohol industry to reduce underage sales of alcohol—while continuing to educate youngsters about the harms, both physical and social, of alcohol abuse.

The Government's renewed alcohol strategy, "Safe. Sensible. Social. The next steps in the National Alcohol Strategy" was published on 5 June 2007, and contains a detailed programme of work to minimise the health harms, violence and antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol, while ensuring that people are able to enjoy alcohol safely and responsibly.

Blood: Contamination

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice her Department has given to clinicians asked to give evidence assurances to the inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if she will make a statement. [141005]

Caroline Flint: None.

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will ensure that the revised drug strategy includes a strong commitment to reducing the transmission of blood borne viruses including (a) improved access to testing and treatment and (b) setting clear targets to ensure delivery. [139726]

Caroline Flint: A consultation document on the new Drug Strategy will be launched shortly. A commitment to harm reduction will certainly be an important part of the Strategy. On 22 May this year, I launched the Department's action plan, Reducing Drug-related Harm, signalling the Government's continuing commitment to prioritise treatment in tackling the harms of drug misuse.

The action plan sets out the broad stream of action to be taken in England to enhance harm reduction activities within the drug treatment sector, with the aim of progressively reducing the number of drug misusers either dying through a drug-related death or contracting blood-borne virus infections.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many of the documents rediscovered by her Department as referred to in the Review of Documentation relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970-1985 (a) have yet to be made publicly available and (b) relate to AIDS/HIV; if she will release all such documents to Lord Archer's inquiry into this matter; and if she will make a statement; [140980]

(2) how many of the documents that were rediscovered by her Department as referred to in the Review of Documentation relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970 to 1985 relate to Non A Non B Hepatitis; and if she will make a statement. [141007]

Caroline Flint: "The Review of Documentation Relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970-1985 (Non A-Non B Hepatitis)" (NANBH) identified 56 previously unpublished documents that relate to NANBH. These were released with the review on the 22 May 2007.

The review identifies just over 4,600 documents that have yet to be made publicly available, and approximately 42 per cent. of these have been identified as relating to HIV/AIDS. Lord Archer has been advised that we propose to release these documents in line with the Freedom of Information Act.

Blood Transfusions

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to provide (a) ethryropoietins and (b) other alternatives to blood transfusions to appropriate patients. [141103]

Caroline Flint: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 2 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1771-72W.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 May 2007, Official Report, column 1772W, on blood transfusions, what steps she is taking to provide treatment to patients who cannot have blood transfusions who are suffering from chemotherapy-induced anaemia. [141104]

Caroline Flint: The treatment of individual patients remains a matter for their clinical team who will base the treatment on the most appropriate clinical evidence, and the wishes of the patient.

Bone Diseases: Medical Treatments

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance she has issued to trusts on whether they should continue to fund anti-TNF treatments for ankylosing spondylitis prior to the results of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's appraisal of anti-TNFs being made available; [140401]

(2) for what reasons the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's appraisal of anti-TNFs treatment for ankylosing spondylitis has been delayed. [140402]

Caroline Flint: Funding for licensed treatments should not be withheld because guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is unavailable. In December 2006, we issued good practice guidance which asks national health service bodies to continue with local arrangements for the managed introduction of new technologies where guidance from NICE is not available at the time the treatment or technology first became available.

In February 2007, NICE's appraisal committee commissioned further analysis to inform its appraisal of adalimumab, etanercept and infliximab for the treatment of ankylosing spondylitis. NICE are now expecting to publish final guidance to the NHS in June 2007.

Care Homes: Drinking Water

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps have been taken since October 2005 to ensure that fresh drinking water is available free of charge to care home residents throughout the day; [141209]

(2) what steps have been taken since October 2006 to ensure that care standards require that fresh drinking water is (a) available and (b) regularly offered to care home residents throughout the day; and if she will make a statement. [141210]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Regulation 16 of the Care Homes Regulations requires care homes to provide, in adequate quantities, suitable, wholesome and nutritious food which is varied and properly prepared and available at such time as may reasonably be required by service users. Food, in the regulations, includes drink.

Standard 15 of the National Minimum Standards (NMS) for Care Homes for Older People includes the requirements that:

service users receive a varied, appealing, wholesome and nutritious diet, which is suited to individual assessed and recorded requirements, and that meals are taken in a congenial setting and at flexible times; and hot and cold drinks and snacks are available at all times and offered regularly.

The NMS for Care Homes for Older People were originally issued in 2002; no changes have been made to them since October 2005.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) published nutrient and food based advice for those providing food in care homes in October 2006. Copies are available in the Library. The advice includes guidance on appropriate nutrient intakes, healthy eating, allergy and food hygiene tips. There is also an example menu plan, to help caterers for care homes follow the guidance, with a technical report showing how the menus follow FSA advice.

The example menus include recommendations to make water available at all eating occasions. Government advice is that we need to drink six to eight glasses of fluid every day. It is therefore implicit that care homes should be making water freely available throughout the day.

The advice documents, "Nutrient and food based Guidelines for UK Institutions" (October 2006), "Food served to Older People in Residential Care" (October 2006) and "Example Menus for Care Homes" (August 2006) are also available on the FSA's website at www.food.gov.uk/healthiereating/nutritioncommunity/care.

Community Care: Fees and Charges

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made since the introduction of "Fairer Charging Policies for Home Care and non-residential Social Services—Guidance for Councils with Social Services Responsibilities" of the impact on home care service users in England of the ability of local authorities with social services responsibilities to set their own charging schemes for home care services. [141435]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not made any assessment. It is for councils to decide on how to set charges for non-residential social services. The legal basis is that charges generally should be reasonable, and that no one should be asked to pay more than they reasonably can.

Until the guidance on home care charges, "Fairer Charging Policies for Home Care and other non-residential Social Services", was implemented, councils with social services responsibilities operated under few constraints or guidelines on how to charge for home care and practice varied widely. "Fairer Charging Policies" is statutory guidance, issued under section 7 of the Local Authority Social Services Act 1970; councils must have regard to it.

The guidance, which was issued in 2001 and amended in 2003 to reflect the introduction of pension credit, does not seek to change councils' power to charge, or not, for services. It seeks to ensure that, where councils do charge, this will be based on fairer, well designed charging policies. In particular, it aims to ensure that service users on low incomes are protected from charging and that any charges levied on disability benefits are subject to an assessment of disability costs, to ensure their reasonableness.

Local authorities have discretion as to whether they charge people receiving benefits for domiciliary care or not. However, if they do decide to do so, the guidance states very clearly that service users should not have their incomes reduced below basic levels of income support or the guarantee credit of pension credit, plus a buffer of 25 per cent., as a result of charges.

Community Hospitals

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many community hospitals (a) closed and (b) opened in (i) rural and (ii) non-rural areas in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [135508]

Andy Burnham: This information is not collected centrally. The Government are committed to ensuring more health services are delivered in community settings and are making an additional £750 million worth of capital funding available to support the development of community hospitals and services.

Dental Services: Cornwall

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1504W, on dental services: Cornwall, what assessment she has made of the likely effect on dental services should Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Primary Care Trust decide not to comply with the NHS Litigation Authority for the determination of contract activity for dental practices in Cornwall; and what preparations she has made. [141747]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Determinations of the National Health Service Litigation Authority are binding on primary care trusts (PCTs). We understand that Cornwall and Isles of Scilly PCT is discussing with its local dental providers how to give effect to a recent NHS Litigation Authority decision. PCTs are responsible locally for assessing dental service needs and developing services to reflect these needs.

Haemophilia

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Service Level Agreement is for the provision of Recombinant Factor VIII in each strategic health authority in England. [142045]

Caroline Flint: Funding for the provision of Recombinant Factor VIII for each strategic health authority (SHA) is in the SHA bundle, that incorporates a number of budgets formerly managed directly by the Department. The value of the SHA bundle for 2007-08 is £6,945.78 million, and was announced in the NHS Operating Framework that was published on 11 December to the NHS. Allocations are made direct to SHAs, and they manage the distribution of funds among the different programmes, including for Recombinant Factor VIII, taking account of local circumstances.

Health Hazards: Lighting

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of (a) the nature of the medical conditions and (b) the number of people suffering from such medical conditions which can be exacerbated by light emitted from energy saving light bulbs. [140905]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is known that some people living with lupus and epilepsy, and other long-term conditions, may be affected by energy saving light bulbs. We have made no assessment of the number of such people affected.

Health Hazards: Mobile Phones

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent studies her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) received on the potential health hazards from (i) mobile phone masts and (ii) handheld mobile phones; and if she will make a statement. [141319]

Caroline Flint: The Stewart Report in 2000 comprehensively reviewed the scientific literature and concluded that

"the balance of evidence to date suggests that exposures below international guidelines do not cause health effects to the general population"

(www.iegmp.org.uk). Handheld mobile phones and base station installations in the United Kingdom are designed to comply with international exposure guidelines. The Stewart Report, however, also recommended further research as part of an overall precautionary approach to the use of mobile phone technology pending the availability of more robust scientific research results.

The independently managed Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) programme, jointly funded by Government and industry, was set up in 2001 in response to the Stewart Report recommendations. It is currently supporting a number of studies into the possible health effects of technology relating to masts (base stations) and handheld mobile phones. These studies, some in progress and some already published, are described on the MTHR website at www.mthr.org.uk.

Research on the potential health effects from mobile phone technology is evaluated periodically by the Health Protection Agency's Radiation Protection Division. The report entitled "Mobile Phones and Health 2004" (Documents of the NRPB, Volume 15, No. 5) is available in the Library and at www.hpa.org.uk/radiation.

Health Hazards: Radiation

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when 140 Osier Crescent, London N10 was last tested for polonium; and with what result. [133039]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

This is now a matter for the local authority, but we understand Haringey council has indicated that 140 Osier Crescent was last tested for polonium on 25 May 2007.

They are currently awaiting the results, which will be placed in the public domain when they are available.

Human Embryo Experiments

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) for what reasons she proposes to exclude pure hybrids from the licensing regime proposed in Clause 17 and Schedule 2 of the draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill; [142320]

(2) on what basis she proposes that the mixing of human and animal gametes will be allowed for the purpose of testing fertility and normality of human sperm under Schedule 2, paragraph 6 of the draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill. [142322]

Caroline Flint: Under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, the mixing of human sperm and animal eggs is only permitted, for assessment of the fertility of normality of sperm, or research aiming to improve the assessment of the fertility or normality of sperm. Such testing and research involves analysis of the cellular processes which take place between the point of sperm penetration, and first cell division of the embryo. The Act thus states that any embryo created using this technique must be destroyed no later than at the two cell stage.

The Government believe there is, at present, a lack of merit in relaxing the current limitation the development of true hybrids.

The Government indicated in the introduction to the draft Bill that they intend to accept the principle that legislation should provide for certain inter-species embryos—cybrids, human-animal transgenic embryos and human-animal chimeras—to be authorised by research licence.

The Bill will have the flexibility for affirmative regulations to allow the creation both of new types of inter-species embryos and of true hybrids to be authorised by research licence if necessary in the light of evidence of the need for it.

Hyperactivity: Drugs

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) England and (b) Maidenhead were prescribed methylphenidate drugs in each year between 1997 and 2006. [139193]

Caroline Flint: The Department does not hold data on the number of patients prescribed methylphenidate hydrochloride drugs. In terms of the number of prescription items dispensed in the community in England, I refer the right hon. Lady to the answer given on 9 May, Official Report, column 279W.

Data on the number of prescription items prescribed in the community and then dispensed are collected at primary care trust (PCT) level. The equivalent PCTs to the constituency of Maidenhead are the combination of Berkshire East PCT (formerly Bracknell Forest, Windsor, Ascot and Maidenhead and Slough) and Berkshire West PCT (formerly Newbury and Community, Reading and Wokingham) created in October 2006.

Data for these combined PCTs are provided in the following table.

	Thousand
	Number of prescription items dispensed
2003	4.9
2004	5.6
2005	5.7
2006	6.9

Note:
Local data are from the prescription pricing division's (PPD's) prescribing analysis and cost tool (PACT) system. This is held for a maximum of 60 months only, therefore data areprovided from 2003 onwards.

Incontinence: Medical Equipment

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1130W, on incontinence and stoma appliances, when she expects the evaluation of the responses to the consultation to be completed; and if she will make a statement. [140089]

Caroline Flint: It has been announced that due to the volume and complexity of responses received to the consultations that closed on 2 April 2007, the Department has decided that it needs more time to analyse the information provided. Consequently, no changes will be implemented in July 2007 as proposed in the consultation documents. Moreover, we do not expect that the review will be completed before the end of the year.

Insulin

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library a copy of the draft proposal for submission to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence asking the institute to consider including a comparison of the different types of insulin in its future work programme, as referred to in the letter of 19 December 2006 to the hon. Member for Torbay from the Minister for quality and delivery. [136750]

Caroline Flint: The National Clinical Director for Diabetes, Dr. Sue Roberts, has convened a liaison group to inform the National Institute of Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) work programme on a range of diabetes issues. This approach has been taken to support NICE in addressing and reflecting the needs of the diabetes community.

The group is due to meet shortly, and will discuss a range of diabetes issues, including the therapeutic use of insulins.

Internet: Health Hazards

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the health effects of wireless internet networks, with particular reference to those in schools. [141102]

Caroline Flint: The independent Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation (AGNIR) undertook a comprehensive assessment of radio waves and health in 2003. Its report, entitled "Health Effects from Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Fields", was published by the then National Radiological Protection Board (now the Radiation Protection Division of the Health Protection Agency (HPA)). Copies are available in the Library and on the HPA website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/documents_of_nrpb/abstracts/abs d14-2.htm

All devices that emit radio waves (such as wireless internet) should be used in compliance with the exposure guidelines published by the International Commission on Non-ionising Radiation Protection (ICNIRP) as specified in the European Recommendation on limiting public exposure to electromagnetic fields (EC/519/1999).

Information about wireless devices and health is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/MinistersandDepartmentLeaders/ChiefMedicalOfficer/Features/FeaturesArchive/Browsable/DH_5369553

IVF

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts provide in vitro fertilisation on the NHS. [140983]

Caroline Flint: This information is not collected centrally as a matter of routine. We are aware that most primary care trusts (PCT) are providing at least one cycle of in vitro fertilisation (IVF). Northamptonshire Primary Care Trust is now restarting the provision of IVF following a temporary period of suspension. We are working with the patient support organisation Infertility Network UK to help PCTs share best practice in the provision of fertility services and engage with fertility patients in the planning and prioritisation of services.

Medical Equipment

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment her Department has made of the extent of implementation of the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency guidelines on managing medical devices by NHS trusts; [135636]

(2) what responsibility the Healthcare Commission has to report (a) on and (b) to the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency on the compliance of NHS trusts with guidelines on managing medical devices; [135641]

(3) whether the Healthcare Commission has powers to enforce Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency guidelines on managing medical devices. [135662]

Caroline Flint: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) published its updated Device Bulletin on the management of medical devices in November 2006. The MHRA does not have powers to enforce its advice, which is for guidance only; the Healthcare Commission does not have powers to enforce MHRA advice either. It is the responsibility of each NHS organisation to ensure that appropriate governance systems are in place to ensure that medical devices are managed and used correctly.

The Healthcare Commission assesses the performance of the NHS against the standards set out in Standards for Better Health (Department of Health 2004). In carrying out its assessments, the Commission looks specifically at, among other aspects of safety, the management of risks associated with the acquisition, use, and proper decontamination of medical devices in accordance with guidance issued by the MHRA.

If an organisation is found not to be complying with a core standard, it is the responsibility of the relevant strategic health authority (SHA) in the first instance to support it to achieve the necessary improvement. In exceptional individual cases where an organisation's failure to comply with a compulsory core standard is of significant and sufficient concern, and where the Department and the SHA agree that departmental engagement can add value, the Department would work with the SHA to ensure that improvement was made.

The Healthcare Commission reports to the Secretary of State. The Commission publishes its assessment of NHS performance in its annual health check; performance ratings for 2005-06 were published in October 2006 and are publicly available on the Commission's website at www.healthcarecommission.org.uk.

Medical Records: EC Countries

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has (a) to permit and (b) to implement the transfer of patient information between member states of the European Union, as referred to in paragraph 3.1.1. of the European Commission's Consultation on Community Action on Health Services, published on 26 September 2006. [131858]

Caroline Flint: In collaboration with the European Commission and other European health administrations we are exploring ways in which citizens could, if they so choose, make key health data available when seeking treatment in other European states, subject to stringent confidentiality safeguards. This work is at a very early stage and complex technical and information governance issues have yet to be resolved. In particular, any transfer of patient information would need to be in line with the undertakings given in the NHS Care Record Guarantee, and subject to compliance with the European Union Data Protection Directive.

The consultation acknowledges work that is already under way in some member states in developing interoperability standards for electronic medical records. The Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency is in fact the global leader in healthcare interoperability. NHS Connecting for Health have developed the message implementation manual which uses the international standard HL7V3 to define a standards-based approach to clinical message interchange. These messages are used by the systems which have been through the NHS Connecting for Health national integration centre, to create the largest range of heterogeneous interoperable systems in healthcare globally, with in excess of 100 certified systems. This interoperability framework is underpinned by a robust and resilient messaging infrastructure, known as the spine, which already supports the transfer of many millions of messages every week across the national health service.

Another key aspect of healthcare system interoperability is the consistent use of a clinical terminology. NHS Connecting for Health have been instrumental in the establishment, and are a founding member of the Standards Development Organisation, which has acquired the intellectual property rights for SNOMED-CT, an international standard for codifying clinical data.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when her Department will respond to the letter from the hon. Member for Billericay of 16 May 2007 on the proposed Independent Sector Treatment Centre for Basildon. [142450]

Andy Burnham: The reply to the hon. Gentleman's letter of 14 March, which was the subject of his further letter, was sent on 16 May.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps were taken by her Department in response to the letter from the Head of the Communicable Disease Surveillance Centre at the Public Health Laboratory Service dated 9 May 1983; and if she will make a statement. [140981]

Caroline Flint: The "Review of Documentation Relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970-1985 (Non-A, Non-B Hepatitis)" was released on 22 May, together with the references identified in the review. An additional 4,600 documents were identified during the review, including those relating to HIV/AIDS, and it has been agreed that these documents will be released in line with the Freedom of Information Act. Numerous documents are already in the public domain.

The issue of AIDS and licensed blood products was discussed at the Committee on Safety of Medicines Sub-Committee on Biological Products at a meeting on 13 July 1983, at which the Head of the Communicable Disease Surveillance Centre at the Public Health Laboratory Service was present. A copy of these minutes, together with a paper considered by the Committee on Safety of Medicines, are in the public domain.

Any further documents relevant to action in relation to the letter from the Head of the Communicable Disease Surveillance Centre will be released with the documents currently being prepared for release.

NHS: Databases

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which data set change notices were issued under her authority to NHS organisations in each year since 1997-98. [135891]

Caroline Flint: The NHS Information Standards Board has responsibility for assuring and signing off information standards for use in the national health service in England. The Board has had direct responsibility for the publication of approved information standards—Data Set Change Notices (DSCNs)—since October 2005. The accountability of the Board's chairman, Professor Martin Severs, is to the NHS chief executive.

A table of all DSCNs published since 1997 has been placed in the Library. The number of DSCNs published in each year is shown in the table.

NHS: Drugs

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the infrastructure payment for services proposed in her Department's consultation, "Arrangements for the remuneration of services relating to appliances within Part IX of the Drug Tariff", is proposed to apply to dispensing appliance contractors differently dependent on their output; and if she will make a statement. [140411]

Caroline Flint: In reviewing the arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff, it has always been one of the Department's stated objectives to ensure fair remuneration of valued services provided by the pharmacy and appliance contractors.

In the consultation document entitled "Arrangements for the remuneration of services relating to appliances within Part IX of the Drug Tariff", it was proposed that dispensing appliance contractors would receive a banded infrastructure payment depending on the volume of prescription items dispensed in one particular month. The purpose of this payment is to cover elements of service that are less volume-related compared to dispensing, such as operating within a clinical governance framework, requirements relating to dispensing repeatable prescriptions and provision of clinical information.

Views were sought on this proposal and the consultation closed on 2 April 2007. The Department is still evaluating the responses and it is not anticipated that the overall review will be completed until the end of the year.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans she has to trial the drug PTC124; [140823]

(2) what plans she has for fast tracking new drugs and therapies for Duchenne muscular dystrophy. [140824]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: PTC124 is a drug currently undergoing clinical trials in the United States for the treatment of Duchenne muscular dystrophy. PTC Therapeutics, the company behind this drug, has not currently organised clinical trials in the United Kingdom.

We have no specific plans to fast track new drugs or therapies for the treatment of Duchenne muscular dystrophy. The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency has not received an application to licence PTC124.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how has been spent on IT systems in the NHS since 1997. [138616]

Caroline Flint: The information is not available in the form requested.

Such information as is available derives from revenue expenditure reported each year since 2002-03 through a national survey of information technology investment; and from capital expenditure, including software licences, identified in national health service accounts, and as reported by foundation trusts. The figures do not include expenditure by special health authorities or central expenditure funded by the Department.

Summary figures for the latest year for which information is available (2005-06) is contained in the reply given to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 5 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1693-94W.

Detailed information for 2005-06, including summary information for years since 2002-03, is available on the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency website at www.connectingforhealth.nhs.uk/resources/funding and has been placed in the Library.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of implementing the NHS IT programme has been in (a) Surrey Primary Care Trust and (b) England; what assessment her Department has made of the effectiveness of the implementation of the NHS IT programme; and if she will make a statement. [138993]

Caroline Flint: Expenditure under the contracts let for the core components of the national programme for information technology in the national health service in England, as at 31 March 2007, was £1,001.5 million.

Information about local NHS spending by primary care trusts (PCTs), NHS trusts and other NHS organisations on the national programme for information technology, to complement the investment from central funding, is not collected centrally. However, any such spending is very significantly outweighed by the savings accrued locally from participation in the programme. Most notably, some £4.5 billion has been saved by central rather than local procurement, a figure confirmed by independent industry analysts. In addition, savings have been achieved in the prices paid by the NHS for information technology goods and services due to the central buying power of NHS Connecting for Health, as well as in NHS staff time saved through using the programme's systems and services. For example, the National Audit Office have acknowledged savings of £860 million achieved through centrally negotiated enterprise wide arrangements.

In addition, PCTs have been specifically reimbursed for funds spent on upgrading existing general practitioner practice systems to make them choose and book compliant, and funding support has also been made available to support NHS trusts deploying a choose and book compliant patient administration system.

The successes of the national programme are visible every day of the week in hospitals, general practices and pharmacies across the NHS, and the benefits are being experienced by doctors, nurses and, most importantly, by patients. On any typical day the national programme currently enables some 120,000 prescriptions to be transmitted electronically, reducing errors and inefficiencies; 17,000 choose and book electronic bookings to be made, putting patients in charge of their care and reducing significantly the numbers not attending out-patient appointments; almost one-and-a-half million queries to be processed on the patient demographic system, ensuring receipt of around three-quarters of a million letters a year that would otherwise be posted to the wrong address and enabling patient information to be handled more efficiently; over a hundred thousand NHSMail users, each of whom has an e-mail address for life, to send one million secure e-mails, one-third of which contain confidential patient information; five new secure broadband connections to be installed; and some 30,000 general practitioners (GPs) to use the quality management analysis system (QMAS) to deliver better care to patients under the new GP contract.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make available the gateway reviews undertaken by the Office of Government Commerce on the national programme for IT. [139004]

Caroline Flint: I have no plans to do so.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action she has taken in response to each of the recommendations of Section 9 of the National Audit Office report on the national programme for IT in the NHS. [139005]

Caroline Flint: Where the National Audit Office recommendations called for specific or new action to be taken by the Department, its NHS Connecting for Health agency, or by national health service bodies, action plans have been put in place. Progress towards the various deliverables is being routinely monitored against their respective timescales, some of which have already been achieved.

In relation to individual recommendations, a national programme catalogue has been created and made available to all NHS organisations and staff. The purpose of the catalogue is to demonstrate how the NHS Connecting for Health products currently available support wider NHS policies and initiatives by detailing their functionality and the benefits they can deliver to patients, clinicians and organisations. Regular updates will ensure its continuing relevance and value. Work is ongoing with suppliers and the NHS to agree engineering-based timetables for delivery and to ensure that these timetables take NHS requirements into account. Governance arrangements are in place to consider any changes which impact upon local service providers in order to ensure that suppliers can achieve what is planned.

The national programme communications strategy has been reviewed and updated. Ways of working with strategic health authority (SHA) communications leads have been agreed and implemented. A plan of key milestones for delivery of the programme is being developed for communication with NHS organisations and staff.

NHS Connecting for Health continues its strong management of suppliers and their performance.

The first annual benefits report, for 2006-07, will be produced in autumn 2007 to coincide with the publication of planning materials for NHS organisations. Future annual benefits reports will be produced in partnership with the strategic health authorities.

The annual survey of NHS information management and technology expenditure is being complemented by studies of the impact of national programme deployments on local NHS IT expenditure.

Post-implementation reviews are being carried out to identify and quantify the service and efficiency improvements of new IT systems. The Department and NHS Connecting for Health, in partnership with the SHAs, are supporting a series of benefits demonstrators at local sites that will evaluate experiences and compile evidence of benefits achieved.

Analysis of current areas for improvement is taking place in order to produce evidence-based development plans to create sustainable capability in the NHS. A range of projects, and training and development elements, are being grouped together under a capability and capacity work stream, and the education, training and development work stream is being strengthened.

Relevant and appropriate clinicians continue to contribute to the effective identification of requirements, design and testing of systems being delivered under the programme. NHS Connecting for Health has appointed a Chief Clinical Officer to lead the clinical engagement and clinical contribution the programme. A national clinical lead for patient safety has been appointed. Further national clinical leads are to be recruited for pharmacy, physiotherapy, mental health and midwifery. Consideration is being given to how to take on other national clinical leads to cover important areas of engagement.

NHS: Personal Records

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether patients can opt out of having their demographic details held on the NHS national data spine. [139003]

Caroline Flint: Patients registered with the national health service will not be able to prevent their basic demographic and contact details from being held within the NHS care records service (NHS CRS). The NHS has maintained registers of its service users from the earliest days of its existence to support the delivery of healthcare. A record is also kept of which general practice each patient is registered with, and reasons of efficiency and probity require this to be held centrally, for example to prevent multiple general practitioners from being paid for the same patient, and to ensure that the correct commissioning body meets the cost of care provided. A register is also needed to enable the Secretary of State to meet the obligation to provide healthcare, free at the point of contact, for those patients who are ordinarily resident in England.

While for these reasons it is not practicable to give patients choice about whether their demographic details will be held in the system, safeguards have been built into the NHS CRS personal demographics service (PDS) which allow an individual's contact details to be hidden from NHS staff if patients request this level of protection. Access to the PDS is controlled by a member of staff's relationship with the patient, and by what they need to see to do their jobs, and is dependent on their having a current secure smartcard and a valid pass code.

NHS: Training

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to establish an Academic Health Science Centre; and if she will make a statement. [141627]

Andy Burnham: The Secretary of State has given approval for Hammersmith Hospitals national health service trust and St. Mary's NHS trust to consult on a merger of the two organisations. This consultation would be the first stage of a process to create the first Academic Health Science Centre in the United Kingdom. The consultation began on 1 May 2007 and will run for three months.

Ovarian Cancer

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in England were diagnosed with Stage (a) 1, (b) 2, (c) 3 and (d) 4 ovarian cancer in (i) the latest year for which figures are available and (ii) each of the previous five years. [140642]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 12 June 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning how many women in England have been diagnosed with (a) Stage 1, (b) Stage 2, (c) Stage 3 and (d) Stage 4 ovarian cancer in (i) the latest year for which figures are available and (ii) each of the previous five years. (140642)

The data item, stage, was introduced in 1993 when the cancer registration minimum data set was established by the Department of Health. There remains much variation between the eight regional cancer registries in England in the recording of stage that is likely to reflect differences in what is meant by "stage", rather than real differences across England in what clinicians use to classify the patients. It is not therefore, possible to provide nationally comparable data on cancer incidence broken down by stage.

The United Kingdom Association of Cancer Registries (UKACR) is investigating what should be counted as a complete stage in an attempt to agree on an interpretation in future. In the future, the new Cancer Registration Data Set will include stage recorded at multiple points along the patient pathway.

Oxygen: Sandwell Hospital

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health from where the oxygen cylinders at Sandwell hospital are sourced. [140537]

Caroline Flint: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency reports that BOC Medical supplies Sandwell and West Birmingham hospitals national health service trust (which is responsible for services at Sandwell hospital) with cylinders of oxygen.

Patients: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations she has received on hospital charges for headphones for bedside entertainment systems; and if she will make a statement. [140643]

Andy Burnham: The Department has not received any representations on hospital charges for headphones for bedside entertainment systems.

The three major service providers advise that they do not currently charge for headphones for use with their systems.

If headphones were to become chargeable, it would be as a result of a commercial decision made by the service provider.

Pharmacy

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date her Department agreed plans to encourage pharmacists to carry out basic procedures like blood pressure checks and issue prescriptions. [140008]

Caroline Flint: The commissioning of national health service services such as pharmacist prescribing and routine blood pressure checks are matters for primary care trusts (PCTs) to determine. These services are local enhanced services which PCTs can commission according to their assessment of local priorities and needs, under the new community pharmacy contractual framework introduced from April 2005. Pharmacies may, in addition, offer these services privately to the public.

The Secretary of State for Health agreed on 8 November 2005 to accept the then Committee on Safety of Medicines' recommendation that pharmacists could train to become independent prescribers. Only those pharmacists who have successfully completed a prescribing training course and been registered with the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain as a prescriber can be commissioned by the PCT to provide this service.

Prescription Drugs: Internet

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 320W, on prescription drugs: internet, how many prosecutions for the sale of prescription only medicines over the internet (a) not under the supervision of a pharmacist and (b) without a prescription from a prescriber have been brought in each of the last three years. [142449]

Caroline Flint: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) is responsible for the regulation and control of medicines on the United Kingdom market.

The MHRA investigates the sale and supply of medicines available through the internet as part of its statutory enforcement role. Since April 2005 there have been eight prosecutions involving prescription only and unlicensed medicines being offered for sale via the internet.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will (a) reduce prescription costs and (b) abolish charges completely; and if she will make a statement. [140053]

Caroline Flint: The Government said in their response to the Health Committee's report on national health service charges, that the Department would undertake a review of the current exemptions for prescription charges and put forward options that would be expenditure neutral for the NHS. We have undertaken to report to Parliament before the summer recess 2007.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 422W, on prescriptions: fees and charges, what mechanisms are in place for checking a patient's entitlement to exemption when it is declared. [140462]

Caroline Flint: When a patient claims exemption from payment of national health service prescription charges, mechanisms are in place for the pharmacist or dispensing doctor to request proof of this exemption and for the patient to produce relevant evidence to support their claim, depending on the grounds of the exemption. Where this is not possible, the prescription is marked "evidence not seen" and dispensed for free.

It is for the relevant primary care trust to establish whether a claim is valid. Anyone found to have wrongly claimed help with health costs will face a penalty charge and, in some cases, prosecution.

Royal Pharmaceutical Society

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role the Government expects the Royal Pharmaceutical Society (RPS) to play in public policy following the establishment of the General Pharmaceutical Council; what funding will be made available for the RPS; and if she will make a statement. [139283]

Caroline Flint: The Government consider it essential that an authoritative leadership body for the pharmacy profession continues to contribute to all relevant aspects of public policy development. The Pharmacy Regulation and Leadership Oversight Group will consider the financial aspects of establishing the General Pharmaceutical Council and advise Ministers accordingly.

Stem Cells: Research

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what grants were made by the Government for research into the development of treatment using (a) embryonic stem cells and (b) stem cells from umbilical cords and other adult stem cells in each of the last five years. [138553]

Caroline Flint: The funding for stem cell research from the Medical Research Council (MRC) and the Department of Trade and Industry's technology programme for the past five years is shown in the following table:

	MRC	Department of Trade and Industry technology programme
2002-03	£4.5 million	£0.00
2003-04	£14.5 million	£0.00
2004-05	£14.2 million	£5 million
2005-06	Not yet available	£500,000
2006-07	Not yet available	£3.6 million

Information on the type of stem cells used in such research is not held centrally and some projects include stem cells from a variety of sources. However, the MRC advised that, in the year 2004-05, 40 per cent. of its research funding was for research on adult stem cells.

vCJD

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) tests and (b) prototype tests for the presence of vCJD in blood are (i) available and (ii) the subject of research; and if she will make a statement. [140982]

Caroline Flint: There is currently no licensed blood screening test for variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD). The performance of a number of prototype vCJD assays is being evaluated, and the results of this process will be available later in the year.

vCJD: Blood Transfusion Services

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are in place for blood specimens held by the Blood Transfusion Service to be used in research to test for vCJD; and if she will make a statement. [141008]

Caroline Flint: Access to blood samples held by the National Blood Service is subject to the approval of the service and where necessary the approval of an appropriate Research Ethics Committee.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many requests her Department has received for blood specimens held by the Blood Transfusion Service to be used in research to test for vCJD; and if she will make a statement. [141009]

Caroline Flint: No record of requests are held by the Department, any such requests received would be referred to the National Blood Service for their consideration.

Waste Management: Health Hazards

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been conducted by the NHS into the potential impacts on health of moving to fortnightly collections of household rubbish. [142380]

Caroline Flint: None.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan Economic Situation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government are taking to promote economic regeneration in Afghanistan. [141268]

Hilary Benn: DFID is contributing £9 million to the Government of Afghanistan to help boost legal private sector activity. This includes support to reduce red tape, improve the business environment, support the mining sector and encourage foreign investment. Of this, £1 million has been channelled through a Wold Bank-managed trust fund which provides risk guarantees to attract foreign investors. In the past year, this trust fund has supported three projects. These are expected to trigger over £13 million of investment, stimulate the cotton and pharmaceuticals sector and expand access to credit. This will help to further enhance private sector opportunities and regenerate the Afghan economy.

In 2003, the agriculture sector accounted for over half of Afghanistan's GDP and, since the majority of Afghans are based in rural areas, agricultural performance is central to economic growth. Rural development is one of DFID's top three priority areas for investment. We are contributing £7 million to the Government of Afghanistan's national horticulture and livestock programme, which will improve incentives for private investment in these important sectors. We are also funding Government programmes to construct rural roads (£18 million), and providing access to credit (£20 million).

Burundi: Education

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will provide a breakdown of how the £6 million funding for education in Burundi announced on 5 April is proposed to be spent; and what the timescale is for the release of the funding. [141062]

Hilary Benn: The £6 million I announced as part of a package of support for education initiatives in post-conflict and fragile states will be spent over the next three years in support of the Government of Burundi's action plan to implement the initial priorities of their 10-year education strategy.

The plan will meet Burundi's immediate needs in rebuilding an education system severely affected by the more than 12 years of devastating civil war, and lay the foundations for the development of an education system that can deliver equitable, high-quality education and professional training, and meet the target of primary education for all.

The plan is expected to be finalised by September, and once endorsed by donors, submitted along with the sector strategy to the fast-track initiative (FTI) for additional financing. If fully financed, it is anticipated that almost 10,000 extra primary school classrooms will be built, over 4,000 extra primary school teachers will be trained and recruited, and that total spending on education will be more than doubled.

The UK's funds will be pooled with those of other donors to minimise the administrative burden on the government, facilitate a strengthening of the government's capacity to deliver education services and encourage others to contribute to the reconstruction of Burundi's education system.

Crop Post Harvest

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what date his Department commenced funding for the Crop Post Harvest programme; what his Department's total expenditure has been on the programme; which projects have been funded by the programme; which institutions are funded to carry out each project in the programme and what amounts have been allocated by his Department to each and over what period in each case; in which country each project was based; what the outcome has been of each project; what assessment he has made of the impact on host harvest crop losses and other gains; and what the closing date is for his Department's funding for the programme. [140874]

Mr. Thomas: DFID started funding the crop post harvest programme (CPHP) in April 1995. The programme was designed to run for 10 years, until March 2005. However an additional year was added from April 2005 to March 2006 to allow for greater dissemination of findings. Total expenditure was £28,529,870.

A total of 170 projects were completed up until 2005 and a full list with details of each project is available at:

http://www.cphp.uk.com/projects/default.asp?step=11 or through DFID's searchable research database at:

http://www.research4development.info/index.asp.

CPHP was evaluated as part of the overall evaluation of the renewable natural resources research strategy (RNRRS 1995-2006) by an external independent team which found the outputs of the CPHP to be:

"...impressive and demonstrate well-planned and conducted studies." (annex 10, page 355).

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139313]

Mr. Thomas: The following amounts were raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five financial years:

2005-06	176,205
2004-05	0

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was received by his Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139332]

Mr. Thomas: The following amounts were received by the Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five financial years:

2006-07	4,459,797
2005-06	4,351,023
2004-05	4,246,796
2003-04	4,144,926
2002-03	4,046,023

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what properties his Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139352]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has owned the following properties in each of the last five years (all of the properties were owned for the entire period 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2007 unless otherwise stated):

Within the UK:

Abercrombie House, East Kilbride, G75 SEA.

Overseas:

20 Epping road, Harare, Zimbabwe;

11 Hendrikz Way, Harare, Zimbabwe;

11 Brentford road, Harare, Zimbabwe;

seven residential properties in Lilongwe, Malawi, purchased November 2002;

one residential property in Lilongwe, Malawi, purchased March 2004;

TCO House, Honiara, Solomon Islands, sold January 2006.

The Department has rented the following properties in the UK in each of the last five years (all of the properties were rented for the entire period 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2007 unless otherwise stated):

Within the UK:

1 Palace street, London, SW1 5HE;

20 Victoria street, London, SW1H 0NF. The lease on 20 Victoria street was not renewed by DFID on its expiry on 25 December 2006;

Chatham Maritime, Kent, ME4 4TB;

43 Fairfield Place, East Kilbride, G74 5LP.

Overseas:

We cannot provide a list of overseas properties rented without incurring disproportionate costs.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio. [139374]

Mr. Thomas: Abercrombie House was most recently valued on 31 March 2006. Total valuation was £9.250,000, including land valued at £1,575,000.

Overseas properties were most recently valued at 31 March 2007. Three properties in Zimbabwe were valued at £252,000. Eight properties in Malawi were valued at £475,000.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of leasing buildings and office space was for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139471]

Mr. Thomas: The information requested is as follows.

(a) The cost of leasing buildings and office space for the Department, both in the UK and overseas, in each of the last five financial years was as follows:

2006-07	19,947,000
2005-06	20,459,000
2004-05	21,031,000
2003-04	16,700,000
2002-03	17,857,000

(b) The Department did not have any agency bodies in the last five financial years.

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking ahead of the forthcoming G8 meeting to ensure that consideration of the effect of climate change on the world's poorest nations is integrated into the World Bank energy policy. [140628]

Hilary Benn: Climate change is likely to have the greatest impact on the poor, with Africa being particularly vulnerable, even though it has not caused the problem. A high priority for DFID is to work with our international partners, including the World Bank, to help reduce man-made climate change as well as help developing countries adapt to some of the inevitable impacts.

At the Gleneagles summit in 2005, the UK secured G8 agreement that the World Bank should lead on establishing a new Clean Energy for Development Investment Framework (CEIF) that would operate across the international financing system. The aim of this framework is to accelerate and catalyse public and private sector investments in cleaner energy in developing countries.

The CEIF has three main parts: improving access to energy, especially in Africa; promoting transitions to low-carbon energy, especially in large emerging economies; and helping countries adapt to climate variability and change.

The first phase of this work is under way with the World Bank and regional development banks, like the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the Inter-American and Asian Development Banks. They are developing work programmes to help their borrowers tackle climate change. Each bank is tailoring its approaches and initiatives to the conditions and challenges of its region and its specific experience and comparative advantage. The World Bank is continuing to work on exploring financial options to support clean energy investments.

The second phase in implementing the World Bank Action Plan for the CEIF will be reported at the G8 Summit in 2008, to be hosted by Japan. The World Bank has already increased its commitments and resources for clean energy investments. A recent World Bank report shows that in 2006 the Bank increased the financing of renewable energy and energy efficiency projects by 45 per cent., to a total of $668 million, exceeding the 20 per cent. annual increase target set in 2004.

We are also working with the World Bank on the adaptation part of the CEIF. For instance, future climate change may affect rainfall patterns, which in turn could directly affect electricity generation from hydropower schemes, so the work involves climate change risk screening. The aim is to make sure that investments, including those in the energy sector, take full account of the potential future impact of climate change and establish what it will cost to adapt.

We are looking for a range of G8 outcomes on energy and climate change this year. This includes an invitation to the World Bank to undertake pilot schemes to reduce emissions from deforestation in developing countries. On this, the World Bank is developing a proposal for a Forest Carbon Partnership Facility (FCPF) to provide support for pilot schemes in developing countries. This follows on from pilot studies to determine low-carbon opportunities in middle-income countries.

Both the 2005 Gleneagles Plan of Action and the 2006 St. Petersburg Summit endorsed the need to improve energy efficiency. We would like to see faster implementation of energy-efficiency options and are working towards agreement on this at the G8 in Germany this year.

Developing Countries: Education

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made to ensure that support is delivered effectively and flexibly to conflict and post-conflict states through the Fast Track Initiative since the Education Beyond Borders initiative was announced on 5 April 2007. [140883]

Mr. Thomas: The Education for All Fast Track Initiative (EFA-FTI) is an international partnership currently supported by 15 contributing donors.

The UK has been leading an FTI Fragile States Task Team to explore how the FTI might better support education in fragile states. The Task Team met on 21 May and subsequently reported to the FTI's Technical Meeting, in Bonn on 24-25 May.

The issue of fragile states and fragility was also considered at meetings of the Expanded Catalytic Fund Strategy Committee, the Education Programme Development Fund (EPDF) Task Force and the Capacity Development Task Team. Donors acknowledged that countries with weak capacity but strong political will need support to access funds to deliver education services while developing their sector plans.

The Technical Meeting agreed broad endorsement for extraordinary support for such countries and that an interim means of support is needed beyond the existing FTI architecture. The Fragile States Task Team is developing a framework that could be used by governments and donors to measure a country's progress towards FTI endorsement and whether interim financing could be used effectively. It will be piloted in Somalia by UNICEF Somalia.

As there is no internationally agreed list of conflict and post-conflict countries, the FTI Fragile States Task Team has agreed to use the definition of fragile states from the World Bank's 2007 Global Monitoring Report.[1] The FTI Partnership is already providing direct support to a number of countries regarded as fragile states. The FTI has endorsed eight such countries (Cambodia, Djibouti, The Gambia, Guinea, Liberia, Mauritania, Sierra Leone, Timor-Leste), of which six have benefited from the FTI's Catalytic Fund. 11 countries (Afghanistan, Burundi, Cambodia, Central African Republic, Djibouti, Haiti, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Liberia, Sierra Leone, Somalia and Timor-Leste) have benefitted from the EPDF. On 23 May the Catalytic Fund Strategy Committee approved an allocation of US $13.9 million for Sierra Leone for 2007-09.

Guinea, Republic of Congo, Sao Tome and Principe, Solomon Islands, Togo, Vanuatu) are working towards FTI endorsement during 2007-08.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received on the Make A Teacher campaign. [141085]

Mr. Thomas: The Global Campaign for Education (GCE) hold an annual Week of Action aimed at raising awareness of the importance of Education for All. The 2006 Week of Action (24-30 April 2006) included a focus on the global shortage of teachers. Following the Week of Action many schools across the United Kingdom discussed the issues and subsequently raised their concerns with their local Members of Parliament or through direct correspondence. My Department received about 80 letters from schools. Most of the letters asked the Government to help provide more teachers for those children living in poorer parts of the world.

It is estimated that 18 million extra teachers will be needed globally to provide every child with a quality primary education. Teachers are vital to quality education and are important if we are to achieve the millennium development goal of universal primary education by 2015.

Last year, the UK Government committed £8.5 billion to be spent over the next 10 years in support of education in developing countries. This long-term commitment will help to recruit and train more teachers, get more pupils into and completing school and improve the quality of education being provided.

The GCE's 2007 Week of Action took place on 23-29 April. The theme was Education as a Human Right. I look forward to receiving further letters from school children concerned about education for children in poor countries.

Developing Countries: Poverty

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made on meeting the 2005 G8 commitments on poverty relief; and if he will make a statement. [141166]

Hilary Benn: There has been some good progress in delivering the commitments made at Gleneagles and elsewhere in July 2005. DFID submits a regular report to Parliament detailing the UK's progress against agreed milestones. Globally there has been a significant rise in global aid. It has increased by 25 per cent. to just over $100 billion since 2004.

At this year's summit there was important progress especially on education and HIV/AIDS. Yet there is still much more to do, particularly on trade, and we are working closely with donors and African Governments to make sure that the commitments are fully implemented.

Iraq: Reconstruction

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what body is responsible for the oversight of UK-funded reconstruction projects in Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [141656]

Hilary Benn [holding answer 11 June 2007]: In close co-ordination with the FCO and MOD, DFID is responsible for the oversight of reconstruction projects in Iraq under the auspices of the International Development Act 2002. Our programme is managed from London with support from our offices in Baghdad and Basra.

Our priority is to build the capacity of the Iraqi Government to manage and spend their own resources effectively to deliver improved public services. We are also looking at options for supporting reconciliation and ways to reduce the level of violence. Finally, we are supporting humanitarian agencies to provide assistance to the four million displaced people in Iraq and neighbouring countries.

The UK has pledged £744 million for reconstruction and development in Iraq since 2003. So far £610 million has been disbursed, of which £488 million has been spent by DFID (including EC contributions). This includes over £125 million to support humanitarian agencies since 2003 (£12 million of which has been spent in 2007).

DFID has reporting arrangements in place for each of our own projects. All of DFID's funds are subject to rigorous internal controls and the National Audit Office audits DFID's accounts on an annual basis. Our 2005-06 audited resource accounts are available at http://www.dfid.gov.uk/aboutdfid/resource-accounts.asp. In addition our work is regularly scrutinised by the International Development Select Committee.

Liberia: Education

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how his Department will support education in Liberia following the refusal by the Education for All Fast Track Initiative Catalytic Fund to fund the endorsed Liberia Education Plan. [140882]

Hilary Benn: At the Education for All Fast Track Initiative (FTI) Catalytic Fund Strategy Committee in Bonn on 23 May 2007, development partners were very encouraged by the positive steps that Liberia is taking to rebuild its education system. Liberia has been admitted to the FTI partnership on the understanding that its education recovery plan is not yet ready for funding through this channel. It will continue to be supported with planning through the FTI's education programme development fund and with additional funding support through UNICEF.

The UK intends to support education in Liberia through the FTI's Catalytic Fund when there is consensus among all FTI partners that Liberia is eligible. The UK is contributing £150 million to the FTI.

Oversees Aid: Sri Lanka

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will provide a breakdown of how the £1 million funding announced on 24 May 2007 for Sri Lanka will be spent; and whether any of this will be provided for education programmes. [140884]

Mr. Thomas: Of the £1 million that DFID has allocated to humanitarian activities in Sri Lanka:

£800,000 will be given to ICRC (International Committee of the Red Cross) to contribute towards protection and assistance, including providing essential household items, hygiene kits and baby supplies.

£100,000 will be given to OCHA (Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs) contributing to more effective and coordinated delivery of humanitarian assistance.

£100,000 will be given to UNDSS (UN Department of Safety and Security) to contribute to safer delivery of humanitarian assistance through improved security information management, analysis and dissemination.

No funds have been allocated for education programmes.

Palestinians: EC Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) UK Government and (b) EU studies have been undertaken into the effectiveness of the temporary international mechanism in delivering aid to the Palestinians; and if he will make a statement. [141200]

Hilary Benn: The European Commission and the World Bank are working on an assessment of the effectiveness of the Temporary International Mechanism. A report is expected at the end of this month. The UK is not carrying out a separate assessment.

Sierra Leone: Education

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will provide a breakdown of how the £9 million funding for education in Sierra Leone announced on 5 April is proposed to be spent; and what the timescale is for the release of the funding. [141063]

Hilary Benn: The £9 million funding for education in Sierra Leone is the proportion of our budget support over the next four years that can be attributed to the education sector, based on continued budget support to Sierra Leone at current levels. The amount is calculated based on the proportion of overall government of Sierra Leone expenditure that goes to the education sector. In 2006 the Government expenditure was divided up as follows:

	Percentage
Teachers' salaries	61
Ministry Wages	1
Grants in aid, library board, planning and development services	5
Pre-primary non-wage	6
Secondary non-wage	6
Tertiary and teachers' education	19
Technical/vocational	1
Capital costs	1

The Government of Sierra Leone have recently approved a 10-year education sector plan, which the Fast Track Initiative Catalytic Fund Strategy Committee agreed to partly fund, in Bonn on 23 May 2007. DFID stands ready to support this plan, along with other donors, and to help ensure that any financing gap is filled.

Somalia: Education

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will provide a breakdown of how the £9 million funding for education in Somalia announced on 5 April is proposed to be spent; and what the timescale is for the release of the funding. [141064]

Hilary Benn: The £9 million funding for education in Somalia will mainly build on our existing support to UNICEF/UNESCO education programmes in Puntland, Somaliland and, security conditions permitting, south central Somalia.

We will also support the development of education sector strategies (jointly with the EC and other development partners); and continue to support international non-governmental organisations in education service delivery, including humanitarian education programmes, in all parts of Somalia.

Due to the unstable situation in Somalia, it is at present difficult to give a precise breakdown as to when and how the funds will be allocated.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Somalia; what steps have been taken by the (a) UK and (b) EU to improve the situation; and if he will make a statement. [141567]

Hilary Benn: While the UK has not made any direct assessment, we are kept informed by the regular assessments made by relief agencies on the ground. Fighting in and around Mogadishu in the first three months of 2007 resulted in large numbers of deaths and injuries, and has led to the largest displacement of civilians in the world this year, with an estimated 390,000 people newly displaced since the beginning of February. Most of these are additional to the existing 400,000 Internally Displaced People (IDPs) in Somalia. Without access to food, clean water and shelter these people need humanitarian assistance, as do many of those that were not displaced but lost access to services and livelihoods that were disrupted in the fighting. Prior to the fighting, the UN had estimated that 1 million people required humanitarian assistance, and had launched an appeal for $237 million to address these needs. In April this was revised upwards to $262 million in response to the newly emerging needs.

The UK is committed to addressing urgent humanitarian needs in Somalia. In 2006 DFID allocated £16 million and so far in 2007 we have committed £3.5 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), International Medical Corps (IMC) and to Solidarities, who are establishing a rapid response mechanism to improve living conditions for IDPs in Southern Somalia. Together these programmes will contribute to delivering water and sanitation, nutrition, medical and other relief supplies to those people most in need. DFID is also considering further contributions to ICRC, United Nations International Children's Fund (UNICEF), and the United Nations Office for Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (UNOCHA).

The EC Humanitarian Office (ECHO) has committed €18 million for humanitarian operations in Somalia this year, including €4 million approved on 1 June in response to the additional needs that have emerged as a result of the fighting in Mogadishu at the beginning of 2007.

The UK hosted the Somalia International Contact Group meeting in London on 6 June. This focused on how the international community could help restart the peace process. Real progress towards an end to the humanitarian crisis depends critically on progress being made towards a just and peaceful political solution in Somalia.

Sri Lanka: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effect of the political situation in Sri Lanka on the distribution of development aid. [139557]

Mr. Thomas: Sri Lanka is a middle-income country and therefore does not receive UK bilateral development aid. As part of its commitment for reconstruction the UK has given £500,000 of post-tsunami funding during 2007-08 to support good governance and small businesses in the North and East. DFID is supporting a programme to strengthen local capacity to plan, implement and monitor tsunami recovery in the north east of the country, to ensure that tsunami relief and development assistance is efficiently and equitably delivered. This programme is in partnership with the Governments of Germany and Sri Lanka.

Through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool, the UK gives £2 million to support a series of programmes aimed at tackling the underlying causes of conflict. Humanitarian assistance and access remains our top priority in Sri Lanka. In light of the recent displacements, UK will be giving £1 million in humanitarian assistance for the estimated 300,000 currently internally displaced persons (IDPs) in Sri Lanka made homeless as a result of the upsurge in violence in the last year.

The ongoing conflict in Sri Lanka hampers the efforts of the humanitarian and development agencies to deliver aid effectively. Careful assessments of the political situation and its impact on our aid are regularly made by the joint DFID/FCO office in Sri Lanka. Part of this includes an assessment of humanitarian access, which is sometimes restricted in conflict areas. The UK has signed up with other key donors to the Guiding Principles for Humanitarian and Development Assistance in Sri Lanka. These principles are derived from the International Code of Conduct of Red Cross. One of the basic requirements is to ensure unrestricted access to all people in need of assistance.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate has been made of the numbers of (a) internally displaced people, (b) Sudanese refugees and (c) civilian casualties caused by the fighting in Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [141217]

Hilary Benn: The UN estimates there are 2.1 million people displaced in Darfur and a further 234,000 Darfuris who have sought refuge in neighbouring Chad. No reliable figures exist for civilian casualties. Given the impracticalities of gathering accurate current and past data, it is likely no firm figure will ever be known.

The humanitarian situation in Darfur is extremely fragile. Through the admirable work of aid agencies, the 4 million people dependent on aid in the region have had access to vital assistance and services. The deterioration of the security situation, however, has made this increasingly difficult to sustain. Attacks on humanitarian workers are having a particularly severe impact on getting help to those most in need.

I condemn the continuing violence targeting civilians and humanitarian workers in Darfur and I call on all sides to cease the violence immediately, renew the ceasefire and political process and accept the AU/UN peacekeeping force for Darfur.

TRANSPORT

Airports: Noise

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the potential change in the number of people living within the 57dB Leq noise contour of each major UK airport arising as a result of the aviation expansion set out in the Aviation White Paper. [141855]

Gillian Merron: Detailed estimates were set out in "The Future Development of Air Transport" White Paper published in December 2003. These estimates were largely based on the modelling undertaken in a number of earlier detailed studies—SERAS (The South East and East of England Regional Air Services Study), RAS (The Regional Air Services Study), RASCO (The Regional Air Services Coordination Study) and the Part 3 Runway Studies.

Last December's progress report reiterated the Government's aim that the number of people in the UK significantly affected by aircraft noise should be limited and, where possible, reduced. The White Paper and the progress report, and documents relating to the main studies and the consultation can be viewed on the Department for Transport's website:

www.dft.gov.uk.

Aviation: Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the likely change in the levels of emissions as a result of expansion of aviation outlined in the Government's Air Transport Strategy; and what provisions will be made to ensure that such emissions do not prevent the UK meeting its 2050 emissions targets. [141307]

Gillian Merron: The "Future of Air Transport" White Paper set out forecasts for carbon dioxide emissions. The technical paper underpinning these, "Aviation and Global Warming", was published in January 2004 and is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/whitepapers/air/docs/aviationandglobalwarmingreport

We announced in the "Future of Air Transport Progress Report" (December 2006) that updated emissions forecasts would be published in 2007.

The Government have made clear the importance it attaches to addressing the environmental impacts of air travel. However, international aviation is not included in the UK's targets as there is no internationally agreed method for allocating such emissions between states.

Aviation: Ministers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) the original and (b) the current estimated costs are for the royal and ministerial air travel project; and from what budgets resources are being drawn. [141860]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 908W. The service will be funded from existing travel budgets at no extra cost to the taxpayer.

Bus Lanes

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bus lanes are in operation in England. [142213]

Gillian Merron: The Department does not hold a comprehensive register or inventory of how many bus lanes are in operation in England.

English local authorities (outside London) do report the numbers and lengths of new bus lane schemes to the Department. They reported that a total of 953 schemes (bus lanes, showcase bus routes and high occupancy vehicle lanes), with a total length of just over 5,000km, had been implemented in the five years up to March 2006.

Bus Services: Concessions

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many students over 16-years-old in Warrington are eligible for concessionary bus travel; and what percentage of those students live in each of the parliamentary constituencies within the borough. [141015]

Gillian Merron: Information on take-up of the concession in Warrington is not held centrally. Local authorities hold details of their residents who applied for concessionary travel.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the rate of take-up of free bus fares for the over 60s has been in each local authority or metropolitan area since the introduction of the scheme. [142475]

Gillian Merron: Information on the take-up of bus passes for each travel concession authority is not held centrally. This information can be obtained from the individual authorities.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140784]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport uses DEFRA conversion factors when measuring, and reporting on, its carbon emissions. These may be accessed at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/business/envrp/gas/envrpgas-annexes.pdf

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139346]

Gillian Merron: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio. [139365]

Gillian Merron: The most recent estimate (as at 31 March 2007) valued the Department's property portfolio at £558,082,556.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139459]

Gillian Merron: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent on advertising by (a) the Department and (b) its non-departmental agencies in each of the last five years. [139527]

Gillian Merron: The majority of advertising investment by the central Department is in support of the THINK! Road Safety and Act on C02 campaigns. DVLA's main advertising expenditure has been to support the introduction of continuous registration.

	Total (£)
2002-03	18,801,068
2003-04	20,862,013
2004-05	18,883,318
2005-06	21,235,914
2006-07	23,966,258

Figures for non-departmental agencies are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fares Technology

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 May, Official Report, column 1459W, on fares technology, whether the proposed timetable would allow for smartcards to be used in time for the start of the national concessionary fares scheme in April 2008. [142072]

Gillian Merron: The Department is currently consulting on the proposed concessionary bus travel pass specification. The consultation paper considers all options such as whether the pass should be specified in ITSO smartcard form.

Our discussions to date with potential suppliers suggests that smartcards can be produced in time for the start of the national concessionary travel scheme. Passes would be used as smartcards in areas which had smart-readers on buses, and used as flash passes (i.e. shown to bus drivers) in other areas. We would not require all buses to install smart-readers by April 2008.

A final decision on whether we will require smartcards from April 2008 will be made in light of consultation responses and our further discussions with potential suppliers.

Parking: Accidents

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents occurred in car parks in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the UK; and how many (i) deaths and (ii) injuries resulted from those accidents in each category. [142725]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

Public Transport: Concessions

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether passes for the new national concessionary fares scheme in England will be valid in Wales and Scotland. [142080]

Gillian Merron: The Concessionary Bus Travel Bill, currently before Parliament, contains a power to allow, via future regulations, for mutual recognition of bus passes across the UK. The Department has had initial discussions with the devolved administrations about the proposal and all indicated support for including the power in the Bill. However they also acknowledged that we would need to discuss it further and work together to resolve the various technical and resource issues before mutual recognition could be pursued in practice.

In the mean time, local authorities in England already have the flexibility—which the Bill does not change—to offer more than the statutory concession to their residents, taking into account local circumstances, for example, free travel in the vicinity of the local authority, which could include, across borders.

Railways: Death

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fatalities there were in the last (a) five years and (b) six months on the Norwich to London 'One' Railway. [142778]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk.

Railways: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average travel times were by rail between Eastbourne and London stations in each year since 1997. [141894]

Mr. Tom Harris: The average travel time between Eastbourne and London is outlined in the following table.

Journey time in minutes

	From London to Eastbourne	From Eastbourne to London
1997	89	92
1998	87	92
1999	87	89
2000	87	89
2001	87	89
2002	87	90
2003	87	90
2004	88	90
2005	88	91
2006	89	90
2007	89	90

Railways: Noise

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the recent rules changes on train horn noise which mean that train drivers should no longer routinely sound their horns at night and use a lower tone during the day when able to will apply to the operations of London Underground and their contractors. [141650]

Gillian Merron: The whistles on London Underground trains are quite different from the horns on over-ground trains, as are the regulations for their use. The use of whistles on London Underground is an operational matter for them.

Shipping: Foreign Workers

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what checks are made on (a) the qualifications and (b) the on-the-job experience of applicants prior to the award of certificates of equivalent competency to foreign officers on UK-flagged ships. [142343]

Dr. Ladyman: In all cases an applicant's certificate of competency is verified prior to the issue of a certificate of equivalent competency. A seafarer is required to spend a prescribed amount of time at sea in order to qualify for a certificate of competency.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent estimate is of the number of certificates of equivalent competence which will be awarded to foreign officers on UK-flagged ships in the next two years. [142345]

Dr. Ladyman: As a demand led activity it is not possible to forecast how many certificates of equivalent competency will be issued in the next two years.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons the Certificate of Equivalent Competence was introduced for foreign officers on UK-flagged ships. [142346]

Dr. Ladyman: Under the 1978 Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping Convention (STCW) (as amended), flag states are required to endorse third party Certificates of Competency (CoC) of officers serving onboard their ships.

The United Kingdom does this by issuing Certificates of Equivalent Competency (CEC) to those officers whose certificates are issued by administrations that have been inspected and approved by the UK.

Transport: Disabled

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on improving access to the transport system for people with (a) learning and (b) physical disabilities in the most recent year for which information is available. [142335]

Gillian Merron: Under the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, it is a legal requirement that all new buses, coaches and rail vehicles comply with relevant accessibility regulations. Access to transport infrastructure is also covered by the Act.

The Government have made a commitment that access for disabled people will be a condition of new public investment in transport. It is not possible to disaggregate spending which improves access as all departmental expenditure invested in these transport systems will benefit disabled people.

The Department has a specific programme, Access for All, to improve access to railway stations for disabled passengers. The Department spent £24.3 million in financial year 2006-07 on the programme and this funding will provide benefits for people with all types of disability.

Travel: Concessions

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pensioners claimed concessionary travel passes in Warrington in each of the last five years; and how many claimed (a) bus passes and (b) rail passes. [141016]

Gillian Merron: There is no statutory bus travel concession for students. Local authorities can offer such concessions on a discretionary based on their assessment of local need and their overall financial priorities. Details on local discretionary concessions are not held centrally and should be obtained from the relevant local authority.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which operators are in discussions with his Department on local authority re-imbursement of concessionary fares; what the (a) amount involved and (b) local authority is in each case; when he expects to issue further guidance on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [141167]

Gillian Merron: Bus operators who consider the level of local authority reimbursement for concessionary fares as inadequate may appeal to the Secretary of State. To date, 88 appeals have been lodged for the 2007-08 financial year.

A list of the schemes appealed against, and the applicants for each, are listed in the table which has been placed in the Libraries of the House. It would not be appropriate to give further details of the appeals whilst they are being determined.

The appeals will be determined by an independent adjudicator, acting on behalf of the Secretary of State, in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Cetaceans

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cetaceans he estimates died in (a) UK waters, (b) EU waters and (c) worldwide because of (i) ship strikes, (ii) bycatch and (iii) pollution in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [141019]

Mr. Bradshaw: For nearly 15 years the Government have funded studies by the Natural History Museum Institute of Zoology (IoZ) on trends in cetacean strandings and causes of death around the UK coastline. Post-mortems are carried out on a selected number of the stranded carcasses each year. The following estimates regarding likely causes of cetacean deaths are drawn from these studies.

	Number examined in UK	(i) Number boat strike	(ii) Number bycatch
1997	107	0	22
1998	115	0	19
1999	109	0	17
2000	118	0	19
2001	183	0	34
2002	185	0	54
2003	180	1	39
2004	226	2	70
2005	172	0	39
2006	147	4	25
Total	1,542	7	338

Estimates of how many cetaceans die as a direct result of pollution are not available since it is difficult to clearly establish a cause and effect relationship between pollution and the deaths investigated in the above studies.

Data relating to cetacean deaths in EU waters are available in the following report, copies of which I have arranged to be placed in the Library of the House:

Anonymous, 2002. Incidental Catches of Small Cetaceans. Report of the Second Meeting of the Subgroup on Fishery and Environment (SGFEN) of the Scientific, Technical and Economic Committee for Fisheries (STECF), Brussels 11-14 June 2002. Commission Staff Working Paper. SEC(2002):1134.

Few other countries outside Europe, the USA and Australasia have published estimates regarding cetacean deaths. However the report, 'Bycatch of Marine Mammals in U.S. and Global Fisheries', published in Conservation Biology, Volume 20, No. 1, February 2006, which relies heavily on extrapolations from data in the USA, provides some estimates. I have arranged for copies to be placed in the Library of the House. The authors recognise any efforts to provide estimates are hindered by the fact that very few countries have reporting systems in place to provide accurate data. The UK is one of the few countries that have established such systems.

Departments: Buildings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139457]

Barry Gardiner: From the DEFRA resource accounts the property holding cost for the Department for the last four years are declared as £19.28 million (2002-03), £21.43 million (2003-04), £22.69 million (2004-05) and £22.14 million (2005-06). The declared holding costs for the executive agencies for the same period were £5.3 million (2002-03), £5.76 million (2003-04), £6.06 million (2004-05) and £6.76 million (2005-06).

The consolidated accounts figures for 2006-07 are not currently available however departmental records indicate holding costs of £21.84 million, excluding the executive agencies.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many times his Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139211]

Barry Gardiner: The definition of 'found to have been in breach' can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches of the Data Protection Act 1998 by Government Departments can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the Courts or Departments at an informal, local level. The information requested is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff funded by the public purse in the Veterinary Laboratories Agency are classified as people without posts. [141639]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no staff funded by the public purse in the Veterinary Laboratories Agency who are classified as people without posts.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139317]

Barry Gardiner: The gross sales receipts contained within the Departments financial records indicate that sales of property raised £7.35 million (2002-03), £16.03 million (2003-04), £1.32 million (2004-05), £7.2 million (2005-06) and £12.63 million (2006-07) for each of the years in question.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was received by his Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139336]

Barry Gardiner: The Department's accounting records identify the following rental receipts for the five years in question; £25.85 million (2002-03), £44.42 million (2003-04), £49.45 million (2004-05), £54 million (2005-06) and £54.24 million (2006-07). The figures provided include all recoverable accommodation cost recorded as received from Crown bodies, sponsored bodies and third party tenants.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what properties his Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139357]

Barry Gardiner: The attached list sets out the departmental property holdings for the last five years based upon the available ownership information. The tenure type of each property is identified.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research has been (a) conducted and (b) commissioned by his Department or its agencies on the safety of alternate weekly household rubbish collections with regards to the health of refuse collection staff. [142261]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA funded an independent research study, carried out by Enviros Consulting and Cranfield University, on this subject. This identified no evidence of adverse health impacts resulting from alternate weekly collection of household waste.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to make further quota swaps in 2007 to support the inshore under 10 metre fleet; and if he will make a statement. [142316]

Mr. Bradshaw: Fisheries Administrations will continue to explore all means possible to enhance the 10 metre and under "pool" allocations for key stocks, including by domestic and international swaps and through quota donations under the economic link licence condition. I have recently introduced an additional measure for 2007 to permit licence holders of 10 metre and under vessels to lease in-year quota from producer organisations. This is in recognition of the increased pressures faced by the inshore fleet and the need of some fishermen to access quota above the quantities they may fish each month from the 10 metre and under "pool" quota allocation.

Floods: Yorkshire and Humberside

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much the Environment Agency spent on flood defences in Yorkshire in each year since 1997. [141565]

Ian Pearson: The information is as follows.

Environment Agency spending on flood defences in Yorkshire, 1997-2007

	Capital	Revenue	Additional funding due to autumn 2000 flood event	Total (£)
1997-98	10,450	7,347	—	17,797

Foxes: Urban Areas

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of changes in the number of urban foxes over the last five years; and what assessment he has made of the causes of such changes. [142377]

Barry Gardiner: My Department does not routinely collate data on the levels of urban fox populations and holds no data on the levels of change over the last five years. There have been a number of fox population estimates, the most generally accepted being that produced by Harris et al. (1995), who estimated that in Britain there are 240,000 adult foxes at the start of the breeding season. Of these, 33,000 adult foxes live in urban areas.

GMOs: Crops

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in which GM test sites within the National Institute of Agricultural Botany's Huntingdon road research grounds in Cambridge trials have been conducted since 1990, including National List Trials; which GM crop was tested in each case; what GM traits were in the crops; which company was granted the release consent; which areas of each plot were used; and what the six figure map reference was for each trial plot. [140878]

Ian Pearson: The information my Department has available on trials at the NIAB Cambridge site has been placed in the Library today.

Inland Waterways: UN Conventions

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made by the UK in ratifying the United Nations Convention on the Law of the non-navigational uses of international water courses; and if he will make a statement. [140847]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

This matter was first raised by the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) on 22 March 2007 in a letter sent to DEFRA, DFID and FCO. In response, we have met both with representatives from WWF and with officials from DEFRA and FCO to discuss the potential benefits and implications of UK accession.

The matter is not straightforward. We do not believe that any potential domestic benefits justify the resources that would be required, given that the UK has no issues with trans-boundary water management. However, we need to do more work to determine whether or not there is a development case for accession. We need to be clear on real benefits on the ground and ensure that this does not just place a further burden on governments in our partner countries. We will reach a view on this in the autumn and feed this into cross Whitehall consultations with DEFRA and FCO.

Ivory: Trade

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his counterparts in Africa on the international trade in elephant ivory ahead of the UN Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species; and if he will make a statement. [141580]

Barry Gardiner: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for The Wrekin (Mark Pritchard) on 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1308W.

Landfill: Methane

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's estimate is of the volume of emissions of methane from landfill sites in the UK in the last year for which figures are available. [142068]

Mr. Bradshaw: Methane emissions from biodegradable waste in landfill amounted to an estimated 928,000 tonnes in 2005, out of a UK total of 2.35 million tonnes.

Recycling: Standards

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) which local authorities exceeded their targets for household waste recycling in the last year for which figures are available; [141225]

(2) what the household recycling rates were for each local authority area in England in the last year for which figures are available. [141226]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is available from the DEFRA website at: www.defra.gov.uk/news/2006/061215a-table.pdf. I have also arranged for copies to be placed in the House Library.

Water: Infrastructure

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the extent of new water infrastructure required in England; and where such new infrastructure will be located. [141323]

Ian Pearson: Since 1 April 2007, all water companies have a statutory requirement to produce Water Resource Management Plans which look ahead 25 years and include projections of current and future demands for water. The next set of plans will show how water companies propose to meet demand for water, including the development of any new water supply resources that are needed beyond those identified in their voluntarily produced 2004 plans.

In their 2004 plans, which informed the 2005-10 review of prices, several water companies included schemes to build new reservoirs or expand existing ones. Details are provided in the following table.

	Company	Scheme
New reservoirs
2019	Southern, Mid Kent, Folkestone and Dover	Broad Oak
2015	South East Water	Clay Hill
2020	Portsmouth	Havant Thicket
2020	Thames	Abingdon
2022	Severn Trent	Lower Severn
Extended reservoirs
2015	Southern, Mid Kent	Raise Bewl
2008	South East Water	Bray Enlargement
2014	Essex and Suffolk Water	Abberton

Several water companies also had plans for desalination plants in their 2004 plans. Thames Water proposes to build a major desalination plant in the Thames estuary. This is currently before ministers for decision following an appeal by the company against the refusal of planning permission.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Lighting

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether the House will be taking part in Lights out London on 21 June; and if he will make a statement. [141321]

Nick Harvey: I understand that both Houses will be taking part in lights out London on 21 June. Officials are investigating what is possible given that people will still be using the buildings during the evening. The event will be publicised and Members and others reminded of the need to switch off lights and non-essential electrical appliances when they are not in use.

Members: Transport

Mr. Robathan: To ask the honourable Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many travel card reminder letters have been sent to hon. Members by the Department of Finance and Administration in the last 12 months. [141012]

Nick Harvey: Members are asked to complete, sign and return a pre-printed statement for each month that their travel card is used to purchase rail, air or other travel tickets, for use in connection with their parliamentary duties. A reminder is sent three weeks after the statement is first issued and a further reminder two weeks later.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Opinion Leader Research

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the (a) value and (b) purpose was of each payment made by her Department to Opinion Leader Research since 1997. [141445]

Hilary Armstrong: It is not possible to readily identify from the Department's accounting system, the value and purpose of each payment, made to Opinion Leader Research since 1997, therefore, this information is only available at disproportionate cost.

National School of Government: Freedom of Information

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the National School of Government is deemed to be a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [141635]

Vera Baird: I have been asked to reply.

The National School of Government became a non-Ministerial Department on 1 January 2007 and as such is deemed to be a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: West Bromwich

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with (a) Sandwell metropolitan borough council, (b) the Public Gallery Ltd., (c) the National Lottery, (d) the Arts Council England and (e) regional development agency Advantage West Midlands on the Public Arts Centre in West Bromwich East constituency; and if she will make a statement. [140551]

Tessa Jowell: I have not had any discussions about the public with these organisations. I understand that building work on the project stopped in March 2006 when the Public Building Ltd. went into administration. Sandwell borough council, Arts Council England, Advantage West Midlands and Government office for the west midlands have been working together to secure a way forward. Building work has now re-started and is due to be complete before the end of this year, with a public opening in 2008.

Casinos

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what further scrutiny of the recommendations of the Casino Advisory Panel report has been carried out by officials of her Department since the report by the House of Lords Merits of Statutory Instruments Committee on that report and the subsequent order. [142165]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State considered carefully the points made by the Merits Committee in its report, and on 21 March wrote to Lord Filkin to set out her views. Copies of that letter were placed in the Libraries of both Houses at the time.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she has the power under the relevant legislation to introduce two orders separating out the regional casino from the other large and small casinos. [142256]

Mr. Caborn: Section 175(4) of the Gambling Act 2005 requires the Secretary of State by order to make provision for determining the geographical distribution of casino premises licences within the limits specified in subsections (1) to (3) of that section. The Secretary of State is not required to do so by means of a single order.

Casinos: Licensing

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the meetings which have taken place between (a) her and (b) officials from her Department and representatives of the 17 local authorities set out in the draft Gambling (Geographical Distribution of Casino Premises Licences) Order 2007; and what the purpose was of each meeting. [142166]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and her officials meet regularly with representatives of many local authorities across a range of issues. The cost of identifying all such meetings would be disproportionate.

However, on 25 April, following a request from LACORS, a senior official attended a meeting of the Casino Officers Network, a group organised by the 17 local authorities set out in the Draft Gambling (Geographical Distribution of Casino Premises Licences) Order 2007. The meeting was convened for a variety of purposes, including discussion of the Government's consultation on the regulations and code of practice to be made under schedule 9 of the Gambling Act 2005.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to bring the Gambling (Geographical Distribution of Casino Premises Licences) Order 2007 back to Parliament. [142257]

Mr. Caborn: Ministers are currently considering the options in the light of the defeat of the Order in the House of Lords on 28 March, and there is no set timetable for an announcement.

Circuses: Licensing

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the progress of her Department's review of the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 on travelling circuses; and how many responses the Department has received from (a) circuses and (b) local authorities to the survey it is conducting to inform that review. [141587]

Mr. Woodward: Following consultation with representatives of the sector, we issued a survey in March asking circuses about their experience of the first year of the new licensing regime. This has now been completed by 22 circus operators and represents a significant proportion of touring tented circuses. We are currently in the process of obtaining responses to a similar survey of licensing authorities in order to assess the extent of regulatory issues relating to circuses. We aim to complete the analysis of these surveys during the summer.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's policy is on the vehicle excise duty bands of Ministerial cars; and into which bands cars presently allocated to Ministers fall. [141339]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 11 June 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Minister of State for Transport (Dr. Ladyman) on 11 June 2007, Official Report, columns 727-28W.

Hotels: Closures

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate her Department has made of the number of (a) hotels, (b) guest houses and (c) bed and breakfasts which have closed since 1997, broken down by region; how many representations she has received from (i) hoteliers, (ii) guest house owners and (iii) bed and breakfast owners since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [141839]

Mr. Woodward: The Insolvency Service maintains records of bankruptcies and liquidations, analysed by type of business. No specific records of hotels, guest houses and bed and breakfasts are maintained, although figures for hotel and catering businesses are held. Regional analyses are not maintained.

The total numbers of liquidations and bankruptcies for hotel and catering businesses in England, Wales and Scotland, for each year since 1998, are as follows:

	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	First three quarters of 2006
Liquidations in England and Wales	626	562	530	538	740	566	511	584	0	507
Bankruptcies in England and Wales	1,309	1,376	1,263	1,187	1,041	1,038	951	1,125	0	810
Liquidations in Scotland	26	22	25	23	56	37	39	39	32	0
Total	1,961	1,960	1,818	1,748	1,837	1,641	1,501	1,748	32	1,317

DCMS has received 24 representations from hoteliers, guest house and bed and breakfast proprietors since 2004, when the Department started to record all correspondence electronically. VisitBritain maintains regular contact with such businesses, where the latter participate in the National Quality Assessment Schemes.

Listed Buildings: Smoking

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received on the impact of no smoking signs on listed properties; and what action she has taken on the issue. [142167]

Mr. Lammy: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has received one representation on this, from the hon. Member for Stratford-on-Avon (Mr. Maples). She has responded that there is sufficient flexibility in the legislation to allow for signs to be placed in a way that is sympathetic to the character of listed buildings.

Musicians: Finance

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding her Department provided for music groups in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last five years. [141679]

Mr. Lammy: Government funding for music groups is primarily channelled through Arts Council England (ACE). In the last five years £100,682 has been given to projects in the London borough of Bexley through ACE's Grants for the Arts.

In addition to this, Youth Music have provided funding totalling £101,677 to projects in Bexley in the last five years.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the new logo by Wolff Olins for the Olympics 2012 cost; which other design consultants were considered for the design of the logo; and what estimate she has made of the additional costs required to rebrand all current Olympics 2012 publicity material, including each relevant website. [141050]

Tessa Jowell: The design cost of the new London 2012 brand is a matter for the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG). The cost, which is in the public domain, is in the region of £400,000. This sum comes from LOCOG's budget of £2 billion, which is funded from private sources.

The selection of companies is also a matter for LOCOG. I understand a brief was drawn up and a long list of companies with expertise in this field from the UK and abroad was assembled. LOCOG met with these companies and drew up a short list, all of whom had the opportunity to put their case for the design and development of the new brand. Wolff Olins was appointed as the preferred company to develop the thinking behind the brand and the official emblem.

LOCOG does not have a central estimate of the additional cost required to rebrand all London 2012 publicity material.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on the London 2012 Olympic logo. [141086]

Tessa Jowell: This is a matter for the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG). The design cost of the new London 2012 brand, which is in the public domain, is in the region of £400,000. This sum comes from LOCOG's budget of £2 billion, which is funded from private sources.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, what the name was of the separate cost review set up to take forward the work of the Steering Group and chaired by the Minister of Sport. [141484]

Tessa Jowell: The cost review set up to take forward the work of the Olympic Cost Review Steering Group did not have an official name, but was simply referred to as 'the cost review'.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the impact on overall costs for the Olympics of the decision on a final budget being taken in March 2007. [141904]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 11 June 2007]: I have nothing further to add to my statement of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what meetings the Budget and Revenues Sub-Group set up to consider the cost of the 2012 Olympics held after July 2004. [141907]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 11 June 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for East Devon (Mr. Swire) on 12 March 2007, Official Report, column 62W which states that the Budgets and Revenue Sub-Group met between February 2004 and July 2004. There were no further meetings of this group after July 2004.

Public Libraries: Closures

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate her Department has made of the number of municipal libraries that have closed in the latest year for which figures are available. [142262]

Mr. Lammy: The number of public library closures is not centrally recorded. However, the net change in library service points can be calculated using the Public Library Statistics published by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA). These show that for 2005-06 (the latest year for which figures are available) the total number of public library service points open for 10 hours or more per week, and including mobile libraries, was 3,500. The comparable figure for 2004-05 was 3,474. This reveals an increase of 26 in the total number of service points. These net figures take into account openings of new libraries as well as closures.

Tourism

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has conducted any economic research within the last six months into the size of the UK tourism industry; and if she will make a statement. [141841]

Mr. Woodward: No new economic research has been conducted in the past six months on the size of the UK tourism industry. However, annual estimates are produced based on the "UK Tourism Satellite Account—First Steps".

The latest report estimated that in 2005 the UK tourism industry generated £85 billion for the UK economy. This total is made up of the following components:

	£ billion
Spending by domestic residents on 'tourism day visits'	44.3
Spending by domestic residents on overnight domestic trips	22.7
Spending by inbound visitors to the UK	14.2
Fares paid to UK carriers by overseas residents	2.8
Imputed rent from second home ownership	0.9

Tourism: Insolvency

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate her Department has made of the number of tourism businesses that have declared themselves bankrupt since 1997, broken down by region; and if she will make a statement. [141840]

Mr. Woodward: The Insolvency Service maintains records of bankruptcies and liquidations, analysed by type of business. No specific records of tourism businesses are maintained, although figures for hotel and catering businesses are held. Regional analyses are not maintained.

The total numbers of liquidations and bankruptcies for hotel and catering businesses in England, Wales and Scotland, for each year since 1998, are as follows:

	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	First three quarters of 2006
Liquidations in England and Wales	626	362	530	538	740	566	511	584	0	507
Bankruptcies in England and Wales	1,309	1,376	1,263	1,187	1,041	1,038	951	1,125	0	810
Liquidations in Scotland	26	22	25	23	56	37	39	39	32	0
Total	1,961	1,960	1,818	1,748	1,837	1,641	1,501	1,748	32	1,317

Tourists: EC Countries

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of how many tourists visited the UK from EU member states in 2006, broken down by country of origin. [141890]

Mr. Woodward: The table shows the number of visits to the UK from the EU member states for 2006.

Overseas residents visits to the UK 2006[1]

NORTHERN IRELAND

Electoral Register

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many electors were registered to vote in Northern Ireland (a) in the year prior to the introduction of individual registration and (b) in each year since its introduction. [129416]

Maria Eagle: The following table shows the breakdown, by constituency, of those on the electoral register for each year from 2001 (following the last annual canvass prior to individual registration) to 2007. It includes the revised registration figures published in advance of the 2007 Assembly election. The registers published on 1 December 2001 and 1 December 2005 include those who did not register afresh but were 'carried forward' from the previous year's register. The legislation governing electoral registration in Northern Ireland no longer permits this practice.

Prosecutions: Expenditure

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average cost was of a prosecution within the former system of police prosecutions by Central Process Offices in each of the three years prior to the establishment of the Public Prosecution Service. [140236]

Paul Goggins: It is not possible to calculate the total average cost of a prosecution from start to finish—various agencies are involved at different stages of the process and no central figures are compiled. The PSNI do hold information on the average cost to the Central Process Offices of preparing a file for prosecution, although this represents only one part of the total prosecution costs. The Public Prosecution Service was established in 2005; therefore the following figures relate to the preceding three years, 2002-04:

2002: £171.40 per case;

2003: £150.75 per case;

2004: £139.09 per case.

Average cost per case over three years: £153.74 per case.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Terry Lloyd

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) what (a) correspondence and (b) discussions the Law Officers' Departments have had in response to the finding of the coroner in October 2006 that ITN correspondent Terry Lloyd was killed unlawfully; and if he will make a statement; [140906]

(2) what steps the Law Officers' Departments have taken to seek prosecutions of individuals in response to the finding of the coroner in October 2006 that ITN correspondent Terry Lloyd was killed unlawfully; and if he will make a statement. [140907]

The Solicitor-General: At the conclusion of the inquest concerning the inquest into Terry Lloyd's death, where a verdict that Mr. Lloyd was unlawfully killed was recorded, the coroner, Mr. Andrew Walker wrote to the Attorney-General to ask him to consider any steps that might be taken to bring those responsible for the death of Mr. Lloyd before a court.

As it is alleged that Mr. Lloyd was killed in Iraq by American military personnel the relevant offence capable of being tried in a UK court is section 1 of the Geneva Conventions Act 1957. The Attorney-General has to consent to any prosecution which may be brought. Any decision to prosecute is made by the Crown Prosecution Service using the same code for Crown prosecutors test they use in every case.

Accordingly the Attorney-General sent the coroner's letter and enclosures to the CPS for them to consider. The CPS has the case under active review and is briefing the Law Officers regularly. They have decided that they need further information before they can make a decision and are taking steps to obtain that information.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Information Officers

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many full-time press officers are employed in his Department. [142715]

David Cairns: Two.

Departments: Legal Fees

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139394]

David Cairns: Over the last five years, the legal fees paid by the Scotland Office have arisen solely in the financial year 2006-07, when £4,404 was spent.

Departments: Pay

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was paid in bonuses to civil servants in his Department in the last financial year; and how many civil servants received such bonuses. [142542]

David Cairns: Staff in the Scotland Office are seconded from the Scottish Executive (SE) and the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) who each have bonus schemes, part of which relate to annual performance appraisal. The Scotland Office does not hold information on bonus payments under the annual performance appraisal systems. Under the special bonus scheme of the SE and the reward and recognition scheme of the MoJ, the Office may also directly authorise bonus payments for special effort, achievement and commitment; the following shows the number and cost of such non-pensionable bonuses:

Financial year: 2006-07

Total number of bonuses: 17

Total cost of bonuses: £4,750

Elections

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on the use of electronic counting vote technology and equipment for the May 2007 elections to the Scottish Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [137687]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not yet have final figures on the costs of electronic counting as these form part of the accounts which have yet to be submitted by each returning officer. Returning officers have 12 months in which to submit their accounts.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of supply of military helicopters in Afghanistan. [141276]

Des Browne: In common with other capabilities, we continue to keep our helicopter requirements under review to ensure that we have sufficient helicopter support to meet current and anticipated tasks.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) minimum and (b) maximum period of time was to repatriate members of the armed forces killed on active service in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) Iraq in each of the last 36 months. [141521]

Des Browne [holding answer 11 June 2007]: All casualties suffered by UK forces are a matter of profound sadness and regret. MOD guidance is that repatriations should be carried out within seven to 10 days of the next of kin being informed and every effort is made to ensure that these guidelines are met. We do not hold data on the actual time taken for repatriation.

Armed Forces: Post Traumatic Stress Disorder

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the clinics which treat post-traumatic stress disorder for members of HM armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [142294]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) currently has 15 military Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMH) across the UK to provide community-based mental healthcare. These are as follows:

1. Kinloss (Inverness)
2. Leuchars (Edinburgh)
3. Faslane (Glasgow)
4. Aldershot (Hampshire)
5. Brize Norton (Oxfordshire)
6. Catterick (North Yorkshire)
7. Colchester (Essex)

Similar satellite facilities are available to service personnel serving overseas in Germany and Cyprus.

The care provided in these facilities is multidisciplinary in nature. Teams comprise consultant psychiatrists, community mental health nurses, psychologists and specialist social workers; the individual's medical condition dictates which disciplines are involved in their care. The approach to assessment and treatment is delivered in accordance with national guidance (issued through NICE) and is delivered in conjunction with the patient's general practitioner and where appropriate, key individuals in the patient's chain of command.

If a service person's condition requires a period of in-patient assessment and/or treatment, patients can be admitted to an in-patient facility under the MOD's contract with the Priory Healthcare Group. This contract provides specialist assessment and treatment in a facility proximate to their home unit or home. During a period of in-patient care, the Defence Mental Health Services continually liaise with the patient and their medical team through a nominated service liaison officer (SLO) who is a senior mental health nurse.

The primary aim of assessment and treatment, be it community or hospital based is correct diagnosis (as early as possibly), treatment and stabilisation, rehabilitation and return to work. If the patient's condition and prognosis dictates that he/she can no longer service in the armed forces, the focus is on a seamless transfer of care and support from the military medical and welfare services to the NHS and other relevant bodies.

The MOD also provides a care programme for recently demobilised reserve personnel called the Reserves Mental Health programme (RMHP). Under the RMHP, we liaise with the individual's GP and offer a mental health assessment at the Reserves Training and Mobilisation Centre in Chilwell. If diagnosed to have a combat-related mental health condition, we then offer out-patient treatment via one of the MOD's 15 Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMHs). If more acute cases present, the DMS will assist access to NHS in-patient treatment.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the (a) affordability and (b) deliverability within existing allocated resources of the Army Recruiting and Training Division draft Management Plan 2007; and if he will make a statement. [138743]

Derek Twigg: The Army Recruiting and Training Division (ARTD) draft Management Plan 2007 details the training programme required to meet the individual training needs of the army over the plan period. The Plan takes account of the ARTD's capacity to deliver training. The army has a standard in-year management process whereby plans and resources are kept in balance.

Army Board: Domestic Services

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what criteria are used to determine whether a non-ministerial member of the Army Board qualifies for a full-time (a) cleaner and (b) gardener at public expense; and if he will make a statement; [134509]

(2) what criteria are used to determine the number of members of staff a non-ministerial member of the Army Board requires in their household. [134555]

Derek Twigg: Guidance on the management of official service residences is set out in Joint Service Publication 448. I have placed it in the Library of the House along with a copy of the Cazalet report to which it refers.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the (a) strategy and (b) tactics of the Mahdi Army; and for how many attacks on UK service personnel he estimates it to have been responsible. [139149]

Des Browne [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The Jaysh al-Mahdi also referred to as the Mahdi Army, which acts as the militia wing of the Office of the Martyr Sadr is opposed to the presence of Multi National Forces in Iraq and wish to see their withdrawal. Jaysh al-Mahdi and its factions have been responsible for many attacks against coalition forces including UK troops.

We routinely assesses the capabilities and objectives of insurgent and militia groups in Iraq including the Jaysh al-Mahdi. I am withholding further details as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

Military Aircraft: Procurement

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Britten Norman Defender 4S A2 Mk 1 aircraft are being operated by the army in Iraq. [130327]

Mr. Ingram: I am withholding the information requested as its disclosure would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Nuclear Submarines

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the projected cost is of developing a new submarine reactor to replace the PWR2. [108882]

Des Browne: Decisions on whether or not to develop a replacement for PWR2 have not yet been taken. Initial projected costs for the procurement of the nuclear propulsion system were factored into the estimated procurement costs of the new ballistic missile submarines, set out at paragraph 5-11 of the White Paper (Cm 6994) on the Future of the UK's Nuclear Deterrent, published on 4 December. Cost estimates will be refined as work on the concept and assessment phases is taken forward with industry, but at this early stage of the procurement process, we are not in a position to break these estimates down.

Veterans: Mental Health

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Dunfermline and West Fife (Willie Rennie) of 12 December 2006, Official Report, column 940W, on veterans: mental health, if he will place in the Library a copy of the Health and Social Care Advisory Service's recommendations of 2005 on mental health services for veterans; and if he will make a statement; [137531]

(2) what progress has been made with his Department's work to ensure that there is a coherent response to veterans' mental health issues; and if he will make a statement. [137532]

Derek Twigg: The Government are committed to good mental health and wellbeing for armed forces personnel, both in service and after they leave. For veterans, healthcare is primarily the responsibility of the NHS.

Following recommendations on mental health services for veterans made in 2005 by the independent Health and Social Care Advisory Service, officials from the Ministry of Defence, the UK Health departments and Combat Stress have been working together to develop and implement a new community-based model for mental health services for veterans; this is designed to provide health professionals with access to expert understanding of veterans' mental health problems and appropriate treatment options. Based on NHS practice and procedures, the new service would deliver culturally sensitive, evidence-based interventions through a network of public, private and charitable providers; an aim of the new model would be to integrate Combat Stress into NHS commissioning arrangements. It is planned that, beginning in the summer, the model will be piloted at sites across the UK. The pilots are likely to last two years and, if successful, will be rolled out nationally. We have established separately an arrangement for the assessment and treatment of mental health problems that may have affected Reservists as a result of deployment on operations since 2003.

I will place a copy of the recommendations made by the Health and Social Care Advisory Service's in their 2005 report on mental health services for veterans in the Library of the House.

Written Questions

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to answer question 108882, on submarine reactors, tabled by the hon. Member for North Devon on 7 December 2006. [142091]

Des Browne: I replied to the hon. Member today.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Crime: Internet

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has instructed any police force to close any website or webpage of any organisation demonstrably linked with criminal activity; and if he will make a statement. [140662]

Mr. Coaker: The issue of whether a website should be shut down is an operational matter for the police to discuss with the internet industry.

However, UK ISPs work effectively with law enforcement and take a robust approach to ensuring their services are not used for illegal activity or activity that falls just short of illegality. The Government have also worked closely with law enforcement agencies to build greater clarity on when criminal offences have been committed on the internet.

In addition, the Government are working with international colleagues in a number of fora to develop an approach which allows us all to deal effectively with illegal activity, across very different legal systems, while protecting free speech.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether (a) he and (b) (i) other ministers and (ii) officials from his Department attended a (A) steering group, (B) working group and (C) other regular series of meetings on HM Treasury's Comprehensive Spending Review policy review into counter-terrorism and security. [141310]

Mr. McNulty: Matters relating to the Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) 2007 are routinely discussed at meetings between Home Office Ministers and officials and HM Treasury Ministers and officials.

Driving Under Influence

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) women, (b) men, (c) women under 30 years old and (d) men under 30 years old committed drink driving offences in each of the last 10 years. [141234]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the following tables.

Table A: Findings of guilt at all courts for driving etc. after consuming alcohol or taking drugs[1] females by age of offender, England and Wales, 1995 to 2004

Number of offences

	Total findings of guilt at all courts

Notes:

1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is under way to ensure that the magistrates courts' case management system currently being implemented by the Ministry of Justice reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

K v Manchester City Council

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice is being issued as a response to the case K v. Manchester city council [EWHC 3164]. [136550]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

The assessment of children who may fall to be considered as children in need is already dealt with in full in the statutory Government guidance 'Framework for the Assessment of Children in Need and their Families'. All local authorities with children's services responsibilities are required to comply with the requirements of this guidance unless local circumstances indicate exceptional reasons that justify a variation. I understand that this case is still being considered by the courts and therefore cannot make a more specific reply at this time.

Serious and Organised Crime Agency

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests the Serious and Organised Crime Agency has made since its creation in (a) Sussex and (b) all other UK operational regions, broken down by type of offence. [142287]

Mr. Coaker: SOCA is a UK-wide organisation and not a territorial police force. Arrests made in relation to specific tasked operations may occur in any part of the country. SOCA does not record the county in which an arrest is made.

SOCA records arrests against principal threat sectors. In 2006-07 there were 749 arrests as the result of SOCA casework in the UK. The breakdown by threat area was as follows:

	Number of arrests
Class A drugs trafficking	601
Organised Immigration Crime	128
Fraud	2
Other	18

Sexual Offences: Young People

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to review gaps in evidence and methods of collecting evidence to support prosecution with particular reference to cases where teenagers have been sexually assaulted or raped. [139788]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 4 June 2007]: There are a number of new initiatives under way to build better serious sexual offence cases, including those involving teenage victims.

All police forces are being asked to develop action plans to implement the recommendations of 'Without Consent', the 2007 joint inspection into the investigation and prosecution of rape by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary and Her Majesty's Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate. This includes forces working with the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) to implement improvements to the collection and presentation of evidence, review processes and monitor case outcomes.

This builds on the national training programme which has been developed for specialist officers working on sexual offence cases. We are also improving facilities for the collection of evidence through the development of Sexual Assault Referral Centres (SARCs), most of which see teenage clients. There are now 16 SARCs with a further 14 in development.

In order to support improvements to the investigation and prosecution of serious sexual offences, we have also introduced new arrangements for monitoring performance and providing practical support to forces and CPS areas.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on services for children and young people within sexual assault referral centres (SARCs) in the latest period for which figures are available; and how many SARCs provide (a) services for children and young people and (b) child-centred therapeutic counselling and support. [139789]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 4 June 2007]: As sexual assault referral centres (SARCs) are primarily funded locally, we do not collect information centrally on the amount each centre spends on services for children.

Each of the 16 SARCs currently operating provide services for people below the age of 18 with lower age limits ranging from 0 to 16. Paediatric cases are seen at nine of these centres, while a further two centres have close links with separate but dedicated child sexual abuse services.

SARCs should be contacted direct for details of child-centred therapeutic counselling and support services. Contact information can be found on the Home Office website.

Special Advisers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to alter the (a) salaries of, (b) number of support staff available to and (c) office space provided to his special advisers in the next 12 months. [108497]

John Reid: I have no plans to alter the accommodation or support structure for special advisers in the Home Office. The salaries of special advisers are a matter for the Special Advisers' Remuneration Committee. Special advisers' pay ranges and the number of special advisers in each pay band by Department are published in an annual statement to Parliament.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, columns 110-11W, on speed limits: cameras, if he will break down the numbers of full-time equivalent traffic police officers by police force. [141351]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Available information is given in the following table.

Number of full-time equivalent officers whose main function is traffic

Notes:
1. Staff with multiple responsibilities (or designations) are recorded under their 'primary' role or function. The traffic function includes staff who are predominantly employed on motorcycles or in patrol vehicles for the policing of traffic and motorway related duties. The does not include officers employed in accident investigation, vehicle examination and radar duties.
2. This table contains full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between the total and the sum of the constituent items.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Business: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many companies filed for bankruptcy in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since 1997. [141898]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A compulsory liquidation is made on the petition of the creditor when the Court is satisfied that there is no prospect of the debt being paid. The following table shows the number of compulsory liquidations made at Hastings and Eastbourne county courts and Brighton Official Receiver's (OR) office as a whole, since 1997. Eastbourne and Hastings are the only two county courts within East Sussex which deal with insolvency matters, but they come under the Brighton OR's office. The county court in Brighton itself falls within the neighbouring county of West Sussex.

The insolvency jurisdictions of OR's offices and of county courts are not directly comparable with standard geographies such as counties or parliamentary constituencies. For these reasons, figures shown in the table will not be an exact measure of compulsory liquidations in East Sussex.

Number of compulsory liquidations made at Eastbourne and Hastings county courts and Brighton OR's Office, 1997 to 2006

	Eastbourne county court	Hastings county court	Total for Eastbourne and Hastings county courts	Brighton OR's office[1]

[1] Brighton's OR's office covers the following county courts: Bognor Regis, Brighton, Chichester, Eastbourne, Hastings, Haywards Heath, Horsham, Lewes and Worthing.

Cemeteries: Safety Measures

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions the Health and Safety Executive has had on the quality standards of inspectors of gravestones and memorials. [140525]

Mrs. McGuire: I have been asked to reply.

The HSE has had no formal discussions on the issue of quality standards of inspectors of gravestones and memorials. However, under the management of Health and Safety Regulations 1999 it is a requirement that people are competent to discharge their health and safety responsibilities.

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139445]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No consultancy services for advertising campaigns bought through the Central Office of Information were purchased by DTI during these years. Information regarding other such spending by DTI and its Executive agencies is not held centrally and to provide this information would be at disproportionate cost.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was spent on advertising by (a) his Department and (b) its non-departmental agencies in each of the last five years. [139528]

2002-03	441,882

From 1 October 2006, DTI moved to an arrangement where it pays a travel agent a set fee per transaction. The set fees are part of an OGC centrally negotiated contract available to government departments. Prior to 1 October 2006 DTI paid the operating costs of a team employed by the travel agent to work on DTI business travel arrangements.

Travel agent fees for 1998-99 and 1997-98 are not available due to change of travel agent and it would entail disproportionate costs to provide the data.

EC Trade: China

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions has he had with his (a) French and (b) Italian counterparts on EU/China trade quotas in the period up to the end of 2008. [139544]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 4 June 2007]: I have regular discussions with my French and Italian counterparts on a range of trade issues although this issue has not yet been raised this year.

Electricity: Consumption

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many organisations in (a) the private sector and (b) the public sector have half hourly metered electricity consumption of (a) greater than 6000 megawatt hours a year, (b) between 5000 and 6000 mwh a year, (c) between 4000 and 5000 mwh a year, (d) between 3000 and 4000 mwh a year and (e) between 2000 and 3000 mwh a year. [142197]

Malcolm Wicks: Data are only readily available for counts of meters rather than organisations and can not be spilt between public and private sectors. Many half hourly metered organisations have more than one site.

The table shows the number of half hourly meters in Great Britain by consumption band in 2005.

Consumption band (megawatt hours a year)	Number of meters
2000-3000	4,274
3000-4000	2,463
4000-5000	1,633
5000-6000	1,013
6000 +	4,089

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the costs to small and medium sized businesses of implementing the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive; and what steps he has taken to minimise the cost to small businesses. [141072]

Malcolm Wicks: A full regulatory impact assessment was published alongside the UK WEEE regulations. While there are no derogations for SMEs in the WEEE directive and hence the UK WEEE regulations, the Government have been keen to work with small businesses and their representative organisations to ensure they are not disproportionately affected. For example, we have introduced a tiered fee structure for producer registrations—a move widely welcomed and supported by the Federation of Small Businesses.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what consideration he has given to exempting small and medium sized businesses from the requirements of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [141073]

Malcolm Wicks: The WEEE directive does not allow member states a "de-minimis" approach which would exclude small businesses from its scope. The UK Regulations ensure that small businesses are not disproportionately affected and both the registration fees for producers and distributors are scaled according to company size.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what producer compliance schemes are available for the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive which are specifically targeted at small and medium sized businesses. [141074]

Malcolm Wicks: There are 37 approved producer compliance schemes details of which are available on both the DTI website

http://www.dti.gov.uk/innovation/sustainability/weee/page30269.html

and the Environment Agency website

http://www.environment-agency.gov.uk/weee.

Under the WEEE regulations producer compliance schemes are required to take into account the different sizes of their members and structure their fees and services accordingly.

Employment: Science

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what monitoring he undertakes of the numbers of science based jobs in the UK; what assessment he has made of recent trends in such numbers; and if he will make a statement. [141764]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The Government welcomed the Leitch review, published in December 2006, and its analysis of the growing importance of skills in a modern economy. A significant part of the Government's role, as set out in more detail in the Science and Innovation Investment Framework 2004:2014, is to ensure that the UK produces a healthy supply of people with science, engineering and technology (SET) skills. These skills are vital in helping to achieve the ambition of making Britain the most attractive location in the world for science and innovation. The Government accept there must be a shared responsibility for delivering this ambition; employers, individuals and the Government must all improve their efforts and investment.

DTI Economics Paper Number 16, Science, Engineering and Technology (SET) Skills in the UK provides 2004 baseline and 2014 projected figures for employment in SET occupations. The table is as follows:

Projected employment in SET occupations in 2014

Occupation	2004 (baseline)	2014 (forecast)	Percentage change
Science and technology professionals	947,000	1,121,000	18
Health professionals	277,000	360,000	12
Science and technology associate professionals	593,000	666,000	30
Health associate professionals	1,045,000	1,122,000	7
All other occupations	26,449,000	27,314,000	4

Energy: Coal

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department is taking to encourage the use of clean coal technology in future energy policy. [141097]

Malcolm Wicks: The DTI has supported research and development for clean coal technologies and carbon capture and storage through calls under the Technology Programme. The focus has been on cleaner combustion technologies, fuel switching to lower carbon alternatives and carbon capture and storage. This funding will continue through 2007 at which stage the new arrangements for the Technology Strategy Board and Energy Technologies Institute will be introduced.

In September 2006 the Department launched a Carbon Abatement Technologies Demonstration Programme, worth some £35 million. This programme will focus on the pre-commercial demonstration of key components and systems to support carbon abatement technologies.

In the 2007 Budget Government announced that we would launch a competition to develop the UK's first commercial scale demonstration of CCS. The recent Energy White Paper confirms that the competition is planned to be launched in November 2007.

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to paragraphs 2.69 and 2.70 of the Energy White Paper, what estimate he has made of the number of free visual real-time displays of energy consumption to be given to consumers in each year from 2008. [141385]

Malcolm Wicks: Around 1.25 million electricity meters are replaced each year. Each household whose meter was replaced would be eligible to receive a display device, subject to its being technically possible to fit one. Additionally, the Government estimate that up to 5,000,000 customers might request a display device from their supplier over the two-year period to 2010. The proposals in the Energy White Paper will be subject to consultation including testing these assumptions in the coming months.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the additional income received by power generating companies as a consequence of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme in each year since its commencement; and if he will make a statement. [141654]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Analysis by IPA Energy Consulting Ltd., carried out for DTI, estimates the potential for an increase in wholesale generator profit of £800 million a year as a result of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme. This is based on the assumptions that electricity generators pass on the full costs of carbon allowances through to higher electricity prices, a carbon price of €15 and the current Phase I annual allocation to the sector of 130MtCO_2. However, this figure is dependent on modelling assumptions and is subject to considerable uncertainty. In particular, the current price of Phase I ETS allowances is significantly lower than €15, so the potential for increased profits will be less than £800 million.

Export Credit Guarantees: Coal Fired Power Stations

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many export credit guarantees were granted to British firms involved in constructing coal-fired power stations in each of the last five years. [140901]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 6 June 2007]: None.

Information

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to publish the Government's response to the Office of Fair Trading's report The Commercial Use of Public Information. [141325]

Mr. McCartney: The OFT's report contains some challenging recommendations. Given the importance and potential impact of the recommendations, and the wider constituency of interested parties both within and outside Government, more time was required to properly frame the response. The Government expect to publish their response to the report before the end of June.

We will communicate further when the report is published.

National Institute for Medical Research

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the future of the National Institute for Medical Research. [141663]

Malcolm Wicks: The National Institute for Medical Research (NIMR) is a wholly owned Institute of the Medical Research Council (MRC). The MRC has stated that it wishes NIMR in future to work with leading university research and clinical partners so as to improve the translation of research into improved health outcomes.

The MRC is currently preparing a business case that will address the options for taking this forward and assesses opportunities to develop a wider vision for enhanced collaboration with other funding bodies and industrial partners.

Political Levy

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will place in the Library figures held by the Certification Office on (a) the percentage of union members paying into a political fund, (b) the proportion of political fund expenditure spent on affiliation fees, (c) the contribution per union member to the political fund and (d) the percentage of union members paying into a political fund included in the calculation of the affiliation fee for each trade union in the most recent year for which figures are available. [142182]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I am placing in the Libraries of the House the latest annual returns to the certification officer of the 28 unions with political funds. These returns contain the data provided to the certification officer on the income and expenditure of each political fund.

Seals: Animal Products

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with the Canadian Government on the annual Canadian commercial seal hunt; and if he will make a statement. [141583]

Mr. McCartney: Canada is aware of the UK's opposition to its commercial seal hunt and the matter was last discussed at Government level when I met Canada's Ambassador for Fisheries and others on 28 March. The Canadians also raised the issue at the EU-Canada Summit on 4 June 2007.

Working Hours: Parents

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of (i) mothers and (ii) fathers who work hours outside the typical 8.30 am to 5.30 pm Monday to Friday working week (A) at least once a week, (B) at least twice a week, (C) at least three times a week and (D) at least four times a week. [141690]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Labour Force Survey (LFS) does not collect data on working 8:30 am to 5:30 pm but collects data on shift patterns. The following estimates are derived from the LFS spring 2006 survey of all UK employees and cover employees with dependent children under 19.

30 per cent. of fathers (1.56 million) and 28 per cent. of mothers (1.47 million) usually work at least one day in the weekend.

17 per cent. of fathers (890,000) and 15 per cent. of mothers (800,000) usually work both days at the weekend.

36 per cent. of fathers (1.83 million) and 27 per cent. of mothers (1.44 million) usually work evenings, nights or shifts.

47 per cent. of fathers (2.40 million) and 39 per cent. of mothers (2.06 million) usually work either shifts, evenings, nights or days at the weekend.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Architects Registration Board

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what basis the Architects Registration Board took the decision to spend £100,000 on legal action against Ian Salisbury, one of its former board members. [140846]

Angela E. Smith: Any decision to issue legal proceedings is a matter for the Board to decide in the course of exercising its statutory functions. I am assured that the Board would only expect to issue proceedings as a last resort, on legal advice and following strenuous efforts to resolve matters without proceedings. The proceedings between the Board and Mr Salisbury were settled on terms satisfactory to both parties.

Audit Commission: Visits Abroad

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the visits which representatives of the Audit Commission have made outside the UK at public expense in the last 12 months. [141756]

Ruth Kelly: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member. The Chief Executive subsequently replied on 11 June and a copy of the letter has been placed in the Library of the House.

Constituencies: Greater London

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to amend the boundaries of Greater London; and what representations she has received on this in the last 12 months. [141873]

Ruth Kelly: The Department has no plans to amend the boundaries of Greater London, and has received no representations on this matter over the past year.

Council Tax

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the likely changes in the level of council tax for residents in each of the shire counties in which consideration is being given to (a) new unitary authority arrangements and (b) enhanced two-tier working arrangements if those arrangements are implemented. [141623]

Mr. Woolas: The Government have not made any estimate of the likely changes in council tax arising from any new unitary authority arrangements or enhanced two-tier working arrangements. The Government have made clear that proposals for new arrangements must represent value for money and be met from existing resources. As part of their business case for new arrangements, bidding authorities were required to include worked examples of how an authority could align council tax across its area. Copies of the business cases are available from the authorities' own websites, accessible via a link on the Communities and Local Government website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1509022

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many times her Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139207]

Angela E. Smith: The definition of 'found to have been in breach' is a broad one. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the Courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in her Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141967]

Angela E. Smith: There are no ministerial residences allocated to Communities and Local Government Ministers.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139321]

Angela E. Smith: No land or buildings for which Communities and Local Government, its agencies or its predecessor Department are responsible for, has been sold in the last five years.

This answer does not include land or buildings occupied by Government Offices, which carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent estimate has been made of the value of her Department's property portfolio. [139384]

Angela E. Smith: The most recent valuation dates of the Department's property assets, not including properties held by sponsored bodies, were 31 March 2006 (audited) and 31 March 2007 (not yet audited) and the total portfolio value at both dates was £25 million.

This answer does not include land or buildings occupied by Government Offices, which carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance the Audit Commission has produced on the effectiveness of moving to alternate weekly collections in terms of meeting the objectives of waste management. [141818]

Ruth Kelly: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member. The Chief Executive subsequently replied on 11 June and a copy of the letter has been placed in the Library of the House.

Fire Services

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her estimate is of the percentage of work currently carried out by emergency fire controls which is out of scope of the Fire Control Project but which will remain the responsibility of local fire brigades; and what her estimate is of the cost of carrying out the work currently deemed out of scope. [142178]

Angela E. Smith: All aspects of emergency call handling, mobilisation and incident management are within the scope of the new networked Regional Control Centres (RCCs), and their costs are reflected in the FiReControl business case.

In 2006, based on detailed information provided by the Fire and Rescue Service (FRS), a preliminary estimate was made of the activities which are currently performed within existing control rooms and how they might be delivered under the new regional control arrangements. The ongoing cost to FRSs was estimated to be around £4 million per annum.

Significant local differences exist in the amount of "out of scope" activity carried out by existing control rooms. Each FRS will need to produce a plan for dealing with this work as part of its detailed transition planning. This will provide a more accurate estimate of the cost of continuing to deliver these activities.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she will consider the introduction of national response times for the Fire Service following the move to regional fire controls in order to determine whether response times from time of call to arrival at an incident will improve after regional controls go live; and if she will make a statement. [142179]

Angela E. Smith: It is for each Fire and Rescue Authority to determine appropriate response times as part of its integrated risk management plan. The Government have no plans to introduce national targets. As part of the process of introducing Regional Control Centres the Department has developed a set of benefits indicators, one of which will enable it to show the impact of Regional Control Centres on response times. Two features of the fire control system, Automatic Vehicle Location Systems (AVLS) and the ability to dynamically mobilise fire appliances directly, even when they are not in a fire station, are expected to put a downward pressure on response times. There are a number of other factors affecting response times, including the number and location of fire appliances as well as the control arrangements.

Freedom of Information: Easington District Council

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to respond to the District of Easington Council with the information requested under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 on 4 April 2007; what the reasons are for the delay; and if she will make a statement. [141941]

Angela E. Smith: The Freedom of Information request from Easington district council seeks information about the proposal by Durham county council for a unitary local authority for Durham, and is one of a large number of requests received on unitary proposals. The Department wrote to Easington district council on 4 May informing them that we did hold information which came within their request, but that the information came within the qualified exemptions to the Freedom of Information Act 2000, and that we required further time to assess whether the public interest in withholding the information outweighs the public interest in disclosing it. We intend to respond to the request no later than 15 June 2007.

Housing: Camden

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with Camden council on funding for Decent Homes; and if she will make a statement. [141301]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has not had any meetings with Camden council about their decent homes programme or funding. As Minister for Housing I met Camden council on 24 May this year to discuss decent homes. I previously met the council on 18 July 2005.

Housing: Construction

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the guidance on the use of windfall land to meet regional housing targets in Planning Policy Statement 3 differs from the 2000 edition of Planning Policy Guidance Note 3; and if she will make a statement. [129364]

Yvette Cooper: Reflecting the need to build more homes across the country to meet the needs of our growing population, and the plan-led approach to the provision of housing, Planning Policy Statement 3: "Housing" (PPS3) asks local authorities, wherever possible, to identify specific sites for housing in their plans.

In some circumstances it may make sense for local authorities to include a windfall allowance in planning their land supply. PPS3 makes clear that it is open to local authorities to do this if they can clearly demonstrate why, in the particular circumstances of their local area, specific sites cannot be identified.

Planning Policy Guidance 3: "Housing" (PPG3: (2000), which new PPS3 replaces, asked local authorities to make specific allowances for windfalls in their plans.

We want authorities to plan properly for their housing provision, on the basis of specific sites that reflect clear and informed strategies for the location of housing development, and for the infrastructure needed to service it.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration has been given to ways of decreasing the potential damage to health from small particle emissions in housing developments near roads. [141118]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

Health based air quality standards have been set both at a domestic and EU level on a range of air pollutants, including particulate matter. Action to improve air quality is underway across Government at national, international and local levels.

The introduction of the "Euro" series of progressively tighter emission standards has been underway since 1992, and has drastically lowered the permitted limits for particulate matter emission from new diesel vehicles. This has been complemented by improvements in product standards for petrol and diesel, which have lowered the permitted amounts of certain pollutant-forming substances in these fuels. Further "Euro" vehicle emission standards, with even tighter emission limits for particles, are due to be introduced between now and 2014. This is supported by other Government action, including the promotion of cleaner, less polluting fuel and vehicle technologies.

Local authorities are also taking forward their duty to review and assess air quality in their areas against objectives for a range of pollutants. If there is a likely chance of failure in meeting any of these objectives, an authority is required to declare an Air Quality Management Area and take forward action plans within its remit to address the problem. Such action is progressed in coordination with other agencies, including the Highways Agency and Environment Agency.

The content of action plans varies from one authority to another, and depends upon the sources of the pollutants of concern. However, common elements where emissions from roads are a particular problem include:

(i) A commitment to working closely with the Highways Agency on possible emissions reduction measures where trunk roads are major local sources of pollutants;

(ii) Local traffic management measures to limit access to, or re-route traffic away from, problem areas. Low emission zones are a possible solution that some authorities have been looking at in this context;

(iii) Commitment to developing green travel plans and/or to using cleaner-fuelled vehicles in the authority's own fleet;

(iv) A strategy for informing members of the public about air quality issues, via local newsletters or other media;

(v) Quality partnerships with bus or fleet operators to deliver cleaner, quieter vehicles in return for the provision of better bus lanes or more flexible delivery arrangements; and

(vi) local walking and cycling strategies.

Housing: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex are on waiting lists for social housing. [141889]

Yvette Cooper: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households on the waiting list for social housing in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. The link for this table is as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1163853

Local authorities in England currently report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual housing strategy statistical appendix returns.

Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties were (a) bought and (b) part-bought in (i) Somerset and (ii) Taunton constituency under the Government's Homebuy scheme in each of the last five years. [141228]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the total number of properties purchased under low cost home ownership schemes in each of the last five years for Somerset and for the area covered by Taunton Deane borough council. This information is not held on a constituency basis.

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-7[1]
Somerset
Shared ownership	16	20	53	79	96
Shared equity	5	12	8	17	9
Taunton Deane
Shared ownership	—	—	—	25	—
Shared equity	—	4	2	8	4

[1] Provisional.

Source:
Housing Corporation

The shared ownership schemes (currently known as new build homebuy) have allowed applicants buy a share of a property (from 25 per cent.-75 per cent.) and pay rent to a housing association on the remaining share which they do not own.

The shared equity schemes (currently known as open market homebuy) have enabled people to buy a property on the open market with the help of equity loans. Under the current scheme purchasers buy the property outright, but only need to raise around 75 per cent. of the purchase price of their home from a conventional mortgage. The balance is made up by two equity loans, each of around 12.5 per cent. of the purchase price. One loan comes from Government through a homebuy agent and the other comes from one of four mortgage lenders participating in the homebuy scheme.

Housing: Northamptonshire

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many dwellings were located in (a) Northamptonshire, (b) North Northamptonshire and (c) Wellingborough in (i) April 1997 and (ii) the latest date for which figures are available. [141590]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The information requested has been tabulated as follows:

	31 March 1997	31 March 2006
Corby	21,681	23,936
Daventry	27,165	32,538
East Northamptonshire	29,818	35,344
Kettering	34,252	38,746
Northampton	79,453	86,959
South Northamptonshire	29,503	34,858
Wellingborough	29,449	31,643
Northamptonshire	251,321	284,024

Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix

Communities and Local Government do not define an area for North Northamptonshire so figures have been provided for each district in Northamptonshire.

Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidelines her Department has issued to local authorities on the subject of basement excavations to residential properties; and if she will make a statement. [141165]

Angela E. Smith: Officials from the Department of Communities and Local Government have recently helped with revising the industry-led Approved Document—Basements for Dwellings. This helpful document which is aimed primarily at the home owner and small builder is available from the Basement Information Centre in Camberley, Surrey. It is referenced on the Communities and Local Government website.

Local Government: Standards

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities, classified by Government office region, have public service agreement (PSA) targets which include adoption targets; what the target for adoption is in each case; and how much money each local authority will receive if it achieves all of its PSA targets. [142138]

Mr. Woolas: There are 61 reward targets in local public service agreements and local area agreements which measure performance on adoption and/or stability of placements for looked-after children. Reward would be payable to local authorities and their partners for achievement of these particular targets. Details on each target have been made available in the Library of the House.

Non-Domestic Rates: Exemptions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to undertake a review of business rates exemptions. [141755]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given, to the hon. Member for Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) on 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 191W.

Planning: Land Use

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition she uses of genuine local circumstances that would allow windfall sites to be included in local authority plans. [131623]

Yvette Cooper: Planning Policy Statement 3 (PPS3) "Housing" asks local authorities to identify specific sites which will deliver their housing numbers and brownfield targets. In doing so it makes clear that allowances for windfalls should not be included in the first 10 years of the plan. This is intended to help achieve, within the plan-led system, the twin aims of giving certainty that land will come forward, and of demonstrating to local communities and developers where development will be accepted. The plan process, with its community involvement and public examination, gives the opportunity for an open debate about local authorities' policies and strategies for development.

However, where local planning authorities can provide robust evidence of genuine local circumstances that prevent specific sites being identified, a windfall allowance may be justified. The circumstances, by their very nature, will vary depending on local factors relevant to individual local planning authorities. And the Strategic Housing Land Availability Assessment will be key to this. In PPS3 we have also said that any such allowance should be realistic having regard to evidence of land availability, historic windfall delivery rates and expected future trends.

Property: Fires

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total insured fire losses for (a) dwellings and (b) commercial premises for each fire and rescue service have been in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available, broken down by region. [142177]

Angela E. Smith: Information on total insured fire losses is collected by the Association of British Insurers (ABI). Data for the last 10 years are shown as follows. The information is not available for individual fire and rescue services. The table includes the costs of business interruption following fire damage.

Gross insured fire-related claims, Great Britain, 1997-2006

£ million

	Domestic fire damage	Commercial fire damage	Business interruption following fire damage
1997	270	492	221
1998	281	602	207
1999	286	579	99
2000	333	521	122
2001	371	679	84
2002	346	799	209
2003	360	707	81
2004	326	486	98

Regional Planning and Development

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the criteria for designating an organisation as a regional planning body. [141820]

Ruth Kelly: The criteria for recognising a body as a regional planning body are set out under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 and its supporting regional planning regulations, Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning)(England) Regulations 2004 No. 2203.

Social Rented Housing: Construction

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many units of social housing were built in each local government area in each year since 1997. [127872]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of social rent homes provided in each local government area in each financial year since 1997-98 are shown in a table which has been placed in the Library of the House. The table includes both new build and acquisitions.

For 2006-07, provisional figures indicate that around 25,000 social rented homes were provided. For 2007-08 we are currently estimating that 30,000 social rented homes will be delivered.

Social Rented Housing: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many units of social housing there were in each London local authority in (a) 1986, (b) 1996 and (c) 2006; and how many of these were three-bedrooms or larger. [137767]

Yvette Cooper: Numbers of social dwellings for rent in each London borough that are owned or managed by local authorities and registered social landlords (RSLs) are tabulated as follows. Figures are as reported by local authorities and RSLs.

Number of social for rent dwellings in London by borough, 1986, 1996 and 2006

Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix from Local Authorities and Regulatory Statistical Return from Registered Social Landlords

For 2006 RSL stock are comprised of general needs self-contained units and supported/older people self-contained units and bed spaces as self-contained units are not shown separately at local authority level.

Information on the number of bedrooms is not available centrally.

Homes for social rent only makes up part of the affordable supply; the remainder is provided through low cost home ownership or other sub-market rental products. Between 1 April 1996 and 31 March 2006, 108,815 affordable homes were provided through these schemes in London.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were registered on local authority housing waiting lists in each (a) English region and (b) London local authority in (i) 1986, (ii) 1996 and (iii) 2006. [137770]

Yvette Cooper: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households on the waiting list for social housing in each English region and London local authority in 1986, 1996 and 2006 is given in the table:

Local authorities in England currently report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns.

Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Aid

6. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what mechanisms he uses to measure the effectiveness and impacts of aid; and if he will make a statement. [142241]

Hilary Benn: The Government are committed to ensuring that UK aid is used effectively to make a difference to the lives of the world's poorest people. Our international development assistance is scrutinised by Parliament and by the National Audit Office. DFID has its own evaluation, audit and reporting under the International Development (Reporting and Transparency) Act, and I am establishing a new Independent Advisory Committee for Development Impact.

International mechanisms include monitoring aid effectiveness under the Paris Declaration, and by the OECD Development Assistance Committee, which found DFID to be a model of development cooperation.

Middle East

7. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's priorities are in Palestine. [142244]

Hilary Benn: We are providing support to the Palestinians through the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) and the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA).

DFID has given £15 million through the TIM, which has supported Palestinian health services, allowances for government workers and the provision of water, sanitation and electricity services.

DFID also gave £15.6 million to UNRWA in April. This is helping it provide essential services such as health, education and housing to 4.1 million Palestinian refugees in the West Bank, Gaza, Lebanon, Jordan and Syria.

Vulture Funds

8. Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government are taking to tackle the operation of vulture funds. [142245]

10. Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions his Department has had with HM Treasury on vulture funds; and if he will make a statement. [142247]

Mr. Thomas: DFID regularly works closely with HM Treasury on vulture funds.

The UK deplores the actions of so-called vulture funds and will work to limit their impact by:

working with the World Bank to make the debt reduction facility, which helps countries buy back their commercial debts at heavily discounted rates, more effective; working with the African Development Bank and others to ensure that countries have access to legal assistance to fight ongoing cases; proposing a voluntary charter for creditors to help avoid debts being sold to vulture funds; strengthening debt management in heavily indebted poor countries.

Latin America

9. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on his Department's regional assistance programme for Latin America for 2008-11. [142246]

Mr. Thomas: A consultation document on DFID's plans for Latin America from 2008 to 2011 can be found on DFID's website (www.dfid.gov.uk).

DFID's proposed approach includes retaining a presence in Bolivia, Nicaragua and Brazil, a continued partnership with the World Bank and Inter-America Development Bank, and a continued focus on market opportunities for the poor and governance.

There would be also a new focus on climate change, and DFID will work closely with Brazil as a global and regional champion of development issues. The bilateral programme in Nicaragua will continue.

Poverty Reduction

11. Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of (a) the UK's and (b) the G8 countries' contributions to reducing poverty in the last two years following the Gleneagles summit. [142248]

Hilary Benn: There has been some good progress on reducing poverty in the last two years as set out in DFID's annual report to Parliament. Globally there has been a significant rise in global aid—by 25 per cent. to just over $100 billion since 2004. However there is still much more to be done and it is a priority for the UK Government to work with others to ensure the Gleneagles commitments are implemented.

G8

12. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his assessment is of the outcomes of the recent G8 meeting in respect of international development. [142249]

Hilary Benn: On climate change, the G8 summit made significant progress towards a new global agreement.

The summit also reaffirmed the Gleneagles commitments on aid, and set out how the commitment to AIDS will be delivered with additional funding and help for vulnerable mothers and children.

Somalia

13. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Somalia. [142250]

Hilary Benn: We are in close contact with the relief agencies who make regular assessments of the situation on the ground. The UN estimates that more than one million Somalis need direct humanitarian assistance and the entire population of southern and central Somalia, over four million people, are at risk. There are high levels of starvation and epidemic disease, and the continuing insecurity has a direct effect, with people being killed and wounded, robbed, raped and otherwise abused. Another indirect effect of the fighting is that it disrupts the efforts of Somalis to pursue their livelihoods and access basic services.

Africa: Housing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects his Department has undertaken to improve housing conditions for the urban poor in African cities. [141629]

Hilary Benn: DFID works primarily through the UN Human Settlements Programme—better known as "UN Habitat"—the UN agency charged in 1978 with promoting socially and environmentally sustainable towns and cities through the provision of adequate shelter for all. UN Habitat is the mandated lead agency of the UN for cities, urban poverty, and slum dwellers. DFID provides core funding to UN Habitat of £1 million per year.

DFID also supports the joint donor initiative Cities Alliance, which works with partners with municipal governments on city development strategies and slum upgrading. DFID is providing £3 million over four years to the Cities Alliance to strengthen urban planning in developing countries.

UN Habitat and Cities Alliance jointly manage the Slum Upgrading Facility (SUF), a technical assistance and bridging-finance facility to develop projects that attract domestic capital and investment for urban regeneration, primarily in cities in the developing world. The SUF's £5.9 million programme has targeted six African countries: Ghana, Senegal, Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zambia.

Cities Alliance further manages, with the NGO Homeless International, the Community Lead Infrastructure Financing Facility (CLIFF). CLIFF is an investment fund mechanism for assisting organisations working with the urban poor to access private finance to undertake infrastructure initiatives in partnership with municipalities. Working in partnership with poor communities, CLIFF aims to access resources from public and private sectors for slum-upgrading projects. CLIFF has recently begun expanding its work to Kenya.

Through its bilateral programmes, DFID also supports local programmes, for example in Kenya with the Centre for Housing Rights and Evictions (CHoRE). This organisation campaigns for the protection of housing rights and the prevention of forced evictions. DFID supported the development of National Evictions Guidelines for Kenya.

Trade Unions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what payments were made (a) by and (b) through his Department to overseas (i) trades unions and (ii) collections of trade unionists from the public purse in each year since May 1997; and what the (A) value and (B) recipient was of each. [141292]

Mr. Thomas: The information requested is not collated centrally. To answer this question in full would incur disproportionate cost.

DFID supports progress towards the millennium development goals by working through a wide range of partners, including national governments and local civil society organisations (including trade unions). DFID works with trade unions and collections of trade unionists when this is judged to be an effective and efficient means of helping reduce poverty. Civil society (including trade unions) can play a critical role in helping poor people hold their governments to account and have a voice in decisions which affect their lives.

For example, our country offices in South Africa, Nigeria, Ghana, Sierra Leone and Tanzania are providing direct support to local trade unions. DFID also funds a number of poverty reduction projects implemented by domestic trade unions—such as TUC Aid helping to promote workers' rights and secure better living standards in Sierra Leone (starting 2007-08, £400,000 over three years) and UNISON strengthening the public sector union response to tackling HIV/AIDS in southern Africa (starting 2007-08, £350,000 over three years).

Developing Countries: Community Development

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans his Department has to support community organisations in the developing world. [141628]

Mr. Thomas: DFID provides financial support to community organisations in the developing world both directly and through UK civil society organisations. As the National Audit Office reported last year, DFID support to civil society organisations as a whole has grown fast since 1997, keeping track with the growing aid budget.

It is a priority for us to help build the capacity of civil society in developing countries, including community groups, to hold local and national governments to account. This is the focus of the new Governance and Transparency Fund (GTF), which will provide £100 million support over the next five years. In order to maximise local involvement and capacity building, successful applicants must grant at least 85 per cent. of their GTF funds to local partners in developing countries.

Another new approach to assisting community groups among others, while also raising levels of awareness about global issues in the UK, is the proposed Linking scheme set out in the White Paper. This proposes to support links between UK groups and counterparts in the developing world. A public consultation has just closed and DFID in now considering how to take this forward.

International Assistance: Environment Protection

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what account is taken by his Department of environmental factors when undertaking development projects. [141630]

Mr. Thomas: DFID makes sure that potential environmental aspects of development projects are taken into account during their design and implementation. Environmental screening is mandatory during the preparation of all DFID projects over £1 million. It is used to identify and address environmental risks and opportunities associated with DFID funded projects. The screening process identifies actions required to address potential environmental impacts.

A review of environmental screening for the financial years 2003-04 and 2004-05 was published in September 2006 as Evaluation Working Paper No. 21. This is available on DFID's website at:

www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/environmental-screening-review.pdf.

Lebanon

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1091-92W, on Lebanon, what UK initiatives to promote democratic oversight of reconstruction spending and planning in Lebanon are in place; and if he will make a statement. [141182]

Hilary Benn: Together with the British embassy in Beirut, DFID continues to monitor, and engage with efforts to promote democratic oversight of, reconstruction spending and planning. The embassy funded a recent UK parliamentary/National Audit Office mission to Beirut to help the Lebanese Parliament explore what steps might be needed to strengthen its budgetary oversight role. Such initiatives highlight the importance of resuming the normal operation of the Lebanese Parliament, and have the potential to contribute to addressing some of the issues underlying the conflict.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1091-2W, on Lebanon, what assessment he has made of the (a) impact and (b) potential impact of the recent conflict and instability in Lebanon on UK bilateral programmes in (i) the Occupied Palestinian Territory and (ii) Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [141183]

Hilary Benn: The recent conflict and instability in Lebanon has not affected our bilateral programmes either in the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPTs) or in Iraq. DFID continues to monitor the situation and will react accordingly.

Lebanon: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the numbers of individuals displaced within Lebanon by the recent violence; and whether any changes are planned to the UK's humanitarian assistance for Lebanon. [141218]

Hilary Benn: The United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) has reported that due to the recent violence in Lebanon, over 20,000 people have been displaced from the Nahr al-Barid Palestinian refugee camp. Most have fled to the nearby Beddawi refugee camp and some to other refugee camps in South Lebanon. Indications are that there are between 3,000 and 5,000 refugees remaining inside the camp. UNRWA estimates that around 27,000 refugees were living in the camp before the crisis, although some reports put the number as high as 40,000.

The UK is providing £100 million of unearmarked funding over five years to UNRWA, of which around 20 per cent. historically goes to Lebanon. This support provides UNRWA with the funding predictability that enables more effective planning, and the flexibility for UNRWA to allocate funds where they are most needed. We will continue to watch how the situation in Lebanon develops and remain ready to provide additional support as appropriate based on humanitarian need and the country's and agencies' ability to respond. The EC is providing €370,000 of humanitarian assistance of which the UK share is £45,000.

Nepal: Education

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will provide a breakdown of how the £60 million funding for education in Nepal announced on 5 April is proposed to be spent; and what the time scale is for the release of the funding. [141061]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is planning to spend £60 million on education in Nepal between now and 2015. We plan to gradually increase our support to education from its current level of £5 million a year as the political environment in Nepal improves following the recent peace agreement between the government and the Maoists. DFID currently puts all of its support into the Government's Education for All programme, which is supported by other donors and which has resulted in increases in enrolment to primary education, despite the ongoing conflict, including for girls and disadvantaged groups.

Education for All will finish in 2009 and will be superseded by a new government programme that covers both primary and secondary education, which DFID will support. We will work with other donors and the government of Nepal to continue to improve access at all levels, especially for socially excluded groups. We will also help the Government to improve the quality of education, in particular by increasing teacher numbers in overcrowded schools and increasing classroom building.

Education has a vital role to play in stabilising the peace in Nepal after the recent conflict, much of which was motivated by inequality, including inequality in gaining access to government services.

Pakistan: Rural Areas

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects his Department supports in the rural areas of Pakistan. [141631]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is supporting the following programmes that are focused mainly on the rural areas of Pakistan.

Duration	Programme	Objective	Value (£ million)
2006-08	Post-Earthquake Rehabilitation and Reconstruction	To enable people in earthquake-affected areas, particularly the poor and vulnerable, to reconstruct and rehabilitate their lives	70
2007-10	Improving Citizen Engagement through Devolution	To create an enabling environment based on shared rights and responsibilities for citizen participation and community empowerment in all union councils of Pakistan	18
2006-10	Rural Support Programmes Network Phase II	To mobilise society and the state to meet the development needs of poor women and men in Rural Support Programme areas throughout Pakistan	10
2003-08	Rural Water Supply and Sanitation Project	Improved and sustainable access to safe drinking water and sanitation by poor people in rural parts of North West Frontier Province	6.5
2001-07	Neelum Valley Health Programme	Access to basic health care facilities for 43,000 people in Neelum Valley	1.35

In addition, DFID is supporting many programmes that benefit rural areas as well as other parts of Pakistan. For example, DFID is providing over £68 million for the National Health Facility, which is funding a number of large-scale programmes in rural and urban areas.

Indirect DFID support for rural areas in Pakistan is provided through multilateral agencies such as the World Bank and the European Commission. Many of these agencies have large-scale programmes directly targeted at rural areas.

Palestinians: International Assistance

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact the temporary international mechanism to deliver aid to the Palestinians has had on the number of Palestinian families living beneath the poverty line; and if he will make a statement. [141660]

Hilary Benn: At the start of 2006 the World Bank predicted that the Palestinian economy would contract by 27 per cent. during the year. The latest estimates are that the economy in fact contracted by 5-10 per cent. in 2006. Increased EU funding through the temporary international mechanism (TIM) alongside other donor funding, mostly from Arab states, made a substantial contribution to slowing this economic decline. The World Bank and the European Commission are currently assessing the impact of the TIM. The results of this review are expected to be available soon.

However, despite increased donor funding, poverty rates have almost doubled, up from 22 per cent. to 56 per cent. in the West Bank and from 43 per cent. to 87 per cent. in Gaza. The main reasons for this are the effects on the Palestinian economy of Israel's suspension of the transfer of Palestinian tax revenues and Israeli security restrictions on Palestinian movement and access to markets.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what level of annual income for Palestinian Authority employees is used to determine eligibility for funding under the temporary international mechanism; whether any other criteria affect eligibility; and if he will make a statement. [141662]

Hilary Benn: There is now no income limit for eligibility to allowances provided by the temporary international mechanism (TIM). The TIM provides a monthly allowance of 1500 Israeli Shekels (about £180) to all 71,000 civilian Palestinian authority employees and to 6,600 pensioners. It also pays a quarterly allowance of 1500 Israeli Shekels to 75,000 of the poorest and most vulnerable Palestinian families, as defined by the Ministry of Social Affairs and the World Food programme. Excluded from benefiting are individuals appearing on internationally recognised terrorist lists. Only one person has so far been excluded on this basis. With an estimated household size of six, almost one million people have so far benefited from the TIM, about a quarter of the Palestinian population in the occupied Palestinian territories.

Sri Lanka: Overseas Aid

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of international aid provided by his Department in 2006 was given to Sri Lanka. [142049]

Mr. Thomas: DFID reports its expenditure in financial rather than calendar years. Therefore figures used are provisional bilateral outturn figures for the 2006-07 financial year. Final statistics will be published in Statistics on International Development 2007 in October.

	£ million
Total DFID bilateral aid	2,515.12
Total Asia	872.54
Sri Lanka	5.91

The percentage of aid for Sri Lanka is 0.2 per cent. of the total DFID Bilateral outturn.

Figures were published on 12 June and further details are available on the DFID website http://www.dfid.gov.uk/news/files/pressreleases/statsrelease-bilateralaid200607.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contribution the UK has made to emergency relief to Darfur. [142309]

Hilary Benn: The UK is heavily engaged in Darfur on a number of levels. DFID has spent over £142 million supporting emergency relief operations in the region since October 2003. The UK is also prominent in efforts to make the humanitarian response in Sudan more effective. This includes advocacy and support for humanitarian agencies operating on the ground and through our £40 million contribution in 2007 to the pioneering Common Humanitarian Fund, allowing the UN Humanitarian Coordinator to direct resources at the areas of greatest need across the country.

The UK is working at the highest level to secure a lasting peace in Darfur, regularly raising the need to resolve the Darfur conflict with the parties and with international partners. The UK has also contributed £73 million to the African Union Mission in Sudan to help support the protection of civilians in Darfur.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Aral Sea: Environment Protection

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received of the environmental effects of the drainage of the Aral Sea; and if she will make a statement. [142120]

Mr. Hoon: The Aral Sea has been recognised as the world's worst artificial ecological disaster. From 1960 to 2000 it lost 75 per cent. of its volume and 50 per cent. of its surface area. Its degradation has been ruinous to the people, plant and animal life in the region. None of the twenty species of fish once found in the Aral have survived. However, a dam has now been placed between the northern and southern part of the Aral Sea, built with international assistance from the World Bank. Since completion in 2005, the World Bank reports that the water-level in the northern part of the sea has gradually risen and, between 2003 and 2006, increased by 13 per cent. in surface area (from 2,850 km sq to 3,250 km sq).

A spillway passing excess water from the northern to the southern part of the Aral Sea has been operational since February 2006 and the water level in the southern part is also now likely to increase in the future, though probably only marginally. Salinity levels of both parts of the sea have been reduced over the last two years and several freshwater fish have been returned to the sea. As such, fish harvests have considerably increased during the past two years.

According to the World Bank, the next step is to improve the irrigation efficiency of the land in the Kazakh part of the Aral Sea basin. Additional waterworks are also planned to restore wetlands and fishing lakes in the delta region. A World Bank project to this end began in 2007 and a project monitoring mission to the Aral Sea is currently underway.

Baker-Hamilton Commission

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her US counterpart on new talks based on the Baker-Hamilton Commission. [140682]

Dr. Howells: Following publication of the Baker-Hamilton report, the Government of Iraq made clear that it would lead any discussion on Iraq by the international community. At its invitation, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and the US Secretary of State both attended the Iraq Neighbours Conference in Sharm El-Sheikh on 4 May. Both the US and we look forward to continuing discussion with Iraq, its neighbours and the wider international community through this format.

Bangladesh: Political Prisoners

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she has made representations on the detention without trial of the former prime minister of Bangladesh, Mondud Ahmed, to the military government of Bangladesh. [142447]

Dr. Howells: We understand that a court hearing on this case is due to take place on 17 June. It is the right of the caretaker government of Bangladesh to take legitimate measures against corruption and the abuse of public office. We have made clear to them the need to resolve the cases of those in detention promptly and through due process. We continue to urge the caretaker government, the armed forces and the law enforcement agencies to act impartially and with respect for human rights and the rule of law.

Burma: Refugees

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what representations she has made to the government of (a) Burma and (b) Thailand on employment and education for refugees that live in camps on the border; [140993]

(2) what representations she has made to the government of (a) Thailand and (b) Malaysia on extending refugee status to parents and children of Burmese residents in camps within their borders. [140994]

Mr. McCartney: Our Embassy in Bangkok has regular discussions, both bilaterally and together with EU counterparts, with the Government of Thailand and the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) about the welfare of refugees in Thailand. These discussions include the question of the refugees' status and access to education and employment. Officials from our Embassy in Bangkok regularly visit the refugee camps to monitor conditions, most recently in May this year.

We have made no representations to the Burmese government about employment and education opportunities for refugees in Thailand.

We have made no representations to the Malaysian government on the status of Burmese refugees. However, our High Commission in Kuala Lumpur remains in close contact with UNHCR about issues concerning refugees in Malaysia.

Burma: Tourism

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps have been taken to reduce the number of British tourists visiting Burma. [142037]

Mr. McCartney: My right. hon. Friend the Prime Minister stated in January 2005 that anyone who may be thinking of visiting Burma on holiday should consider carefully whether by their actions they are helping to support the regime.

The country profile for Burma on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) website draws attention to our position and the views of Aung San Suu Kyi on tourism. The FCO Travel Advice on Burma includes a link to the country profile so that those thinking of travelling to Burma will be aware of this.

The FCO's country profile on Burma can be found at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?=pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029394365&a=KCountryProfile&aid=1018965307901.

The FCO's Travel Advice on Burma can be found at:

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the security risks to (a) British tourists and (b) Burmese citizens if such tourists engage local people in political discussions in Burma; and what advice her Department gives to British citizens on this issue. [142038]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) Travel Advice for Burma advises that

"there are stringent restrictions on freedom of speech, movement, religion, and political activity. Foreign nationals criticising the regime in public are liable to arrest or imprisonment".

The FCO's Travel Advice on Burma can be found at:

Burma: Trade

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Burma will be taking part in negotiations regarding a free trade area between the EU and ASEAN. [142035]

Mr. McCartney: The European Commission, on behalf of the EU, and the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) countries as a bloc agreed to enter into negotiations on a Free Trade Agreement (FTA) on 4 May. It is for the ASEAN states to decide how they are to be represented at the negotiations. The mandate to negotiate the FTA was agreed by the EU at the 23 April General Affairs and External Relations Council. The UK and like-minded member states were instrumental in securing language within the council conclusions and the mandate, which will have the effect of excluding Burma from the EU/ASEAN FTA. Burma will not benefit from the proposed EU-ASEAN FTA under its current regime.

Iran: Nuclear Fuels

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in the talks between the EU High Representative Javier Solana and Iranian nuclear negotiator Ali Larijani; and if she will make a statement. [141742]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Dr. Solana met Dr. Larijani on 31 May for talks in Madrid. Iran continues to give no indication that it is willing to comply with its international obligations and suspend all enrichment-related, reprocessing and heavy-water related activities, as the Director-General of the International Atomic Energy Agency, Dr ElBaradei, reported on 23 May. The matter will therefore return to the UN Security Council who will consider further measures on Iran.

Iran: Occupied Palestinian Territories

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment has been made of the role of Iran in the Occupied Palestinian Territories; and if she will make a statement. [141661]

Dr. Howells: We have longstanding concerns that groups seeking to undermine the Middle East peace process through violence draw support from inside Iran. In the occupied Palestinian territories, Iran continues to support Palestinian rejectionist groups including Palestinian Islamic Jihad, which continues to undermine the peace process. Iran also provides ideological and financial support to Hamas. Iran also opposes a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

We support the EU presidency statement of 5 June, which condemned the anti-Israeli comments made by Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. We have called on Iran to renounce all links to groups using terror and violence, to distance itself clearly from all threats made towards Israel, to support a solution to the Palestinian question based on the principle of two states living side by side in peace and security, and to act responsibly in the region.

Nigeria: Elections

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to the Government of Nigeria on the conduct of the Nigerian presidential election in April 2007; if she will press for fresh elections to be held; and if she will make a statement. [140915]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary expressed deep concern about serious flaws in the conduct of the Nigerian elections in her public statement of 23 April.

Our High Commissioner in Abuja raised these concerns in meetings with President Obasanjo and the then President-elect, Umaru Musa Yar'Adua, shortly after the elections in April. My noble Friend the Leader of the House of Lords, right hon. Baroness Amos, also made our disappointment clear to President Obasanjo when she saw him in Nigeria on 28 April. The elections were among the issues that my noble Friend Baroness Royall of Blaisdon discussed with President Yar'Adua when she represented the Government at the President's inauguration on 29 May.

In his inaugural address President Yar'Adua acknowledged there had been shortcomings in the elections and urged anyone aggrieved to pursue the established legal avenues of redress. He also announced that he would set up a panel to examine the electoral process to ensure that standards were raised.

We have not called for the presidential elections to be re-run. We have urged aggrieved parties who wish to challenge the results to do so peacefully, through the appropriate electoral tribunals.

We will continue to watch closely how the Independent National Electoral Commission and the Nigerian Government respond to the concerns and issues raised by Nigerian citizens and international observers.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's statement of 23 April is available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029391629&a=KArticle&aid=1176969243828&year=2007&month=2007-04-01

North Korea: Asylum

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will press China to meet its obligations relating to the refugee status of those North Koreans seeking asylum. [140995]

Mr. McCartney: We take every opportunity to urge China to respect international norms in their treatment of North Koreans who escape into China. We continue to have concerns about repatriation of refugees to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and reports of their subsequent ill-treatment by the North Korean authorities.

Saudi Arabia: Religious Buildings

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to Saudi Arabia on the funding of new and existing mosques in the UK; and what reports she has received on the levels of such funding received (a) from Saudi Arabia and (b) other countries in each of the last three years. [142048]

Dr. Howells: I have made no representations to the Government of Saudi Arabia regarding funding of new or existing mosques in the UK.

A comprehensive response to the second part of the question would necessitate our conducting an investigation, drawing information from a wide range of diplomatic posts. This would take a long time and incur disproportionate cost. However, initial inquiries with our main diplomatic posts in Saudi Arabia, Pakistan and Bangladesh have shown that over the period in question no information on this subject has been received.

Somalia: Human Rights

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on (a) the human rights situation and (b) compliance with humanitarian law in the last month in Somalia. [141515]

Mr. McCartney: We are concerned about the human rights situation in Somalia. In his report to the UN Security Council on 21 May, UN Emergency Relief Co-ordinator John Holmes spoke of "severe breaches of international humanitarian law during the recent fighting, with indiscriminate use of massive force in civilian areas, apparently by all sides".

He also spoke of major human rights violations, including abductions and unlawful killings; and concerns over the apparent arbitrary detention, deportation, and disappearance of individuals.

We condemn human rights violations wherever they arise. All parties in Somalia are aware of our stance on this issue.

Somalia: Peace Keeping Operations

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to encourage the deployment of an international peace-keeping force in Somalia. [141514]

Mr. McCartney: The UK has been very active in helping to deploy an international peace-keeping force in Somalia.

The UK sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1744, which was adopted unanimously on 20 February and which authorised the African Union (AU) Mission for Somalia (AMISOM). The UK has supported the Ugandan contingent with £1.3 million, and has offered financial assistance to other troop contributing countries and to the AU planning cell in Addis Ababa. We strongly supported the EU funding of €15 million for AMISOM. We have also called on other potential donors to consider how they might assist troop contributing countries.

We also support plans for greater UN involvement in Somalia. At the meeting of the International Contact Group on Somalia in London on 6 June, the Group called on the UN to devise plans for a follow-on UN mission.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has held with other EU and NATO member states on the security situation in Somalia. [141516]

Mr. McCartney: We are discussing the grave security situation in Somalia on a regular basis with a range of EU, NATO and other international partners.

The UK hosted the International Contact Group (ICG) on Somalia on 6 June, I will send my hon. Friend a copy of the ICG communique following this meeting and place copies in the Library if the House. At this meeting, we and international partners recognised the relative improvement in security in and around Mogadishu but expressed serious concern about continued sporadic violence. Within the EU, Somalia was discussed most recently by Ministers at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 April and subsequently by senior officials.

Timor-Leste: Elections

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the recent reports from the United Nations Integrated Mission in Timor-Leste on the forthcoming parliamentary elections in Timor-Leste. [141657]

Mr. McCartney: The reports of the UN Integrated Mission to Timor-Leste (UNMIT) show that the East Timorese presidential elections were concluded last month in a democratic and peaceful manner. This was facilitated by the effective security arrangements which exist between the Government of East Timor, UNMIT and the international security forces. UNMIT has indicated that the 30 June parliamentary elections will be a more complex process, but the conduct of the presidential elections is encouraging. We welcome the fact that the 16 competing parties have signed both an electoral code of conduct and a political party accord, committing themselves to due process in the elections and democratic principles of governance after them.

Uzbekistan: Human Rights

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) she and (b) diplomatic and consular staff have had with representatives of the Uzbek Government on the human rights situation in Uzbekistan. [142121]

Mr. Hoon: We remain seriously concerned about the human rights situation in Uzbekistan and closely monitor the situation there, with our EU partners. The first session of the EU-Uzbekistan Human Rights Dialogue took place in May. At that session, the EU discussed a range of human rights issues with senior representatives of the Uzbek Government. We hope that this dialogue will lead to constructive co-operation in areas of concern on human rights. EU Special Representative to Central Asia, Pierre Morel, visited Uzbekistan in May and raised human rights concerns with the Uzbek Government.

Our Ambassador in Tashkent, Iain Kelly, discussed UK concerns on human rights in Uzbekistan with both Foreign Minister Norov during his introductory meeting on 5 June and with President Karimov, during the presentation of his credentials on 8 June.

Uzbekistan: Children

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will hold discussions with representatives of the Uzbek Government on child labour on cotton fields in Uzbekistan; and if she will make a statement. [142119]

Mr. Hoon: We closely monitor a range of human rights issues in Uzbekistan, including the rights of the child. with our partners in the EU and in the international community. The International Labour Organisation works on the issue of child labour in the cotton industry, which is deeply entrenched, and a sensitive issue in Uzbekistan. It affects education, migration and the process of democratisation.

The rights of the child are among the human rights issues covered by the EU-Uzbekistan Human Rights Dialogue which began in May. At the last session of the EU-Uzbekistan Sub-Committee on Justice and Home Affairs, in May, the EU delegation encouraged the Uzbek authorities to ratify the UN Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children.

In 2006 the UN Committee for the Rights of the Child reviewed the National Report of Uzbekistan on Implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and issued recommendations to the Uzbek authorities e.g. on adopting legislation and ratifying international conventions. Committee members put questions to the Uzbek delegation including on the issue of child labour in the cotton fields. The Uzbek authorities are preparing new legislation, including a draft law on childrens' rights which we hope will address the Committee's concerns.

We will continue, bilaterally, with the EU and through the international community, to raise a range of human rights concerns with the Uzbek authorities, and to support efforts to improve the human rights situation in the country.

Uzbekistan: Forced Labour

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department is taking to monitor the enforcement by the Uzbek Government of the International Labour Organisation's Convention on the Abolition of Forced Labour. [142543]

Mr. Hoon: As a permanent member of the International Labour Organisation (ILO) Governing Body, the UK actively promotes and encourages all member states to ratify and implement the ILO core conventions which cover the elimination of the forced labour, child labour, discrimination in employment and the observance of trade union rights.

The UK also participates fully in the discussions of the ILO Conference Committee on the application of standards which each year discusses a selection of individual cases of member state compliance with various ILO conventions in detail.

Such discussions are based on reports submitted under Article 22 of the Constitution of the ILO which requires member sates to regularly report on conventions they have ratified. Uzbekistan has ratified both of the ILO forced labour conventions (29 and 105). The ILO's Committee of Experts, which examines member states reports, has asked the Uzbek Government to make every effort to comply with its constitutional obligations and reminded the Uzbek Government that the ILO can provide technical assistance to help to prepare the annual written reports which are a requirement of membership.

This year the committee noted with regret that Uzbekistan was among those member states which had supplied no reports on ratified conventions for the past two or more years; and that because Uzbekistan was among those governments which were not represented at the conference, they were unable to participate in the committee's examination of the cases relating to them.

Venezuela: Television

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the recent closure of state television stations by President Hugo Chavez of Venezuela. [142476]

Mr. Hoon: Along with EU partners, the UK has been closely monitoring recent events in Venezuela. We are concerned at the Venezuelan government's decision not to renew the broadcasting licence for the private media organisation RCTV. The UK strongly supported the EU's statement of 31 May, which noted with concern the Venezuelan government's decision, and recalled the promises made by the Venezuelan authorities to hold an open competition for the successor licence.

With EU partners, we will continue to monitor the situation closely, including on Venezuela's upholding of the fundamental democratic principles of freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

HEALTH

Departments: Private Finance Initiative

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what value of annual private finance initiative payments by her Department was classified as (a) identifiable and (b) non-identifiable in each of the last five years, broken down by project. [137810]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 7 June 2007, Official Report, columns 648-652W.

All payments made under private finance initiative (PFI) schemes are identifiable. Prior to a PFI contract being signed the profile of unitary charge payments is agreed between the contractor and the public sector, subject to the operation of the payment mechanism.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she has taken to ensure value for money in the tendering process for private finance initiative contracts. [139818]

Andy Burnham: National health service trusts must follow European Union procurement regulations under which private finance initiative (PFI) contracts are always awarded on the basis of the most economically advantageous tender overall to the NHS, following a competitive bidding process. New EU regulations to decide the most economically advantageous bid, specifically applying to complex contracts such as PFI and other public private partnership (PPPs), were implemented in the United Kingdom from 1 February 2007 (known as the competitive dialogue procedure, succeeding the previous negotiated procedure). The Department is currently trialling this new process by shortlisting up to three bidders from which final priced bids will be invited from no less than two. In recognition of the additional work now required on the part of bidders to achieve full commercial and price certainty whilst still at this competitive stage, the EU legislation has specifically introduced a discretion to pay bid costs with the aim of ensuring that the costs of bidding are no greater then they would have been under the negotiated procedure.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much has been spent on (a) the establishment and (b) the running of the Private Finance Unit in her Department; [139819]

(2) what the functions of the Private Finance Unit in her Department are; and how its performance is assessed; [139821]

(3) how many staff work in the Private Finance Unit in her Department. [139822]

Andy Burnham: The Department's Private Finance Unit (PFU) are a group of specialists contracted to work for the Department. They include lawyers, financiers, bankers, accountants and technical staff and staff on secondment from the national health service. They report to the Department's Director of Finance-Investment, a civil servant.

No costs were specifically incurred in setting up the PFU, who occupy space in the Department's buildings. Their cost in 2006-07 was just over £2.4 million inclusive of salaries, travel costs, subsidence etcetera.

The function of the PFU is to offer expert advice to NHS trusts, or to Department's Ministers and officials on all commercial aspects of the private finance initiative and the NHS local improvement finance trust (LIFT) contracts: the provision of loans to foundation trusts; the operation of NHS Shared Business Services Ltd, the joint venture that offers financial and accounting services to the NHS; and operational and commercial matters in a number of arms length bodies.

The PFU works alongside the Department's officials and its performance is monitored by the director of finance.

Currently, 19 staff work in the PFU.

Harwich Hospital

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the reasons for the delay in providing the expected range of NHS medical services at the new Harwich hospital; and when the full range of services will be available. [140760]

Andy Burnham: I am advised by North Essex primary care trust that there has been a delay in making available the full range of services planned at Harwich hospital and that this issue is being addressed.

Health Services

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the Specialised Services National Definitions are planned to be updated; [141235]

(2) whether changes to the Specialised Services National Definitions set are to be subject to public consultation; and if she will take steps to ensure that patient representative groups are consulted on the changes. [141236]

Andy Burnham: A project has started to review the Specialised Services National Definitions Set, under the auspices of the newly constituted national specialised commissioning group hosted by NHS London. The initial phase of the project will cover those eight service areas which, under Payment by Results, attract a national tariff specialist top-up. As part of consultation, draft versions of the updated definitions will be circulated for comment to the wider stakeholder community, including patients' groups.

Health Services: Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her policy is on the closure of (a) hospital beds and (b) other services by primary care trusts on health and safety grounds. [122647]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for local national health service organisations. However, the Department has issued guidance under section 10.1.6 of the Overview and Scrutiny of Health Guidance, published in July 2003, which states that NHS organisations can temporarily stop services without consultation, if they believe there is a risk to the safety and welfare of patients.

Hospitals: Transport

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect of changes to charges on (a) the use of and (b) the willingness of volunteers to operate hospital transport services. [142540]

Andy Burnham: Non-emergency patient transport services should be provided, free of charge, to patients who have a medical need for transport. The local national health service may provide other transport services, and may charge for the provision of those services. However, decisions on provision, and on charges, are a local matter.

The hospital travel costs scheme, operating under the NHS low income scheme, provides financial assistance to NHS patients who do not have a medical need for ambulance transport, but who require assistance in meeting the cost of travel to and from their care.

No assessment has been made by the Department of the use of voluntary drivers. Any assessment of the impact of any change to the operation of voluntary car schemes would be for the local NHS to make.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the take-up of the Hospital Travel Cost scheme in (a) England, (b) the South West and (c) Devon. [142541]

Andy Burnham: The Department gathers information on the number of postal claims only, made in England under the Hospital Travel Costs scheme, as detailed in the following table.

	Hospital fares—annual number of refunds authorised
2004-05	17,652
2005-06	18,138
2006-07	13,018

This information is not available by region.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average hospital waiting times were in (a) Taunton Deane primary care trust area, (b) Somerset and (c) England in each of the last 10 years, broken down by specialty function. [141501]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The figures are shown in the following tables.

Hull and East Yorkshire NHS Trust: Admissions

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many admissions were cancelled for a non-clinical reason within seven days of the proposed date of admission by Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust in each of the last two years, broken down by hospital. [140845]

Andy Burnham: The information is not available as requested. Data is not collected at hospital level. The following data shows the number of operations cancelled at the last minute. Last minute is defined as on the day the patient was due to arrive, after the patient has arrived in hospital or on the day of the operation or surgery itself.

2005-06: there were 825 operations cancelled at the last minute.

2006-07: there were 788 operations cancelled at the last minute.

Hull and East Yorkshire NHS Trust: Waiting Lists

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of outpatients in (a) the area covered by Hull and East Yorkshire NHS Trust and (b) England waited less than 13 weeks for a hospital appointment in each of the last five years. [140821]

Andy Burnham: The percentage of patients who were seen within 13 weeks, in each of the last five financial years are outlined in the following table.

Human Embryo Experiments

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons she proposes that sex selection for non-medical reasons will not be permitted under Clause 18 and Schedule 2 of the draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill; and what the evidential basis is for the proposal. [142321]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The Government stated in the White Paper "Review of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act: Proposals for revised legislation (including the establishment of the Regulatory Authority for Tissue and Embryos)", published in December 2006, that it is persuaded that sex selection for non-medical reasons within treatment services should be prohibited[1].

Such a provision, as envisaged by clause 18 and schedule 2 of the draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill would, in effect, put existing restrictions applicable to non-medical sex selection onto a statutory footing. The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority's (HFEA) code of practice makes clear that licensed centres should not, for social reasons, (a) select embryos of a particular sex, or (b) separate sperm samples, or use sperm samples which have been separated, for the purpose of sex selection[2].

Allowing sex selection for non-medical reasons found very little support in responses to the Department of Health's consultation on the review of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act, which ran from 16 August to 25 November 2005.

The Government also took into consideration the recommendations resulting from the HFEA's extensive review of sex selection and options for regulation conducted in 2002-03, which revealed widespread public opposition to non-medical sex selection.

As stated in the White Paper, the Government's position reflects, in part, the strength of public opinion on this matter and also takes account of the possible effects—including internationally—on cultures where there are marked preferences for male children.

Permitting sex selection for family-balancing reasons would also run the risk of opening the door to sex selection for other non-medical reasons.

Injuries: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many knife wound injuries were treated in hospitals in (a) Suffolk, (b) Bedfordshire, (c) Cambridgeshire, (d) Essex, (e) Hertfordshire and (f) Norfolk in each year since 1997. [140634]

Andy Burnham: Information is not available in the format requested. However, the following table shows the number of finished admission episodes with a cause code for contact with a knife, sword or dagger for acute trusts in (a) Suffolk, (b) Bedfordshire, (c) Cambridgeshire, (d) Essex, (e) Hertfordshire and (f) Norfolk in each year since 1997-98 to 2005-06.

1997-98	23	7	87	262	176	83

[1] Due to reasons of confidentiality, low numbers (figures between one and five) have been suppressed.

Notes:

1. Finished admission episodes: A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Cause code: The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects.
3. Data quality: Hospital episode statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
4. Assessing growth through time: HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. During the years that these records have been collected the NHS there have been ongoing improvements in quality and coverage. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series.
5. Ungrossed data: Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Mentally Ill: Community Care

Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the merits of bringing forward amendments to the Mental Health Bill to enable a patient issued with a community treatment order to appeal against restrictions imposed by that order. [135493]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The amendments to which my hon. Friend refers were debated at the tenth sitting of the Public Bill Committee on the Mental Health Bill on the 10 May 2007, when I set out the Government's views on this matter. The Government have also replied fully to the Joint Committee on Human Rights on this point.

As I outlined in Committee, given the nature of the conditions and the involvement of patients in setting the conditions for supervised community treatment, the Government do not believe that a third party appeals process would be appropriate.

NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff funded by the public purse in the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency are classified as people without posts. [141643]

Andy Burnham: There are three staff in the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency who are classified as people without posts. All three are returning from long-term secondments and in formal redeployment.

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost has been to date of the negotiation, tendering and legal requirements for Wave 2 independent sector treatment centres. [138421]

Andy Burnham: The Phase 2 independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) programme was first announced in October 2004. The total cost of the procurement at the end of March 2007 was approximately £72 million. This figure includes all assessment, scoping, procurement and associated management, professional advisory and support costs.

It is expected that the procurement costs as a percentage of the total investment in Phase 2 will be low and will compare favourably with other Government procurement programmes.

NHS: Drugs

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 606W, on NHS: drugs, (1) what assessment she has made of the role of (a) general practitioners and (b) pharmacists in over-prescribing medicines; [138868]

(2) what steps are being taken to reduce the amount of unused medicines; [138869]

(3) what guidance her Department has issued to general practitioners on over-prescribing of medicines; [138871]

(4) what assessment she has made of the role of pharmaceutical companies in the over-prescribing of medicines; [138872]

(5) what assessment she has made of the responsibility of patients in the over-prescribing of medicines. [139027]

Caroline Flint: The Department is concerned about the amount of unused medicines and supports a range of initiatives to help patients get the most from their medicines, while at the same time minimising the amount of unwanted medicines returned to pharmacies.

The new contractual framework for community pharmacy includes repeat dispensing as an essential service, which means that all community pharmacies in England must be in a position to dispense a repeatable prescription if presented with one. This service together with medicines use reviews, an advanced service provided by accredited pharmacists in premises that have been accredited, should both help to reduce the amount of medicines wasted.

The National Audit Office in their recently published report "Prescribing costs in primary care" focused on the potential savings that could be achieved by reducing the amount of medicines wasted. It has recommended that the Department conduct some research to estimate the scale of medicines wastage, and provide better information on why patients do not take their medicines. This is a complex area and we intend to commission research to establish the extent of medicines waste and the complex and varied reasons for it. This may include the part played by patients and the pharmaceutical industry. We have not issued any guidance on over-prescribing.

NHS: Finance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what surpluses or deficits were generated by NHS services in each strategic health authority area in 2006-07. [141743]

Andy Burnham: The NHS financial performance report for quarter four of 2006-07 was published on 6 June. Copies are available in the Library.

NHS: Reorganisation

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library a copy of Sir Ian Carruthers' report on limiting the damaging effects of organisational change. [141981]

Andy Burnham: Sir Ian was asked by the chief executive of the national health service (David Nicholson), to conduct a review of how the NHS managed reconfigurations. Far from damaging effects, it was clear that when managed and delivered well, reconfigurations have a positive effect on patient care. A copy of the report, setting out his findings, has now been placed in the Library.

NHS: Welsh Language

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much English NHS trusts spent on Welsh translation services in each of the last five years. [135034]

Andy Burnham: There is currently no mechanism for recording this information centrally within the Department and to attempt to do so would incur disproportionate cost.

Primary Care Trusts: Finance

David Heyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much Spearhead funding has been allocated to (a) Oldham primary care trust and (b) Tameside and Glossop primary care trust; if she will provide a breakdown of how such funding has been spent; and what assessment she has made of the effect of such funding on health inequalities in the areas served by the primary care trusts. [140652]

Caroline Flint: There is no funding stream that exclusively supports the Spearhead initiative.

However, the 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) separately identify £211 million in 2006-07 and £342 million in 2007-08, around half of the £1 billion promised, to support implementation of the "Choosing Health" White Paper initiatives. The funding has been targeted on the most deprived areas, including PCTs in spearhead areas.

The following table shows the White Paper funding separately identified in the 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations for Oldham PCT and Tameside and Glossop PCT.

	Separately identified White Paper funding
Organisation name	2006-07	2007-08	Total 2006-08
Oldham PCT	1,618	1,949	3,567
Tameside and Glossop PCT	1,598	1,925	3,523

The White Paper funding is not ring-fenced within the PCT revenue allocations, as it is for PCTs to determine how to use the funding allocated to them to commission services to meet the healthcare needs of their local populations.

Revenue allocations are made on the basis of a weighted-capitation formula. The aim of the formula is to provide equal access to services for equal need, and to reduce health inequalities.

The following table sets out the 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations to Oldham PCT and Tameside and Glossop PCT.

	Allocation (£ million)		Two year increase
Organisation name	2006-07	2007-08	£ million	Percentage
Oldham PCT	304.1	332.6	54.7	19.7
Tameside and Glossop PCT	308.6	337.3	55.3	19.6

No assessment has been made on the impact of local expenditure on health inequalities outcomes.

Revascularisation

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2219W, on revascularisation, if she will publish the results of the cardiac stock-take which reviewed capacity in different parts of London and the South-East. [139242]

Ms Rosie Winterton: 10 strategic health authorities across London and the south east conducted a stock-take of capacity for that area in 2005-06. This work was supported by the Department's vascular programme. The results from the stock-take were made available to all of the participating authorities in March 2006. It is now a year since the work was completed and there are no plans for formal publication. A compact disc providing details of the stock-take, the final report and supporting mapping and data analysis is available to interested bodies within the national health service.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Cemeteries: Inspections

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the latest guidelines are for cemetery memorial inspections; and when they were last issued. [140521]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 4 June 2007]: There are a number of industry produced guidelines available the latest of which is the British Standard 8415, 'Specifications for monuments within burial grounds', published in 2005.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the minimum technical specifications are for a gravestone topple tester; and what the qualifications are for the (a) operative and (b) data recorder. [140520]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) does not consider the risk posed by toppling gravestones to be a priority as compared with other workplace risks. Therefore, HSE has not produced any guidelines on the minimum technical specifications for topple testers. However, the Management of Health and Safety Regulations 1999 require that a risk assessment is undertaken by a competent person to identify any measures needed to control the risks caused by a workplace hazard. In undertaking an assessment of the stability of gravestones the competent person will need to apply an appropriate test.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many registered inspectors of gravestones and memorials there are in each of the English regions. [140523]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive are not aware of any national scheme specifically for the registration of inspectors of gravestones and memorials.

Child Support Agency: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at the Child Support Agency in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost was of those bonuses in each year. [132830]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Jos Joures, dated 13 June 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is out of the country, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many bonuses were awarded to Senior Civil Servants working at the Child Support Agency in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost was of those bonuses in each year [132830].

The table below contains the number and total of bonus payments awarded to senior civil servants in the Agency since 2001-02. The Agency offers bonuses to Senior Civil Servants as part of performance related pay deals, based on year long performance measures. Bonuses are also offered to Senior Civil Servants in recognition of considerable additional work. There is no statutory requirement to keep accounting records longer than 6 years. I am therefore unable to supply information prior to 2001/02 financial year.

	Number of bonuses awarded	£ Total bonus payments
2001-02	4	13,192
2002-03	7	47,000
2003-04	7	38,120
2004-05	10	38,550
2005-06	11	83,024

The increase in the size of average bonuses in 2005-06 compared with 2004-05 reflects the substantially improved performance of the Agency over that period. In particular, comparing 2005-06 with 2004-05:

55,000 more children were in receipt of maintenance;

There were 28,000 fewer uncleared cases;

Over 20,000 more of the poorest parents with care were receiving the Child Maintenance Premium, with payments up by £670,000 every month;

Accuracy increased from 75% to 81% on the scheme, and from 78% to 84% on the old scheme; and Client Service in the Agency improved substantially with 91% of calls to the Agency answered, up from 84%, and a 40% reduction in the average time taken to answer calls.

These performance improvements laid a solid foundation for the launch of the Operational Improvement Plan in April 2006, and were a vital component of the improved, and improving, service offered by the Agency today.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Maintenance

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency claimants in Bassetlaw are awaiting their first payment of maintenance. [139657]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 13 June 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many Child Support Agency Claimants in Bassetlaw are awaiting their first payment of maintenance.

At the end of March 2007, there were 280 cases on the new computer system in Bassetlaw, which had a positive liability and the Parent/Person with care was awaiting the first payment. This figure does not include maintenance direct cases.

There are an additional 290 applications that are currently being processed. It is not possible to say at present how many of these will result in a positive liability to pay maintenance.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of child maintenance payments collected by the Child Support Agency was made up of deductions from earnings orders in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [138696]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Jos Joures, dated 13 June 2007:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what percentage of child maintenance payments collected by the Child Support Agency was made up through deductions from earnings orders in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07.

Of the cases with a positive maintenance outcome in the quarter ending March 2006, 25% had Deduction from Earnings Orders/Requests as the method of collection at the end of the period. At the end of March 2007, the equivalent figure was 23%.

A monthly breakdown from April 2005 onwards is presented in the attached table.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Deduction from earnings orders/requests as a percentage of cases with a positive maintenance outcome

Quarter ending	Cases with positive maintenance outcome	Percentage of which were deduction from earnings orders/requests at end of quarter
April 2005	387,700	25
May 2005	390,400	25
June 2005	393,400	25
July 2005	396,900	25

Deduction from earnings orders/requests as a percentage of cases with a positive maintenance outcome

Quarter ending	Cases with positive maintenance outcome	Percentage of which were deduction from earnings orders/requests at end of quarter
September 2006	455,000	24
October 2006	455,900	24
November 2006	457,800	24
December 2006	457,400	23
January 2007	455,000	24
February 2007	458,400	24
March 2007	466,200	23

Notes:

1. Cases are counted as having a positive maintenance outcome if the Agency has received a payment via the collection service during the quarter or have a maintenance direct agreement in place, since we assume that non resident parents in maintenance direct cases are making payments. Cases are classed as maintenance direct if this is their status at the end of the quarter.
2. The table includes deduction from earnings orders (DEOs) and deduction from earnings request (DERs). DERs are the equivalent method of collection when the non-resident parent is a member of the Armed Forces. The method of collection is classed as being a Deduction from Earnings Order/Request if this is the preferred method of collection at the end of the month.
3. Volumes are rounded to the nearest hundred and percentages to the nearest whole percent.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the Child Support Agency is able to initiate enforcement action to collect arrears in a case when there is a change of circumstances review taking place on the current liability. [140879]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Children: Poverty

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of (a) ethnic minority children and (b) non-ethnic minority children are estimated to live below the poverty line. [124514]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested is available in the Households Below Average Income 1994-95 to 2005-06 (revised), table 4.5 on page 46. This is available in the House of Commons Library.

Crisis Loans

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the timescale is for dealing with applications for crisis loans; [139503]

(2) how many people have been waiting for over two weeks for a decision following their application for a crisis loan; [139504]

(3) how many applications for a crisis loan remained to be dealt with as at 24 May 2007; and what the (a) longest and (b) average time taken to deal with an application for a crisis loan was in each of the last five years. [139505]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, 13 June 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions a bout the time taken to process applications for crisis loans. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The clearance time for an individual crisis loan is measured in whole working days from the date the application is received until the date the decision is taken on whether to make a loan offer, plus, if a loan offer is made, the number of whole working days between receiving the applicant's reply to the offer and the recording of that reply. The minimum clearance time recorded for an individual application is one day, even if the application is cleared immediately.

The clearance time for an individual crisis loan is two days, but applications for living expenses must be dealt with on the same day as the application is made.

For 2006-067, 9,400 crisis loan applications in Great Britain took longer than two weeks to clear, representing 0.7 per cent. of all crisis loan applications cleared.

As of 30 April, there are 9,700 applications waiting for a decision. I am unable to provide a figure for the number of outstanding applications on 24 may 2007, as this data is counted as a snapshot figure at the end of each month.

Information on the longest time taken to deal with a crisis loan application is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost,

The average actual clearance times (ACCT) for crisis loan applications in each of the last five years can be found in the following table.

National crisis loan AACT in days

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of leasing buildings and office space was for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139462]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is in the following table.

In April 1998, in a private finance initiative agreement, the Department for Social Security disposed of its property and assigned its leases to Trillium (now Land Securities Trillium) and commenced payment to Trillium of a monthly facility price for its occupation of the property and for facilities management services, such as maintenance and security. The costs shown include this facility price, together with utilities standing charges and business rates.

In December 2003, the PFI agreement was extended to incorporate former Employment Service properties. The costs shown also include equivalent Employment Service property costs prior to December 2003.

The costs shown include payments for other Government Departments.

£ million

	Department	Agencies
2002-03	106.8	421.2
2003-04	114.1	460.5
2004-05	99.2	510.4
2005-06	113.6	549.1
2006-07	123.8	513.5

Costs for the Health and Safety Executive and the Rent Service are excluded, as the Commercial and Estates Directorate does not hold this information. The Appeals Service is also excluded after April 2006, when, as the Tribunal Service, it became part of the Department for Constitutional Affairs.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent by his Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139451]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department runs a number of promotional campaigns to increase awareness of people's rights and responsibilities or changes to legislation. PR agencies are taken on where messages are most effectively promoted by supplementing 'paid-for' advertising (press/TV/radio) with public relations activity.

The following table detail spend on PR campaigns run by the Department in each of the last five financial years:

Financial year	Spend (£000)
2006-07	1,061
2005-06	1,206
2004-05	1,435
2003-04	1,412
2002-03	689

Executive Agencies

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which of the executive agencies of his Department have regional offices outside London. [116734]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions has five executive agencies, as follows:

Child Support Agency;

Disability and Carers Service;

Jobcentre Plus;

The Pension Service;

The Rent Service.

The Department's estate consists of approximately 1,250 buildings, the majority of which are occupied wholly or in part by executive agencies. All of the Department's executive agencies have offices outside London.

Housing Benefit: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people aged 25 years or under claimed housing benefit in each year for which figures are available since 1997. [140594]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Housing benefit (HB) recipients by age: Great Britain, May 1997 to May 2004

	Aged 25 and under
May 1997	467,000
May 1998	396,000
May 1999	374,000
May 2000	326,000
May 2001	302,000
May 2002	291,000
May 2003	294,000
May 2004	325,000

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest thousand.
2. Figures are based on a 1 per cent. sample and are therefore subject to a degree of sampling variation.
3. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
4. Housing benefit figures exclude extended payment cases.

Incapacity Benefit: Medical Examinations

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to publish the results of the second round of testing of the revised personal capability assessment. [141191]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The technical working group carrying out the review of the personal capability assessment carried out an early and limited evaluation, which was published in February 2007. The full and extensive evaluation of the second round of testing is currently under way and we expect to publish the results this summer when analysis is completed.

Industrial Accidents: Construction

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of whether the target of reducing fatalities in the construction industry by June 2010 to half of their 1990 levels will be met. [139746]

Mrs. McGuire: These targets do not relate to 1990 levels. They were set by the industry (not the Health and Safety Executive) at the 2001 Construction Summit to provide challenging targets for a reduction in accidents and ill-health by 2010.

Both behavioural and statistical progress is reported to my Department by the Strategic Forum for Construction Health and Safety Task Group approximately every 18 months. I am expecting the 5th report from the forum soon.

The 4th report showed that there have been encouraging developments in areas such as work force competence and that the industry is exceeding the Government's health and safety targets set in 2000 for all industries. However, the industry is failing to meet the target it set itself in 2001 for a reduction in fatal injuries and is not currently on track to meet its target for 2010.

Jobseekers Allowance: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex were registered for jobseeker's allowance in each year since 1997. [141886]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. The available information is in the following table.

Jobseeker's allowance claimants in Eastbourne local authority (LA) and East Sussex: April 1997 to April 2007, as at April each year

	Eastbourne LA	East Sussex
1997	1,997	9,877
1998	1,536	7,855
1999	1,698	7,557

LinkAge Plus Centres

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1281W, on LinkAge Plus centres, how much of the LinkAge Plus budget has been spent to date. [140418]

James Purnell: £1,581,517 has been paid by DWP to local authorities in respect of invoices received relating to the period up to 30 April 2007.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1281W, on LinkAge Plus centres, how many elderly people the eight LinkAge Plus pilots are expected to assist. [140438]

James Purnell: LinkAge plus is testing out new and innovative methods of providing information and access to services to over 50's. It aims to join up services to existing clients and increase take-up through outreach work with isolated individuals. The evaluation will show the numbers as well as the range of people accessing services and in what ways as well as providing information on the cost effectiveness of LinkAge Plus. A report is due by March 2009.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1281W, on LinkAge Plus Centres, when the eight LinkAge Plus pilots will be completed. [140444]

James Purnell: The current LinkAge Plus pilots will end their funded activity by October 2008.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1281W, on LinkAge Plus centres, which areas his Department has identified for future LinkAge Plus centres. [140442]

James Purnell: The current LinkAge Plus pilots will end their funded activity by October 2008. The evaluation of the pilots will inform any subsequent developments. In the meantime emerging lessons will be shared widely with local authorities and other service providers in other areas of the country.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1281W, on LinkAge Plus Centres, what evaluation of the eight LinkAge Plus pilots will be undertaken. [140443]

James Purnell: Warwick Business School have been commissioned to undertake an over-arching national evaluation of the LinkAge Plus pilots. The project brief is:

To build a robust evidence base to support the case for joined up services in terms of delivering better outcomes for older people;

To build an evidence base that supports the economic, as well as social, case for fully joined up/holistic services for older people;

To test the limits of holistic working and;

To build a body of good practice and lessons learned for other partnerships and communities so as to encourage wider application of the approach, beyond pilot sites.

In addition local evaluators have been appointed by each pilot to test the success of the projects in local terms. Their evidence will contribute to the national evaluation. A series of thematic reports are proposed during the life of the projects with a final summary report scheduled for publication by March 2009.

New Deal for Partners

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of partners who would be eligible for the New Deal for Partners (a) were claiming jobseeker's allowance and (b) had been claiming jobseeker's allowance for more than five years in each month since 1997. [141114]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 7 June 2007]: The information requested is not available.

Pension Credit: Telephone Services

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Pension Credit application forms were requested (a) on the Pensions Credit application form telephone number 0845 6060 265 and (b) in total in each month since the service has been offered. [138036]

James Purnell: The information requested is as follows:

(a) A total of 2,342,669 pension credit application forms have been requested from the pension credit application line, telephone number 0800 99 1234.

(b) The information is in the following table.

Pension credit application forms requested from the pension credit application line

Remploy: Closures

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what account was taken of the (a) general condition and shape of, (b) level of worklessness in, (c) strength of manufacturing in and (d) development of the service sectors of a local economy when deciding to close a Remploy factory. [139198]

Mrs. McGuire: No decisions have been made to close any factories. The Remploy board are consulting on their proposals following which they will finalise their plan and submit it to the Government later in the year for consideration.

The Remploy board's proposals signal the next phase in the development of a five-year modernisation plan—a formal consultation with their trade unions and employees and a disability impact assessment as part of Remploy's Disability Equality Duty obligations.

In drawing up the closure proposals, Remploy took into account the market for the product made at their factories, their likely ability to achieve acceptable losses per disabled employee in the future, the percentage of its cost which is covered by income from its customers and the local employment market. The proximity to another factory which was not closing was also considered.

The Government encourage participation in the Remploy board's consultation process by contacting

Bob Warner chief executive of Remploy on Tel: 02476 515810 or by writing to him at Remploy, Stonecourt, Siskin Drive, Coventry, CV3 4FJ.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people were (a) charged with and (b) found guilty of benefit fraud in each of the last 10 years in (i) each police force area and (ii) North West Cambridgeshire; [142722]

(2) how much was lost through benefit fraud in each of the last five years in (a) each police force area and (b) North West Cambridgeshire; and how much of that money has subsequently been recovered. [142723]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available broken down by police force areas or constituencies.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people who will reach the age of 65 between 2024 and 2054 and die before becoming eligible to receive their state pension. [141549]

James Purnell: Although a small proportion of people who survive to 65 will die before reaching the new state pension age as proposed under the pension reforms, the proportion of those surviving to the new state pension age is still projected to be higher than the proportion who survive to state pension age now. Those retiring at current state pension age of 65 for men and 60 for women are estimated to constitute about 82 per cent. of their generation, but those retiring at 68 in 2055 are expected to be more than 88 per cent. of their generation.

Over the 30 year period between the financial years 2024-25 and 2054-55, a total of 24,463,000 people are projected to reach age 65 in the UK. Of these, about 1.6 per cent. of the total (about 238,000 males and 163,000 females) would subsequently die before reaching the new state pension age.

Written Questions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to answer questions (a) 111231, (b) 111229, (c) 111227, (d) 111293, (e) 111228, (f) 111232, (g) 111226 and (h) 111233, on funding for the new deal programmes, tabled by the hon. Member for Fareham on 22 January 2007. [126115]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The hon. Member's questions have all been replied to.

TREASURY

Departments: Libraries

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many items there are in HM Treasury's library; what the cost of purchasing stock for the library was in each year since 1997; and how many staff were employed to work in the library in each year. [141269]

John Healey: HM Treasury, the Cabinet Office and their departmental agencies have had a shared library service since 1946. There are 15,472 items catalogued, including books, pamphlets, specialist periodicals and reports. Expenditure on purchasing stock since 2003-04 is:

2003-04	186,070
2004-05	161,582
2005-06	117,562
2006-07	148,030

Due to changes to the Treasury's accounting system, costs prior to 2003-04 could be identified only at disproportionate cost. Eight staff were employed to work in the library in 2006-07. Figures for individual previous years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Department of Health's (a) expected and (b) actual non-cash spending was in 2005-06. [131950]

Mr. Timms: Provisional non-cash spending estimates are published in the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA). Updated non-cash outturn for 2005-06 was published in PESA 2007.

Equity

Michael Gove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what regulatory assessment the Financial Services Authority has made of Home Reversion Plans; and if he will make a statement. [142336]

Ed Balls: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) published its assessment of the home reversion market in its consultation paper, "Regulation of Home Reversion and Home Purchase Plans" (April 2006), which is available at:

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/Pages/Library/Policy/CP/2006/06_08.shtml

In October 2006, the FSA announced the results of its consultation in its Policy Statement, which is available at:

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/Pages/Library/Policy/policy/2006/06_12.shtml

Financial Services

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress his Department has made in promoting wider access to financial advice in the workplace following the launch of its consultation Extending Employers' Freedoms in the 2006 Budget. [141367]

Ed Balls: Respondents to consultation on Extending Employers' Freedoms, suggested further changes to the financial promotion regime. We expect to consult on these proposals shortly. Following that we will make the necessary changes to the Financial Promotion Order.

Earlier this year the Government published their long-term approach to financial capability. Our long-term aspiration is to ensure that all adults can have access to high-quality generic financial advice to help them to engage with their financial affairs. The study will report to HMT ministers at the end of this year.

Leasehold

Michael Gove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans there are to bring lifetime leases under the regulation of the Financial Services Authority; and if he will make a statement. [142175]

Ed Balls: There are no plans to bring lifetime leases within the scope of FSA regulation.

The regulatory treatment of lifetime leases was addressed in the Government's response to the March 2006 consultation document, "Secondary legislation for the regulation of home reversion and home purchase plans". The Government response to that consultation is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk./media/880/39/responses_homereversion_130906.pdf

National Insurance Contributions: Landlords

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of what the likely level of revenue would be if all non-corporate landlords were liable for class 4 national insurance contributions. [141944]

Ed Balls [holding answer 12 June 2007]: Introducing a class 4 charge on rental income of non-corporate landlords would result in an estimated yield of around £175 million for 2007-08 in class 4 national insurance contributions. This figure is based on projections of the Survey of Personal Incomes for 2004-05 and excludes rents received under the rent-a-room scheme. The estimate does not allow for any behavioural effects.

Population: Newcastle Upon Tyne

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the mid-year estimates of population were for the city of Newcastle upon Tyne in each of the last five years; what the projection is for each of the next three years; and what estimate he has made of the impact of international migration on population change in the city. [141739]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 13 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question concerning the population of the City of Newcastle-upon-Tyne in each of the last five years, what the projection is for each of the next three years and the impact of international migration in the population change in the city. I am replying in her absence. (141739)

The mid-2001 to mid-2005 population estimates are shown in Table 1 with the Total International Migration component for the corresponding years. Estimates for mid-2006 will be published on 22 August 2007. The Total International Migration figures shown are produced for the express purpose of calculating the mid-year estimates.

Table 2 shows the projected population from 2006 to 2010 for Newcastle-upon-Tyne with the Total International Migration assumption for each year. These figures are taken from the 2004-based subnational population projections published by ONS in October 2006 and are the most recent projections available. Please note that they are not therefore directly comparable with the 2005 mid year estimate in Table 1.

ONS is making improvements this year to the methods used for distributing international migrants to local areas as part of its "Improving Migration and Population Statistics" work programme. Thus the figures quoted, both estimates and projections, will be subject to change in August and September 2007 respectively.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the decision-making process is for the allocation of private finance initiative credits to each department. [141368]

John Healey: HM Treasury allocates PFI credits as part of the comprehensive spending review (CSR). An envelope for the overall level of PFI credits in the CSR period was set at a fiscally affordable level in Budget 2007 at £3.63 billion for each of the three years. PFI credits are allocated between Departments based on HM Treasury's assessment of:

the bids submitted by Departments in the CSR;

the value for money that PFI will provide in each sector—assessed using HM Treasury's value for money assessment framework; and the relative level of priority the investment programmes represent.

The level of DfES credits have already been agreed and the remaining departmental allocations will be announced by the autumn.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the funding allocation was of private finance initiative credits to each Department in each year since 1997. [141369]

John Healey: The allocation of PFI credits across Departments since 1997 has been as follows:

Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) by which date he expects each policy review being undertaken as part of his Comprehensive Spending Review to be completed; [141295]

(2) which of his Comprehensive Spending Review policy reviews have reported; [141296]

(3) how many staff have been working as part of his Department's Comprehensive Spending Review on the reviews of (a) counter-terrorism and security, (b) mental health and employment outcomes, (c) sub-national economic development and regeneration, (d) supporting housing growth and (e) future role of the third sector in social and economic regeneration, broken down by payband. [141386]

Mr. Timms: As set out in Budget 2006, PBR 2006 and Budget 2007 a number of cross-cutting reviews will inform the decisions to be made in the CSR. A number of these have already reported:

Eddington Transport Study—published December 2006

Leitch Review of Skills—published December 2006

Stern Review on the Economics of Climate Change—published October 2006

Barker Review of Land Use Planning—published December 2006

Lyons Review of Local government—published March 2007

Energy Review: meeting the energy challenge—published May 2007

Children and Young People's Review

Aiming high for children: supporting families (both prevention and families in a cycle of low achievement)—March 2007

Aiming high for disabled children: better support for families—May 2007

Review of positive activities for young people—still to report.

No specific date has been set yet for the outstanding reviews to be published.

The cross-cutting reviews, listed are being worked on by officials across government. Within HMT a wide range of staff across teams are contributing to and working as part of these reviews—whether full-time, part-time or as an aspect of their team's work. Each review is also guided by senior input and direction from team leaders, Directors, Managing Directors and Ministers.

Redundancy Pay: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2007, Official Report, column 1360W to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on Redundancy Pay: Ministerial Policy Advisors, and the written statement by the Prime Minister of 26 July 2006, what calculation he has made of his Department's contribution to the figure for severance pay. [141477]

John Healey: I have nothing further to add to my answer of 23 May.

Revenue and Customs: Manpower

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many pre-surplus staff there were at HM Revenue and Customs at the end of each quarter since 1 April 2005; and what the average length of service was for pre-surplus workers in the most recent quarter for which figures are available. [141171]

John Healey: The numbers of pre-surplus staff have been recorded since July 2005. The following table sets out the number of pre-surplus staff at the end of each quarter.

	Number
December 2005	1,409
March 2006	923
June 2006	1,101
September 2006	1,642
December 2006	1,736
March 2007	1,853

We do not record the average length of service for pre-surplus staff and this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

A range of measures are available for pre-surplus HMRC staff including early retirement schemes, redeployment support and training, priority access for staff to vacancies and incentives to re-train for other public sector posts.

Tax Allowances: Pensions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total cost to the Exchequer was of providing the tax relief for workplace pensions advice during (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; [141365]

(2) what cost benefit analysis was undertaken prior to introducing the workplace advice tax credit; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the measure in promoting access to financial advice in the workplace; [141366]

(3) many firms have been in receipt of the additional tax relief given to employers offering workplace pensions advice since the measure was introduced as part of the Pensions Act 2004. [141903]

Ed Balls: Encouraging employers to provide workplace pensions information and advice to their employees was part of the Government's informed choice programme. The proposals on the informed choices strategy can be found at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/dwp/2004/inf-choice/and the DWPs subsequent evaluation of the effectiveness of different methods of providing pension information in the workplace can be found at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5/summ2005-2006/294summ.pdf.

The limited tax exemption introduced on 14 December 2004 ensured that, as long as the qualifying conditions were met, the provision of such information and advice would not give rise to a tax charge on employees. There are no records of the cost of this exemption as employers are not obliged to report them separately to HMRC as long as they meet the qualifying conditions.

Firms do not get additional tax relief for providing this workplace pension advice where the qualifying conditions are met but can include the cost in their accounts under employee costs as a deductible expense.

Tax Avoidance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax shelter or mitigation schemes were notified to him in the latest period for which figures are available; and how many of these have been deemed not to be acceptable by HM Revenue and Customs. [141170]

John Healey: Details of arrangements notified under the Disclosure of Tax Schemes Regime are published at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/avoidance/avoidance-disclosure-statistics.htm.

Those for the period to 31 March 2007, the latest available, indicate that just over 1,450 direct tax schemes (income tax, corporation tax, capital gains tax and stamp duty land tax) and over 800 VAT schemes have been disclosed. These disclosures have both informed targeted anti-avoidance legislation and allowed HMRC to take swifter and more targeted action to counter deliberate abuse of the tax system. HMRC does not issue rulings as to the acceptability or otherwise of disclosed schemes.

Tax Avoidance: USA

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether HM Revenue and Customs (a) consult and (b) share information with the US Inland Revenue Service on tax shelter or tax mitigation schemes. [141155]

John Healey: Under the terms of the bilateral double taxation convention between the United Kingdom and the United States, the tax authorities of the two states have regular discussions about tax avoidance schemes, exchanging any information that is necessary for the assessment, collection and enforcement of the taxes covered by the convention.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress he has made in introducing caps to the size of repayments following the overpayment of tax credits by HM Revenue and Customs. [138797]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the Paymaster General's responses to questions 20 and 21 when she gave oral evidence to the Treasury Sub-Committee on 14 March.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the case for returning to a system of fixed tax credit awards since January 2006; [141496]

(2) what his estimate is of the revenue consequences for the Exchequer of moving to a system of six monthly fixed awards for tax credits; and if he will make a statement. [141497]

Mr. Timms: As the 2005 pre-Budget report stated, the Government continue to listen to the case for a system of fixed awards, but believe on balance that it is preferable to maintain the current system that flexibly responds to changing circumstances.

The Government have made no estimate of the revenue consequences of moving to a system of six monthly fixed awards for tax credits. A system where payments were fixed, based on past information, would mean that families could not benefit from the flexibility to give extra support when they need it most. Statistics published on 22 May 2007 show that between 2004-05 and 2005-06 720,000 families experienced a fall in their income, and benefited from extra support through tax credits.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimates are of tax credits (a) overpayments and (b) fraud and error for each year from 2003-04 to 2007-08; how much is estimated in each year to be (i) uncollectable and written off, (ii) unlikely to be collected but not yet written off, (iii) collected and (iv) likely to be collected; and if he will make a statement. [141522]

Mr. Timms: Information on the value of overpayments on 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 tax credits awards are shown in the published statistics on finalised awards for those years (supplements on payments). They are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Information on error and fraud in 2003-04 tax credits awards is available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/menu.htm

Information on the values of recoveries, remissions and write-offs made up to 5 April 2006, and the provision for doubtful debt, is shown in notes 3.3 and 8.2 of the Trust Statement to the HM Revenue and Customs 2005-06 Accounts. This is available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/reports.htm

Welfare Tax Credits: Appeals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many written (a) appeals and (b) complaints there were in relation to tax credits for each (i) month, (ii) quarter and (iii) year from April 2003 to May 2007; and if he will make a statement. [141470]

Mr. Timms: For information about the number of appeals relating to tax credits, up to and including October 2006, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer that the Paymaster General gave the hon. Member for Wycombe (Mr. Goodman) on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1740W.

Details for the period November 2006 to May 2007 were:

Month	Number of appeals (around)
2006
November	880
December	650
2007
January	790
February	810
March	830

For information about the number of complaints in relation to tax credits up to and including 2004-05, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer that the Paymaster General gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Walsall, North (Mr. Winnick) on 15 June 2005, Official Report, columns 398-399W. Information for 2005-06 and 2006-07 was published in the HM Revenue and Customs departmental report in May 2007 which is available on the HMRC internet site at:

http://customs.hmrc.gov.uk/channelsPortalWebApp/downloadFile?contentID=HMCE_PROD1_027505

The number of complaints received in each month in 2005-06 and 2006-07 was around:

Welfare Tax Credits: Fraud

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date he plans to release the latest estimates of tax credit fraud and error in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05 and (c) 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [141490]

Mr. Timms: The HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits. Error and Fraud Statistics 2003-04" is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/error-fraud.htm

For information on Child and Working Tax Credit Fraud and Error Statistics in 2004-05 I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 2 November 2006, Official Report, column 585W.

No release date has been set as yet for the publication of the 2005-06 fraud and error statistics.

Welfare Tax Credits: IT

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the quality of performance of the tax credits IT systems from January 2006 to May 2007; and if he will make a statement. [141517]

Mr. Timms: The performance of the tax credits IT system is continually monitored and is proving to be stable. In 2006 and 2007 HMRC have exceeded their system availability targets of 99.37 per cent. and 99.43 per cent. respectively.

Written Questions

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to answer Question 131611, on HM Revenue and Customs, tabled by the hon. Member for Taunton on 29 March 2007. [141214]

John Healey: The Treasury regrets that the hon. Member's question has not yet been answered and hopes to be able to do so shortly.

Students: Loans

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the interest accrued by the Student Loans Company (SLC) money paid by former students prior to it being passed onto the SLC; and if he will make a statement. [141478]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

Student loans repayments are not transferred to the Student Loans Company. They reduce the net assets, representing outstanding loans, on the Department for Education and Skills balance sheet. It is only information about repayments made by individual borrowers that is passed to the Company to allow it to issue annual statements. Once that information is received by the Company, repayments are attributed to each month of the tax year in which they were made by the borrower and monthly interest is calculated accordingly. This ensures that even if there is a delay in repayment details reaching the Company, the borrower does not pay any additional interest. No borrower pays too much interest as a result of the time lag in updating their account and nor does the Department or the SLC gain any additional income from the interest paid.

JUSTICE

David Kelly

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice which persons from the Department of Constitutional Affairs attended the resumed inquest into the death of Dr. David Kelly on 14 August 2003. [141347]

Ms Harman: No-one from the Department for Constitutional Affairs attended the resumed inquest into the death of Dr. David Kelly.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what methodology is used by her Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140786]

Vera Baird: The former DCA estate uses an electronic energy monitoring system that calculates the total energy consumption based upon energy invoices. The result is submitted yearly to the Building Research Establishment (BRE) which calculates the annual carbon emissions. The result is published in the annual Sustainable Development in Government (SDiG) report.

Public sector prisons are the responsibility of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS). Energy consumption is reported to the Prison Service Energy Manager on a monthly basis and carbon emissions are calculated using a standard conversion factor. The monthly consumption is adjusted to take account of variations in the prison population and weather. Annual consumption figures are reported to BRE for inclusion in the annual SDiG report.

The Probation Service calculated their carbon emission through collecting the energy bills for electricity, gas and oil and collating the data for the whole Home Office. The data are submitted to BRE to be weather corrected, converted into carbon and sent to the Sustainable Development Commission for inclusion in the SDiC report.

The privately operated prisons and the secure training centres were delivered under the private finance initiative and have no official methodology.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) her Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139472]

Ms Harman: The full running costs of all office space could be obtained but only at a disproportionate cost. However I am able to provide the cost incurred by my Department and its executive agencies on rent over the past five years. These are as follows:

(a) The Department

2002-03	6,271,931
2003-04	7,027,431
2004-05	7,027,431
2005-06	21,375,684
2006-07	23, 778,951

(b) Executive agencies

2002-03	24,023,000
2003-04	28,831,000
2004-05	31,178,000
2005-06	28,547,000
2006-07	66,690,352

The Home Office is reporting with regard to MOJ properties transferring from the Home Office as part of Machinery of Government changes.

Departments: Signs

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many (a) signs and (b) business cards have been purchased for the Ministry of Justice; [141707]

(2) how much has been spent on new signage for the Ministry of Justice. [141708]

Vera Baird: The number of signs purchased for the Ministry of Justice totals 62 as at 7 June 2007. We are unable to determine precisely how many business cards have been purchased for the Ministry of Justice.

Costs incurred by the Department for Constitutional Affairs up to 9 May 2007 in relation to the setting up of the Ministry of Justice are estimated at £1.5 million. These costs mainly relate to IT and estate changes to ensure the new Ministry can operate effectively. The costs relating to signage are included in the £1.5 million. Additional costs arising from the integration of the various activities that constitute the new Ministry will be incurred after 9 May.

Electoral Register: Fraud

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what steps the Government are taking to tackle false electoral registration. [141718]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 introduced new measures to help tackle false electoral registration. The measures introduced in the Act are:

Making it an offence to provide false or incorrect information to an electoral registration officer;

Allowing an elector to object to a person's registration at any time;

Allowing an ERO to remove ineligible people from the electoral register;

Imposing a duty on a registration officer to take all necessary steps to maintain the register. This includes inspecting any records held by any person which he is permitted to inspect such as council tax records.

A requirement for electors to provide additional personal identifiers (signature and date of birth) if they wish to have a postal vote.

A requirement for electors to provide personal identifier (signature and date of birth) if they wish to have a postal vote.

The Government and the Electoral Commission continue to work with the electoral community and the police to address issues to improve the security of the registration system.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice when the code of practice on the discharge of public authorities' functions under Part I of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 was last updated or revised. [141703]

Vera Baird: The code of practice on the discharge of public authorities' functions under Part I of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 was published on November 2004. It has not subsequently been updated or revised, however we consider that it is working well.

(http://www.foi.gov.uk/reference/imprep/codepafunc.htm)

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what guidance her Department has given to public authorities, in relation to freedom of information, on signing contracts with external organisations that have clauses stating that the contract itself cannot be made public. [141714]

Vera Baird: Guidance to public authorities is contained in the code of practice on the discharge of public authorities' functions under Part I of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. Advice about freedom of information and confidentiality obligations when entering into contracts is set out in part V of the code.

(http://www.foi.gov.uk/reference/imprep/codepafunc.htm)

Freedom of Information: Regional Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will take steps to bring within the ambit of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 English regional chambers as public authorities. [141811]

Vera Baird: Organisations such as the English regional chambers will be considered in the context of any review of extending the coverage of the Freedom of Information Act. We have no plans to review the coverage of the Act at present.

Hayden Phillips

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what fees, expenses and payments Sir Hayden Phillips will receive in relation to (a) his review of party funding and (b) the discussions on party funding in which she is involved. [141705]

Bridget Prentice: From the commencement of his review of party funding in March 2006 to the end of April 2007, Sir Hayden Phillips has received £48,768 in fees, expenses and payments.

This figure covers both Sir Hayden's review of party funding which ended in March 2007 and the continuing cross-party talks for the calendar month of April 2007.

Information Commissioner: Appeals

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the average time was for an appeal to the Information Commissioner to be considered in the last 12 months. [141712]

Vera Baird: In the 12 months up to May 2007 the average was 151 days.

This figure does not include Data Protection Act cases, as they are "assessments", not "appeals".

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many appeals to the Information Commissioner have been waiting to be considered for more than six months. [141717]

Vera Baird: At the end of May 2007 there were a total of 784 complaints under the Freedom of Information Act and Environmental Information Regulations aged over 180 days.

This figure does not include Data Protection Act cases, as they are "assessments", not "appeals".

Legal Aid Scheme

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what assessment she has made of the effect of the introduction in October 2007 of a fixed fee system for legal aid on access to justice; and if she will make a statement; [141695]

(2) how many solicitors she expects to participate in the new fixed fee system of legal aid when it is introduced in October 2007; [141696]

(3) what assessment she has made of the effect on the demand for legal aid of the introduction of a fixed fee system in October 2007; and if she will make a statement; [141697]

(4) what contingency plans she has put in place to deal with any delays in access to justice which may result following the introduction of a fixed fee system for legal aid in October 2007; [141698]

(5) what recent representations she has received from (a) solicitors and (b) representative organisations on access to justice following the introduction of a fixed fee system for legal aid in October 2007; and if she will make a statement. [141699]

Vera Baird: Fixed and graduated fees have been operating in many areas of legal aid for many years and have been shown to control costs and encourage efficiency, and hence to improve access to justice. The Legal Services Commission (LSC) currently expects to extend the application of these fees to nearly all areas of legal aid from October 2007 as a precursor to best value tendering, which is expected to be rolled out from October 2008.

While greater efficiency will allow us to help more people within a limited budget, the new fee schemes will not impact directly on demand for legal aid. Full regulatory impact assessments have accompanied each of the new fee schemes as they have been announced.

We expect the long-term trend of fewer legal aid providers helping more people to continue. Nevertheless, 94 per cent. of civil providers signed the new unified contract in April this year. The LSC will closely monitor the state of the supplier base as the reform programme progresses. The LSC is also working closely with Her Majesty's Courts Service and other justice agencies to ensure that the reforms are implemented smoothly.

We do not expect any delays to follow the implementation of fixed fees.

My Department and the LSC regularly meet solicitors, other providers and their representative bodies to discuss issues of concern.

Legal Aid Scheme: Kent

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many legal practitioners in the Kent criminal justice area have not signed up to the new legal aid contract. [140806]

Vera Baird: The unified contract for civil work was issued to 79 solicitors' offices in Kent. 75 contracts have been returned signed. 23 out of the 75 contracted offices undertake crime legal aid work as well as civil legal aid work.

Eight contracts were issued to not-for-profit organisations in Kent and all have been returned signed.

Local Child Curfew Schemes: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many child curfew orders were issued in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since their creation. [141829]

Bridget Prentice: The number of curfew orders received by young people aged 10 to 17 in East Sussex is as follows. Separate figures for Eastbourne are not collected.

2000-01	1

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice when the Secretary of State expects to answer the letter transferred to him from the Home Office dated 16 April from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. M. Aslam. [141075]

Ms Harman: I apologise that the reply has been delayed beyond our normal target date on this occasion. My right hon. Friend the Lord Chancellor replied on 6 June.

Personal Injury

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment she has made of the levels of referral to mediation of disputes involving personal injury claims. [141624]

Vera Baird: As mediation services are provided by a number of local and national commercial mediation organisations, it is not possible to assess the true level of referral to mediation involving personal injury claims across England and Wales. However, the Ministry has recently conducted evaluations of our court-based mediation schemes based at central London, Birmingham, Guildford and Exeter. The results show that, although personal injury claims represent over half of the cases allocated to the fast and multi-track, these claims make up less than 6 per cent. of the cases that undertake the mediation process.

Police Custody

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) female prisoners, (b) prisoners under the age of 18, (c) prisoners who are undergoing a Crown Court trial, (d) prisoners at risk of self-harm, (e) prisoners remanded for serious offences who are potentially Category A and (f) prisoners who have a history of either escape attempts or disruptive behaviour have been housed in police cells under Operation Safeguard in the last 12 months. [142468]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No female prisoners, prisoners under the age of 18 or potential Category A prisoners have been held in police cells under operation safeguard in the last 12 months.

We assess all prisoners considered for accommodation in police cells under operation safeguard for risk of self harm, potential to escape and disruptive behaviour with a view to excluding those who demonstrate a high level of risk of these behaviours.

The number of prisoners held in police cells under operation safeguard while undergoing a Crown court trial is not available.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what provisions are in place to provide (a) purposeful activity, (b) behavioural treatment, (c) drug and alcohol dependency rehabilitation, (d) contact with friends and family and (e) resettlement preparation to prisoners held under Operation Safeguard. [142469]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We aim to hold individual prisoners in police cells under Operation Safeguard for the minimum period, normally overnight and for no longer than 48 hours. As prisoners are only held in police cells for a short time, the police will do everything possible to meet prisoners' basic needs but it is not possible to offer a prison regime.

Police cells will not normally be used to accommodate prisoners with an identified health care need or vulnerable prisoners.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what the total cost to date to the public purse has been of (a) Sir Hayden Phillips' review and (b) the discussions on party funding. [141706]

Bridget Prentice: The total cost to date is as follows:

£278,072.31 for Sir Hayden Phillips' review of the funding of political parties, which ended in March 2007;

£15,937.80 for the cross-party talks on the funding of political parties, chaired by Sir Hayden Phillips.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many staff are working on (a) the Sir Hayden Phillips review and (b) discussions on party funding. [141709]

Bridget Prentice: Sir Hayden Phillips' review of the funding of political parties began in March 2006 and ended in March 2007. During this phase of Sir Hayden's work, four full-time civil servants on secondment and one part-time civil servant worked on Sir Hayden's review, assisted by two external consultants providing specialist skills.

Sir Hayden Phillips has been chairing cross-party talks on the funding of political parties since his review ended in March 2007. Four full-time civil servants on secondment and one part-time civil servant, led by an external part-time consultant, are working on the cross-party talks. Sir Hayden Phillips is also being assisted by two external consultants providing specialist skills.

Powers of Attorney

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what assessment she has made of the levels of abuse by donees of powers given to them under enduring powers of attorney. [142393]

Vera Baird: There has been no formal assessment of levels of abuse of enduring powers of attorney (EPAs). It is particularly difficult to make judgments in this area because of the potentially high numbers of unregistered EPAs in existence. The Public Guardianship Office and Court of Protection have no knowledge of unregistered powers and only become aware of their existence if and when third parties raise direct concerns.

Under the provisions of the Mental Capacity Act 2005, EPAs will be replaced by new lasting powers of attorney (LPA). Because of concerns around the potential for abuse of such powers, the Act introduces a number of additional safeguards that will provide greater protection for people making them in the future:

From October 2007 EPAs and LPAs must be registered with the Office of the Public Guardian (OPG) before use.

An independent party must provide a certificate confirming that the person making the LPA understands what they are doing and that they are not acting under undue influence.

When an application to register an LPA is made, the OPG must contact up to five people named by the donor to be notified. If no one is named, then a second independent party must have provided an additional certificate.

Attorneys will have a duty to have regard to a statutory code of practice. Failure to follow the guidance in the code can be used as evidence in court proceedings.

If the public guardian has concerns about the way an attorney is carrying out their role, he has the powers to ask for accounts and an explanation as to why particular decisions are being made.

Prisons

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2006, Official Report, columns 292-3W, on prisons, how many (a) suicides, (b) attempted suicides, (c) self-harm incidents and (d) prisoner-on-prisoner assaults there were in HM Prisons in 2006. [142414]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The number requested at (a) in relation to self-inflicted deaths in prison in 2006 is 67.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 November 2006, Official Report, columns 671-72W, to question number 103622 for the information requested at (b) of his question.

The recorded number requested at (c) in relation to self-harm incidents in prison in 2006 is 23,389 incidents, the vast majority of which did not constitute life threatening incidents. The recorded number requested at (d) in relation to prisoner on prisoner assault in 2006 is 11,427. These figures should not be taken as absolute.

Prisons: Construction

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice which prisons have made planning applications related to expansion of capacity; and what steps (a) HM Prison Service and (b) her Department is taking to consult local residents at each stage of the process in each case. [141810]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following schedule details those planning applications which have been submitted so far to local planning authorities.

Officials from the Ministry of Justice meet with planning officers from the appropriate local planning authorities in the early stages of the consideration of any proposal for the expansion of an existing prison establishment or for a new prison development. This is to ensure that they are aware of the proposal; that we can take on board wherever possible comments that they may have about the nature of the project and that there is agreement on the timing and content of any public consultation.

Public consultation forms part of the planning process normally conducted by the local planning authority. However, in addition the Ministry of Justice undertakes public consultation in respect of significant prison proposals including new prisons. Such public consultation will invariably involve presentations to councillors (including parish councils) and the holding of a public exhibition (usually over a two to three day period) close to the site in question where officials are present to explain proposals and to answer questions. This is preceded by a leaflet drop in the surrounding area advertising the exhibition and explaining the proposals.

Prisons: Rochester

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 605W, on Prisons: Rochester, what related demolition or construction works have already been undertaken at HMP Rochester; [142433]

(2) who authorised the commencement of building work at Rochester Prison. [142482]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Some preparatory work has been carried out on site. I took the decision that no further work should be carried out pending the outcome of the planning application which has yet to be determined. The main building work has not therefore commenced.

Salisbury Justice Centre

Robert Key: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice when work will start on the construction of the Salisbury Justice Centre; and when the centre will come into service. [141189]

Ms Harman: It is planned that work will start on the construction of the Salisbury Justice Centre by the end of July 2007 and coming into service during the early summer 2009.

Valuation Office Agency: Land Registry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether the Valuation Office Agency will have access to the Land Registry's Chain Matrix system. [141835]

Vera Baird: The Chain Matrix system which, as a prototype, is currently being tested, is a dedicated website that tracks the progress of a chain of residential property transactions starting with the issue of contract through to exchange and completion. There is no business need for the Valuation Office Agency to have access to the system and Land Registry has no arrangements or plans to provide the agency with Chain Matrix data.

Young Offenders: Suicide

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) suicides, (b) attempted suicides, (c) self-harm incidents and (d) prisoner-on-prisoner assaults there were in young offender institutions in each year since 1997. [142415]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following table shows the numbers of apparently self-inflicted deaths in Young Offender Institutions since 1997.

	Number of self-inflicted deaths[1]
1997	9
1998	7
1999	10
2000	8
2001	6
2002	6

	Number of self-inflicted deaths[1]
2003	3
2004	3
2005	9
2006	1

[1] The Prison Service definition of self-inflicted deaths is broader than the legal definition of suicide and includes all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 November 2006, Official Report, columns 671-72W, to question number 103622 for the information requested at (b) of his Question.

The following table shows the numbers of recorded self-harm incidents in Young Offender Institutions since 1997.

	Recorded self-harm
1997[1]	144
1998[1]	300
1999[1]	384

[1] The numbers of recorded self-harm incidents (or figures derived from them) before and after 2003 (when improvements for self-harm recording were introduced under the new F213SH procedures) should not be compared directly.

Note:
Figures overall should not be taken as absolute.

The information requested at (d) in relation to prisoner on prisoner assaults is provided in the following table. Data for 1997-99 are not centrally available and could only be provided at disproportionate cost. They should not be taken as absolute.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Apprenticeships

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of apprenticeships are part of the programme-led pathway; and what percentage of apprentices on the programme-led pathway successfully complete the full framework. [130646]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Havant (Mr. Willetts) on 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1272W.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many apprenticeships were (a) created and (b) completed in each of the last three years. [134431]

Phil Hope: Figures for apprenticeships completed can be derived from the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) work based learning (WBL) individualised learner record (ILR).

(a) The volume of learner starts on apprenticeship frameworks is published by the LSC in the annual Statistical First Release "Further Education, Work Based Learning and Adult and Community Learning—Learner numbers in England". The volumes for the previous two full years are collated in the following table. The data for 2003/04 showed the number of learners as opposed to the number of starts and therefore are not consistent with the latest data.

	Advanced apprenticeships	Apprenticeships
2003/04	n/a	n/a
2004/05	53,900	134,500
2005/06	52,100	122,800

(b) The number of achievers (students who successfully completed the framework) for the last three years are shown in the following table.

	Advanced apprenticeships	Apprenticeships
2003/04	23,820	45,540
2004/05	25,950	61,190
2005/06	32,990	77,180

Numbers are rounded to the nearest 10 learners.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of apprenticeship training providers funded by the Learning and Skills Council are (a) employers, (b) colleges of further education, (c) independent training providers, (d) local authorities and (e) other in (i) England, (ii) each region and (iii) broken down by sector skills council. [128575]

Phil Hope: Data on Apprenticeships and Advanced Apprenticeships are collected on the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) Individualised Learner Record (ILR). The table shows the volume and percentage of apprenticeship training providers funded by the LSC broken down by provider type for each region in England in 2005/06. It is not possible to associate learning providers to Sector Skills Councils.

Boxing: Schools

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the Government's policy is on the provision of boxing as a physical education activity in schools; and if he will make a statement. [142016]

Jim Knight: It is for schools to decide whether they want to deliver elements of the PE national curriculum through boxing, or offer it as an after school activity.

Schools have a duty to ensure that any coaching is provided by responsible and qualified coaches in a safe environment. Only qualified and experienced coaches should be employed to teach, coach or officiate boxing in schools. Schools that choose to offer boxing should ensure that all parents and pupils involved are aware of, and accept, the inherent and obvious risks.

The 2006 annual school sport survey found that 431 schools (3 per cent.) involved in a school sport partnership offered boxing either within or beyond the school day.

Carers' Allowances: Kent

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with Kent county council on the phasing in of the minimum allowances payable to carers. [142323]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The national minimum allowance rates for foster carers were introduced in July 2006. Local authorities are working towards meeting the rates. The good practice guidance which accompanied the national minimum allowance supports local authorities in improving the way they organise their payment systems.

Detailed discussions with individual local authorities are not taking place but local authorities' progress towards meeting the minimum rate will be monitored through inspection. If significant progress is not made, we shall consider enforcing the national minimum allowance through regulation.

Dartington College of Arts

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures he has taken to ensure that the merger of Dartington College with University College Falmouth will not adversely affect (a) the local economy and (b) the students studying there. [141761]

Bill Rammell: The governing body of Dartington College is pursuing the option of a merger with University College, Falmouth from 2010 in order that the resulting institution should have a sustainable future. The proposed University of the Arts in Cornwall should contribute to economic regeneration and provide new opportunities for students across the south-west region. As autonomous bodies which are independent of Government control, it is for higher education institutions and the funding bodies which support them to take account of the needs of students and the regions they serve and I am confident that they will do so.

Day Care: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many child care places were available (a) in total and (b) per 100 children under the age of five in each London local authority in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [128674]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not available in the form requested.

The available information on registered child care places for children under eight is shown in the following table. The latest figures on registered child care provider and places are available on the following website:

Note:

The population estimates are subject to a margin of error and should be considered to be approximations. For the City of London the participation rate exceeds 100 per cent. because the counts of children attending providers do not correspond exactly to the counts of children in the population. For example, children attending child care provision within the city may live outside the area.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much revenue his Department received from (a) advertisements on his Department's public information leaflets and (b) advertisements on his Department's public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Education and Skills does not receive revenue on adverts from Public Information leaflets or on the Department's public websites.

Departments: Buildings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139456]

Mr. Dhanda: The cost of leasing buildings for the Department in each of the past five years is shown as follows.

2002-03	20,174,340
2003-04	20,875,911
2004-05	20,875,911
2005-06	20,875,911
2006-07	22,345,123

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140792]

Mr. Dhanda: DFES headquarters uses the DEFRA required or recommended methodology to account for its carbon emissions.

Departments: Consultants

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the outside (a) agencies and (b) consultancies which are undertaking work commissioned by his Department; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost is of each commission. [138456]

Mr. Dhanda: This information could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months. [135153]

Mr. Dhanda: This information is not held centrally in the form requested and could be given only at a disproportionate cost.

The Department has arrangements in place where people can raise a grievance on any action or decision that they believe is wrong and that puts them at a disadvantage. All such complaints are considered in line with the arrangements in our staff handbook that reflect the three step process in the statutory dispute resolution procedures. Most of these complaints are settled directly between the individual and their line manager and are not recorded centrally.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people with epilepsy are employed by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [139106]

Mr. Dhanda: Data are not available on the number of people with epilepsy employed by the Department for Education and Skills. Declaration of a disability is voluntary and does not require staff to declare the nature of their disability.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140122]

Mr. Dhanda: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies are available in the House Libraries.

Departments: Netmums Website

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether his Department has provided funding to the netmums.com website. [138368]

Beverley Hughes: The Department paid £9,500 (before VAT) to Netmums on 6 January 2006, to fund their pilot coffee house project. We have made no payments in this financial year. This project tested and evaluated the potential for enhancing the experience of those using the Netmums Forum by having experts online who can directly answer questions and give practical advice. The expert involvement ran from January 2006 to March 2006.

The key points from the evaluation of the project showed that the peer support forum is a vital service for parents who are struggling. Many parents who used the coffee house were surprised that there are others there who are going through the same difficulties. The parents also felt supported by reading about the experiences of others, and are interested to read how others have coped in similar situations. The evaluation study has shown how expert involvement can benefit the users of peer support forums.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in his Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141966]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Education and Skills has no official ministerial residences.

Departments: Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last three years. [134046]

Mr. Dhanda: DfES Headquarters used the following percentages of paper from recycled sources for (a) photocopying and (b) printed publications in the latest available three years.

			Percentage
	2003/04	2004/05	2005/06
(a)	1	26	79
(b)	0	0	100

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139318]

Mr. Dhanda: The Departments property disposal receipts for the past five years are shown in the following table.

2002-02	Nil
2003-04	1,300,000
2004-05	1,530,000
2005-06	100,000
2006-07	Nil

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was received by the Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139337]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is as follows.

Property receipts

2002-03	4,152,575
2003-04	7,131,889
2004-05	5,902,482
2005-06	6,182,901
2006-07	6,002,258

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139358]

Mr. Dhanda: The following are properties owned by the Department in the last five years.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent estimate has been made of the value of the Department's property portfolio. [139380]

Mr. Dhanda: The information is as follows.

Valuation of the Department's property portfolio

2005 valuation	33,485,000

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [134996]

Mr. Dhanda: DfES headquarters purchased 4,872,685 kilowatt hours of renewable energy in 2005-06.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many telephone helplines are sponsored by his Department with the prefix (a) 0870 and (b) 0845; and whether alternative geographic numbers are available in each case. [138487]

Mr. Dhanda: The information as requested is not readily available centrally within the Department for Education and Skills (DFES). To respond fully would involve an extensive information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold. However, to be helpful, using a variety of information and data sources relating solely to DFES headquarters, the following information can be provided.

DFES currently sponsor seven telephone numbers with the prefix (a) 0870, and ten telephone numbers with the prefix (b) 0845. Alternative geographic telephone numbers are available in each case.

Employment Schemes: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding was allocated to (a) adult learner support, (b) career development loans and (c) wage compensation under Train to Gain in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; and how much is likely to be allocated in 2007-08. [131578]

Phil Hope: The table shows the Department of Education and Skills' expenditure on (a) adult learner support; (b) career development loans; (c) Train to Gain wage compensation between 2005-06 and 2007-08 (actual and planned). All amounts are rounded to the nearest £1 million.

Adult learner support includes the Learner Support Fund and Adult Learning Grant. These provide financial support to help meet the costs of learning to disadvantaged and low income adults undertaking further education.

Train to Gain commenced operations in April 2006. Funds have been allocated for wage compensation for small employers of up to 50 employees to compensate them for the time employees spend in training.

Extended Schools

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what research his Department is undertaking to assess the range of services and activities being offered by secondary schools as part of the extended school programme; [142427]

(2) what research his Department is undertaking to assess the take-up of extended school services by (a) social class, (b) ethnic composition and (c) children with disabilities; [142428]

(3) how many secondary schools provide the childcare element of the full extended schools offer; [142430]

(4) what research his Department has undertaken into demand for formalised access to and registered attendance at extended schools amongst children aged 11 years and older; and what research has been carried out into the scope and impact of charging for extended school services. [142432]

Beverley Hughes: We will be publishing a detailed report of the three year evaluation of the full service extended schools programme at the end of June. This report will show that full service extended schools have a positive impact on the attainment of pupils and their engagement with learning, family stability and enhanced life chances, and are generating positive outcomes for families and local people. Further evaluation of impact and activities of extended schools is planned, covering the increasing number of schools which will be offering extended services by 2010. This will include the extent to which different groups of pupils and families such as social class, ethnic composition and children with disabilities are taking up extended services. This information is not currently collected by the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

The DfES has a range of strategies to assess and monitor the extent to which schools are providing extended services. The Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) monitor the extent to which the schools they are working with are providing access to services and activities. To date 1,175 secondary schools are providing all aspects of the core offer of extended services. In addition to these, 958 secondary schools are providing a varied menu of study support activities beyond the normal school day; 208 are providing parenting support programmes; 929 have in place swift and easy referral arrangements to targeted and specialist services; and 579 are providing community access to their facilities, including adult learning. In 2005 the DfES commissioned its own independent survey of activities in primary and secondary schools. Undertaken by BMRB Social Research, it is available on the DfES's website at:

In addition to this, questions about what services schools are offering have been included in the 2007 school census which is completed by all schools and which is due to be available in September 2007. Finally, the DfES monitors extended school related research and surveys carried out by other organisations.

Secondary schools are not required to provide childcare as part of their extended schools offer. However, we know that from the 2005 BMRB social research survey 61 per cent. of secondary schools provided before school activities and or child care, 95 per cent. provided after school activities and or childcare and 65 per cent. provided holiday activities and or child care.

The TDA has undertaken research to examine demand for formal childcare for the 11 to 14 age range. This involved a small year long pilot to test demand as well as a bigger sample survey of schools to investigate what is already happening in schools for this age range. The research concluded that that there was insufficient parental demand for formal child care at secondary schools. It also showed that parents saw the varied menu of activities element of the extended schools core offer as providing a safe place for children to be both before and after school, 8 am to 6 pm and during school holidays.

The forthcoming report on the evaluation of full service extended schools will contain a section on cost benefit which will include some analysis of charging. It will show that there is considerable variability in the method of charging. It will also show that schools tend to charge for regular child care but after that charging is often ad hoc and relatively low level. The Government have issued guidance to schools on charging through the 'Planning and Funding Guidance: a guide for schools, local authorities and their partner organisations'.

Foundation Degrees

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research he has commissioned on the way in which granting further education colleges the power to award foundation degrees will be perceived by (a) students and prospective students and (b) employers; and if he will place a copy of this research in the Library. [140734]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The purpose of the proposal is to enable the Privy Council to grant Foundation Degree awarding powers to those Further Education Colleges who are capable of delivering the highest quality provision. In doing so it further liberalises the market and allows those Colleges who have established an impressive track record of delivering high quality HE provision, to perform to their full potential. For these Colleges this proposal will empower them further by allowing them to award Foundation Degrees.

The proposal has been developed in dialogue with key stakeholders, including student and employer representative bodies, who have expressed broad support for the proposal.

General Teaching Council for England: Finance

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding the Government provided to meet the start-up and running costs of the General Teaching Council for England (GTC) in each year since its creation; and what proportion of the GTC's budget this represented. [142472]

Jim Knight: Grant provided by this Department to contribute to the operational costs of the GTC is as follows:

	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	£000 2006-07
Grant in aid	[1]3,950	8,974	3,457	[2]784	—	—	—
Grant	50	50	278	796	740	609	599
Total DFES grant	4,000	9,024	3,735	1,580	740	609	599
Proportion of total income (percentage)	100	100	26	10	4	3	3

[1] Grant in aid payments began in September 2000. Funding in 2000-01 therefore covered the part year period September 2000 to March 2001 inclusive.
[2] The Department stopped paying grant in aid payments to the GTC at the end of 2003-2004 when the full registration fee became payable.

Government Auctions

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills where his Department publishes information about Government auctions which it arranges or to which it contributes in (a) Blackpool, (b) Lancashire and (c) the North West; and when the next such auction will take place in each area. [117419]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not arrange auctions, however, we do use an organisation called Northern Realisations of Bolton to dispose of IT equipment that is no longer required. Auctions are held in Bolton. All markers and identifiers are removed from the equipment prior to the auction therefore it cannot be identified as DfES equipment and the auctioneers do not disclose supplier clients to purchasers.

Northern Realisation advertise using Google Adwords, Manchester Evening News, Bolton Evening News, Loot (North West edition) and Lancashire Evening Telegraph. They also subscribe to the National Schools Procurement Directory.

There is currently no DfES equipment being held by Northern Realisations for auction.

Higher Education: Midwives

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many university academic staff specialising in midwifery there were in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [141186]

Bill Rammell: The available information is given in the table. The figures cover staff whose primary academic discipline is midwifery. Due to significant changes to the staff record, comparable figures are not available for earlier years.

Academic staff at English Higher Education Institutions

Academic year	Academic staff whose primary academic discipline is midwifery
2003/04	85
2004/05	105
2005/06	120

Notes:
1. Does not cover staff whose secondary academic discipline is midwifery.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest five.

Languages: Schools

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support is being given by his Department to local education authorities to fund language instruction for the children of migrants from EU entrant countries from eastern Europe. [115520]

Jim Knight: Departmental funding is available via the Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant (EMAG). This is a ring-fenced grant which provides a contribution towards support for underachieving ethnic minority pupils and support for those pupils for whom English is an Additional Language. The total grant for 2007-08 is £179 million.

In addition, £435 million of the £24.6 billion Schools Formula Spending Share for 2005-06 was distributed on the basis of numbers of children from underachieving ethnic minority groups and for those pupils for whom English is an Additional Language. The Dedicated Schools Grant allocations for 2007-08 will depend on January 2007 school census data.

In October 2006, we announced that the Department would allocate £400,000 for an English as an Additional Language Excellence Programme. The funding will be spent in 2006-07 and 2007-08 to provide advice, guidance and training for local authorities and schools to provide good quality provision for new arrivals and teaching English as an Additional Language.

Loans: Students

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the projected total cost is to the public purse of the interest subsidy paid to the debt sale owners over the lifetime of the student loans which the Government proposes to sell. [142073]

Bill Rammell: We are at the early stages of implementing the Budget announcement to sell income-contingent student loans. Further details about the sale will be announced in due course. We are confident that the Government will obtain good value for money, as it is obliged to do by rules of Government accounting.

Missing Persons

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will take steps to set a programme of regular scheduled meetings of the Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group over the next 12 months; [138767]

(2) what the next scheduled date is for a meeting of the Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group; how his Department will be represented at that meeting; and what the report-back process will be to Ministers in his Department. [138764]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 22 May 2007]: The Missing Persons Strategic Oversight Group is chaired by the Association of Chief Police Officers, supported by the Home Office. The next meeting is scheduled for the early part of July. Any forward programme of meetings for the Group will be considered in consultation with all Group members. Officials from my Department sit on the Group, and will report back to Ministers through the usual management channels.

Music: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding his Department provided for music tuition in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last five years. [142212]

Jim Knight: The funding of music services is the responsibility of local authorities and not central Government. Funding made available by Bexley local authority is contained within the following table:

Budgeted net expenditure on music services (not standards fund supported)[1]

	Amount (£)
2003-04	0
2004-05	0
2006-07	176,000
2007-08	182,000

[1] The data are drawn from local authorities Section 52 Budget Statements (Tables 1) submitted to the Department for Education and Skills.

Note:
The Department is currently validating the 2007-08 data. It is subject to change by the local authority.

Nursery Schools: North East Region

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many nursery school places were available in Gateshead, East and Washington, West in (a) 1996-97 and (b) 2006-07. [140641]

Beverley Hughes: The available information is shown in the tables.

Table 1 provides information about the part-time equivalent number of free early education places filled by three and four-year-olds in Gateshead, East and Washington, West parliamentary constituency area. Data are provided for 2006 only because data are not available at constituency level for 1997.

Pauline Hughes Consultancy

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what expertise in electoral practice and principle the Pauline Hughes Consultancy brought to its assessment of the appropriateness of electoral arrangements for deciding the continuance or establishment of grammar schools. [141686]

Jim Knight [holding answer 11 June 2007]: This review considered whether the grammar school ballot provisions were working as intended and whether any providers could administer the ballots process in addition to Electoral Reform Services which is named in regulations. The Pauline Hughes Consultancy had relevant expertise in the procedures and regulations relating to the future of grammar schools and was paid £2,732.40 for this and other work.

Primary Education: Drugs

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans the Government have to introduce drugs education schemes to primary schools. [141291]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's guidance, 'Drugs: Guidance for Schools (DfES 2004)', makes clear that drug education should start in primary schools and outlines the issues that should be covered at key stages 1 and 2, having regard for the age and maturity of the pupils concerned. As part of their drug education, pupils should learn how to make informed choices about their health, how to resist pressure to do wrong and to take more responsibility for their actions. The Government intend to consult shortly on proposals for a new drug strategy, and education in primary schools will be considered as part of that wider process.

Primary Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his latest estimate is of the number of primary school pupils receiving Government-sponsored one-to-one tuition in (a) English, (b) mathematics and (c) other subjects. [140150]

Jim Knight: The Department for Education and Skills does not collect data on the extent to which individual schools are choosing to provide one-to-one support for their pupils in particular subjects from their own resources.

Through the Every Child A Reader programme approximately 2,300 six-year-olds in England will receive one-to-one tuition in early reading from highly skilled Reading Recovery teachers in this academic year. Reading Recovery is an intensive one-to-one support programme aimed at those young children with the greatest difficulties in learning to read. Every Child A Reader will be rolled out nationally from 2008-09 benefiting over 30,000 children a year by 2010-11. We also intend to develop a similar intensive one-to-one support programme in maths.

The Making Good Progress pilot begins in the next academic year and will include one-to-one tuition of up to 10 hours in English and/or maths to pupils behind national expectations who are still making slow progress. Our latest estimate is that in pilot schools (which will be both primary and middle schools) in 2007/08 6,100 children in key stage 2 will receive one-to-one tuition in English, and the same in maths. We anticipate that a similar number of key stage 2 pupils will receive the one-to-one tuition in 2008/09.

In the CSR it was announced that by 2010-11 300,000 pupils across both primary and secondary will be receiving one-to-one tuition in English and a further 300,000 pupils in maths.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of current pupils have been permanently excluded from school more than once, broken down by (a) those receiving and not receiving free school meals, (b) gender and (c) ethnicity. [152383]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the table.

Information relating to free school meal eligibility is not collected for permanently excluded pupils.

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed. Includes non-maintained special schools. Excludes general hospital schools.

[2] This analysis is based on incomplete pupil level data. Any findings based on these figures should be used with caution. Those pupils who have been permanently excluded from more than one different school during the 2004/05 school year have been selected.

[3] Number of pupils who have been permanently excluded more than once expressed as a percentage of the total number of pupils who were permanently excluded of same gender and ethnic group. Based on incomplete pupil level data.

[4] Pupils of compulsory school age and above have been classified according to their ethnic group.

[5] Includes those pupils for whom information on their ethnic group was not sought, refused or is missing.

[6] Information presented here has been derived from an extract of the National Pupil Database which has selected pupils with multiple cases of exclusion from different schools and linked to the available characteristic data (gender, ethnic group) collected via the School Census.

Pupils: Counselling

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age in each local authority area undertook anger management courses in each of the last 10 years. [141233]

Jim Knight: DfES does not collect centrally data about specific approaches dealing with pupil behaviour.

Supporting the psychological well-being and mental health of pupils is a key component of the school curriculum and of the new multi-agency structures and settings, such as children's centres, extended schools and the targeted youth support pilots, which are being developed under the Every Child Matters: Change for Children programme.

Pupils: English Language

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps have been taken to ensure that staff in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools with high numbers of English as an additional language pupils are being supported in their teaching. [138719]

Jim Knight: The DfES launched a strategy for English as an additional language (EAL) in October 2003 as part of its Aiming High initiative for raising achievement of minority ethnic pupils. Central to this strategy was the professional development of teachers and teaching assistants in primary and secondary schools.

Key initiatives since 2003 include an extensive EAL programme delivered through the primary national strategy involving a package of professional development for mainstream staff. Professional development materials on EAL have been rolled out as part of this initiative and are available to all primary schools.

A secondary national strategy programme for EAL was launched in June 2006 which builds on from this work to promote awareness of best practice in EAL teaching in secondary schools.

Local authorities also receive additional funding from the ethnic minority achievement grant (EMAG). EMAG is distributed to local authorities by formula which includes the number of EAL pupils in each LA, with locally determined formulae devolving at least 85 per cent. to schools. The grant is £179 million in 2007-08.

EMAG provides resources for schools to employ specialist EAL support teachers and teaching assistants and for local authorities to maintain a small advisory team. Some local authorities employ a team of specialist EAL teachers whose services are bought in by schools.

The DfES will launch a New Arrivals Excellence Programme in July 2007. This aims to build capacity in local authorities and schools in England to deliver good quality provision and point towards the best training opportunities.

The Department has published two documents designed to support school assessment of EAL pupils and funded accredited specialist training in EAL for teachers and teaching assistants between 2004 and 2006. These courses have continued despite no longer being funded by the Department.

Departments: Intimidation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many complaints of bullying have been investigated in his Department in the last 12 months; and how many complaints have been upheld. [134830]

Mr. Dhanda: From April 2006 to March 2007, my Department investigated less than five official complaints of bullying, this information is therefore suppressed on the grounds of confidentiality.

The Department believes that each and every individual has the right to be treated fairly, with dignity and respect. Harassment and bullying at work can cause fear, stress and anxiety and even sickness among employees. It can lead to serious legal consequences for both the harasser and the employer. As such, we do not tolerate unacceptable behaviour towards others. Formal complaints are investigated quickly and thoroughly and, where complaints are upheld, appropriate disciplinary action is taken. All cases are treated seriously.

The overall aim of our harassment and bullying policy is to prevent such unacceptable behaviour occurring but, where it does occur, to ensure that appropriate and effective action is taken to deal with it and prevent it happening again. This applies to everyone in the Department. Every individual is personally responsible for their own behaviour, and every manager is responsible for enforcing the policy in accordance with the guidance and procedures set out in our Staff Handbook.

School Food Trust: Stoke on Trent

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the location of regional training centres for the School Food Trust; and if he will meet interested parties to discuss the options for one in Stoke-on-Trent. [141753]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State has asked the School Food Trust (SFT) to lead on the work to establish regional training centres (RTCs), which will act as centres of excellence for training school catering staff. The SFT will be publishing an interim prospectus on its website on 15 June 2007 setting out the business planning requirements and the principles for the capital funding distribution for RTCs. Location of the RTCs will depend on the applications received but our aim is to have a National network. The interested parties in Stoke-on-Trent may wish to contact the SFT in the first instance to discuss their options.

Schools: Drinking Water

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what steps his Department has taken to ensure that local education authorities and individual schools will have free, fresh (a) drinking water and (b) chilled drinking water available to school children by 1 September; [141328]

(2) what targets have been set to measure the meeting by schools of the Healthy Schools Standard for the availability of free, fresh water in schools by 1 September; and what percentage of schools are expected to achieve those targets; [141329]

(3) what procedures have been put in place by Ofsted for the auditing of the availability and provision of free, fresh (a) drinking water and (b) chilled drinking water throughout the school day as part of the new nutritional standards for schools; and if he will make a statement; [141330]

(4) what funding his Department (a) has made and (b) plans to make available to local education authorities and individual schools to ensure that they meet the nutritional standards to provide free, fresh (i) drinking water and (ii) chilled drinking water throughout the school day by 1 September 2007. [141331]

Mr. Dhanda: The Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999 require that " school shall have a wholesome supply of water for domestic purposes including a supply of drinking water".

The new nutritional standards for school food require that drinking water is provided free of charge to registered pupils. Chilled water is not a requirement of the standards. We are investing close to £500 million between 2005 and 2011 to assist authorities and schools in improving school food and drink.

Ofsted will be monitoring schools' approaches to healthier eating as part of their regular inspections of schools.

Providing free drinking water and meeting the new nutritional standards are key criteria under the healthy eating theme of the National Healthy Schools programme. We have set a target for all schools to be working towards Healthy School Status by 2009, with 75 per cent. of schools achieving the status by that time.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools were made subject to special measures in each local education authority in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [142153]

Jim Knight: The information requested was provided by Ofsted in response to the PQs numbered 132878 and 132879 and is available in the Libraries of both Houses.

The number of primary and secondary schools being placed in special measures is now considerably less than in 1997/98, despite a tougher inspection regime. So far during the current academic year 116 primary and 28 secondary schools have been placed in this Ofsted category. The figures for the 1997/98 academic year were 210 primaries and 43 secondaries.

Schools in special measures are now also being turned around more quickly. Primary schools now spend an average of 16 months in special measures and secondary schools 22 months, compared with 23 months and 28 months respectively in 1997. Our reforms in the Education and Inspections Act 2006 will reduce turn round times further. Under the new arrangement authorities will be expected to be more active in preventing school failure and more decisive in tackling it where it occurs.

Special Educational Needs: Hertfordshire

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many special educational needs schools there are in Hertfordshire; and how many school places there were in each year since 1997. [124406]

Mr. Dhanda: The available information is provided in the table.

Information on the number of school places is not collected centrally therefore information on the number of pupils on roll in special schools has been provided.

Special schools: Number of schools and pupils. Position in January each year: 1997 to 2006—Hertfordshire local authority

	Number of schools			Number of pupils [1]

[1] Excludes dually registered pupils.
[2] Up until 2003 the 'maintained'/'non-maintained' status of special schools was derived from information as reported by schools. There are known quality issues with this information. From 2003 the 'maintained'/'non-maintained' split of special schools has been taken from another, more reliable source.

Special Educational Needs: Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of current pupils with (a) statemented special educational needs (SEN) and (b) non-statemented SEN have received a permanent exclusion from (i) maintained mainstream and (ii) other schools (A) once, (B) twice, (C) more than twice and (D) more than five times. [132385]

Mr. Dhanda: The available information is given in the following table.

Special Educational Needs: Training

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps are taken to ensure that teachers in training are given a basic understanding of the range of special educational needs they are likely to encounter in mainstream schools. [141592]

Mr. Dhanda: In order to be awarded qualified teacher status, all trainee teachers must demonstrate that they understand their responsibilities under the statutory special educational needs code of practice, know how to seek advice from specialists on less common types of SEN, can differentiate their teaching to meet the needs of pupils, including those with SEN, and can identify and support pupils who experience behavioural, emotional and social difficulties.

We are proposing that from September 2007 the standards for qualified teacher status will be strengthened to require teachers to know and comply with current legislation on the well-being of children and young people, to know and understand the role of others when dealing with children who have SEN or disabilities, and to communicate effectively with parents and carers.

The current induction standards require newly qualified teachers to demonstrate that they can plan effectively to meet the needs of pupils in their classes with SEN, with or without a statement. The standards also demand that they work collaboratively with both other teachers and specialists to ensure that provision is suitable for SEN pupils. The revised standards framework will reinforce, build on and strengthen the current standards surrounding SEN.

Once qualified, all teachers are expected to discuss their own development needs in performance management reviews, and to address development priorities. This could include strengthening knowledge and understanding of SEN. Where schools have identified a need to strengthen knowledge and understanding of SEN, as a school improvement priority, this should be addressed through their school improvement and development plans.

All schools receive a school development grant which they are able to use to support improvements in any aspect of teaching and learning. A wide variety of courses are available covering SEN, ranging from awareness-raising through to in-depth studies leading to specific qualifications. It is, however, a matter for individual teachers and their schools to determine their own particular training and development needs. Local authorities may retain a proportion of this grant, under certain conditions, to provide specific training and development of SEN.

The Department's published SEN strategy, 'Removing Barriers to Achievement' recognised the importance of training and committed us to work closely with the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) to ensure that initial teacher training and programmes of continuing professional development provide a good grounding in core skills and knowledge of SEN. We have commissioned the TDA to carry forward a range of initiatives designed to improve and strengthen the SEN skills and confidence of trainee, newly qualified and established teachers. These initiatives are being implemented and evaluated over the period 2005-08 at a cost of approximately £1.1 million.

Ofsted will be undertaking a thematic review of the journey the intending teacher takes in terms of acquiring SEN and disability knowledge and skills during their initial training and induction. It is envisaged that the fieldwork for this will begin in September 2007.

Student Loans Company

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make it his policy to pass Student Loans Company (SLC) money deducted from a former student's monthly salary onto the SLC immediately after deduction; and if he will make a statement. [141479]

Bill Rammell: Student loans repayments are not transferred to the Student Loans Company. They reduce the net assets, representing outstanding loans, on the Department for Education and Skills balance sheet. It is only information about repayments made by individual borrowers that is passed to the Company to allow it to issue annual statements. Once that information is received by the Company, repayments are attributed to each month of the tax year in which they were made by the borrower and monthly interest is calculated accordingly. This ensures that even if there is a delay in repayment details reaching the Company, the borrower does not pay any additional interest. No borrower pays too much interest as a result of the time lag in updating their account and nor does the Department or the SLC gain any additional income from the interest paid.

Training

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking (a) to extend workplace training and (b) to ensure that older people can improve skills. [137754]

Phil Hope [holding answer 21 May 2007]: Train to Gain is a new brokerage service designed to support businesses in finding the right training and skills for them to succeed. It helps to meet business demands through impartial advice linked to high quality training that is delivered in the workplace, wherever and whenever best meets the needs of the company. As at March 2007 a total of 135,860 employees were in programmes of learning, of which 23,610 (18 per cent.) were aged 50 or over. Plans are already under way to expand the Train to Gain service and the Leitch Review has recommended a significant further expansion of the programme. The Government response to the Leitch Review will be published this summer.

More widely, older people benefit from the skills strategy, in particular our priorities to help people without the foundation of employability represented by basic skills and a first full level 2 qualification.

Aggresive Children Pupils

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) training and (b) guidance is provided to teachers on the physical restraint of aggressive pupils. [141922]

Jim Knight: Individual schools are best placed to make decisions about the training needs of their staff. A number of organisations offer training in physical restraint and related techniques such as de-escalation. With funding from the Department of Health and Department for Education and Skills, the British Institute of Learning Disabilities has established an accreditation system for organisations offering such training.

DFES Circular 10/98 provides schools with general guidance on the use of force to control or restrain pupils. This is currently being reviewed with the aim of publishing revised guidance later this term. The Department also provides more specialised guidance on physical intervention with pupils with special educational needs.

Young People: Unemployment

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to tackle the number of 16 to 18-year-olds not in employment, education or training undertaking apprenticeships. [140574]

Phil Hope: Our 14-19 implementation plan commits us to making an offer of learning to every young person on completion of year 11 ensuring that they can progress to further study. In addition the Connexions Service supports 16 to 18-year-olds not in education, employment or training and will advise them on a range of options, including apprenticeships. A quarter of a million apprentices are currently in learning. We are introducing an entitlement to funding for an apprenticeship place so that every young person leaving school who wants to continue their learning in a work-based environment should be able to. We expect to offer this entitlement at the same time as that to study any one of the 14 diplomas, in 2013.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average band D council tax set by parish and town councils was in 2006-07. [141822]

Ruth Kelly: An estimate of the average Band D council tax set by parish and town councils in 2006-07 is to be found in table A2b of "Local Government Financial Statistics England No. 17" which was published on 30 April 2007.

A copy can be found on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/lgfs/2007/lgfs17.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) average Band D council tax and (b) average council tax per dwelling in (i) each government office region in England, (ii) two-tier areas, (iii) unitary areas, (iv) metropolitan areas and (v) London boroughs is for 2007-08. [142388]

Ruth Kelly: Details of the average Band D council tax and average council tax per dwelling for 2007-08 were published in a statistical release "Levels of council tax set by local authorities in England—2007-08" on 27 March 2007.

The release can be found on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/ctax067.htm

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what methodology is used by her Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140782]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government calculates its carbon emissions from buildings by establishing energy consumption in kilowatt hours, through either automated meter reads, manual meter reads or utility billing information. The resultant energy consumption figures are then multiplied by the relevant carbon emission factors.

All carbon conversion factors are provided by the Department for Environment and Rural Affairs, and the resultant emissions data are submitted to the Sustainable Development Commission as part of the Sustainable Development in Government Report. Last year's report is available on the Sustainable Development Commission's Sustainable Development in Government (SDiG) Report 2006 website:

http://www.sd-commission.org.uk/sdig2006/.

Departments: Church of Scientology

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local government institutions have contacted her Department for guidance on visits from (a) Narconon and (b) the Church of Scientology in the last two years; and what guidance has been issued by her Department. [141162]

Mr. Woolas: No local government institutions have contacted the Department for guidance on these matters during the last two years, nor has any such guidance been issued.

Departments: Consultants

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the outside (a) agencies and (b) consultancies which are undertaking work commissioned by her Department; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost is of each commission. [138466]

Angela E. Smith: This question can be fully answered only at disproportionate cost.

Communities and Local Government has engaged consultants to support policy development in response to the need to develop sustainable homes and communities. The skills required for these programmes were not available from civil servants.

In addition, specialist skills including project management, finance, engineering, technology specification, building specification and design, security and resilience have been procured to support the delivery of projects to enhance the ability of the Fire and Rescue Service to respond to major incidents.

The work undertaken includes provision of radio engineering expertise for the new radio systems for the Fire and Rescue Service; also, logistical support and design for responding to chemical, biological, radioactive or nuclear incident, and search and rescue incidents.

However the following table lists the 10 highest consultancy costs incurred by the Department.

Vendor name	Programme	Value of supply 1 April 2003-30 March 2007 (£ million)
PA Consulting	FireControl	18.6
Mott McDonald	FireLink	12.7
SERCO	New Dimensions	7.2
IBM	Planning Portal	6.0
CapGemini	Supporting People	5.5
Collective Enterprises	Home Improvement Advice	3.1
Xansa	LogasNet	2.8
Turner Townsend	Fire Control	2.5
Xansa	Hub Project	1.9
Ernst Young	FireLink	1.1

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on their duties in respect of regular rubbish collection. [141777]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

My Department has funded research and guidance through the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) to assist local authorities in carrying out their waste collection operations in their chosen manner efficiently and effectively. However, decisions on the best way to collect waste are rightly a matter for local authorities, not central government.

European Regional Development Fund

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the action plan produced by her Department and the Government offices in response to the decision of the European Commission to suspend European Regional Development Fund funding. [141869]

Ruth Kelly: I have placed a copy of the Roadmap to Assurance in the Library of the House, which sets out the Department's response to the EC decision to delay payment to five English ERDF programmes and one urban programme. The roadmap supplements and strengthens guidance already issued by the Department.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in respect of which programmes within the European Regional Development Fund the European Commission has (a) called for more site checks and (b) held back payments. [141870]

Ruth Kelly: The following English ERDF programmes have had payments held back by the European Commission:

Objective 1 Merseyside
Objective 1 South Yorkshire
Objective 2 West Midlands
Objective 2 Yorkshire and The Humber
Objective 2 North East of England
Objective 2 London
Stockwell
Burnley, Blackburn and Darwen
Halifax in Calderdale
Hetton and Murton
Peterborough

These programmes have increased the number of on site checks as part of a robust action plan to address the Commission requirements. We are confident that payments can resume quickly after we have submitted our reports to the Commission at the beginning of July.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many zero-carbon homes the Government forecasts will be built in each of the next three years. [141927]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the comments made by my hon. Friend the Economic Secretary, on 15 May 2007, Official Report, column 142.

Immigration

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received from local authorities on the Government's estimates of numbers of immigrants; and what discussions she has had with the Office for National Statistics on this issue. [141733]

Ruth Kelly: Communities and Local Government receive representations from local authorities about the Office for National Statistics' (ONS) population estimates and population projections used in the local government finance settlements on a range of issues.

Officials meet with ONS officials regularly and discuss a variety of issues including population estimates.

Local Authorities: Committees

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the balance of political representation within local authority area committees. [141871]

Ruth Kelly: The Department issued the New Council Constitutions Guidance Pack to local authorities in 2000, which includes reference to the rules relating to the political balance of area committees. The documents are available in the Library of the House and can be found on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1133792.

Non-domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average business rates bill was in England in each year since 1996-97; and what it is expected to be in 2007-08. [141872]

Ruth Kelly: The average business rates bill in England in 2007-08 is expected to be £10,817.

For details of previous years, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 13 March 2007, Official Report, column 238W.

Non-domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the effect on revenue of removing the relief for empty property from business rates. [141645]

Ruth Kelly: The Government estimate was published in the Red Book alongside the Budget Report 2007.

Non-Domestic Rates: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many individual premises are classified by the Valuation Office Agency for business rates purposes as golf courses. [141815]

Ruth Kelly: The number of properties described as "golf course" in the 2005 Rating Lists for England, at 31 March 2007, is 1,928.

In addition to the number shown, there may be other golf courses that are secondary to a main assessment (e.g. with hotels). There may also be courses that are exempt from rating, if held as part of a larger public park and available for free and unrestricted use by the public.

Regional Housing Boards: Freedom of Information

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the regional housing boards will remain subject to the Freedom of Information Act 2000 when they are merged with the regional assemblies in England; and if she will make a statement. [141734]

Ruth Kelly: As voluntary bodies, Regional Assemblies are not subject to the Freedom of Information Act 2000. Nevertheless the Government expects the Assemblies to comply with the spirit of the Act when they perform their designated functions, as set out in "Guidance on the General Principles of Designation of Voluntary Regional Assemblies".

Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the arrangements are for local authorities to withdraw from joint waste management authority arrangements that they have previously joined. [141713]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 5 March 2007, Official Report, column 1641W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the introduction of joint waste authorities. [141729]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

It will be for interested local authorities to submit proposals for joint waste authorities (JWAs) to the Secretary of State for approval and implementation through secondary legislation.

The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, which contains the Government's proposals to allow the creation of joint waste authorities, is scheduled to receive Royal Assent in the autumn. Following Royal Assent, the Government will undertake a consultation on draft Regulations which will set out what authorities' proposals must address. Any proposals will also be subject to a local public consultation. It is therefore estimated that the first JWAs may be established at the end of 2008 at the earliest, depending on the wishes of local authorities.

Waste Management: Cost Effectiveness

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1736W, on waste management: cost effectiveness, which local authorities have listed moving from weekly to alternative weekly collections as an efficiency gain in their annual efficiency statement submitted to her Department or its predecessor. [141760]

Ruth Kelly: The following councils have included alternative waste collections in their annual efficiency statement:

2004-05 Backward Look

Babergh district council, Mid Bedfordshire district council, North Norfolk district council, Rossendale borough council, South Cambridgeshire district council.

2005-06 Backward Look

Broadland district council, Canterbury city council, Charnwood borough council, Chorley borough council, Crewe and Nantwich borough council, Mid Bedfordshire district council (included above), Mole Valley district council, North Shropshire district council, Rossendale borough council (included above), South Cambridgeshire district council (included above), Wycombe district council.

2006-07 Forward Look

Bridgnorth district council, Canterbury city council (included above), Charnwood borough council, Chichester district council, Crewe and Nantwich borough council (included above), Hertsmere borough council, Kennet district council, Rotherham metropolitan borough council, Salisbury district council, Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council, South Kesteven district council, Suffolk Coastal district council, Tewkesbury district council, West Lancashire district council, Wycombe district council (included above).

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Buildings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of leasing buildings and office space was for (a) her Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139474]

Mr. Lammy: Information on behalf of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Royal Parks Agency does not lease any buildings or office space.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff funded by the public purse in (a) the Royal Parks, (b) Ofcom and (c) the British Library are classified as people without posts. [142201]

Mr. Lammy: Both the Royal Parks Agency and Ofcom have no staff funded by the public purse classified as people without posts.

The British Library has five members of staff whose position may be deemed pertinent to the classification in question. These five employees have all been affected by recent restructuring in their area or the completion of projects on which they were engaged. Therefore, appropriate action is being implemented in each individual case to arrive at a satisfactory outcome, in terms of redeployment or a suitable settlement, to their current situations.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was received by her Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years. [139339]

Mr. Lammy: The Department received the sums recorded as follows for the letting of its properties in each of the last five years.

2002-03	1,915,250.00
2003-04	1,841,425.00
2004-05	1,627,000.00
2005-06	1,679,262.17
2006-07	482,000.00

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years. [139361]

Mr. Lammy: The following properties were (a) owned and (b) rented by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in each of the last five financial years.

(a) The Department owns the freeholds to the following properties in Windsor:

21, 22, 23, 29 Park Street and St. Mark's Place.

During the period in question the Department sold hitherto owned properties as follows;

the freehold with vacant possession to 10 Chantry Close Windsor in 2003-04;

freeholds to 30, 31 and 32 Park Street, Windsor were sold in 2004-05;

The freehold to the North East corner of the Royal Garden Hotel was sold in 2005-06.

the freehold to 20 Park Street Windsor was sold in 2006-07 and in the same year Fairview Cottage was sold as freehold with vacant possession.

The Department owns an area of land to the north of the British Library in London.

(b) The Department rents the following properties—all in London and has done so throughout the period in question;

2-4 Cockspur Street;

Oceanic House;

Grove House;

Queen's Yard.

The Department rented floor space at Woburn Place, London until the end financial year of 2004-05 and rented a floor at 55 Blandford Street, London during financial years 2004-05 and 2005-06.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate has been made of the value of the Department's property portfolio. [139383]

Mr. Lammy: The freeholds of certain properties in Windsor are held in the name of the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport. These are leased on a long term basis by private individuals.

The latest estimated value held in the Department's asset register for these properties is £140,000.

One other property in Windsor cannot be sold as it is within the security compound of Windsor Castle.

The Department owns an area of land to the North of the British Library in London. There are plans to sell this land: it is currently valued in our asset register at £26.6 million.

Digital Broadcasting: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department is taking to ensure that the same number of people in Copeland who can currently receive analogue television signals will be able to receive digital television signals in October this year; and if she will make a statement. [142758]

Mr. Woodward: The Whitehaven, Gosforth and Eskdale Green transmitters will switchover to digital in October this year. The technical characteristics for each transmitter have been chosen to allow their predicted digital coverage levels to match current analogue coverage levels.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the status of the preparations for the digital television switchover in Copeland. [142764]

Mr. Woodward: The switchover will begin in Whitehaven and the surrounding area on 17 October and in the rest of Copeland as part of the wider border region in late 2008.

Public awareness of switchover in Copeland is now 97 per cent. and 71 per cent. of primary sets have already been converted in advance of the area switching in October.

The contractor for operating the help scheme in Copeland, Capita, has now been appointed.

In addition, of those asked none has stated that they will not convert at least one set prior to switchover.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance is being provided by her Department to assist television licence fee payers in Copeland who are deaf, partially sighted or living with other forms of sensory or physical disability or impairment in successfully adapting to digital switchover in October this year. [142756]

Mr. Woodward: Households in the Whitehaven area where at least one person is registered blind or registered partially-sighted or with a severe disability will be provided with the appropriate equipment to convert one TV set and, where necessary, the relevant help to install and use such equipment and an aerial installation.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people in Copeland will receive assistance from the targeted help scheme with regard to the digital switchover in Whitehaven; and how many people are eligible, broken down by each of the qualifying categories of recipient. [142765]

Mr. Woodward: We estimate that around 8,500 households will be eligible for assistance from the digital switchover help scheme (DSHS) in the Copeland constituency. The vast majority will be eligible for help when the Whitehaven transmitters are switched over in between October and November 2007. All others will be eligible when the Caldbeck transmitter switches in early 2009.

We estimate that around 36 per cent. of those eligible, will be eligible for free assistance on the grounds of receiving pension credit, income support and income based job seeker's allowance. 64 per cent. of those eligible, will be eligible for assistance subject to a charge of £40.

European Capital of Culture: Liverpool

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) UK Government and (b) EU funding has been made available to support Liverpool's Capital of Culture festival. [142763]

Mr. Lammy: DCMS and Arts council have committed £10 million over the period 2005-09 to support Liverpool's Capital of Culture. In addition Liverpool received a grant of £1,200,000 from the Urban Cultural programme; and the North West Development Agency has approved £2 million.

The European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) has approved £10 million funding and in addition provided Phase 1—£946,000 ERDF pre 2008 approval and Phase 2—£2.63 million ERDF post approval.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the estimated running costs are of (a) mandatory ceremonies, (b) bid projects and (c) the UK-Wide Cultural Festival during the Cultural Olympiad in 2012. [137492]

Tessa Jowell: The mandatory ceremonies will be directly funded from the London 2012 Organising Committee's budget for the 2012 games. It is confident that the mandatory ceremonies will be funded within its £2 billion revenue budget. The bid projects and signature events and the UK-wide cultural festival will be delivered and funded in partnership with a range of public and private partners. For example, the £40 million Legacy Trust will fund cultural and sporting activity in the run up to the 2012 games.

The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games will shortly set out more detail on the bid projects and the UK-wide Cultural Festival. The Cultural Olympiad is an opportunity for exciting proposals to be generated in the regions over the four-year period with funding being drawn in from a number of sources.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, what the dates were of the meetings chaired by the Minister of Sport as part of the separate cost review set up to take forward the work of the Olympic Cost Review Steering Group. [141371]

Tessa Jowell: Meetings of the cost review group which took forward the work of the steering group were held on:

26 January 2006;
7 February 2006;
21 February 2006;
9 March 2006; and
25 April 2006.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, which external consultancy companies were involved in the separate cost review set up to take forward the work of the Olympic Cost Review Steering Group. [141372]

Tessa Jowell: KPMG were commissioned in October 2005 to provide advice on the cost of the Olympics. That advice was provided on an ongoing basis; and included KPMG being involved in the cost review set up to take forward the work of the cost review steering group.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, who the members were of the separate cost review group chaired by the Minister for Sport to take forward the work of the Olympic Cost Review Steering Group; and who the members were of the original steering group. [141373]

Tessa Jowell: The cost review steering group included membership from DCMS, HMT, ODPM (now DCLG), GLA, LOCOG, the interim ODA and KPMG. These organisations were also represented in the cost review group that was chaired by the Minister for Sport.

Dependent on the subject under discussion, representatives from HO, DfT, British Olympic Association (BOA), the Olympic Board Secretariat (now the Olympic Programme Support Unit) and Sport England were also invited to attend these meetings.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, what reports were prepared (a) for and (b) by the separate cost review chaired by the Minister of Sport to take forward the work of the Olympic cost review steering group. [141374]

Tessa Jowell: The cost review group chaired by the Minister for Sport assessed opportunities for reducing costs. This included the consideration of alternative options for the configuration of the Olympic park, alternative locations for venues, and for rationalising the design of supporting infrastructure. The group did not produce a report, although the output of its work informed decisions on the new Olympic park master plan announced on 7 June 2006.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1178W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, on what date discussions of VAT with HM Treasury in relation to the proposed Olympic Delivery Authority (a) commenced and (b) concluded. [141376]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the statement I made to the Culture, Media and Sport Committee on 21 November 2006, reported in paragraphs 48 to 50 of the Committee's report, published on 24 January 2007, where I stated that it was known at the time of the bid that the bid did not include VAT. The basis for that was the understood and agreed assumption that it was not possible to sort out the tax treatment until the delivery structures were in place, and that matter could not be known before the bid was won. This issue was taken forward as part of the cost review work, and I announced the VAT position in respect of the Olympic Delivery Authority in my statement to the House on 15 March 2007.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department received representations before 15 March 2007 from (a) the Olympic Delivery Authority and (b) other bodies involved in the delivery of the 2012 Olympics on the need for swift agreement on a revised Olympics budget in order to avoid increased costs. [141902]

Tessa Jowell: Following London winning the bid, I instituted a thorough review of costs and provisions for the Olympic games. This included consultations and discussions within Government, with the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) and with other delivery partners. This also incorporated consideration of what funds needed to be available, and by when. Following the conclusion of this cost review, I announced on 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450, a budget for the ODA and on a number of issues including wider security, tax and contingency provision.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she plans to publish the Memorandum of Understanding on profit-sharing arrangements in respect of the 2012 Olympics agreed between her Department and the Mayor of London. [142164]

Tessa Jowell: The work to develop the revised Memorandum of Understanding between the Government and the Mayor of London is progressing well. The revised Memorandum will be published as soon as possible, following its agreement.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what consideration was given to matters of specifically Scottish interest when drafting the terms of reference of the Olympic cost review steering group; [142342]

(2) what provision is made for consideration of impacts on Scotland in the contractual specification and terms of reference governing KPMG's provision of on-going advice on the cost of the Olympic games in 2012. [142344]

Tessa Jowell: After winning the bid to host the 2012 Olympic games, I instituted a thorough cost review. This cost review, to which KPMG provided advice, was overseen by the Olympic cost review steering group.

No specific assessment of the interests or impact to Scotland formed part of the drafting of the terms of reference of the Olympic cost review steering group, or the contractual specification and terms of reference governing KPMG's provision of on-going advice on the cost of the Olympic and Paralympic games.

The Government are committed to ensuring that people across the UK, including Scotland can benefit from, and participate in, the 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games. We are working closely with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games (LOCOG) and the Nations and Regions Group (NRG), chaired by Charles Allen, which brings together representatives from every Nation and region. Each Nation and region is finalising its own plan to maximise the impact of the games in their area, as well as the wider opportunities to deliver a sustainable legacy from the games.

Further detailed information regarding Scotland's plan can be provided by the relevant NRG Coordinator, Ian Campbell (Scottish Executive, Sports Division, Room 1-B(N), Victoria Quay, Edinburgh, EH6 6QQ).

In addition, Hampden Park in Glasgow will host group stages of the Olympic football competition. This will add significant strength to Scotland's potential to benefit from the games.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date her Department became aware that the budget for the 2012 Olympics would have to include VAT. [142420]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Faversham and Mid-Kent (Hugh Robertson) on 6 November 2006, Official Report, column 565W and in my evidence to the Culture, Media and Sport Committee on 21 November 2006. My response sets out the basis on which VAT was dealt with in the candidature file prepared in 2004, and the action I took to initiate a review of costs and funding following the success of the bid in autumn 2005. This is also summarised in paragraphs 48 to 50 of the Committee's report published on 24 January.

Tourism: Greater London

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the UK's ability to encourage overseas visitors visiting London to visit the rest of the UK; and if she will make a statement. [141838]

Mr. Woodward: DCMS provides funding of around £50 million per annum to VisitBritain, which promotes Britain as a whole. The Department's funding agreement with VisitBritain includes a target that, of the additional expenditure by inbound visitors generated by VisitBritain, a specified percentage should be achieved outside London. For 2005-06, the target was 55 per cent. and VisitBritain exceeded this by achieving a regional spread of 61 per cent.

Campaigns run by VisitBritain and enjoyEngland highlight attractions across the country to both inbound and domestic visitors. They target, for example, the growing demand for city breaks and the lifestyle market (including the appeal of food, sport, culture and family friendly attractions).

VisitBritain also co-funds (with Visit London) the Britain and London Visitor Centre. This acts as a gateway for visitors to learn about, and set out to explore, the rest of the country. VisitBritain's quality assessment schemes for accommodation and visitor attractions ensure uniform national standards for visitors.

The Department, along with our partners, will shortly publish a strategy to ensure that the tourism sector makes the most of the opportunities provided by the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games. One of the principles of this will be that the benefits of the games are felt as widely as possible throughout the UK.

VisitBritain

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1180W, on VisitBritain, how the changes referred to will improve VisitBritain's ability (a) to promote Britain to overseas visitors and (b) to support the tourism industry's progress towards the target of £100 billion turnover. [141626]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain has restructured to meet the challenges posed by market trends, such as the move away from printed consumer literature and towards online marketing. VisitBritain will focus its activities on developing new and growing markets, including proposed increases in staffing levels in the Asia-Pacific region.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much revenue her Department received from advertisements on her Department's (a) public information leaflets and (b) public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [142728]

Hilary Armstrong: The Cabinet Office does not keep central records of such revenue. To provide this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff funded by the public purse in the Central Office of Information are classified as people without posts. [141636]

Hilary Armstrong: The Central Office of Information has no staff classified as people without posts.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1122W, on Departments: manpower, what the estimated annual cost is to the public purse of employing the members of staff without posts. [141726]

Hilary Armstrong: All members of staff in the Department's Priority Talent Pool are engaged in work to deliver the Department's business objectives to ensure that there is no additional cost to the public purse.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister without Portfolio what visits she has made involving a mix of political and official engagements where Government car service vehicles were used in 2007; and whether the Government was reimbursed a proportion of the cost in each case. [142661]

The Minister without Portfolio: All travel is undertaken in accordance with Travel by Ministers and the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the House Library.

Energy: Environment Protection

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will post each of the policy papers drafted for the Energy and Environment strand of the policy reviews, as referred to in paragraph 9.3 of the Prime Minister's strategy unit report on building on progress: energy and environment, dated 5 June, on the Cabinet Office website. [142443]

Mr. McFadden: Information relating to the policy review is available on the Cabinet Office website http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/policy_review/index.asp. Papers were drafted for working group meetings of each strand of the policy review. However, these were working papers prepared for internal discussion by Ministers and have not been disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussions in future.

Voluntary Work: Young People

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people have been assisted through the National Youth Volunteering Service; how many regional outlets have been set up; and what proportion of the £100 million budget has been spent. [142596]

Edward Miliband: The independent youth-led charity v has created nearly 120,000 volunteering opportunities for young people.

In addition to the grant funded and match funded projects, v has commissioned 20 teams based within local communities with the aim of creating a further 22,800 local opportunities over the next two years.

A detailed breakdown of expenditure will be in v's annual report which will be published later this year.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Advertising

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department spent on (a) print and (b) online campaign advertising and sponsorship related to The Guardian newspaper Side by Side supplement. [129955]

Alan Johnson: Sponsorship costs for running the supplement were £50,000. There were no additional costs for print or online advertising to promote the supplement.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much his Department has spent on (a) sponsoring newspaper and publication supplements and (b) funding advertorials in newspapers or publications in the last year for which figures are available; and what the topic of each was; [129957]

(2) when he expects to answer Questions (a) 129957 on publications tabled on 22 March 2007 and (b) 129955 on advertising and sponsorship tabled on 21 March 2007 by the hon. Member for North East Hertfordshire. [142390]

Alan Johnson: In financial year 2006-07, the following activity was placed:

(a) Sponsorship of supplements in newspapers and publications.

	£000
Evening Standard (London Challenge)	60.0
The Guardian (Every Child Matters)	[1]120.0
TES (14-19 reforms)	51.4
The Guardian (14-19 reforms	42.0

[1] Covers two supplements in Guardian Education and Guardian Society

(b) Advertorials in newspapers and magazines.

	£000
Kerrang (Student finance)	2.3
NME (Student finance)	15.6
More (Student finance)	9.6
Daily Mirror (Childcare)	13.0
The Voice (Childcare)	1.5

Animal Experiments

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what official information is distributed to schools regarding vivisection. [141926]

Jim Knight: The Department has not distributed any information to schools regarding vivisection.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Leicester

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when his Department was informed that the company Centerprise had made the decision not to provide computer equipment in Leicester under the Building Schools for the Future projects. [138152]

Jim Knight: The DFES was informed of Centerprise's voluntary withdrawal from providing ICT equipment as part of Leicester's BSF programme on 12 March 2007.

Children: Protection

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on training on multi-agency safeguarding for all services working with parents and children in 2006-07. [141004]

Beverley Hughes: The core statutory guidance document 'Working Together to Safeguard Children' sets out the way in which the training and development of staff and volunteers should be undertaken to help them safeguard and promote the welfare of children effectively. The guidance states that it is the responsibility of employers to identify adequate resources and support for multi-agency training. It is the responsibility of the local authorities (LAs), with their partners in children's trusts, and in discussion with the Local Safeguarding Children's Board (LSCB) to decide, which bodies should commission or deliver the training. In some local areas it is the LSCB themselves who are commissioned to deliver the multi-agency training.

The Department only has data on this final type of training—delivered by LSCBs themselves. LSCBs were invited to take part in a voluntary survey in December 2006. In those survey returns, planned expenditure on the delivery of training in 2006-07 across those LSCBs for which we have data—around two thirds of all LSCBs in England—totalled around £2 million. If this is representative of all LSCBs then across the whole of England we could expect LSCBs to have spent around £3 million on safeguarding training in 2006-07. However this LSCB expenditure will be only part of the overall expenditure on multi-agency safeguarding training.

City Academies

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost was of each completed academy; and what contribution was made by the Government to each. [140973]

Jim Knight: There are 26 Academies open where construction work has been completed. The cost of each is detailed in the chart. These figures presented are as at May 2007 and are subject to change as final accounts have yet to be agreed.

£ million (rounded to nearest half million)

	Academy	Cost	DfES Contribution
1	Bexley Business Academy[1]	38.5	36
2	Walsall City Academy	17.5	15
3	Greig City Academy, Haringey	16.5	14.5
4	Capital City Academy, Brent	27.5	25.5
5	Lambeth Academy	25.5	23.5
6	King's Academy, Middlesbrough	22.5	20.5
7	Unity City Academy, Middlesbrough	22.0	18.5
8	The West London Academy, Ealing[1]	32.5	30.5
9	Stockley Academy, Hillingdon	28.0	25.5
10	Djanogly City Academy, Nottingham	23.5	23.5
11	The Academy at Peckham, Southwark	30.0	28
12	Bristol City Academy	27.5	25
13	Manchester Academy	20.0	18
14	Mossbourne Community Academy, Hackney	28.5	26.5
15	The Academy of St. Francis of Assisi, Liverpool	21.0	19
16	Northampton Academy	27.5	25.5
17	City of London Academy, Southwark	33.5	31.5
18	Trinity Academy, Doncaster	25.0	23
19	Marlowe Academy, Kent	28.0	25
20	London Academy, Barnet	33.5	32
21	Sandwell Academy	27.0	24.5
22	Grace Academy, Solihull	31.5	29.5
23	Salford City Academy	16.5	15
24	David Young Community Academy, Leeds	23.5	21.5
25	Dixons City Academy, Bradford[2]	6.5	6
26	Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham Academy, Lewisham[2]	7.0	6.5

[1] The Business Academy, Bexley and West London Academy, Ealing are "all through" Academies catering for pupils from age 3 to 19. This cost includes the cost of both the primary school and secondary school.

[2] Dixons and Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham are both conversions from City Technology Colleges.

City Academies: Finance

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average private sector capital contribution has been to new city academies established over the last 12 months. [141024]

Jim Knight: When the academy programme was launched in 2000, sponsors were required to provide 10 per cent. of the capital costs of a new building up to a maximum of £2 million. We have since moved to an endowment model of sponsorship, and sponsors will, as the norm, establish an endowment fund worth £2 million (or £1.5 million for the fourth or subsequent academy for sponsors of multiple academies). The Department does not distinguish between sponsorship commitments made by private sector donors and those made by charitable organisations.

There are at present 47 open academies. Of these: two academy trusts had met their full sponsorship commitments before May 2006; one is a former city technology college which is not required to provide sponsorship in the form of a capital contribution; and one is providing sponsorship under the endowment model of sponsorship, leaving a total of 43 academies with commitments to provide a contribution to capital costs.

Over the 12 months ending 31 May 2007 sponsor contributions to capital costs amounted to £13,202,000, an average of £307,023 over the 43 open academies described above.

Sponsors' donations contributing to capital costs are normally made over the lifetime of the building costs of the project, so in the majority of cases a number of payments towards capital costs remain to be made.

Departments: Sign Language

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the merits of providing British Sign Language (BSL) videos on his departmental website for the benefit of those whose first language is BSL. [142492]

Mr. Dhanda: We always consider the needs of minority audiences, including those for whom BSL is a first language, when developing communications campaigns for external audiences, working closely with the Central Office of Information (COI) Diversity Unit. Decisions about the scale and shape of campaign activity need to reflect our responsibility to get the best possible value for money from our marketing budgets.

In recent years, we contributed to a cross-Whitehall BSL video magazine, distributed by COI, which has now been discontinued. The increasing public access to digital media has helped us to respond to accessibility issues around provision of our information. We are committed to including all our public information campaigns on our website in plain English, which helps to overcome many barriers for those with impaired hearing

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139909]

Alan Johnson: Details of payments of travel agencies' fees incurred by the Department over the last eight years are set out in the following table.

	Hotel contract	Business travel contract
2006/07	169,864	447,131
2005/06	129,224	422,565

	Hotel contract	£ Business travel contract
2004/05	142,697	396,225
2003/04	98,107	381,192
2002/03	87,541	385,627
2001/02	100,746	441,353
2000/01	97,738	425,770
1999/2000	92,753	399,975

The Department has engaged an agent to arrange hotel accommodation for DfES staff that stay overnight when on official business. The Department has also engaged an agent to arrange all travel tickets for both domestic and foreign travel. The fees stated above form part of the contract of both agents.

The Department does not have any executive agencies.

Departments: Westminster City Council

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which grants for which his Department is responsible have been made to Westminster city council since 1997-98; and what the value was of each grant. [137760]

Alan Johnson: The grants made to Westminster city council in each year since 1997-98 by this Department, as recorded by the council in the Communities and Local Government Revenue Outturn (RO) returns, are as follows.

1997-98

This table sets out the specific grants inside aggregate external finance (AEF) (i.e. revenue grants paid for councils' core services) paid to Westminster and exclude grant outside AEF such as capital grants, funding for local authorities' housing management responsibilities, European funding; or where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area. Revenue support grant and other elements of formula grant (such as redistributed business rates and police grant) have also been excluded.

Revenue outturn data have been used from 1997/98 to 2005/06 (the last year available) and Revenue Account (RA) data have been used for 2006-07.

Dedicated schools grant (DSG) started in 2006/07 and this has been recorded by Westminster council on their RA return. However, it has been excluded from the above table as prior to 2006-07 this funding was part of RSG, and the question excludes the funding from RSG. The Department can confirm that £86,014 of DSG was paid to Westminster in 2006/07.

There are a number of smaller grants included in an 'Other' category on the revenue returns submitted by local authorities. It is possible that there may be some DfES grants within this category, but it is not possible to identify these separately within the return.

Examinations: Fees and Charges

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what examination fee will be charged to (a) schools and (b) further education colleges and institutions for the provision of Diploma examinations in each Diploma subject in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [138760]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority is currently consulting on the principles which should inform the setting of fees for the Diploma.

Free School Meals: Lone Parents

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what percentage of children entitled to free school meals in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools lived with a parent who had sole custody in each year since 1997. [142654]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not held centrally.

Further Education: Finance

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made towards closing the gap between the average annual per capita funding from Government for full-time equivalent learners aged 16, 17 and 18 years in further education colleges and those in sixth forms; and if he will make a statement. [138759]

Bill Rammell: As the Secretary of State confirmed in his speech to the Association of Colleges annual conference in November 2006 we have, by 2006/7, reduced the funding gap between school sixth forms and FE colleges for comparable 16 to 18 provision by 5 per cent.. We committed in the FE White Paper to take further steps to narrow this funding gap by a further 3 per cent. by 2008 and beyond that to take steps to narrow the gap further as resources allow. For the longer term we plan to establish common funding arrangements for all 16 to 18 provision with comparable funding for comparable activity, irrespective of the type of institution providing the education and training. Our recent consultation on the creation of a demand led system included proposals for this common 16 to 18 funding approach. We are currently considering responses to the consultation and plan to implement changes in time for the 2008/09 academic year.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average annual per capita funding from Government for full-time equivalent learners aged 16, 17 and 18 years in (a) further education colleges and (b) school sixth forms was in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08. [138761]

Bill Rammell: Per capita funding for full-time equivalent 16, 17 and 18-year-old learners in further education colleges in 2005-06 was £5,000. In 2006-07 we estimate this will rise to £5,100 but this will not be confirmed until final student numbers are available later in the year.

For 16, 17 and 18-year-olds in school sixth forms the level of funding per pupil was £4,900 in 2005-06, this rose to £5,200 in 2006-07.

Figures for school sixth forms and colleges are not directly comparable as a range of factors affects them including the mix of provision offered, achievement and retention levels and the location in which the provider is based. It is also impossible to get an entirely accurate full time equivalent learner figure for college students whereas for schools, as almost all pupils study full time in sixth forms, the pupil count is precise.

Data for 2007-08 will not be available until autumn 2007.

Heartease High School

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which company has the contract to develop the programme for the feasibility study on the proposed academy at Heartease high school; how much has been allocated by his Department for the feasibility study; and if he will take steps to ensure that the articles of memorandum of association of the company are freely available before the consultation process is complete. [139086]

Jim Knight: Cambridge Education (CE Ltd) has been appointed to manage the feasibility study; the cost of this work is £323,000, which is in line with the average cost of a nine-month feasibility phase on other academy projects. As a limited company the articles and memorandum of association for CE are available from Companies House.

Literacy: Computer Software

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance his Department provides to (a) local authorities and (b) schools on the use of reading and literacy software in schools. [139132]

Jim Knight: There is extensive guidance on the use of reading and literacy software for local authorities and schools on the TeacherNet website (www.teachernet.gov.uk) for both primary and secondary education. This includes the practical support pack which is an online collection of high quality lesson content, lesson plans, multimedia resources and ICT support materials designed to help teachers develop their teaching practice using ICT. It shows the role that ICT can play in teaching and learning objectives as a practical approach.

The practical support pack will soon be replaced by a new CPD microsite contained within TeacherNet, called 'Reach'. Reach will contain all of the PSP materials and more within a new design.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average education funding was per pupil in England, broken down by local authority area in each year since 1979. [140561]

Jim Knight: The requested information has been placed in the House Library.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many parents made appeals against the allocation of their child to a school in each local education authority in each year since 1997; how many of these were upheld; and if he will make a statement. [142150]

Jim Knight: Data on heard and successful admissions appeals for all local education authorities in England, covering the years 1997-98 to 2005-06, have been placed in the Library.

Schools: Choirs

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools have joined the £10 million initiative to encourage choral singing; how many extra students the initiative has assisted; and what proportion of the budget has been spent. [142590]

Jim Knight: The £10 million is not being devolved to schools at this stage. There has been huge interest in the national singing campaign and Howard Goodall, the singing ambassador, has received hundreds of messages from schools, organisations and individuals asking how they can become involved or providing details of the work they already do. Plans are being made to allocate the funding to major national initiatives to achieve the widest possible impact. This will include the production of a major song resource to be made available to every school and every child and the training of vocal leaders for schools.

Schools: Church of Scientology

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many schools have contacted his Department for guidance on visits from (a) Narconon and (b) the Church of Scientology in the last two years; and what guidance has been issued by his Department; [141161]

(2) what assessment he has made of the success of the Narconon programme in schools; [141163]

(3) what contact his Department has had with (a) Narconon and (b) the Church of Scientology in the last two years. [141164]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department has had no contact with Narconon or the Church of Scientology in the last two years, nor have schools contacted the Department for guidance on visits by these organisations.

The Department's guidance, "Drugs: Guidance for Schools" (DFES 2004) is clear that teachers should be the main providers of drug education and maintain responsibility for the overall drug education programme in their school. External contributors can be used where they add to the drug education programme a dimension that the teacher alone cannot deliver.

The Department has not assessed the Narconon drug programme for schools as it is for schools and local authorities to decide whether to use the services of an external contributor to assist with their drug education programme, and if so who this should be.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many representations he has received in response to the school, early years and 14-16 funding consultation; what assessment he has made of the responses; if he will put a summary of the responses in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [143037]

Jim Knight: By 1 June 2007, the closing date of the consultation, my Department had received a total of 1,163 representations about our proposals for the school, early years and 14-16 funding arrangements for 2008-11. This includes 651 representations made as part of six campaigns including 542 letters supporting the position of the F40 group of authorities of which the hon. Member for Stafford is chair.

We are now considering the responses. The final total, including a number received since the closing date, will be set out in a report summarising the responses to the consultation to be published on the TeacherNet website when we announce our decisions on the proposals in the summer. A copy of the report will be placed in the Library.

Special Educational Needs: Finance

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding was allocated to (a) special educational needs and (b) gifted and talented learning in each local authority area in each of the last 10 years. [141220]

Jim Knight: The requested information has been placed in the House Library.

Swimming: Finance

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding is available for schools to access swimming facilities. [138804]

Jim Knight: Swimming activities and water safety is a compulsory part of the National Curriculum for physical education in primary schools and schools can choose it as a programme of study in secondary schools. Funding for schools to deliver the National Curriculum is part of their core funding through the Dedicated Schools Grant—£28.3 billion in total in 2007-08.

In addition, £5.5 million in 2006-08 is being targeted at supporting pupils to reach the Key Stage 2 requirements for swimming, including being able to swim at least 25 metres.

Teachers: Vacancies

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teaching posts have been vacant in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [142149]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of full-time vacant teaching posts in local authority maintained nursery/primary, secondary and special schools in each January from 1997 to 2007. Vacancy rates as a percentage of full-time teachers in post are also included.

A full-time teacher vacancy refers to a full-time appointment of at least one term's duration that, on the survey date, had been advertised but not filled. Vacancies include those filled on a temporary basis unless filled by someone with a fixed term contract of one term or more.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students on teacher training courses did not complete such courses in each year between 1997 and 2006. [142522]

Jim Knight: The following tables show the number of final year initial teacher training (ITT) trainees for each year between 1998-99 and 2004-05 who did not gain qualified teacher status (QTS) in their final year of training and of these the number who left their course before completion and the number where the outcome of QTS is unknown for:

1. Mainstream initial teacher training (ITT) trainees

2. Employment based routes (EBR) trainees

Train-to-Gain Programmes

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many employees within the public sector had enrolled in train-to-gain programmes by the end of February 2007 in public sector employers with (a) fewer that 250, (b) between 250 and 1,000, (c) between 1,000 and 5,000 and (d) more than 5,000 employees. [139511]

Phil Hope [holding answer 4 June 2007]: Train to gain is an ongoing service and as such performance is updated on a regular basis. Detailed operational information is not held centrally by the Department but is collected by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC); Mark Haysom the LSC Chief Executive has written directly to the hon. Member with the available information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 11 June 2007:

I am writing in response to your question to the Secretary of State for Education and Skills about how many employees within the public sector had enrolled in train to gain programmes by the end of February 2007. In public sector employers with (a) fewer than 250 (b) between 250 and 1,000, (c) 1,000 and 5,000, (d) more than 5,000 employees

The LSC employer database structure does not report all of the size bands requested. However, the following information should be helpful.

Employer size	Number of learners
1 to 49	5,225
250 to 4,999	2,052
5,000 +	255

Aggressive Pupils

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) counselling and (b) legal support has been provided by his Department to teachers in circumstances where aggressive pupils have been physically restrained in each of the last three years. [141923]

Jim Knight: The provision of counselling and legal support is a matter for the local authorities and schools that employ teachers and for teachers' professional associations. Teachers who have been subjected to physical aggression should report incidents to their employer, who has a duty of care to support them.

The Department has issued new guidance, Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education which gives advice about dealing with allegations against teachers. This came into force on 1 January 2007.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Bees

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the contribution of pollination activity by bees to British agriculture since 2000. [142276]

Barry Gardiner: A 2001 Economic Evaluation of DEFRA's bee health programme estimated the value of honey bees to commercial pollination at approximately £120 million, although changes in crop areas and values suggest that the value may now be lower. No valuation of the role of honey bees in relation to the pollination of wild plants is available.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers in (a) Gravesham, (b) Kent and (c) England have not yet received single farm payments for (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006. [140803]

Barry Gardiner: In England, as of 6 June 2007, 24 claimants have not received a payment for the 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) and approximately 4,400 claimants have not yet received a payment for the SPS 2006.

Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the Single Payment Scheme is not yet available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed, a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

Bees: Diseases

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the development of Colony Collapse Disorder among honey bees in each of the last five years for which records are available. [142279]

Barry Gardiner: The term Colony Collapse Disorder is being used in the USA to describe cases in which some very large scale commercial operations have lost a high percentage of their hives. A wide range of possible causes are being investigated by researchers in the USA. The National Bee Unit at DEFRA's Central Science Laboratory is maintaining close contact with researchers from the USA.

There have been widely reported, but isolated, cases in the UK in which beekeepers have lost a high percentage of their bee colonies. However, overall percentage losses are similar to previous years, albeit reflecting the gradual increase seen in the last five years.

Bees: Research

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received in the last three years on funding of research into bees. [142278]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA has received a small number of representations in the last three years regarding funding of research into bees.

Biodiversity

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what percentage of (a) priority habitats and (b) priority species under the Biodiversity Action Plan are decreasing; and which habitats and species are involved. [137856]

Barry Gardiner: There are 373 single species action plans and 45 habitat action plans under the UK biodiversity action plan. These are referred to as the priority species and habitats. Reporting on the status and trends of these priorities is done every three years. The latest available figures are for 2005. The next and final figures before the 2010 biodiversity target will be made available in February 2009. In 2005, the information below was reported:

175 species (47 per cent.) are either increasing or are stable, which is an improvement on the 2002 figures. Similarly, the number of species assessed as 'declining or lost' fell between 2002 and 2005. For habitats, 35 per cent. are now increasing or stable.

102 species (27 per cent.) are thought to be declining, but the decline is slowing for 36 species (10 per cent.). Although 17 habitats (39 per cent.) are thought to be declining, this decline is slowing for 11 habitats (25 per cent.).

Declining habitats

Chalk rivers;
Coastal and floodplain grazing marsh;
Littoral and sublittoral chalk;
Sheltered muddy gravels;
Modiolus modiolus beds;
Coastal saltmarsh.

Declining habitats but slowing

Fens;
Lowland dry acid grassland;
Purple moor grass and rush pastures;
Eutrophic standing waters;
Blanket bog;
Lowland wood-pasture and parkland;
Upland hay meadows;
Upland calcareous grassland;
Lowland calcareous grassland;
Lowland meadows;
Limestone pavements;

Declining species
Thlaspi perfoliatum	Cotswold Pennycress
Silene gallica	Small-flowered Catchfly
Ranunculus tripartitus	Three-lobed Water-crowfoot
Pyrrhula pyrrhula	Bullfinch
Pallavicinia lyellii	Veilwort
Orthotrichum pallens	Pale Bristle-moss
Mentha pulegium	Pennyroyal
Luronium natans	Floating Water Plantain
Liparis loeselii	Fen Orchid
Limoniscus violaceus	Violet Click Beetle
Juncus pygmaeus	Pygmy Rush
Idaea ochrata cantiata	Bright Wave
Harpalus froelichi	a Ground Beetle
Gentianella uliginosa	Dune Gentian
Galium tricornutum	Corn Cleavers
Galeopsis angustifolia	Red Hemp-nettle
Formica candida	Black bog ant
Ditrichum plumbicola	Lead-moss
Cicindela sylvatica	Heath Tiger Beetle
Cerastium nigrescens	Shetland Mouse-ear
Bidessus unistriatus	a Diving Beetle
Anostirus castaneus	Chestnut coloured click beetle
Eunicella verrucosa	Pink Sea-fan
Zygodon gracilis	Nowell's Limestone Moss
Weissia multicapsularis	Moss
Tetrao tetrix	Black Grouse
Streptopelia turtur	Turtle Dove
Squamarina lentigera	Scaly Breck-Lichen
Sium latifolium	Greater Water Parsnip
Sciurus vulgaris	Red Squirrel
Schismatomma graphidioides	a Lichen
Rheumaptera hastate	Argent and sable
Raja batis	Common Skate
Potamogeton compressus	Grass-wrack Pondweed
Oria musculosa	Brighton Wainscot
Muscicapa striata	Spotted Flycatcher
Miliaria calandra	Corn Bunting
Melanitta nigra	Common Scoter
Margaritifera margaritifera	Freshwater Pearl Mussel
Lycopodiella inundata	Marsh Clubmoss
Lycia zonaria britannica	Belted Beauty
Linnaea borealis	Twinflower
Leptopsammia pruvoti	Sunset Cup Coral
Leptodontium gemmascens	Thatch Moss
Juniperus communis	Juniper
Jodia croceago	Orange Upperwing
Hydroporus rufifrons	a Diving Beetle
Heliophobus reticulata	Bordered Gothic
Formica rufibarbis	Red Barbed Ant
Donacia bicolora	a Reed Beetle
Damasonium alisma	Starfruit
Cotoneaster integerrimus	Wild Cotoneaster
Chrysotoxum octomaculatum	a Hoverfly

Declining species
Chaenotheca phaeocephala	a Lichen
Carduelis cannabina	Linnet
Caloplaca luteoalba	Orange-Fruited Elm-lichen
Calicium corynellum	a Lichen
Bryoria smithii	a Lichen
Boloria euphrosyne	Pearl-bordered Fritillary
Bidessus minutissimus	a Diving Beetle
Austropotamobius pajlipes	Freshwater White-clawed Crayfish
Aspitates gilvaria gilvaria	Straw Belle
Anisus vorticulus	Ramshorn snail
Alauda arvensis	Skylark
Acrocephalus palustris	Marsh Warbler

Declining species but slowing
Zygaena loti scotica	Slender Scotch Burnet
Woodsia ilvensis	Oblong Woodsia
Triturus cristatus	Great Crested newt
Tolypella intricata	Tassel Stonewort
Segmenting nitida	Shining ram's-horn snail
Potamogeton rutilus	Shetland Pondweed
Polia bombycina	Pale Shining Brown
Plebejus argus	Silver-studded Blue
Perdix perdix	Grey Partridge
Pechipogo strigilata	Common Fan-foot
Ostrea edulis	Native Oyster
Osmia xanthomelana	a Mason Bee
Odontomyia hydroleon	a Soldierfly
Muscardinus avellanarius	Dormouse
Mejiicta athaila	Heath Fritillary
Lejeunea mandonii	Atlantic lejeunea
Jynx torquilla	Wryneck
Hemaris tityus	Narrow-bordered Bee Hawk-moth
Hammerschmidtia ferruginea	a Hoverfly
Graphoderus zonatus	Spangled Water Beetle
Formica exsecta	Narrow-headed Ant
Eurodryas aurinia	Marsh Fritillary
Eristalis cryptarum	Bog hoverfly
Enterographa elaborate	New Forest beech-lichen
Dicycla oo	Heart Moth
Coiletes floralis	The Northern Colletes
Coenagrion mercuriale	Southern Damselfly
Cephaloziella nicholsonii	Greater Copperwort
Carterocephalus palaemon	Chequered Skipper
Bufo calamita	Natterjack Toad
Athetis paijustris	Marsh Moth
Asparagus officinalis ssp. prostratus	Wild Asparagus
Asilus crabroniformis	Hornet robberfly
Arvicola terrestris	Water Vole
Argynnis adippe	High Brown Fritillary
Agabus brunneus	a Diving Beetle

Bovine Tuberculosis: Compensation

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent policy is on payment of compensation to farmers whose cattle contract tuberculosis; and if he will make a statement. [141240]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Since 1 February 2006, compensation in England for bovine tuberculosis (TB) has been determined primarily using table values, which reflect the average sales price of bovine animals in 47 different categories. The categories are based on the animal's age, gender, type (dairy or beef) and status (that is, pedigree or non-pedigree).

The Government are obliged to pay compensation for cattle that are culled as a result of TB. However, we believe that table valuations provide a fairer balance between the costs that are expected to be carried by the taxpayer and those that are expected to be carried by the farmer than was provided by the previous system of individual valuation.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Testing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to introduce lay testers for bovine tuberculosis following the recent pilot study. [141100]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are considering how to introduce lay testing for bovine tuberculosis. However, final decisions have still to be taken on whether to proceed.

Details of the Animal Health pilot study have been circulated and discussed with interested parties. The pilot has demonstrated that lay staff can successfully be trained to carry out this work under veterinary supervision. However, we recognise that extending the principle of lay testing raises some important issues. These need to be fully explored with the veterinary profession and other interested parties before firm proposals can be developed.

BSE: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the scientific rationale is for continuing to cull bovine spongiform encephalopathy cohort cattle. [141101]

Mr. Bradshaw: A Veterinary Risk Assessment (VRA), published on 21 May 2007, concluded that culling cohorts of cattle affected with bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) as soon as possible:

(i) supports the Government's challenging target of eradicating BSE in Great Britain by 2010;

(ii) promotes consumer confidence in UK beef; and

(iii) avoids the need for expensive additional control measures to monitor cohorts.

The VRA is available on the DEFRA website.

Dairy Farming: Republic of Ireland

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the Irish Government's support for rationalisation of its dairy industry on the UK dairy industry. [142135]

Barry Gardiner: The Irish Government announced a dairy processing industry investment package in 2006. Following commercial and technical evaluation of the applications, the announcement of grant awards was made in April 2007. A total of 19 capital investment projects were approved and awarded Government grant assistance of €114 million. Industry will fund an additional €172 million to generate an estimated capital spend of €286 million.

The UK Government have made no assessment of the impact on the UK dairy industry as the details of the proposals have only recently been announced. Proposals for research to assess the impact will be evaluated alongside competing proposals in line with Government's priorities. It is, of course, open to the UK dairy sector to fund its own research into the likely effects of the Irish dairy package so that it can respond appropriately.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140791]

Barry Gardiner: The information requested is as follows.

1. Carbon emissions from buildings

Carbon emissions from buildings are calculated from total kilowatt hour energy use (electricity and fossil fuel) in all buildings on the estate. Conversion factors to convert kilowatt hours into tonnes carbon/carbon dioxide are provided by the Sustainable Development Commission in accordance with the requirements of the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate (SOGE) return.

2. Carbon emissions from travel

Carbon emissions from official travel within DEFRA are calculated using engine size, total mileage and fuel type. Conversion factors to convert fuel type into tonnes carbon dioxide are provided by the Sustainable Development Commission in accordance with the requirements of the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate (SOGE) return.

Departments: Guildford

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the planned date is for the closure of his Department's site at Epsom Road, Guildford. [138982]

Barry Gardiner: The planned date for closure of the Epsom road, Guildford site is 30 December 2007.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has to ensure that its site at Epsom road, Guildford is replaced with a residential development that (a) is low or zero carbon and (b) meets high environmental standards. [138983]

Barry Gardiner: The Department is conscious that any development scheme for which planning consent is submitted should comply with all available sustainable energy and environmental standards.

The Department confirms that the application for planning that is to be submitted is for residential property and as such will attract the relevant policy (SE2) within the Surrey structure plan relating to sustainable energy and the level three standard for sustainable homes as detailed by Department for Communities and Local Government.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department and its representatives have had with Guildford borough council on placing tree protection orders on trees at the Department's site at Epsom road, Guildford. [138984]

Barry Gardiner: The Department and its agent have had extensive discussions with Guildford borough council's Trees and Woodlands Officer. The officer is satisfied that there is no threat to the trees under the Department's planning proposal and no Tree Preservation Orders have been made.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff funded by the public purse in the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science are classified as people without posts. [141646]

Barry Gardiner: No staff in CEFAS are classified as people without posts.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio. [139379]

Barry Gardiner: The most recent valuation of the Department's property portfolio was on 1 April 2005. The estimated total value at that date was £490,224,550.

Departments: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on advertising by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139520]

Barry Gardiner: From its inception in 2001 to 2003-04, the Department did not record separate advertising costs as part of its overall communications expenditure. The figures for key advertising campaigns from 2004-05 are as follows.

	Advertising campaign	Amount (£)
2004-05	Personal food imports	92,343
2005-06	Personal food imports	94,278
2006-07	Personal food imports	81,732
2005-06	Avian flu	185,976

The Department undertakes all of its advertising through the COI's rosters of advertising agencies.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 81W, on Domestic Wastes: Waste Management, whether a local authority within a group of authorities that has chosen to pass its waste collection functions to a joint waste authority (JWA) will be able to leave the JWA unilaterally and take back responsibility for waste collection. [142397]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 5 March, Official Report, column 1641W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place a copy of the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) 2005 guidance on alternate weekly collections in the Library. [142404]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste and Resources Action Programme's (WRAP) 2005 guidance on alternate weekly collection of waste is currently being updated and has been withdrawn. Copies of the new guidance will be placed in the House Library as soon as it is available.

Environment Protection: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what additional ongoing funding and resources have been given to local authorities to implement the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005. [142378]

Mr. Bradshaw: My Department does not provide any additional funding to local authorities to implement the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 (CNEA).

A Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) published in July 2004 concluded that, taken as a whole, the measures introduced in the CNEA do not involve significant additional costs for local authorities. Indeed, the RIA concluded they could well lead to overall savings in local authority costs through increased efficiency and effective, well publicised enforcement.

Local authorities themselves asked for these new powers to combat the minority who continue to fly-tip, drop litter and behave in an antisocial manner and the Government have now provided them.

In most cases, local authorities also have the flexibility to set their own fixed penalty rates for offences under the Act and, since November 2003, have been able to retain receipts from fixed penalties issued for local environmental crimes. Poor performing local authorities must re-direct this money into their street cleansing service, although those awarded an 'excellent' or 'good' rating are free to use the penalty receipts as they wish.

Comprehensive guidance has been issued to all local authorities to help them implement the CNEA. This includes specific guidance on developing an enforcement strategy and making the most effective use of available enforcement tools. DEFRA has also produced guidance on how local authorities can make efficiency savings in street cleansing and related services. Copies of all guidance can be downloaded from DEFRA's website.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which quota swaps he has made to support the inshore under-10 metre fleet in each month since January 2005. [142305]

Mr. Bradshaw: Fisheries Administrations regularly undertake quota swaps to support the diverse needs of our inshore fleet. The following table sets out details of the numbers of quota swaps undertaken on their behalf by Fisheries Administrations since January 2005. The monthly breakdown relates to the month the swaps were attributed to the 10 metre and under allocation:

	March	April	May	June	July	August	September	October	November	December	End year swaps	Total

[1] Completed as of 12 June 2007.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his (a) Scottish, (b) Welsh and (c) Northern Ireland counterparts on the Marine Bill since May 2007; and if he will make a statement. [142307]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA Ministers will meet Ministers from the new administrations in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to discuss a range of issues, including the Marine Bill, in the week commencing 18 June.

As with the previous administrations, there will continue to be regular contact on the Marine Bill between DEFRA and the devolved administrations. I am committed to working with the devolved administrations to bring a joined-up approach, through the Marine Bill proposals, to the delivery of our shared vision for clean, healthy, safe, productive and biologically diverse oceans and seas.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he intends to discuss the quota situation for the inshore under 10 metre fleet with his European counterparts at the forthcoming Agriculture and Fisheries Council meeting. [142315]

Mr. Bradshaw: No. The arrangements for allocating quota to inshore and other vessels are a matter for individual member states. In the UK the management of the inshore fleet, including these vessels' access to quota, is being considered in the context of the current quota management change programme, with a view to public consultation later this year.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment Food and Rural Affairs what consideration he has given to instituting a days at sea formula for the inshore under 10 metre fleet fishing inside the 12 mile limit. [142546]

Mr. Bradshaw: The issue of the application of days at sea limits to under 10 metre vessels has already been considered in the context of the cod recovery plan. The conclusion at Community level was that this was not appropriate, since the large number of these vessels in the UK and other fleets made both the administration and enforcement of the controls potentially extremely difficult and resource intensive. We were supportive of this line and remain so.

Fisheries: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the carbon footprint of the inshore under 10 metre fishing fleet. [142548]

Mr. Bradshaw: Shipping from UK based vessels in territorial waters, is included in the UK greenhouse gas inventory, under national navigation. DEFRA does not produce specific figures on emissions from the fishing industry.

Fisheries: Devon

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration he has given a Devon-based scheme for the inshore, under 10 metre fleet. [142669]

Mr. Bradshaw: Future management arrangements for the inshore fleet are being considered in the context of the UK's current quota management change programme. Issues being examined include access to quota and fleet capacity: the case for region-specific measures, for example in terms of localised management, may also be addressed.

Fishing Catches

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the tonnage of fish which was (a) landed and (b) caught and thrown back because of quota allowances by inshore under 10 metre fishing vessels in the latest period for which figures are available. [142547]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2006, the UK 10 metre and under fleet landed 7,286 tonnes of fish subject to quotas. Estimates of the level of fish discards are made by scientists involved in the assessment of the state of fish stocks. However, these are made at the level of the overall fish stock rather than for individual segments of the fleet. In addition, such estimates are not made for the full range of fish stocks caught by the 10 metre and under fleet. As such, an estimate of the level of discards attributable to this fleet is not available.

Fly Tipping: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many incidents of fly-tipping were reported in each London borough in each of the last four years; and what the estimated cost was of dealing with such incidents; [140080]

(2) how many (a) prosecutions and (b) successful prosecutions there were in each London borough for fly-tipping in each year since 2004; and how much has been recovered through related fines in each London borough. [140083]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 5 June 2007]: Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database was set up in 2004 by DEFRA, the Environment Agency and the Local Government Association, to record the number of fly-tipping incidents dealt with by the Environment Agency and local authorities.

The following tables show the number of incidents and prosecutions recorded by each local authority in Greater London on Flycapture for 2004-2005 and 2005-06. Data recorded in square brackets have been reported by the Environment Agency, who deal only with larger-scale fly-tipping incidents. Data for 2006-2007 are not yet available but will be published in the summer.

Flycapture does not record details of any costs awarded to local authorities by courts following successful prosecutions.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to answer the letter dated 27 April from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Ms Wendy Owen. [142347]

Mr. Bradshaw: I apologise for the delay in replying to my right hon. Friend's letter. A response was issued on 8 June.

Packaging: Waste Disposal

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the proportion of packaging used for fresh produce which is (a) recycled and (b) disposed of in landfill sites. [139254]

Mr. Bradshaw: Food-related packaging makes up an estimated 18-20 per cent. of household waste and around 3.3 per cent. of the controlled waste which is sent to landfill[1]. No estimate is currently available of the proportion of food packaging waste landfilled or recycled specifically relating to sales of fresh produce.

However, the Packaging Regulations, which place requirements on obligated businesses to recover and recycle a certain amount of the packaging waste they handle, have so far helped to raise the UK packaging recycling rate from around 27 per cent. in 1997 to around 56 per cent. in 2006. In real terms, the total amount of packaging waste recovered or recycled has increased from 3.3 million tonnes in 1998 to around 6.3 million tonnes in 2006.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme is currently working with all leading supermarkets through the Courtauld Commitment to achieve a standstill, and then a reduction, in the amount of packaging waste. A number of retailers are considering the role that the selling of loose fruit and vegetables could make to those objectives, without increasing the amount of damaged produce which is then discarded.

[1] Figures are based on estimates of waste composition contained in the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit 2002 report, "Waste Not Want Not", and information from WasteDataFlow for 2005-06.

Recycling: Business

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of recycling by businesses in each region in England. [141224]

Mr. Bradshaw: The most recent survey on industrial and commercial waste was carried out in 2002-03 by the Environment Agency. Information was collected from approximately 4,500 businesses and included the type, quantity and form of the waste, as well as the disposal or recovery method used. Data collection was limited to controlled waste and related to England only. The information is available, broken down by region, from the Environment Agency's website and is shown in the following table.

Recycling: Licensing

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many licences have been issued by the Environment Agency for green waste recycling centres in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [141682]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency (EA) does not have a specific category for green waste recycling centres. As of 8 June 2007, the EA's records show a total of 211 licensed composting facilities and 524 licensed civic amenity/household waste sites, which generally accept green waste from the public.

In 1998-99, there were 108 EA licensed composting sites and 458 licensed civic amenity/household waste sites. A breakdown of the number of licences issued per year is not available.

The number of composting facilities processing green waste has steadily increased since 1998, in line with the Government's strategy to promote the reuse, reduction and recycling of waste.

Smoking: Public Places

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department and its agencies have made of the likely effect of the public smoking ban on levels of cigarette litter in public places. [142252]

Mr. Bradshaw: Smoking-related litter is one of the most prevalent types of litter. Each of the last three local environmental quality surveys of England showed that smokers' materials were present on 79 per cent. of survey sites. Without action, the introduction of smoke free legislation in July this year is likely to increase this problem. However, the Government are taking steps to tackle this form of littering through a combination of regulatory options, partnership work, guidance and awareness-raising.

Smoking-related materials were clarified as litter in the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005, in order to encourage greater enforcement against this offence. Street litter control notices may also be issued by local authorities where there is a significant problem with litter on the street. Notices can be used to place requirements on the occupiers (or owners) of premises to take steps to reduce litter outside their premises, such as the installation of litter bins.

Following a consultation that closed on 8 May, DEFRA is also extending these provisions to allow notices to be issued for eating and drinking establishments where food is consumed on the premises. A legislative opportunity will be sought to extend the list of premises further to include office buildings, aimed particularly at helping to deal with smoking litter dropped by customers and employees. This forms part of a package of tools already available to local authorities for tackling litter problems, including the use of on-the-spot fixed penalty notices for individuals caught dropping litter.

In order to raise public awareness, the Keep Britain Tidy Campaign, run by Environmental Campaigns (ENCAMS), launched a poster campaign earlier this month to encourage all smokers and businesses to take responsibility for cigarette ends, with posters appearing on bus stops, billboards and telephone boxes across England. A number of councils across the country are supporting the campaign.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding has been provided by the Waste and Resources Action Programme to each local authority in England since the inception of the programme; and what the purpose was of each item of funding. [142259]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is currently being collated by the Waste and Resources Action Programme. I will write again to the hon. Member when it has been prepared and place a copy in the Library of the House.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Azerbaijan: Ballistic Missile Defence

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is in response to President Putin's suggestion at the G8 summit that a ballistic missile defence system could be based in Azerbaijan. [142801]

Mr. Hoon: President Putin's offer to include the radar at Qabala in Azerbaijan in the US ballistic missile system is a policy issue for the United States government and is subject to the agreement of the government of Azerbaijan. The UK, however, welcomes this constructive Russian approach; and welcomes the US's continuing commitment to discuss with Russia its co-operation in their ballistic missile system.

British Nationality: Armed Forces

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the policy of the Government is towards UK citizens who (a) join the official armed forces of foreign states engaged in military operations abroad and (b) join armed organisations not under the direction of a state which are engaged in military operations abroad. [142695]

Dr. Howells: There are no restrictions on UK citizens joining the armed forces of a foreign state other than those related to the Foreign Enlistment Act of 1870. This Act makes it an offence for a British subject without licence from Her Majesty the Queen to enlist in the armed forces of a foreign state at war with another foreign state, which is at peace with the UK.

There is no general restriction on UK citizens joining armed organisations that are not under the direction of a state. However, in certain circumstances, a UK citizen engaging in military-style operations as part of such an organisation might be in breach of, and hence liable to prosecution under, specific UK legislation. A case in point would be counter terrorist legislation, which enables the prosecution of those who commit terrorist offences overseas.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much revenue her Department received from (a) advertisements in her Department's public information leaflets and (b) advertisements on her Department's public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [140613]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not receive any revenue from advertisements placed in public information leaflets or on the FCO's websites in the United Kingdom. Some overseas posts may receive advertising revenue from their own publications or websites, but this information is not held centrally and to obtain the information from each post would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Sign Language

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the merits of providing British Sign Language (BSL) videos on her departmental website for the benefit of those whose first language is BSL. [142494]

Mr. Hoon: We have made no formal assessment of the merits of providing British Sign Language (BSL) videos on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office websites. There are, however, plans to translate two pages of our travel advice into BSL for our Deaf Awareness Day this year (18 September) as an initial trial.

Libya: Foreign Relations

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will meet the Cabinet Secretary for Justice in the Scottish Government at an early date to discuss the implications of the recently signed memorandum of understanding between the UK and Libya. [142646]

Dr. Howells: Officials in Government Departments are consulting with their counterparts in the Scottish Executive, according to the principles set out in the memorandum of understanding with the devolved administrations of 2001. It sets out how the Government and the devolved administrations should interact in the conduct of international relations.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her Department's policy is on the Arab League's peace plan for Israel and Palestine of 2002; and if she will make a statement. [142462]

Dr. Howells: The Arab League's re-endorsement of the 2002 Beirut Declaration at the Arab Summit in Riyadh is a welcome step. The Arab League has a key role to play in promoting reconciliation between the Israelis and Palestinians and moving forward the peace process. We support the Arab League's engagement with the parties and welcome the meetings since the re-endorsement of the Arab League Initiative.

The Arab Peace Initiative offers Israel comprehensive peace with all member states of the Arab League. In exchange, it calls on Israel to withdraw fully from all territories occupied since 1967; to agree to "a just resolution" of the refugee problem; and to accept a sovereign Palestinian state with East Jerusalem as its capital. Any final status issues will need to be negotiated directly between the parties. The Arab Peace Initiative offers a framework to move towards these discussions.

Pakistan: Human Rights

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will raise with the Government of Pakistan the case of Younis Masih, a Christian who has been sentenced to death under section 295C of the Pakistan penal code; and if she will urge the Pakistani authorities to ensure that he is able to access a fair appeals process and proper protection to prevent attacks from extremists while he is appealing the sentence. [142644]

Dr. Howells: We do not usually raise individual cases and have not recently made any representations to the Pakistani authorities concerning Younis Masih. However, we are aware of this case and regularly raise our concerns about the treatment of religious minorities in Pakistan both bilaterally and with our EU partners. We oppose the death penalty in all circumstances as a matter of principle.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will raise with the Government of Pakistan the case of four female student nurses, a member of staff and the Principal at the Pakistan Institute of Medical Sciences Nursing School who have been suspended on suspicion of desecration of the Koran; and if she will urge the Pakistani authorities immediately to reinstate them and to ensure that there is an independent inquiry into the matter. [142645]

Dr. Howells: Although we do not usually raise individual cases, we regularly raise our concerns over the situation of religious minorities with the Government of Pakistan. Most recently, in May, we again voiced our concerns over the treatment of religious minorities in Pakistan, together with our EU partners.

Pakistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to urge the Pakistani authorities to address extremism and threats to religious minorities. [142717]

Dr. Howells: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and President Musharraf reiterated in their joint declaration in November 2006, the UK and Pakistan share a common agenda to promote enlightened moderation and to combat the forces of extremism. To this end, the two leaders agreed to support civil society and youth interaction between Pakistan and the UK. We fully appreciate the personal risks taken by President Musharraf when he took his position against extremism.

Bilaterally and together with EU partners, we continue to regularly raise our concerns with the government of Pakistan over the situation of religious minorities. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade (Mr. McCartney) also raised this issue in correspondence with the Pakistani Prime Minister in February.

Pakistan: Religious Freedom

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the government of Pakistan on the treatment of Christians in Charsadda and other parts of the North West Frontier Province. [142885]

Dr. Howells: I am aware of the continuing problems faced by minority groups in Pakistan, including the Christian community in the North West Frontier Province. We regularly raise our concerns with the government of Pakistan, bilaterally and together with our EU partners, and will continue to encourage Pakistan to pursue its vision of enlightened moderation for the benefit of all its citizens.

Palestinian Authority: Finance

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the revenue of the Palestinian National Authority for the financial year 2006-07; and if she will make a statement. [141659]

Dr. Howells: The Palestinian Authority is facing a severe fiscal crisis in 2006-07, mainly caused by a collapse in revenues. This fall has largely occurred as Israel has withheld the revenues, such as VAT receipts and customs payments, that it collects on behalf of the Palestinian Authority. These resources typically made up around a third of the Palestinian Authorities domestic revenues and have been withheld since March 2006. Precise figures for the amounts are not available but the International Monetary Fund recently estimated they may be in the order of US$750 million. Other sources of tax finance have also fallen as a consequence of the broader collapse in economic activity in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. External funding from donors (including to the Palestinian Authority and the Office of the President) has risen since 2005 but this has been insufficient to offset the reductions elsewhere. Overall revenues for 2006 are estimated at US$1.4 billion, down from almost US$2.2 billion in the previous year. The EU has provided more financial assistance (over €680 million) to the Palestinian people in 2006 than it did in previous years. During financial year 2006-07 the UK gave over £70 million to the Palestinian people, £30 million bilaterally and an additional £40 million through our EU contributions.

Sailesh Vithlani

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions her Department has had with Sailesh Vithlani since 1 January 2007; and if she will make a statement. [141512]

Mr. McCartney: No Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers or officials have had any discussions with Sailesh Vithlani since 1 January 2007.

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of human rights abuses in Saudi Arabia since 1997; what representations her Department has made to Saudi Arabia on human rights issues since 1 May 1997; and if she will make a statement. [143055]

Dr. Howells: We regularly discuss the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia with the Saudi authorities at all levels. Human rights are also raised on our behalf by the European Union, which has decided to keep the details of these discussions confidential.

We are committed to encouraging Saudi Arabia to improve its human rights record and adhere to international human rights standards. The hon. Member may also welcome the recent increase in activities by the National Society on Human Rights (NSHR). In May 2007 the NSHR published its first annual report on the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia, since it was established in 2004. This is a significant step forward.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consideration she has made of the merits of the proposal to impose a no-fly zone in Darfur. [142558]

Mr. McCartney: We are considering a number of measures to improve air monitoring in Darfur, from enhanced monitoring on the ground to a no-fly zone and we rule out nothing. We need to assess the logistical challenges of implementation and impact on the humanitarian effort of any measures. We are working with partners in the UN Security Council to press both the African Union and the Panel of Experts to notify the UN Sanctions Committee of any instances of offensive military flights in Darfur.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the international community's policies on the imposition of sanctions on the Sudanese Government with regard to the conflict in Darfur; and if she will make a statement. [142560]

Mr. McCartney: We believe sanctions have contributed towards containing the crisis in Darfur, for example in the Government of Sudan's acceptance of the UN's Heavy Support Package to the African Union peacekeeping force in Sudan. However, we want a solution to the crisis which may require further sanctions.

We are concerned that sanctions should not impact on those in Sudan who have no responsibility for violence in Darfur, or on the Comprehensive Peace Agreement, thus damaging the south. We are therefore pressing for further targeted sanctions on individuals and an extension of the UN arms embargo from Darfur to all of Sudan, in line with the EU embargo, if the Government of Sudan and the rebel movements fail to honour their commitments.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what budget and support the Government are providing to the African Union peacekeepers in Darfur. [142557]

Mr. McCartney: The UK is a leading provider of financial support to the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS). We have committed 373 million since AMIS was set up in July 2004. UK funds have helped to provide the force with vehicles, ground fuel and airlift of troops into Darfur, as well as funding for personnel costs such as troop salaries. We also contribute through the EU Africa Peace Facility that has so far committed €242 million to AMIS and is about to commit an additional €40 million. We are also pressing for others to do more.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government plan to send troops to Darfur as part of the United Nations-African Union peacekeeping force. [142559]

Mr. McCartney: The UK will be a strong supporter of the African Union (AU)-UN hybrid force, both politically and financially through our contributions to UN assessed funding for peacekeeping, currently set at 7.9 per cent. of the total. We are providing police and military advisers to assist the UN's Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO) with planning for the hybrid operation. We have also deployed a military officer to Sudan to assist with the transition from the AU Mission in Sudan to the hybrid force. We will consider requests for troop contributions as and when we receive them from DPKO. The details of the force have now been agreed between the AU and UN and we are pressing the Sudanese Government to accept them and facilitate its deployment. A significant part of that agreement is that troops should be to the greatest possible extent contributed by African states.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the United Nations on democracy in Zimbabwe. [142461]

Mr. McCartney: The Government's concern relating to human rights abuses, governance and democracy in Zimbabwe were most recently raised this week at the fifth session of the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva. The EU and UK asked a number of questions of the UN special rapporteurs on the rights to food and housing concerning the impact of the denial of both for the human and political rights of ordinary Zimbabweans. In March, 50 UN member states supported a statement at the Human Rights Council by the EU presidency, on behalf of all EU member states, expressing concern at the situation in Zimbabwe. The UK also continues to raise these concerns in dialogue with the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Louise Arbour, and to press for her and other UN rapporteurs to have access to Zimbabwe. Other recent discussions with the UN have taken place with senior officials in the Department for Humanitarian Affairs, following on from the briefing in March to the UN Security Council on the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe which was given by the Office of the Commissioner for Humanitarian Affairs at the UK's request. Our embassy in Harare is in regular discussion with the UN Development Programme Office regarding human rights, democracy and good governance.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Anti-semitism

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-semitic attacks were recorded in the UK in each year since 2001. [142124]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally in the recorded crime series.

The recorded crime statistics only hold data for racially or religiously aggravated offences as defined by statute. Specific details relating to the victim or alleged offender are not collected.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1422W, on ultrasonic antisocial behaviour deterrent devices, if he will place in the Library copies of the report from the Health and Safety Executive. [141787]

Mr. Coaker: The information from the Health and Safety Executive concerning the safety of the mosquito device derives from a letter written to the Welsh Assembly from the HSE. I have placed a copy in the Library.

Arrests

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of arrest rates for police officers. [141589]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Information is not collected centrally on arrest rates. Numbers of arrests are collected on a recorded crime basis only.

Asylum

David Heyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when a decision will be made in the case of Mr. Minnain Privat Aristide Henri's outstanding asylum application, which was submitted in March 2004. [140651]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency wrote separately to my hon. Friend in relation to this matter on 7 June 2007.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of (a) the number of outstanding case files for asylum seekers held by his Department, (b) the number of those of whose whereabouts his Department knows and (c) the time he expects it to take to clear the backlog at present rates. [118863]

Mr. Byrne: The Director General of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate (now Chief Executive of the Border and Immigration Agency) wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 19 February and updated them on, among other matters, the legacy programme. A copy of her letter is in the House Library.

Asylum: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers are living in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [141826]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics on the location of asylum seekers in the UK are linked to the available information on the support that the asylum seeker receives.

The following table shows the number of asylum seekers recorded as receiving asylum support in Eastbourne and the local authorities within East Sussex as at the end of March 2007. This figure excludes those asylum seekers who are living in these local authorities but are not receiving support.

The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support, broken down by Government office region and local authority, are published on a quarterly and annual basis. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Further breakdowns of those in receipt of support, by parliamentary constituency, are also available from the Library of the House.

Local authority	In dispersed accommodation	In receipt of subsistence only support	Total in receipt of support
Brighton and Hove	15	40	55
Eastbourne	—	20	20
Hastings	60	—	60
Lewes	—	—	—
Rother	—	—	—
Wealden	—	—	—
Total	75	60	135

Note:
All figures are rounded to the nearest 5.

Asylum: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of failed asylum seekers were removed from Northern Ireland in each of the last six years. [136826]

Mr. Byrne: As the Home Secretary set out in his evidence to the Home Affairs Select Committee on 23 May 2006, following the dismantling of embarkation controls beginning in 1994, no Government have been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally, and that remains the case. The Home Secretary has set a clear goal of reintroducing systems to count everyone in and out of Britain.

Bokhari Family

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much time he spent considering the case against the deportation of the Bokhari family; what evidence he was given on the case by his Immigration and Nationality Directorate officials; and whom he consulted in making his decision. [118849]

Mr. Byrne: The decision to remove a person from the United Kingdom (UK) is only taken after full and careful consideration of individual circumstances and in accordance with Home Office guidelines. When a decision is to be made by the Secretary of State personally, he is provided with all available evidence and is fully briefed by Border and Immigration Agency officials.

Cleveland Police

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of police time was spent on front-line duties by Cleveland Police in each year since 2001, broken down by basic command unit. [142199]

Mr. McNulty: Information on time spent by police officers on front-line duties has only been collected since 2003-04 and is not available at basic command unit level. The available data for the Cleveland Police for each year since March 2004 is set out in the following table. The Cleveland Police has set a target for 69.9 per cent. of police officer time to be spent on front-line duties by March 2008.

Cleveland Police—time spent on front-line duties

	Percentage of police officer time spent on front-line duties
2003-04	58.50
2004-05	53.60
2005-06	55.20

Departments: Complaints

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints were received by his Department and its executive agencies in (a) 1997-98, (b) 2001-02 and (c) 2005-06; and how many have been received in 2006-07 to date. [121665]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office does not record complaints received in writing or over the telephone. These separately are received and recorded as part of overall correspondence figures. Once received, all correspondence including any complaints is either sent to individual policy units to be dealt with or is dealt with centrally. They are not tracked separately.

The Identity and Passport Service recorded 8,597 complaints in 2005-06 and 9,410 complaints in 2006-07.

Since 2001, the Borders and Immigration Agency have been recording complaints about the misconduct of staff, and recorded 555 complaints in 2001-02; 240 complaints in 2005-06 and 326 complaints in 2006-07. During 2005-06, the Border and Immigration Agency also began recording operational complaints (about service delivery). The figure for 2006 is 8,966.

Border and Immigration Agency are planning a complete overhaul of the system under their complaints change programme.

Departments: Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Government have a strategy to protect Government websites from (a) denial of service and (b) other cyber attacks. [141637]

Mr. McNulty: The Government's Central Sponsor for Information Assurance within the Cabinet Office is responsible for the Government's strategy to protect the public sector and those services forming the Critical National Infrastructure from cyber attacks.

CESG (the Information Assurance arm of GCHQ) is the National Technical Authority for Information Assurance and develops Government advice for protecting data in partnership with the Central Sponsor for Information Assurance and advises on its implementation. CESG manages the Government's UK computer emergency response team heads of Departments and agencies are individually responsible for engaging with CSIA/CESG to ensure that appropriate measures are in place to protect against any risks to business continuity.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information his Department has provided to HM Treasury as part of the comprehensive spending review policy review of counter-terrorism and security. [141311]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office continues to exchange information with HM Treasury on matters relating to the development of the comprehensive spending review 2007. It is not appropriate to comment in detail on these exchanges.

Departments: Sign Language

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the merits of providing British Sign Language (BSL) videos on his departmental website for the benefit of those whose first language is BSL. [142495]

Mr. Byrne: We have not made an assessment. The vast majority of our content is text and is therefore read by the hearing impaired. Any video content has a textual transcript attached.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many telephone helplines are sponsored by his Department with the prefix (a) 0870 and (b) 0845; and whether alternative geographic numbers are available in each case. [138485]

Mr. Byrne: The number of telephone lines with the prefix 0870 and 0845 used by the Home Office was printed in answer to a question from the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 8 June 2007, Official Report, column 672W. Of the 63 listed, 27 (42.9 per cent.) have geographic alternatives.

Departments: Websites

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for which Government websites he is responsible; how many visitors each received in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost (a) was of establishing and (b) has been of maintaining each site. [135738]

Mr. Byrne: Since publication of the Transformational Government Strategy in November 2005, the Home Office has been actively engaged in developing an e-communications strategy that centralises the operation and management of all Home Office websites.

The names of all sites managed by the Home Office, as per the Transformational Government annual report published December 2006, will be placed in the Library of the House.

In May 2007, following the handover of 13 websites to the new Ministry of Justice (MOJ), the Home Office reported:

52 closing sites (39 already earmarked for closure and a further 13 moving to MOJ)

33 remaining of which:

One is the main Home Office departmental site

10 are sub-domains of this site

Three agencies

15 NDPBs

One inspectorate

Three extranets

Of these websites, only about half are managed by the central Home Office web team. The others are all operated by the web team or agency of the Home Office entity, agency or NDPB responsible.

Departments: Westminster City Council

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which grants for which his Department is responsible have been made to Westminster city council in each year since 1997-98; and what the value was of each grant. [137759]

Mr. Byrne: The grants made to Westminster city council in each year since 1997-98 by this Department, as recorded by the council in the Communities and Local Government Revenue returns, are as follows.

Grants	£000
1997-98
Asylum seekers: various grants	7,166
1998-99
Asylum seekers: various grants	10,403
1999-2000
Asylum seekers	12,912
2000-01
Asylum seekers	15,394
2001-02
Asylum seekers	12,987
2002-03
Asylum seekers	12,454
2003-04
Asylum seekers	8,948
2004-05
Asylum seekers	5,697
2005-06
Asylum seekers	3,698
Young People Substance Misuse Partnership	527
2006-07
Asylum seekers	1,373
Young People Substance Misuse Partnership	458

This table sets out the specific grants inside aggregate external finance (AEF) (i.e. revenue grants paid for councils' core services) paid to Westminster and excludes grants outside AEF such as capital grants, funding for local authorities' housing management responsibilities, European funding; or where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area. Revenue support grant and other elements of formula grant (such as redistributed business rates and police grant) have also been excluded.

Revenue outturn data have been used from 1997-98 to 2005-06 (the last year available) and revenue account data have been used for 2006-07.

Deportation: Sudan

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he last conducted an in-country assessment of Sudan in relation to the safety of rejected asylum seekers from Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [142253]

Mr. Byrne: Information about the conditions in Sudan including the security situation is obtained from a wide range of governmental and non-governmental sources, human rights organisations and the media.

This information is utilised by case owners responsible for decision making on asylum claims and is published in regularly updated Home Office country of origin information reports. The latest country of origin information report on Sudan was published in January 2007 and can be accessed on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/country_reports.html.

An updated report containing the most recent information available will be published later this month.

Drugs: Crime

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drug-related offences have been committed in each police authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [142140]

Mr. Coaker: Data collected centrally on recorded crime do not identify whether offences are drug related. The recorded crime statistics do include the number of specific drug offences which are given in the tables.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discretionary powers are available to him to permit individuals to enter the UK in exceptional circumstances. [141395]

John Reid: Normally any request to enter the United Kingdom must be made within a category within the Immigration Rules. However, it is possible to grant someone limited leave to enter the United Kingdom under the category of 'Leave Outside the Rules'.

There are two circumstances in which "Leave Outside the Rules" will be considered in non-asylum and non-protection cases:

where someone qualifies under one of the immigration policy concessions; or for reasons that are particularly compelling in circumstance.

There are currently 25 immigration policy concessions which are outlined in chapter 1, section 14 of the Immigration Directorate Instructions, which may be found at:

http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk

Cases where there are particular compelling circumstances will be considered on their individual merits and in line with any relevant policy at that time. The decision to grant leave outside the rules in such cases will only follow in rare circumstances where there are genuinely compassionate and circumstantial reasons and no other option is available.

Identity Cards

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1407W, on identity cards, what estimate he has made of the total savings from the cost of identity fraud which will be realised as a result of the introduction of identity cards in each of the first five years following their introduction. [136234]

Joan Ryan: A precise estimate of the impact of identity cards in combating identity fraud is difficult to quantify. However, in the Identity Cards Scheme Benefits Overview, published in June 2005:

http://www.identitycards.gov.uk/downloads/2005-06-27_Identity_Cards_Scheme_Benefits_Overview.pdf

it was estimated that the benefits arising from reduced fraud overall would be in the range of £310 million to £570 million per annum once the identity cards scheme is rolled out.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the confiscation of identity cards once issued. [141357]

John Reid: The circumstances under which an ID card must be surrendered are set out in section 11, subsections (3) and (4), of the Identity Cards Act 2006. In particular, someone who is in possession of an ID card without lawful authority would be required to surrender the card as soon as is practicable to do so and a person who is in possession of an ID card that had expired, been cancelled or was invalid may be required to surrender it.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consideration he has given to how those with diseases such as Alzheimer's will be accommodated within the identity card application and issuing system, with particular reference to informed consent. [141358]

John Reid: The Identity Cards Act 2006 has been designed to allow for flexibility in the identity card application process. For example, in the case of an applicant who was unable to give informed consent or to sign an application form, it would be possible to provide in regulations for an authorised third party to make an application on the person's behalf, as happens currently with passport applications.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to make provision for those physically unable to travel to interview centres in the identity card issuing system. [141359]

John Reid: The Identity Cards Act 2006 has been designed to provide flexibility in the identity card application process. Regulations will be able to allow the Identity and Passport Service to accommodate the special needs of applicants, such as those unable to travel, either by making special arrangements or excluding particular individuals from the normal requirements.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what account has been taken of those individuals who work under a professional name in the development of the identity cards system. [141360]

John Reid: Schedule 1 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 sets out the information that may be held on the national identity register (the register will include details of those persons issued with identity cards). This information includes a person's full name, together with names by which a person is or has been known. It will therefore be possible for an alternative name, such as a stage name or maiden name, to be registered.

Illegal Immigrants: Faroe Islands

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of whether illegal migrants are avoiding border checks at ports by entering Scotland via the Faroe Islands. [142050]

Mr. Byrne: All passengers arriving from the Faroe Islands at Lerwick are subject to immigration control.

An additional route to Scrabster becomes operational on 18 June and all passengers arriving there will also be subject to immigration control.

Border and Immigration Agency officials advise there is no evidence to support speculation that this route is used for clandestine entry to the UK.

Immigrants

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to reduce the time taken to process applications for indefinite leave to remain. [134117]

Mr. Byrne: Following the IND review there is an ongoing programme of improvement activity across the whole of the Border and Immigration Agency including all migration casework areas. Resources have been diverted to some areas where backlogs exist in order to improve performance.

Immigrants: Unemployment

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department provides any support to unemployed (a) A2 and (b) A8 nationals who have come to the UK to work but who do not have access to benefits as they have not completed 12 months of work. [134316]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency does not provide support to unemployed A2 and A8 nationals who have come to the UK to work but who do not have access to benefits as they have not completed 12 months of continuous employment in the UK. In work and contributory benefits are available to some migrants who meet the relevant DWP tests.

As for all EEA nationals, migrants from the A8 and A2 countries that come to the UK are expected to be self-sufficient if they are not working or self-employed.

Immigration: Detention Centres

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the staff/detainee ratio is at (a) Campsfield House Immigration Removal Centre, (b) Colnbrook Immigration Removal Centre, (c) Dover Immigration Removal Centre, (d) Dungavel Immigration Removal Centre, (e) Harmondsworth Immigration Removal Centre, (f) Haslar Immigration Removal Centre, (g) Lindholme, (h) Oakington, (i) Tinsley House Immigration Removal Centre and (j) Yarls Wood Immigration Removal Centre. [136973]

Mr. Byrne: The staff to detainee ratios at the contracted out immigration removal centres are shown in the following table.

Any part of an operating contract can be changed through the 'Notice of Change' process which can be initiated by either side. This allows changes in operating circumstances to be recognised and resources added or reduced according to need, usually following informal consultation. This process is regularly used and contractors are fully familiar with it.

The agency does not provide guidance on staff to detainee ratios to HM Prison Service as they have vast experience in operating custodial environments.

Immigration: Judgments

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been issued to immigration officers in light of the ruling by the House of Lords in (a) Huang and (b) Kashmiri v. Secretary of State for the Home Department. [141400]

John Reid: The House of Lords ruling related specifically to the considerations given by the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT). This advised that, when assessing proportionality, the AIT was required to weigh up all relevant competing considerations and was not required to establish that the circumstances of a case were truly exceptional in order to find that removal would give rise to an unlawful interference with article 8 rights. As no specific findings were made to considerations given by immigration officers, no general guidance has been issued. Where article 8 claims are made the Border and Immigration Agency do consider all factors raised.

National Policing Improvement Agency

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the progress of the National Policing Improvement Agency since becoming fully operational on 1 April. [141778]

Mr. McNulty: The National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) began its work on 1 April this year and its published Business Plan for 2007-08 includes 15 delivery statements reflecting the strategic priorities of the Police Service and of the tripartite partners in policing—the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), the Association of Police Authorities (APA) and the Home Office. Some good progress has already been made on a number of these, for example:

The national strategic assessment has been completed and will now be used as a key underpin for the NPIA's work.

The IMPACT programme has successfully progressed to the stage where it can now proceed with the procurement of the first stage of the police national database.

Leadership: a major review of the entirety of the NPIA's leadership approach and training has been completed. The next step is to bring the work on leadership and workforce strategy together.

Serious Crime Analysis Section (SCAS): There is now a nominated senior lead in each force for SCAS. ACPO and NPIA will bring them together to agree a renewed national approach to maximising the way the service is used.

Diversity impact assessment: an impact assessment of the DMA database is underway and NPIA is working closely with the Commission of Racial Equality (CRE) on this work.

There has also been progress in other areas of NPIA's work. Key performance indicators have been established for both the external and internal strategic priorities of the organisation. The Chief Executive will be providing regular reports of performance and issues facing the Agency.

North Wales Police

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of police time was spent on front-line duties by North Wales Police in each year since 2001. [142210]

Mr. McNulty: Information on time spent by police officers on front-line duties has only been collected since 2003-04. The available data for the North Wales Police for each year since March 2004 is set out in the following table. The North Wales Police has set a target for 66.6 per cent. of police officer time to be spent on front-line duties by March 2008.

North Wales Police—time spent on front-line duties

	Percentage of police officer time spent on front-line duties
2003-04	53.34
2004-05	63.37
2005-06	63.50

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign national prisoners were transferred to immigration removal centres (a) before the end of their sentence and (b) after the end of their sentence in each of the last five years, broken down by the number of weeks before or after their sentence that the transfer occurred. [135831]

John Reid: The information requested is not available.

Foreign national prisoners are only transferred into the Border and Immigration Agency's removal estate when their sentences have expired.

Offensive Weapons: Custodial Treatment

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people convicted of carrying a knife in each of the last three years were given (a) a non-custodial sentence and (b) a custodial sentence; [135582]

(2) how many people convicted of carrying knives received the maximum custodial sentence available in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [135584]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested, for England and Wales, for the years 2003 to 2005, is contained in the table.

Court proceedings statistics for 2006 will be available in the autumn.

Personation

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what role the Home Office Identity Fraud Steering Committee has undertaken in relation to the Confidential Access website; and if he will make a statement; [140918]

(2) what recent discussions he has had on the Confidential Access website; [140919]

(3) what categories of information his Department holds on the Confidential Access website. [141617]

Joan Ryan [holding answers 7 and 11 June 2007]: I will write to the hon. Member on these issues.

Police: Career Structure

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers were promoted to the rank of chief inspector in each of the last three years; and what proportion were (a) members of an ethnic minority, broken down by ethnic minority, and (b) female. [141352]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The available data are given in the following table.

Police officers promoted to chief inspector rank (headcount) by ethnicity[1] and gender from 2003-04 to 2005-06[2]

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Number of promotions	486	376	331
Percentage of female promotions from total	10.5	14.6	14.8

Black or black British	31.3	16.7	16.7
Asian or Asian British	50.0	33.3	33.3
Chinese or other	6.3	8.3	0.0

[1] There were also a number of cases where the ethnicity of the officer was "not stated".
[2] Data refer to the number of officers (headcount) promoted during the year.
[3] Rounded percentages that may not sum to total.

Police: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) full-time police officers and (b) police community support officers in each police authority are suspended on full pay as a result of (i) criminal allegations and (ii) other allegations made against them; and if he will make a statement. [141306]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 June 2007]: This is a matter for the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) who have oversight of the police complaints system.

Police: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average police precept on Band D council tax bills was in (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) England and Wales in (i) 1997-98 and (ii) 2007-08. [142381]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to her question on 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1639W.

Police: Road Traffic

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the budget for roads policing in each police force was in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of the force's total budget each figure represents. [142960]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Religiously Aggravated Offences

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reported incidents of religion-based hate crimes there have been against victims who were (a) Muslim, (b) Jewish and (c) Christian in the last 12 months. [142824]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally in the recorded crime statistics. The crime statistics have data for racially or religiously aggravated offences as defined by statute but details of the victims of religious-based hate crimes are not available.

Road Traffic Act 1988

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the operation of section 41D of the Road Traffic Act 1988; what representations he has received since this section came into force; and if he will make a statement. [142815]

Mr. Coaker: Section 41D of the Road Traffic Act 1988 was inserted by the Road Safety Act 2006 and came into effect in February 2007. I have received no specific representations on this provision.

Section 41D provides for the punishment of offences relating to construction and use requirements in respect of having proper control of a vehicle and a full view of the road ahead or to use of a hand-held mobile phone or similar device while driving. Breach of any construction and use requirement was already an offence. This section makes specific provision for breach of these particular requirements by introducing a heavier penalty of obligatory endorsement, with disqualification at the court's discretion if the matter goes to court, or a fixed penalty of £60.

Enforcement of the provision is an operational matter for individual chief officers of police. The likelihood of detection has been increased by the increasing numbers of police, including the deployment on roads of teams involved in the use of Automatic Number Plate Recognition equipment (ANPR). They can stop vehicles to deal with offences as the result of direct observation as well as an ANPR hit. The dangers of mobile phone use and the penalties associated with the offence are the subject of a publicity campaign by the Department for Transport.

Sexual Offences

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sexual offences were committed in each police authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [142151]

Mr. Coaker: The available data relate to sexual offences recorded by the police and are given in the tables.

[1] The Sexual Offences Act 2003 introduced in May 2004 altered the definition and coverage of sexual offences, in particular, it redefined indecent exposure as a sexual offence.

Note:
1. Numbers of recorded crime were affected by changes in reporting and recording following the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These data are not comparable with earlier years.

Counter-terrorism: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what counter-terrorist exercises took place in East Sussex in each of the last five years. [141830]

Mr. McNulty: Since 2002, the Home Office has sponsored two table-top (non-live play) exercises, in March 2004 and in December 2006, and one live-play exercise (in conjunction with Surrey police) during March 2007 (Exercise LION'S KEEP), in Sussex. Details of other locally organised counter-terrorism exercises in which Sussex may have taken part during this period are not held centrally by the Home Office.

Vehicle Crime Reduction Team

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the likely effect that the decision to close the Vehicle Crime Reduction team will have upon rates of theft of (a) motorcycles and (b) motorcycle parts; and if he will make a statement; [142411]

(2) what considerations were taken into account before taking the decision to close down the Vehicle Crime Reduction Team; and if he will make a statement. [142412]

Mr. Coaker: The decision to wind down the Home Office Vehicle Crime Reduction Team was taken as part of the Home Office Reform Programme and in the context of developing a new strategic approach to crime reduction.

We do not believe the decision to wind down the Home Office team will have an adverse impact on the theft rates of motorcycles or motorcycle parts. Front-line practitioners are experienced in implementing initiatives to deal with vehicle crime, including thefts of motorcycles. This includes providing relevant crime prevention advice and making use of the Motor Salvage (Operators) Regulations 2002 to drive criminals out of the motor salvage industry to prevent vehicles, including motorcycles, being stolen for their parts.

Performance management arrangements will ensure that the significant gains made to date in this area are sustained.

Written Questions

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer Question 125175, on repatriation of failed asylum seekers, tabled by the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green on 28 February. [130618]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 29 March 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member on 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 609W.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer Question 126828, on migrant workers, tabled by the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham on 7 March. [135525]

Mr. Byrne: I replied to the hon. Member on 7 June 2007, Official Report, column 678W.

Young Offenders

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of (a) street crime, (b) burglaries, (c) car thefts and (d) criminal damage was carried out in each police authority area by 10 to 16-year-olds in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [142154]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. It is not possible to determine the age of the alleged offender from the recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Climate Change

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which projects have been funded by the Investment Climate Facility for Africa; and if he will make a statement. [142535]

Hilary Benn: The UK accords high priority to investment climate reform in Africa. An improved investment climate will stimulate increased private sector investment and higher rates of sustainable growth, enhancing job creation and enabling Africa to lift itself out of poverty. This is why DFID, along with several other donors and companies with a long-term interest in Africa, supports the Investment Climate Facility for Africa (ICF). The G8 recently reaffirmed their continuing support for the ICF at their Summit meeting in Heiligendamm.

The ICF is an independent pan-African trust that brings together African governments and institutions, the private sector and donor agencies to work collectively to improve the investment climate in Africa.

The ICF's first major project, the Rwanda Investment Climate Project, was launched on 28 May 2007, encompassing commercial dispute resolution and business and land registration. It is a three-year project in partnership with the Rwanda Government. The ICF is contributing about $9 million to the project.

The ICF is also financing work on customs reform in East Africa in partnership with Business Action for Improved Customs Administration in Africa, as well as a project to speed up the payment of VAT refunds in Southern Africa. ICF expects to announce the approval of other projects under development in the coming months.

Departments: Dismissal

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions since 1st January 2000 his Department has summarily dismissed a member of its staff earning more than £40,000 per annum and serving overseas without there being any allegation either of misconduct or gross misconduct and without any written warning being given to the employee prior to dismissal. [141853]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has dismissed three employees since 1 January 2000 who fall within the criteria set out in the question. They were all dismissed following legal advice and in line with the terms of their contracts.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what make and model of car (a) he and (b) each Minister in his Department selected as their official ministerial car; and what criteria were used when making the decision in each case. [141987]

Hilary Benn: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) is responsible for providing ministerial cars in line with the Ministerial Code and the Prime Minister's guidance Travel by Ministers'.

GCDA advises the Prime Minister on the suitability of cars for inclusion in his guidance, taking into account a number of criteria when assessing suitable cars including their environmental impact, running and maintenance costs and overall suitability as a ministerial car.

Ministers in the Department for International Development are provided with two Toyota Prius cars.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what visits he has made involving a mix of political and official engagements where Government car service vehicles were used in 2007; and whether the Government were reimbursed a proportion of the cost in each case. [142660]

Hilary Benn: All travel is undertaken in accordance with 'Travel by Ministers' and the 'Ministerial Code', copies of which are available in the House Library.

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to address the negative effects of climate change on low income countries. [140627]

Mr. Thomas: The UK is trying to limit the negative effects of climate change on low income countries by leading the call internationally for a global framework with ambitious targets to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The UK is leading by example in this, with a commitment to reduce emissions by 60 per cent. by 2050.

The UK is also at the forefront of supporting poor countries adapt. DFID's rapidly rising aid budget means we can spend more money than ever to lift people out of poverty which makes them less vulnerable to climate change. But there is still much more that needs to be done. The UK has pledged at least £75 million to support adaptation directly. For example, at the grass roots level we are investing in schemes such as safer flood resistant housing for thousands of people in Bangladesh. We are also contributing £5 million over five years to improving Africa's ability to get and use information on what future climate trends will be, so that countries can plan better for this. In the last budget the Chancellor announced a new £800 million Environmental Transformation Fund, which will include support for adaptation in developing countries.

Developing Countries: Politics and Government

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which projects have been funded by the Governance and Transparency Fund; and if he will make a statement. [142534]

Mr. Thomas: The 2006 White Paper on International Development announced a new fund to support better governance and transparency in poor countries through working with civil society. Following a public consultation, the Secretary of State launched the five year £100 million Governance and Transparency Fund (GTF) in February 2007.

Applications are to be assessed through a fair and rigorous competitive process, with a commitment to begin spending before the end of this calendar year. We are on track to achieve that, anticipating all decisions on funding to be made in the autumn.

It is therefore too early for any projects to have been funded under the GTF. Once decisions have been taken, we will post details of all proposals supported on the DFID website.

HIV Infection: Medical Treatments

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what total Government funding for research into the development of anti-retroviral HIV/AIDS medication for use in developing countries was in the latest period for which figures are available; and to which bodies this funding was provided. [141111]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government are not funding any research into the development of new oral anti-retroviral medication but is funding research into the development of microbicides (vaginal medication) against HIV and AIDS. The International Partnership for Microbicides (IPM) has received £8.7 million between 2002-08 and the Microbicide Development Programme (MDP), a joint programme between the UK Medical Research Council and Imperial College London, has received £39.8 million between 2001-09.

The UK Government are providing £5.6 million for two clinical trials that are developing simplified treatment protocols to use existing oral anti-retroviral therapy in Africa. Both trials are coordinated by the Medical Research Council clinical trials unit—DART (ART for adults 2002-07) and ARROW (ART for children 2006-11).

International Assistance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his assessment is of the outcomes of the G8 meeting in respect of international development. [142298]

Hilary Benn: On climate change, the G8 summit made significant progress towards a new global agreement, which is very important for developing countries.

The summit also reaffirmed the Gleneagles commitments on development assistance, and set out how the fight against AIDS will be taken forward, with additional funding and help for vulnerable mothers and children. There has also been considerable progress on debt cancellation.

Overseas Aid

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the timescale is for conducting country governance analysis for all recipients of UK development assistance; and if he will make a statement. [142536]

Mr. Thomas: DFID introduced a new governance assessment tool, the Country Governance Analysis (CGA), in February 2007. It will help ensure that our aid strategy and programming better reflect governance context and trends. The CGA is mandatory for all countries where DFID is preparing 3-5 year Country Assistance Plans. Between 17 and 21 countries are likely to prepare CGAs in 2007. The rest will be done in 2008-09. To date, none have reached the final approval stage but several are near to finalisation, including Sierra Leone, Malawi, Mozambique and Ghana. CGAs are undertaken with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Sierra Leone: Health Services

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department has provided to health systems in Sierra Leone in each of the last five years. [142760]

Hilary Benn: Since April 2002 the Department for International Development (DFID) has provided £5,284,945 to support health systems in Sierra Leone through direct projects.

Please see following table for a breakdown for each financial year.

2002-03	1,038,361
2003-04	2,322,258
2004-05	320,302
2005-06	162,335
2006-07	1,441,689

Some of the projects we have funded include:

Support to UNICEF to help children, families and communities to provide care and protection for orphans and other vulnerable children;

Malaria prevention and treatment;

Support to UNICEF for Immunisation;

Reproductive health;

Rehabilitation of the Primary Health Care System in four Chiefdoms in Tonkolili District; and Establishing access to emergency Primary Health.

DFID also supports health systems in Sierra Leone through Direct Budget Support to the Government. Of the £59.5 million that has been provided through Budget Support over the last five years, approximately 11 per cent. or £6 million has been spent on the health sector.

In addition, in 2006 DFID provided $30 million through the Africa Catalytic Fund to fund the World Bank's accelerated Child Survival Programme in Sierra Leone. This is in its early stages of implementation. DFID is also working with the Government of Sierra Leone to prepare a 10 year programme aimed at strengthening the Health System to increase access to quality sexual, reproductive and child health services. It is expected this programme working closely with the World Bank will begin in 2008 and DFID will contribute £50 million over 10 years.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will take steps to encourage the provision of healthcare free at the point of access in Sierra Leone. [142761]

Hilary Benn: The 2006 Department for International Development (DFID) White Paper commits the UK to "help partner Governments abolish user fees for basic health services". DFID is fully committed to supporting the Government of Sierra Leone to ensure that this is achieved.

DFID's position is shared by our partner agencies working in Sierra Leone, including WHO, European Commission, World Bank, United Nations Population Fund, United Nations Children's Fund, World Food Programme and International NGOs. Recent Health Development Partners meetings in country have established a common position: we would like to see user fees abolished and want to help the government to reach that position for themselves, including helping them to understand how to fund the cost of health services.

The first step towards abolishing user fees is to establish the cost of providing basic health services and how to make this cost sustainable when user fees are removed. Currently fees collected by the government go towards funding the provision of services.

DFID is therefore funding preparation of National Health Accounts through World Health Organisation (WHO) to help establish how much money is currently being spent on health services in Sierra Leone from all sources (donor, International non-government organisations, private sector etc.). In addition DFID, along with other Health Development Partners, is planning to finance a study on options for pro-poor health financing. Once DFID has this Options paper it will be able to discuss with government the best way forward.

Somalia: Overseas Aid

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to ensure that humanitarian relief funding to Somalia is reaching those who need it most. [141279]

Hilary Benn: In Somalia, DFID uses three principal mechanisms to ensure that humanitarian relief is reaching those who need it most. DFID is only funding the most experienced international relief agencies; obtaining regular and detailed reporting from the relief agencies, working with other donors where possible, backed up with visits in the field by DFID experts, where security permits; supporting objectively targeted assistance, where possible, such as: emergency medical relief—people are assisted if they are seriously ill—or emergency nutritional support—where entry onto a feeding programme is decided on the basis of the weight and height of the child. There is less likelihood of abuse when entitlement is established in this way.

DFID provides a major proportion of our humanitarian funds to the International Committee of the Red Cross in southern Somalia, as they are experts at assisting victims of conflict and have good on-the-ground access.

During the drought in Somalia last year, DFID's humanitarian adviser for east and central Africa visited south central Somalia in April. Following this assessment, DFID was able to provide further targeted assistance.

As part of our ongoing humanitarian programme, DFID has committed £900,000 to International Medical Corps (IMC). Part of this support provides targeted assistance to malnourished children in the Bakool and Hiran regions.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of UK financial support for the Somali Transitional Federal Government. [141518]

Hilary Benn: DFID provides financial support to the Somali Transitional Federal Government (TFG) through a strategic partnership with the United Nations Development programme (UNDP) and a separate UNDP Somali Institutional Support project.

Between July 2006 and December 2007, DFID has committed £5 million to the UNDP partnership to support the achievement of reconciliation, stability and improved governance, rule of law and assisting Somali Diaspora to return and use their skills in public service delivery. Activities are being carried out with the TFG and with the regional administrations in Somaliland and Puntland. DFID has also committed £2.5 million to the Somali Institutional Support Project (SISP) which focuses on supporting the key functions and actions to be performed by the Transitional Federal Institutions (TFIs).

Both the UNDP partnership and the SISP have provided technical and financial assistance to the Offices of the President, the Prime Minister, the Speaker, Supreme Court and other institutions. In the absence of a fully trained civil service, this assistance is enabling the Transitional Federal Institutions to have some technical capacity to function and interact with key stakeholders including the Somali people. Achievements include helping re-establish the National Civil Service Commission and providing management and financial training to civil servants. The UNDP partnership agreement has also been effective in helping the re-establishment of the Somali police force in South Central Somalia, through the training of 1000 cadets and the construction of Armo Police Training Academy and Hargeisa Central prison.

Zambia: Health Services

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department has provided to health systems in each of the last five years in Zambia; and if he will provide details of that support. [142759]

Hilary Benn: Strengthening the systems that deliver health services is a priority for DFID in Zambia. Under Zambia's Joint Assistance Strategy, DFID is the overall lead donor in the health sector during 2007 and has responsibility for coordinating the contributions of 15 multilateral and bilateral agencies.

In 2006-07, DFID provided an estimated £5.5 million to support health systems in Zambia, of which approximately £4.7 million was through Direct Budget Support.

DFID is also providing technical support to the implementation of the Zambian Government's human resources strategic plan which is working to address Zambia's severe human resource crisis in the health sector. In addition, we are supporting improvements to financial management, monitoring and evaluation, as well as timely procurement of drugs and supplies.

From 2002-03 to 2006-07, DFID provided a total of approximately £30.6 million to support health systems in Zambia.

DFID does not have a formal definition of "health systems" but the following table shows DFID spend in the health sector in Zambia. The top three rows relate most closely to health systems. Direct Budget Support means the funds have been provided directly to the Zambian Government's budget either for general or sector specific purposes. The data incorporate a notional allocation of 20 per cent. of Direct Budget Support for the health sector.

[1] Provisional.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will take steps to encourage the provision of health care free at the point of access in Zambia. [142762]

Hilary Benn: In April 2006, health user fees were removed in all Zambian government-funded health institutions in rural areas. This has made health care free at the point of access in 54 of Zambia's 72 districts. Overall, it is estimated that a third more people are being seen in health facilities. However, there has been concern about the quality of services. In many clinics, drugs ran out, and health workers become even more overworked than before. There is a plan to expand free care to peri-urban areas later in 2007. Expansion to urban areas is expected to follow in time; however this needs to be undertaken with care because of the limited capacity of current facilities such as numbers of clinics, health workers and drug supply systems to cope with additional use.

The Government of Zambia, together with DFID, has therefore prioritised improvements to drug procurement and supply chain systems, and the development of plans to address the human resource crisis. To assist, DFID plans to provide an additional £2.9 million per year for five years in general budget support, which will be used to increase the grants to districts, procure drugs, and recruit and retain more health workers.

JUSTICE

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 783-84W, on Departments: Manpower, for what reasons, subject to personal confidentiality, the 67 employees are potentially without posts. [141735]

Bridget Prentice: The 67 employees referred to in the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 783-84W, are from former DCA, the Criminal Injuries Complaints Authority and NOMS HQ. All are actively in employment, but due to business reasons, for example restructuring, relocation, closure of offices/courts, the end of projects/secondments etc, their posts are potentially coming to an end. The majority of the 67 employees comprise 39 members of staff from the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority, which is relocating to Scotland later this year. Their redeployment status is being managed in securing suitable alternative employment within the Ministry of Justice or the wider civil service.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 783-84W, on Departments: Manpower, what the estimated yearly cost to the public purse is of funding the employees without posts. [141736]

Bridget Prentice: As the 67 employees referred to in the written PQ of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 783-84W, are actively in employment, and their redeployment status is being managed in securing suitable alternative employment within the Ministry of Justice or the wider civil service, there is no yearly cost to the public purse.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what visits she has made involving a mix of political and official engagements where Government car service vehicles were used in 2007; and whether the Government were reimbursed a proportion of the cost in each case. [142662]

Ms Harman: All travel is undertaken in accordance with Travel by Ministers and the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the House Library.

HM Courts Service: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many staff funded by the public purse in HM Courts Service are classified as people without posts. [141720]

Bridget Prentice: There are currently no employees who are funded by the public purse in HM Courts Service who are classified as people without posts.

Home Detention Curfews: Greater London

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many offenders convicted of child abuse were released on home detention curfews in the Metropolitan Police district in each London borough in each year since their introduction. [142626]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Child abuse is not a recorded offence type in itself.

Since March 2001 offenders required to register under the Sex Offender Act 1997 (now replaced by part 2 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003) have been statutorily excluded from being considered for home detention curfew. Prior to March 2001 such prisoners were presumed unsuitable for release unless there were exceptional circumstances. Since July 2003 prisoners with any history of sexual offending and those serving a current sentence for offences involving child cruelty, neglect or similar offences involving violence against children have been presumed unsuitable for release unless there are exceptional circumstances.

Statistics which apply solely to offences against children of a violent or sexual nature would not be available without disproportionate cost and would not be available for each London borough in the Metropolitan area.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many offenders were released on home detention curfews in the Metropolitan Police district in each London borough in each year since their introduction. [142629]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of prisoners released under the home detention curfew scheme from all prison establishments in England and Wales can be found in the following table:

Home detention curfew release[1] and population figures by sex, England and Wales

Number/percentage

	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005

Notes:
1. This table is taken from table 10.3 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2005. Information showing the figures by individual London boroughs within the Metropolitan Police district is not held centrally.
2. These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Legal Services Bill

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what representations her Department has received from trade unions on their exemption from part 3 of the Legal Services Bill. [142330]

Bridget Prentice: We have discussed the Legal Services Bill with those representing both the Trades Union Congress and individual unions. While they have expressed support for the aims of the Legal Services Bill, they have been concerned to ensure that it does not inadvertently restrict trade unions from providing valuable support and assistance to their members.

Life Imprisonment

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans she has to increase resources for life sentence plans at each prison where the number of prisoners exceeds the programme capacity; and if she will make a statement. [142458]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prisons receive funding to manage all prisoners, including those subject to the life sentence planning process. For 2007-08, the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) Board has allocated additional funding, specifically to provide for assessments of and programmes for prisoners sentenced to an indeterminate sentence of Imprisonment for Public Protection, who are also currently subject to the life sentence planning process. The additional funding will be distributed to prisons where such prisoners are held. The NOMS Board has also commissioned a 'service review' which is looking at the systems and services currently in place for indeterminate sentenced prisoners. The final report and recommendations are expected in August 2007.

Miscarriages of Justice: Compensation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice whether an estimate has been made of the total potential liability faced by the Government from claims before the Independent Assessor of Compensation for Miscarriages of Justice; what oversight mechanism is in place to review the assessor's work; what the budget of her office is for 2007-08; how many and what proportion of cases completed in 2006-07 took more than two years to conclude; what the average length of an independent assessment process was over the last five years; in how many open cases interim but not final payments have been awarded; how many cases are before the assessor as at 7 June; how much the assessor was paid in each of the last five years; and how much has been deducted for board and lodging in awards made by the assessor in each of the last five years. [141393]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It was estimated at 31 March 2007 that the potential liability in respect of compensation for miscarriage of justice was some £25 million. This estimate was based on the number of cases in which the Secretary of State had approved eligibility for compensation and in which the assessor was to make his final assessments. The performance of the independent assessor is monitored by the miscarriages of justice team in the Better Trials Unit of the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. A monthly audit of cases is carried out and regular meetings are held with the assessor. It is also open to any applicant who is dissatisfied with the assessor's handling of their case to seek a judicial review.

The independent assessor does not have a dedicated support office, but is able to look to the miscarriages of justice team to support him in administrative duties associated with his role. It is the responsibility of applicants to make written submissions to the independent assessor regarding the quantum of their claims, and he cannot make a final assessment until such time as those submissions have been made and agreed. Of the 38 cases in which a final assessment was made in 2006-07, 28 (76 per cent.) took more than two years from eligibility for compensation being approved to the final assessment. Over the five years from 1 April 2002 to 31 March 2007, the average length of the independent assessment process, that is from eligibility being confirmed to final assessment, was three years. As at 7 June there were 116 cases in which eligibility for compensation has been approved but a final assessment not yet been made. In 79 of those cases (68 per cent.) one or more interim payments have been made, on application by the applicants. There were 16 cases with the independent assessor for final assessment and three cases in which applications for an interim payment have been made. The total fee payments to the independent assessor in each of the last five years were:

2002-03	62,436
2003-04	24,246
2004-05	20,325
2005-06	77,874
2006-07	92,660

The independent assessor does not make deductions from assessments for 'board and lodgings'. In certain circumstances he makes deductions in respect of saved living expenses. This practice was upheld by the House of Lords in a recent appeal. Central records of the amount of such deductions are not kept.

Notaries

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will assess the merits of widening the range of professions which are permitted to become notaries. [142308]

Bridget Prentice: In England and Wales, qualification and regulation as a notary is governed by the Court of Faculties. No person in England and Wales is entitled to practise as a notary public, or do any notarial act unless he has been duly sworn, admitted and enrolled in this court. The Notaries (Qualification) Rules 1998 set out the qualification and admission requirements for becoming a notary.

The Legal Services Bill, which is currently before Parliament, introduces greater competition in the provision of legal services. Under the Bill, notarial services will become a reserved legal activity and it will become possible—subject to proper authorisation from the Legal Services Board—for other approved regulators to authorise and licence the provision of these services.

Prison Service: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many staff funded by the public purse in HM Prison Service are classified as people without posts. [141721]

Bridget Prentice: HM Prison Service does not hold central records on the number of staff classified as "without posts". It is a geographically widespread organisation and most aspects of personnel management are devolved to a local level.

HMPS redeploys staff on a temporary basis until a permanent position is found for them. There are no known instances where this has not occurred.

Prison Service: Vacancies

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many staff vacancies there are at each (a) prison establishment, (b) HM Prison Service area and (c) private sector prison; and if she will make a statement. [139571]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The shortfall against staffing requirements across the public and private sector Prison Service is shown in the following tables.

B. Shortfall of staffing availability against requirement by operational area 30 April 2007—Public Sector

Area	Shortfall on unified staffing requirement having included CSH	Shortfall on non-unified staffing requirement having included agency staff
East Midlands	68	130
Eastern	22	91
High security prisons	71	249
Kent and Sussex	32	55
London	42	201
North East	17	26
North West	17	90
South Central	75	77
South West	44	92
Wales	10	15
West Midlands	77	89
Yorkshire and Humberside	31	42

[1] Unified staff are officer grade staff and operational managers.
[2] CSH—Contracted supplementary hours.

Notes on public sector prison figures:

1. The shortfall is shown after accounting for the contribution of contracted supplementary hours and agency staff.
2. The totals have not been offset by surpluses at other locations but have been offset by surpluses in individual grades within one site.
3. A dash represents an establishment that is either fully staffed or reporting a surplus. A zero represents a shortfall of a fraction of a post that rounds to zero.
4. The columns in the table cannot sensibly be added together to find an overall level of shortfall. This is because dashes represent either no shortfall or an unstated level of surplus that could be used to offset overall staffing variances.
5. The information is derived from the Personnel Corporate Database, Oracle HRMS and quarterly forecast change forms. These systems are liable to the normal inaccuracies associated with any large-scale reporting systems.

Public Guardianship Office: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many staff funded by the public purse in the Public Guardianship Office are classified as people without posts. [141719]

Bridget Prentice: There are currently no employees who are funded by the public purse in the Public Guardianship Office who are classified as people without posts.

Solicitors: North East Region

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Ministry of Justice what arrangements she has made for the provision of duty solicitor cover in Bridlington, Goole and Beverley in light of the decision of Hull firms to withdraw from the provision of such cover. [142349]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission has sufficient cover from other legal aid firms based in the region to provide full duty solicitor cover in Goole and Beverley magistrates courts. Hull firms have never provided duty solicitor cover in Bridlington magistrates court.

Young Offenders

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many and what percentage of under 18 year olds convicted in each year since 1997 lived (a) with a parent who had sole custody, (b) with parents who had joint custody and (c) with parents who were married. [142653]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The individual circumstances surrounding convicted offenders are not held centrally.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Advertising

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was. [139442]

Mr. Hain: The (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations who have supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) the Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; including the cost of these services are listed as follows:

(i) Department
2006-07	Genesis	5,028.90
(ii) Agencies
2003-04	Anderson Spratt	61,454.06
2004-05	Anderson Spratt	77,231.90
2005-06	Anderson Spratt	69,591.97
2006-07	Anderson Spratt	29,310.10
	Direct Marketing Ltd.	2 937.50
	Ovation N.I	9,000.00

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140796]

Mr. Hain: Carbon emissions from the NIO's estate are calculated from energy data supplied by the NIO Energy Manager to Energy Branch in the Department of Finance and Personnel, which collates such data for all public sector bodies in Northern Ireland for publication in the annual Public Sector Energy Campaign Report. They use the following conversion factors (similar to those used by DEFRA) to calculate carbon emissions:

	Grammes per kWh
Electricity	430
Gas/diesel oil	250
Natural gas	190
Liquid propane gas	230
Heavy fuel oil	260

The Department also participates in the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund, which aims to offset emissions from air travel. The emissions are calculated as follows:

For short haul each km flown equals 0.3kg CO_2

For long haul each km flown equals 0.22kg CO_2

Further information on the fund can be found at:

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/climatechange/uk/carbonoffset/government.htm

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what make and model of car (a) he and (b) each Minister in his Department selected as their official ministerial car; and what criteria were used when making the decision in each case. [141988]

Mr. Hain: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given today (UIN 141990) by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Transport.

Independent International Commission on Decommissioning

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Freedom of Information requests have been received by the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning (IICD) since the introduction of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and if he will seek an amendment of the legislation to include the IICD. [129665]

Mr. Hain: The Independent International Commission on Decommissioning (IICD) is not included within schedule 1 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. Organisations will be considered in the context of any review of extending the coverage of the Freedom of Information Act. We have no plans to review the coverage of the Act at present.

Local Government Re-organisation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2007, Official Report, column 1211W, on local government re-organisation, when the copy of the consultants' report will be placed in the Library. [142398]

Mr. Hain: This has now been placed in the Library.

The full title of the report is:

Office of the First Minister Deputy First Minister

Exercise to Estimate the Costs and Efficiencies of the Review of Public Administration Proposals November 2005

Final Report 15 November 2005

Public Expenditure

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the operation of the Barnett formula as it affects Northern Ireland. [142518]

Mr. Hain: In the run-up to devolution I had a number of discussions with the Chancellor about the funding of programmes which, since 8 May, have become the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Executive.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, columns 568-9W, on the Valuation and Lands Agency, when the copy of the presentation will be placed in the Library. [142400]

Mr. Hain: This has now been placed in the Library.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Eligo International

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister what the (a) date, (b) value and (c) purpose was of each payment made by his Office to Eligo International Limited since 1997. [141914]

The Prime Minister: My Office has made no payments to Eligo International Limited since 1997.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to him; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141973]

The Prime Minister: On the allocation of ministerial residences, I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 789W.

On costs, I refer the right hon. Member to the answers I gave the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1808W and on 30 January 2007, Official Report, column 150W. Expenditure on other official residences is a matter for the relevant Minister's Department.

East Riding

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Prime Minister how many times he has visited the East Riding of Yorkshire on official Government business in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [142146]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) on 2 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1385-87W.

Information on visits made in the UK during 2006-07 will be published by means of an annual list before the summer recess.

European Constitutional Changes

Mr. Hague: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Macclesfield of 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 257W, on European constitutional changes, where the red lines have been set out before; what those red lines are; and if he will make a statement. [142647]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Macclesfield (Sir Nicholas Winterton) on 6 June 2007, Official Report, columns 256-7W.

Libya

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Prime Minister if he will publish the Memorandum of Understanding with Libya signed on 28 May 2007. [142752]

The Prime Minister: The Memorandum of Understanding is publicly available, and copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Ministers: Pay

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister whether he expects to receive a ministerial severance payment when he leaves office. [141389]

The Prime Minister: No. Severance pay is payable in accordance with section 4 of the Ministerial and other Pensions and Salaries Act 1991.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister which Ministers have not been remunerated for their ministerial service since May 1997; and what the duration was of unpaid ministerial service in each case. [142858]

The Prime Minister: Details of all Ministers since 1997 are contained in editions of the "List of Ministerial Responsibilities", copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. In addition, the press notices of ministerial appointments issued by my Office, note whether a particular appointment is unpaid.

Official Spokesman

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister what the responsibilities of his official spokesman will be after June 2007. [141913]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent (Mr. Davies) on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 1096W.

Rendition

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with (i) President Bush and (ii) US officials on UK assistance in relation to rendition flights since 1 May 1997; and if he will make a statement. [141836]

The Prime Minister: It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign Governments.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140795]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office subscribes to the principles of environmental performance and accounting methodology adopted by the Ministry of Justice.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on Wednesday 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140129]

David Cairns: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in his Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141971]

David Cairns: No Ministers in the Scotland Office are allocated a ministerial residence.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent estimate has been made of the value of the Department's property portfolio. [139370]

David Cairns: All Scotland Office property is rented and therefore the property portfolio value is nil. However, Dover House, which is held as an historic leasehold, is independently re-valued by the Valuation Office Agency, on the basis of existing use value, in accordance with the appraisal and valuation manual of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors. The most recent valuation undertaken in 2005-06 valued the building at £1,085,000.

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Office held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136865]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office was formed on 1 July 1999. Since then, there have been no ministerial or official meetings with Sovereign Strategy.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Auctions: Internet

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Office of Fair Trading (a) is investigating and (b) plans to investigate the online money transfer marketplace used by internet auction sites. [140752]

Mr. McCartney: I understand that the OFT are not investigating the online money transfer marketplace and have no current plans to do so. The use by the OFT of their powers under the Enterprise Act to conduct market investigations is a matter for the OFT.

Clothing: Fire Prevention

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to review the legislation governing the safety of children's nightwear. [132117]

Mr. McCartney: The Nightwear (Safety) Regulations 1985, which govern the fire safety of children's nightwear, are already the most stringent in Europe—most member states have no legislation in this area. There are no current plans, therefore, to review these regulations. In addition, manufacturers of clothing, including pyjamas, that do not meet the flammability standard of the regulations have a responsibility to ensure their products are safe under the General Product Safety Regulations 2005.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the cost of improving the safety of nightwear; and what assessment he has made of the affordability of such improvements. [132118]

Mr. McCartney: My Department commissioned research into nightwear safety in 1994, which included looking at the costs of extending the scope of the Nightwear (Safety) Regulations to include cotton nightwear garments, e.g. pyjamas. It was found that, as well as the cost of testing a finished product adding up to £3 per garment, making it from chemically flame retardant cotton would add another £3-£4 per garment. The research did not assess affordability but any such assessment must also take into account that flame retardant chemicals can affect the feel and comfortability of cotton fabric, and could pose problems for allergy sufferers.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in his Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141957]

Mr. Darling: The DTI does not have any official ministerial residences.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many civil servants, and of what pay grade, work on the Low Carbon Buildings Programme. [142176]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The microgeneration team has responsibility for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 and 2, along with a range of other policy and delivery activities relating to micro generation. There are currently five Civil Servants (two Range 10s and three Range 8s) working in that team.

Official Cars: Ministers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his Department's policy is on the vehicle excise duty bands of Ministerial cars; and into which bands cars presently allocated to Ministers fall. [141340]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 11 June 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister of State for Transport on 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 728W.

Seals: Animal Products

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if he will implement a national ban on the trade in seal products; [141581]

(2) what assessment he has made of the European Commission's position on the EU-wide ban on the import of seal products; and if he will make a statement. [141582]

Mr. McCartney: The European Commission is currently conducting a study of the Canadian seal hunt in order to assess the need for EU-wide action.

The Government decided to pursue EU-wide measures because national measures would be impossible to enforce under EU single market rules.

However we continue to believe that EU wide measures are the only effective way of banning seal products from the UK. The EU is a single trading market and therefore national bans could not prevent seal products being imported via other member states, such as Denmark and Finland. The UK does not intend to introduce a measure that could be so easily circumvented, as it would not prevent the cruelty that the public is concerned about. For these reasons the Government considered national ban and rejected it.

TRANSPORT

Airports: Noise

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the Government are tackling problems of blight in respect of those living (a) in the vicinity and (b) under the flight paths of regional airports. [141861]

Gillian Merron: The Government's "The Future of Air Transport" White Paper invited airport operators to bring forward voluntary schemes to address generalised blight where runways are supported by the White Paper or where land is safeguarded for future development. Voluntary blight schemes have been introduced at Birmingham, Edinburgh and Glasgow airports. Home-owners directly and indirectly affected by airport development will also have access in due course to statutory blight provisions.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many airports in the UK have implemented voluntary plans to tackle noise pollution. [141862]

Gillian Merron: There are over 140 licensed aerodromes in the United Kingdom and the information about voluntary plans to tackle noise pollution is not collected or held centrally by the Department.

In the "Future of Air Transport" White Paper, we encouraged airport operators to have voluntary schemes to mitigate the impact of aircraft noise. We have therefore introduced statutory powers to strengthen the airport operators' powers to introduce noise control schemes and fine aircraft that breach noise controls. We hope that this will encourage larger airports to establish schemes where they do not already exist. We have recommended that airport consultative committees monitor how well these new powers are being implemented by airports. We propose to consult the committees in 2008 on progress made by airport operators.

Under the environmental noise directive, all airports with over 50,000 movements per year are required to produce strategic noise maps by 30 June 2007. The completion of these maps will need to be followed by action plans aimed at managing and reducing environmental noise. These action plans are required to be completed by 18 July 2008.

BAA: Secondment

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people are seconded to his Department from BAA plc; what the roles are of such secondees; and if he will make a statement. [142882]

Gillian Merron: There are no BAA staff seconded into the Department for Transport.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what make and model of car (a) he and (b) each Minister in his Department selected as their official ministerial car; and what criteria were used when making the decision in each case. [141990]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) is responsible for providing ministerial cars in line with the ministerial code and the Prime Minister's guidance Travel by Ministers'.

GCDA advises the Prime Minister on the suitability of cars for inclusion in his guidance, taking into account a number of criteria when assessing suitable cars including their environmental impact, running and maintenance costs and overall suitability as a ministerial car.

It is for individual ministers to account for their travel arrangements. Ministers in the Department for Transport are provided with three Toyota Prius and one Ford Mondeo for their official use.

Mobility: Finance

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what discussions he has had with colleagues in the Department for Communities and Local Government on funding streams for charitable organisations providing accessible vehicles for elderly and disabled people; [142479]

(2) what future funding streams he has allocated for vehicles to assist the elderly and people with disability; and if he will make a statement. [142480]

Gillian Merron: The Department has regular discussions with colleagues in Communities and Local Government (CLG) on many issues including on the important role which local authorities play in acting as an essential conduit for Central Government funding.

The Government are committed to an accessible transport system in which disabled and older people have the same opportunities to travel as other members of society. Its overall transport strategy, as set out in the Transport White Paper "The Future of Transport", recognised the vital role that extending mobility plays in meeting the wider objectives for the economy and an inclusive society.

Transport provision is largely funded via local authorities who are best placed to deliver the solutions that best meet the needs of local people. For example, to assist these aims the West Midlands region were provided with over £155 million capital funding for both integrated transport and maintenance for 2007-08.

We have ensured, through the introduction of "accessibility planning" into the most recent round of local transport plans, that the needs of socially excluded groups are prioritised.

We have already achieved a great deal to make mainstream public transport more accessible (for example, all new trains, buses and coaches must be accessible to disabled people, including wheelchair users) but the Government's wider strategy is to devolve decision making responsibility about local service provision closer to where services are delivered, and to encourage the removal of ring fenced funding so that local decisions can increasingly be informed by local context, priorities and need.

Motorcycles: Theft

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to reduce the theft of motorcycle parts. [142413]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

The decision to wind down the Home Office Vehicle Crime Reduction Team was taken as part of the Home Office Reform Programme and in the context of developing a new strategic approach to crime reduction.

We do not believe the decision to wind down the Home Office team will have an adverse impact on the theft rates of motorcycles or motorcycle parts. Frontline practitioners are experienced in implementing initiatives to deal with vehicle crime, including thefts of motorcycles. This includes providing relevant crime prevention advice and making use of the Motor Salvage (Operators) Regulations 2002 to drive criminals out of the motor salvage industry to prevent vehicles, including motorcycles, being stolen for their parts.

Performance management arrangements will ensure that the significant gains made to date in this area are sustained.

Parking

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to publish guidance under the Traffic Management Act 2004 on enforcement over parking on grass verges; and if he will make a statement. [141188]

Gillian Merron: All local authorities outside London already have the power to make Traffic Regulation Orders which can, among other things, ban parking on grass verges. It is for the local authority to put a ban in place where they consider it appropriate. Pavement parking (which includes parking on grass verges) is banned in London apart from where signs indicate otherwise.

Parking: Schools

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to make changes to parking controls near schools. [142387]

Gillian Merron: There is a wide range of parking controls that a local authority can provide near schools. The Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions (TSRGD) 2002 gives local authorities powers to implement yellow zig-zag and keep clear road markings. These markings indicate where vehicles should not stop outside a school entrance. The local authority can determine whether the markings are advisory or made mandatory with an appropriate traffic regulation order. There are no plans to change these controls.

Railways: Ashford Kent

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on the future of passenger train services to Brussels from Ashford International station. [142673]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have met a number of hon. Members to discuss the issue, which has also been the subject of two Adjournment debates in the last eight months. In addition, I have received a small number of letters from hon. Members, and around another 30 letters from members of the public, local authorities and others.

Road Works

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the reasons for the time taken to implement the provisions of the Traffic Management Act 2004 in respect of permits for works in the highway. [142386]

Gillian Merron: Part 3 of the Traffic Management Act 2004, permit schemes, is dependant upon part 4 of the Act, the notices, directions and restrictions regulations. As such the permit regulations cannot be laid prior to part 4.

I would refer the hon. Member to the written statement made to the House on 7 June 2007, Official Report, columns 30-31WS, which set out the reasons for the time taken to implement Traffic Management Act regulations. All these reasons apply to part 4.

Roads: East Sussex

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the future costs of building the Hastings to Bexhill Link Road; [142671]

(2) what assessment he has made of the potential environmental impact of the proposed Bexhill to Hastings Link Road. [142672]

Gillian Merron: The promoters of the scheme, East Sussex county council, have reported that the total cost of the scheme is now estimated to be £89.3 million. It is for the South East region to decide whether it still wishes to prioritise funding for this scheme at its higher cost within its regional funding allocation for major transport schemes. Should the region formally advise that it continues to be a funding priority, the scheme will then be subject to a re-appraisal and value for money assessment in accordance with the Department's guidance before a final decision on whether to provide additional funding to the scheme is taken. The environmental impact of the Link Road was assessed in accordance with our appraisal methodology, when the scheme was originally approved in December 2004.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what statistics are collected by the Government on user satisfaction in relation to the condition of local authority-maintained highways. [141799]

Gillian Merron: The Government does not collect statistics on user satisfaction in relation to the condition of local authority-maintained highways.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what statistics are collected by the Government on the condition of local authority-maintained highways in England. [141814]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport collects statistics from local authority surveys of road conditions which are collated and published annually in the 'National Road Maintenance Condition Survey'. The latest of these reports relates to 2006 and a copy of the report, published on 10 May 2007, was placed in the House of Commons Library and it is also available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/roadstraffic/maintenance/nrmcs2006intro.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment has been made of the causes of the deterioration in local authority highways in England. [142264]

Gillian Merron: The two most recent National Road Maintenance Condition Surveys (NRMCS), published in April 2005 and April 2006, both showed that the deterioration in the condition of local authority highways during the 1990s had been halted, and that there had been a significant improvement in local road conditions since 2000.

Taxis: Disabled

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures his Department is taking to promote the provision of taxis accessible to disabled people including wheelchair users. [142004]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport issued advice to taxi licensing authorities on 9 September 2002 which included factors they should consider in relation to improving access for disabled people. In November 2006, the Department also issued Taxi and Private Hire Vehicle Licensing: Best Practice Guidance which contains a section on improving accessibility of taxis. Further announcements will be made in due course.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provision his Department is making to ensure that disabled people are involved in an evaluation of options regarding his Department's policy on the provision of taxis that are accessible to disabled people. [142005]

Gillian Merron: The Department has received a number of representations from organisations representing disabled people, individuals, licensing authorities and vehicle manufacturers which will help to inform the development of the policy on improving access to taxis. In addition the Department has regular discussions with the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee. Formal consultations will take place once options have been firmed up.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Government expect to introduce regulations on accessible taxis under the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [142007]

Gillian Merron: The Government recognise the vital role taxis play in the transport of disabled people, and are committed to bringing forward requirements for accessible taxis.

Consideration is currently being given as to how best this might be achieved, and this will comprise evaluation of all of the options, including both regulatory and non-regulatory approaches.

Tolls

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent by his Department on developing policy on national road pricing in each of the last 10 years. [141864]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department does not have data in this form. Work to explore the potential of road pricing to address traffic congestion, most notably the 2003-04 Road Pricing Feasibility Study, was undertaken within overall departmental headcount and budgets.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the road pricing demonstrations project is estimated to cost. [141865]

Dr. Ladyman: The demonstration into Time-Distance-Place charging announced by the Secretary of State on 23 May is presently in the procurement stage, therefore it is not possible to state how much the project will cost until we have received proposals from bidders and evaluated them.

Tolls: Business

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he plans to take to offer redress to businesses within the catchment areas of local authority pricing schemes who are able to demonstrate a loss of profit arising from the implementation of a scheme. [141498]

Dr. Ladyman: It is for local authorities to assess the impacts of their proposed schemes and consider what mitigation might be necessary or appropriate.

Tolls: Manpower

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people (a) within his Department and (b) on consultancy contracts are working on road pricing policy. [141863]

Dr. Ladyman: There are 22 members of departmental staff working primarily on the exploration of road pricing, and, in particular, work needed to make a success of schemes being developed by local authorities (e.g. on the provisions contained in the draft Local Transport Bill published for consultation on 22 May). This work also draws on expertise in other areas of the Department from time to time, for example, on legal, economic and scientific issues as necessary.

A consultancy framework has recently been put in place to secure external expert input for road pricing and there are currently 24 individual consultants engaged full or part-time, this number varying dependent on the expertise required.

Trains: Bicycles

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to secure the integration of rail transport with bicycle use. [141664]

Mr. Tom Harris: Bidders for the franchises that are out to tender currently (East Midlands, West Midlands, New Cross Country and Intercity East Coast) require bidders to consider bike-rail integration and facilities at stations in their bid submissions. The Government's aspiration is to see 95 per cent. of journeys originating from stations with adequate cycle parking facilities.

Last year, the Government asked Cycling England, our advisory group on cycling, to look into how we might better encourage bike and rail journeys. They have accepted this remit and are now looking to see where progress can best be made further to improve bike and rail integration. Officials here will assist them and we have written to all train operating companies who will be facilitating its work. I look forward to receiving the report from Cycling England.

Transport: Disabled

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has received a request for a meeting from the Chairman of the Disabled Person's Transport Advisory Committee and the Disability Rights Commission. [142006]

Gillian Merron: A request for a meeting was sent to the Secretary of State on 4 April 2007 in a joint letter from the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee and the Disability Rights Commission. A reply was sent on 10 May 2007.

TREASURY

No. 11 Downing Street

12. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what procedures are in place to ensure that additional costs associated with holding events at No. 11 Downing street are met by the organisers of those events. [142575]

16. Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what procedures are in place to ensure that additional costs associated with holding events at No. 11 Downing street are met by the organisers of those events. [142579]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentlemen to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) on the Floor of the House earlier today.

Rail Projects

13. Martin Linton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Mayor of London on the funding of rail projects. [142576]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

World Trade

14. Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the impact on the UK economy of trends in world trade; and if he will make a statement. [142577]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor gave to the hon. Member for Ipswich (Chris Mole) on the Floor of the House earlier today.

Intellectual Property

15. Chris Bryant: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to implement recommendations made in the Gowers Report on Intellectual Property. [142578]

John Healey: In the 2006 pre-Budget report, the Government made clear that it intends to take forward all of the recommendations of the Gowers Review for which it is responsible. Significant progress has been achieved since then, and the Government is working to implement the majority of the recommendations by the end of 2008.

Public Expenditure

17. Mr. Martlew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on public expenditure of the fiscal rules; and if he will make a statement. [142580]

Mr. Timms: The fiscal rules have enabled the Government to make historic increases to investment in public services—overcoming the decades of underinvestment before 1997 and helping secure improvements in services—while simultaneously delivering a decade of sustained growth alongside low and stable inflation.

Saving Gateway Pilot

18. Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what evaluation he has made of the outcome of the second Saving Gateway pilot. [142581]

Ed Balls: The final evaluation of the second Saving Gateway pilot was published on 25 May.

Overall the evaluation found that the pilots were very successful in generating savings and that the Saving Gateway encouraged some lower income participants, in particular, to save and to reduce their expenditure in order to save.

There was a positive impact on participants' attitudes to saving which was most marked among those who had little or no prior experience of saving. The findings also point overwhelmingly to the success of matching as a targeted incentive for lower income savers.

The pilots have provided a wealth of evidence for future policy development. The Government will need time to analyse this information and will make further announcements on next steps for the roll-out of the Saving Gateway in the pre-Budget report.

Child Tax Credit and Child Benefit

19. Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the take-up levels are of child tax credits and child benefit. [142582]

Mr. Timms: The latest figures show that in 2004-05 take up of the child tax credit was 82 per cent. with over 90 per cent. of the money available being claimed, higher than any previous system of income-related financial support for in-work families. Precise figures are not available for child benefit, but it is estimated that approximately 98 per cent. of eligible families claim child benefit.

Savings Ratio

20. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the trend in the savings ratio. [142584]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on the Floor of the House earlier today.

Africa: Education for All Initiative

21. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Education for All initiative for Africa. [142585]

Ed Balls: With 77 million children out of school, urgent action is needed to achieve universal primary education. The UK has made a long-term £8.5 billion commitment and is working with developing countries and other donors to develop and fund the long-term plans needed. The EC, World Bank, France, US, and Australia have all joined the international effort by committing new funds to education and private sector companies are working with African countries to support their efforts. Progress is being made: Enrolment in school in sub-Saharan Africa increased by 27 per cent. between 1999 and 2004. But more needs to be done.

Children

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of children under (a) three, (b) five, (c) 10 and (d) 14 years old were being brought up by (i) two parents who were both unemployed, (ii) two parents with one in full-time employment and one not in paid employment, (iii) two parents with both in full-time work, (iv) two parents with both in part-time work and (v) two parents with one in full-time work and one in part-time work in each year since 1979 for which figures are available. [141689]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 14 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many and what proportion of (a) children under three, (b) children under five, (c) children under 10 and (d) children under 14 years were being brought up by (i) two parents who were both unemployed, (ii) two parents with one in full time employment and one not in paid employment, (iii) two parents with both in full-time work, (iv) two parents with both in part-time work and (v) two parents with one in full-time work and one in part-time work in each year for which figures are available. I am replying in her absence. (141689)

A table showing the information requested is attached. The figures in the table are estimates from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) for the three months ending in June of 1997, 1999 and 2001-2006. Comparable information for 1998 and 2000 is not available.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the (a) dwelling house and (b) value significant codes in use by the Valuation Office Agency for valuation purposes. [142358]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 274W.

Councillors: Pay

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance HM Revenue and Customs has produced on the tax treatment of golden goodbye payments made to local councillors who are standing down. [142364]

John Healey: HMRC provides general guidance on the taxation of expenses and allowances payable to councillors and civic dignitaries in its employment income manual. The guidance also covers the tax treatment of termination payments and benefits. The employment income manual (EIM) is available to the public on the HMRC website at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk.

Crown Estate Commissioners: Land

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much Crown Estate land was sold for housing development in the last year for which figures are available. [141773]

John Healey: In 2005-06 the Crown Estate sold 30.3 hectares of land for residential housing development.

Financial information for 2006-07 is not yet available.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance the Office for Government Commerce has produced on the sale of Crown estate land. [142365]

John Healey: The Office of Government Commerce published the "Guide for the disposal of surplus property" in November 2005. This applies to central civil Government Departments, their Executive Agencies and sponsored bodies. It does not apply to the Crown estate, being property owned by the Sovereign "in right of the Crown", which is governed by the Crown Estate Act 1961. The guide is available at:

www.ogc.gov.uk.

Departments: Caparo Group

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made payments to Caparo Group or its subsidiaries since 1997. [141917]

John Healey: None of the Chancellor's Departments or their agencies has found any records of payments to Caparo Group or its known subsidiaries within the last five years. Changes in accounting systems mean that a positive confirmation for all bodies over the whole period since 1997 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many press officers were employed by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies in each year since 1997. [141911]

John Healey: In 2006-07 the Treasury employed the full-time equivalent of nine press officers, the Debt Management Office employed two and the Office of Government Commerce employed three. Exact figures for previous years could be supplied only at disproportionate cost but there have not been significant variations in the past five years.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Simon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what make and model of car (a) he and (b) each Minister in his Department selected as their official ministerial car; and what criteria were used when making the decision in each case. [141992]

John Healey: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) is responsible for providing ministerial cars in line with the Ministerial Code and the Prime Minister's guidance Travel by Ministers' which is available at;

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk

GCDA advises the Prime Minister on the suitability of cars for inclusion in his guidance, taking into account a number of criteria when assessing suitable cars including their environmental impact, running and maintenance costs and overall suitability as a ministerial car.

Direct Payments

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with which (a) bodies and (b) individuals his Department has discussed standardisation of the direct payments scheme. [142507]

Mr. Timms: Each local authority has its own direct payments service and it is their responsibility to develop services in consultation with their local populations and service users.

Gift Aid

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to publish the findings of his consultation with the charitable sector on measures to increase take up of Gift Aid. [142419]

Mr. Timms: The Government expect to report on the progress of the Gift Aid consultation by the end of the year.

Government Shareholding

David Davis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in which companies the Government holds special shares; and which departments are responsible for them. [142284]

John Healey: The Government holds the following special shares:

Responsible Department: Ministry of Defence

Devonport Royal Dockyard Ltd
Rosyth Royal Dockyard Ltd
AWE plc
AWE Pension Trustees Ltd
QinetiQ Group plc
QinetiQ Holdings Ltd
QinetiQ Ltd
BAE Systems Marine (Holdings) Ltd

Responsible Department: Department of Trade and Industry

Royal Mail Group plc
British Aerospace plc
British Energy Group plc
British Energy Holdings
British Energy Generation
British Energy Ltd
Nuclear Liabilities Fund Ltd
Rolls Royce plc

Responsible Department: Department for Transport

NATS Holdings Ltd,
Eurostar (UK) Ltd.
London and Continental Railways Ltd.
Union Railways (North) Ltd
Inter-Capital and Regional Rail Ltd

Responsible Department: Treasury

Partnerships UK Ltd

Responsible Department: Northern Ireland Department for Regional Development

Belfast International Airport Ltd

Informers

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in what circumstances an uplift beyond the basic 5 per cent. reward is paid to an informer providing information which leads to recovery of money for the Crown. [142118]

John Healey: Each reward payment made by HMRC is calculated on the circumstances relevant to that case.

It would not be in the public interest to divulge the exact factors taken into account when calculating such payments, however all Law Enforcement agencies, in accordance with the relevant ACPO guidelines, apply similar considerations when determining levels of rewards payments

National Insurance Contributions

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will review the appropriateness of the age thresholds of national insurance contributions; and if he will make a statement. [142572]

John Healey: There are no plans to review the age thresholds of national insurance contributions.

Non-domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the estimated (a) gross and (b) net increase in business rate revenues in cash terms arising from the Government's proposals to reduce business rate relief for empty properties is in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10; [142368]

(2) whether a regulatory impact assessment has been produced on the Budget 2007 proposals to reduce business rate relief for empty properties; and whether this move was planned to be revenue-neutral; [142369]

(3) whether the Government undertook consultation on their plans to reduce empty property business rate relief. [142371]

John Healey: The Government estimate that the impact on tax revenue of reforms to empty property relief will be £950 million in 2008-09, and £900 million in subsequent years. This estimate was published in the Red Book alongside the Budget Report 2007.

A regulatory impact assessment for this measure has been produced and is published on the Communities and Local Government website:

www.communities.gov.uk.

As part of the Lyons Inquiry into Local Government, Sir Michael Lyons consulted extensively on Kate Barker's recommendation that empty property relief be reformed. As announced in the Budget, we are taking forward legislation to reform the relief from April 2008.

The Government intend to publish a consultation document next month which will seek views on proposals for detailed reforms to secondary legislation, including the existing exemptions from empty property rates.

Pensions

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on income tax revenue of pension income received through an alternatively secured pension rather than a payment from an annuity; and if he will make a statement. [142751]

Ed Balls: The impact on tax revenues of changes to the rules governing alternatively secured pensions, announced in the 2007 Budget, were set out in the regulatory impact assessment of tax relief for pensions, published on the Treasury website, available at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

PFI

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of private finance initiative contracts were sold on by the original signatories to the contract in each year since 1997; and what assessment he has made of the profit made in each sale and the return to the taxpayer on each. [142373]

John Healey: The Treasury does not hold this information. Equity sales are private transactions between two private institutions; therefore the Treasury does not collate information on them. The Treasury does, however, and will continue more broadly to examine developments in the secondary equity market both through its relations with other Departments and key participants in the PFI market.

Suicide: Young People

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of victims of suicide under the age of 18 years in each year since 1997 lived (a) with a parent who had sole custody, (b) with parents who had joint custody and (c) with parents who were married. [142648]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 14 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many and what percentage of victims of suicide under the age of 18 years in each year since 1997 lived (a) with a parent who had sole custody, (b) with parents who had joint custody and (c) with parents who were married. I am replying in her absence. (142648)

Information on the marital status of parents of deceased children or their custodial circumstances are not collected at death registration and are therefore not available to tabulate. The table below therefore only contains numbers of suicides for those aged under 18 in England and Wales from 1997 to 2005, the latest available year.

It is assumed that most deaths from injury/poisoning of undetermined intent at ages 15 and over are cases where the harm was self-inflicted but there was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves. This cannot be assumed in deaths at ages under 15 and therefore deaths from injury/poisoning of undetermined intent are not included when examining suicide (intentional self-harm) in children. As there were no deaths in children aged under 13 with a suicide verdict for the period requested, the table shows the number of suicides in children aged 13 to 14, and the number of suicide or injury/poisoning of undetermined intent deaths in those aged 15 to 17.

Number of deaths among people aged 13 to 17 years from suicide and injury/poisoning of undetermined intent, England and Wales, 1997 to 2005[1]

	Aged 13-14	Aged 15-17
	Suicide[2]	Suicide and injury/ poisoning of undetermined intent[3]
1997	5	61
1998	3	68
1999	2	64
2000	3	69
2001	5	54
2002	5	62
2003	3	47
2004	5	50
2005	1	37

[1] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

[2] The cause of death for suicide was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E950-E959 for the years 1997 to 2000, and, for the years 2001 to 2005, the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84.

[3] The cause of death for injury/poisoning of undetermined intent was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E980-E989 excluding E988.8 for the years 1997 to 2000, and, for the years 2001 to 2005, the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes Y10-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the Coroner's verdict was pending.

Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of mothers under the age of 16 lived (a) with a parent who had sole custody, (b) with parents who had joint custody and (c) with parents who were married in each year since 1997. [142657]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 14 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your request for how many and what percentage of mothers under the age of 16 lived (a) with a parent who had sole custody, (b) with parents who had joint custody and (c) with parents who were married in each year since 1997.I am replying in her absence. (142657)

Only a small proportion of births are to mothers aged under 16 and, of these, most are at age 15 (see table below). For this reason the only reliable source for the figures requested is the 2001 Census as there are relatively few mothers aged under 16 at any one time. There were 1,040 mothers aged under 16 recorded by the 2001 Census. The figures requested by you are being extracted and will be placed in the Library of the House at a later date.

Number of maternities[1] England and Wales

12	5	5	9	4
13	35	37	38	15
14	228	245	239	188
15	1,207	1,187	1,138	977
Total under 16	1,475	1,482	1,432	1,188

[1] A maternity is a confinement resulting in the birth of one or more live-born or stillborn children. There are only a small number of stillbirths to females under 16. In 2001 there were nine.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency spent on speakers' fees for its North West Excellence Awards. [142375]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency has paid no speaker's fees for its North West Excellence Award in 2004.

Valuation Office Agency: Secondment

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff from overseas have been (a) seconded and (b) attached to the Valuation Office Agency in each of the last five years, broken down by country and agency of origin. [142357]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency has taken a total of three staff from overseas on secondment during 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 as follows:

7 November 2005 to 4 May 2006: One secondee from Australia, Australian Valuation Office;

3 July 2006 to 31 December 2006: One secondee from Hong Kong, Hong Kong Valuation Office;

10 April 2007 to 9 October 2007: One secondee from Hong Kong, Hong Kong Valuation Office.

The Valuation Office Agency is unable to provide any further information about any such secondments for earlier financial years without incurring disproportionate costs.

No overseas staff have been attached to the Valuation Office Agency in the last five years.

VAT: Electric Motors

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he has received notification that the European Commission is to re-classify electric mobility scooters as the same category as golf caddies with a requirement that value-added tax should be levied; [142009]

(2) whether he has any plans to re-classify electric mobility scooters thereby attracting value-added tax to their sale. [142010]

John Healey: Electric mobility scooters and golf caddies are classified in the same tariff heading for customs purposes and have been since at least 2002 when the World Customs Organisation published its 'Classification Opinion' on the subject. We are not aware that the European Union has any plans to change that classification.

However, VAT and Customs are separate regimes. Classification for duty purposes under the Customs regime has no direct bearing on VAT liability, which is determined by VAT law.

For VAT purposes, mobility scooters may qualify for the zero-rating that applies when disabled people purchase certain "carriages" or other equipment specifically designed to meet their needs. The Government have no plans to change the scope of this VAT relief.

VAT: Repayments

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many claims for VAT repayment have been subject to the extended verification process. [142797]

John Healey: HMRC has a duty to protect the VAT system from fraudulent attacks. It has a risk-based approach. Verification of VAT repayment claims is an important part of the Missing Trader Intra-Community Fraud (MTIC) strategy.

Unfortunately it is not possible to disclose the numbers of claims that are subject to verifications, so the requested information cannot be disclosed. To do so would undermine the measure introduced by HM Revenue and Customs to counter MTIC fraud and as such prejudice the assessment and collection of tax.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Denham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to resolve the outstanding issues regarding the payment of tax credits to Mrs Shelagh House of Robert Cecil Avenue, Southampton. [140704]

Mr. Timms: The HM Revenue and Customs chairman wrote to my right hon. Friend about his constituent on 24 May 2007 and apologised for the delay in resolving the issues affecting his constituent's claim for tax credits.

WALES

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many officials work in his Department. [143174]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office publishes staff numbers in its annual departmental report. This document is available in the House Libraries and on the Wales Office website:

www.walesoffice.gov.uk

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what visits he has made involving a mix of political and official engagements where Government car service vehicles were used in 2007; and whether the Government was reimbursed a proportion of the cost in each case. [142659]

Mr. Hain: All travel is undertaken in accordance with Travel by Ministers and the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the House Library.

Departments: Sick Leave

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what average number of days per year was taken by staff in his Department as sick leave in each of the last five years for which records are available. [143084]

Mr. Hain: Figures relating to sickness absence are available for the last three years.

For each year, the average number of days sick absence recorded for each member of staff is as follows:

	Days
2004-05	4.61
2005-06	3.22
2006-07	4.73

WORK AND PENSIONS

Bereavement Benefits

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to ensure that the bereavement grant is made available to co-habiting partners of people in a situation where a spouse is still alive; and if he will make a statement. [142077]

Mr. Plaskitt: Bereavement benefits cannot be paid to cohabiting partners. There are no plans to change this.

It is a principle of the social insurance system that all rights to benefit derived from another person's contributions are based on the concept of legal marriage or, more recently, legal civil partnership.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how much was raised from the sale of his Department's property in each of the last five years; [139305]

(2) what properties the Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years; [139343]

(3) what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio. [139368]

Mrs. McGuire: The DWP estate (not including properties held by sponsored bodies) has been sold (freehold, freehold and long leasehold interests) or transferred (short leasehold interests) through its PFI Contract known as PRIME to Land Securities Trillium (LST). The proceeds were released to HM Treasury in April 1998 (for the original DSS estate) and further in December 2003 when PRIME was expanded to include the former Employment Service (ES) estate.

In 2003, the Department and LST agreed a vacant possession value of £140 million for the freehold and valuable leaseholds covered within the expanded PRIME Contract. The Department decided to receive this amount split into an up-front payment of £100 million after seeking variant bids and a reduction in the annual Unitary Charge over the life of the contract, equivalent in present value terms to the £40 million balance.

Following the expansion of the PRIME Contract, DWP retained two properties which for commercial reasons could not be transferred within the expansion. These two properties were subsequently sold in 2005-06 for £5.075 million.

Despite having already sold its property assets, DWP retains some 'claw back' rights in the form of what is called 'development gain'. Under this mechanism, if LST sells a property vacated after April 1998 for more than the price it paid at the start of the contract, then after the sale costs are deducted, DWP receives 50 per cent. of the uplift in value with LST. This applies to market driven value increase as well as LST's activities to enhance value such as obtaining change of planning use. For 2006-07, DWP will receive £2.8 million.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140044]

Mrs. McGuire: DWP has this information available only from 6 April 2004. The amounts given as follows represent the total value of the contracts awarded to recruitment agencies, rather than actual spend, for exercises to recruit staff into the Department within the periods shown.

The Department for Work and Pensions makes use of executive search consultants to provide expertise in executive search and selection, particularly for senior and specialist staff in circumstances where the relevant skills, qualifications and experience are not available or in very limited supply across the Department and Whitehall.

	Contracted spend (£)
2004-05	1,387,106
2005-06	3,265,273
2006-07	1,164,375
2007-08 (to date)	38,000

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the oral answer of 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 640, to the hon. Member for Ludlow, on the Financial Assistance scheme, if he will list those solvent schemes which will not be covered by the extension of the Financial Assistance scheme. [135137]

James Purnell: We announced an extension to FAS on 18 April 2007 to cover members of schemes that began winding up between 1 January 2007 and 5 April 2005, where a compromise agreement is in place, and where enforcing the debt against the employer would have forced the employer into insolvency. On 23 April 2007 we subsequently issued an indicative list of schemes potentially eligible for support from the FAS where a compromise agreement is understood to be in place.

We do not currently have any detailed information on schemes sponsored by other solvent employers.

On 28 March the Secretary of State announced a review to examine whether an alternative treatment of the residual funds in affected pension schemes and other non-public expenditure funding that have not already been allocated could be used to increase levels of assistance above the 80 per cent. provided by the financial assistance scheme. One objective for this review of scheme assets is to determine whether there are other pension schemes (in addition to those with compromise agreements) where although the sponsoring employer did not undergo an insolvency event, it would not be reasonable to expect the employer to have a continuing responsibility for supporting an under funded scheme. The review will provide an initial view in the summer, consult formally in the autumn and then report by the end of the year.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many previous participants of the new deal for disabled people not currently participating on the scheme are claiming incapacity benefit; and how many left the scheme for employment before returning to benefit. [141112]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 7 June 2007]: Up to the end of November 2006, new deal for disabled people had been successful in helping 134,160 people into work.

A total of 15,640 people who had previously left new deal for disabled people and were not participating at the end of November 2006, were claiming incapacity benefit at the end of November 2006.

A total of 14,460 people who had left new deal for disabled people to employment had a subsequent out-of-work benefit claim at some point up to the end of November 2006.

Because some people are included in both totals there is overlap between the two sets of figures.

Jobcentre Plus: Christchurch

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people obtained advice on benefits from the Christchurch office of Jobcentre Plus in each of the last six months; [138911]

(2) where he proposes former clients using the Christchurch Jobcentre Plus office will be able to use jobpoints and free telephone services after the proposed closure of the Christchurch office; [138912]

(3) on what date Jobcentre Plus in Dorset and Somerset finalised its service delivery plan for the district; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the plan; [138913]

(4) whether he is now in a position to place in the Library a copy of the business case for the closure of the Christchurch Jobcentre Plus office; [138914]

(5) pursuant to the letter of 15 May 2007 from the Minister for Employment and Welfare Reform to the hon. Member for Christchurch, what assessment he has made of the ways in which closure of the Christchurch Jobcentre Plus office will enable his Department to provide a better service to the residents of Christchurch than it has been able to provide up to now. [138915]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answers 23 May 2007]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves, dated 14 June 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions about the consultation process on Christchurch Jobcentre. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to Lesley Strathie as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus. I am replying on her behalf as Acting Chief Executive.

I am unable to provide details of customer usage in Christchurch Jobcentre in the last 6 months as this information is not recorded. I can tell you that Christchurch has a Jobseekers Allowance customer load of 277 customers and an Income Support/Incapacity Benefit customer load of 2,065, of which 1,720 are sick and disabled and 345 are Lone Parents. As part of the consultation period which began on 21 May 2007, for 6 weeks, we will be analysing usage in detail via a questionnaire to customers who visit the office.

Lesley Strathie's letter of 14 December referred to the Service Delivery Plan, which has yet to be finalised as we are just entering the consultation period. We are therefore unable to place a copy of the Business Case in the Library as it is not complete until after the consultation period when the Service Delivery Plan will be finalised.

If after the consultation period the decision is taken to close Christchurch Jobcentre customers will be able to use the facilities at Bournemouth Jobcentre Plus. All Jobcentre Plus customers can access 0800 and 0845 telephone numbers when making claims to benefit and benefit enquiries, in addition to the 0845 number for Jobseeker Direct. Additionally the Jobcentre Plus website is available to all 24 hours a day.

As you will know, we are continuing to develop our nationwide network of Jobcentres, and to review and improve our services. Advances in technology and increased availability of Contact Centre facilities mean that increasing numbers of customers—including employers—access our services by using the internet or telephone.

I hope this is helpful.

Learning Disability: Basic Skills

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will review the availability of literacy and numeracy basic skills training for people with a learning disability who are seeking or are in employment to ensure there are no special needs groups which are excluded from access to basic employment-focussed learning; and if he will make a statement. [138765]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 May 2007]: All Jobcentre Plus customers, including those with learning needs, have access to a range of literacy and numeracy basic skills training. Jobcentre Plus fund training for customers eligible for the new deal programme or voluntary training funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC).

The new Employability Skills programme, for Jobcentre Plus customers, will be introduced in August 2007 and will target help for customers for whom basic skills are the primary barrier to employment. It will also be possible for customers with learning needs to be referred to have their needs assessed and, if it is suitable, will be able to take up this training. If the Employability Skills programme is not suitable the LSC provider will refer them to other LSC courses.

Customers with a learning difficulty or disability who are registered on a LSC funded literacy and numeracy course are entitled, through the Skills for Life strategy, to free training. People with learning needs and in employment can also access a range of LSC provision either direct or via their employer.

Education and training is a devolved issue and these arrangements for training refer to Jobcentre Plus customers in England only.

We have no plans to review the availability of provision at this time.

Pensions Bill

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost to the Treasury of implementing the effects of Lords Amendments 68 to 76 to the Pensions Bill. [142568]

James Purnell: We have not worked out the exact cost of implementing the amendments as they are somewhat contradictory in effect and may be technically deficient. The intended effect would appear to be payment of PPF levels of benefit to those qualifying for FAS schemes (costs below). The amendments would also extend the level of benefits to an unspecified number of pension schemes in wind up with a solvent employer, costings for which will not be available until after the report of the review of FAS scheme assets. There would be very significant implementation costs in setting up and running the institutions proposed but these have not been costed.

Paying PPF level benefits to the current set of qualifying FAS schemes would cost around £2.5 billion in NPV terms (£640 million in addition to the budget extension) and £10.6 billion in cash terms (an additional £2.7 billion on the Budget extension).

Pensions: Bankruptcy

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) when he decided to include other sources of non-public funding in the review of pension scheme assets held by schemes in wind-up with a deficiency of assets; [140364]

(2) when he decided to publish an initial report in summer 2007 on pension scheme assets held by schemes in wind-up with a deficiency of assets in addition to a final report before the end of the year; for what reasons; and if he will make a statement; [140365]

(3) whether the initial report on pension scheme assets held by schemes in wind-up with a deficiency of assets is planned to be published before the summer parliamentary recess 2007. [140366]

James Purnell: On 28 March 2007 the Secretary of State announced a review to examine how the best use could be made of the assets in pension schemes that are winding up underfunded. He also said the review would consider any suggestions from interested and concerned parties.

On 23 April 2007 in a letter placed in the House, the Minister of State for Pensions Reform provided the full terms of reference which referred specifically to the review considering other sources of non-public expenditure funding (that have not already been allocated). It also stated

"The Review will provide an initial view in the summer, consult formally in the autumn and then report by the end of the year."

We expect that an initial report will be provided before the summer parliamentary recess of 2007.

Remploy

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the Remploy workforce is aged over 55 years. [140712]

Mrs. McGuire: [holding answer 6 June 2007]: 29 per cent. of the Remploy workforce is aged over 55 years.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what consideration he has given to the option of joint ventures, including with local colleges, at any existing Remploy site. [140713]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 6 June 2007]: Remploy has contacted over 120 local organisations, including local colleges, providers and community groups to establish how they can work together.

Remploy has established national partnerships with four major charities and Social Firms UK to establish what they can do to support employees should a decision be taken to close any factories.

Remploy: Closures

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assistance is planned to be made available to workers affected by the closure of Remploy factories in finding alternative employment in a sector of their choice. [139200]

Mrs. McGuire: Remploy will provide a support package to help employees through the transition and ensure that disabled people will continue to be able to choose to maintain meaningful employment on Remploy's terms and conditions, including membership of Remploy's final salary pension scheme.

The Government will consider the Company's final proposals once they have been submitted later in the year following consultation. No decisions by the Secretary of State on the future of the Company will take place until then.

(The total retraining and job placement budget for dealing with those affected is £58 million).

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average weekly amount of benefit was for an (a) single pensioner, (b) married pensioner, (c) single person under pensionable age, (d) married couple under pensionable age and (e) married couple with children (i) in 1997 and (ii) at the latest available date. [128541]

James Purnell [pursuant to the reply, 18 May 2007, Official Report, c. 941W]: The available information is in the following table.

Average (mean) weekly benefit payments to claimants in Great Britain

	1997-98	2005-06
Single pensioner	96	145
Married pensioner couple	134	192
Single non-pensioner	94	110
Married non-pensioner couple	53	61
Married non-pensioner couple with children	41	48

Notes:
1. Data for 1997-98 were collected between April 1997 and March 1998 and data for 2005-06 were collected between April 2005 and March 2006.
2. The Family Resources Survey (FRS) is a nationally representative sample of approximately 28,000 households.
3. Pensioner couple is defined as a couple where the head of the benefit unit is over pension age, defined as 60 for women and 65 for men.
4. Married couples include Civil Partnerships in 2005-06.
5. The estimates are based on sample counts that have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the FRS to Government Office Region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining non-response error.
6. Figures are mean-averages of weekly benefits received by claimants only (i.e. excluding non-claimants) and have been rounded to the nearest £1. Figures for couples are average weekly benefit amounts per couple.
7. Figures for weekly benefits include both income-related and non-income related benefits but exclude tax credits.

Social Security Benefits: Prosecutions

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many prosecution cases were brought outside the 12 month limitation under section 112 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and what percentage such cases represented of cases undertaken in each year. [142008]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has conducted comparative research on the cost to the NHS of treating the effects of addiction to alcohol and tobacco. [138180]

Caroline Flint: The Department, in partnership with the National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse (NTA), published Models of Care for Alcohol Misusers in November 2005. Models of Care was informed by the review of the effectiveness of treatment for alcohol problems commissioned by the NTA. Both publications have been placed in the Library and are available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Policyandguidance/Healthandsocialcaretopics/Alcoholmisuse/Alcoholmisusegeneralinformation/DH_4130659 www.nta.nhs.uk/publications/documents/nta_review_of_the_effectiveness_of_treatment_for_alcohol_problems_fullreport_2006_alcohol2.pdf

The Health Technology Assessment Programme, part of the Department's National Institute for Health Research, is currently supporting two studies looking in part at the cost effectiveness of therapies designed to help people stop smoking. These are:

a systematic review of the effectiveness and an economic analysis of cut down to quit with nicotine replacement therapies; and relapse prevention in NHS stop smoking services: a review of current practice, potential effectiveness and cost effectiveness.

Angina: Medical Treatments

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment (a) her Department and (b) the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has made of the use of enhanced external counter pulsation treatment for angina; [140705]

(2) which primary care trusts fund the provision of enhanced external counter pulsation treatment; [140706]

(3) what assessment she has made of the availability of enhanced external counter pulsation treatment for individuals with angina in (a) South East Essex primary care trust and (b) primary care trusts which do not provide enhanced external counter pulsation treatment. [140707]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Enhanced external counter pulsation (EECP) is not routinely offered to patients with angina by the national health service. There is currently insufficient evidence on the benefits of using EECP to treat angina. Although there is currently insufficient evidence, should this situation change the position can be reviewed. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence were made aware of EECP in 2004, but were unable to pursue an appraisal.

Most central funding is allocated directly to local primary care trusts (PCTs) and health authorities. Individual PCTs are responsible for funding services that reflect the priorities and needs of the local population. The Department is unable to comment on the funding decisions each PCT makes.

Arthritis: Young People

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many children under the age of 16 years in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England (i) were diagnosed with and (ii) required treatment for the juvenile form of rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997; [140827]

(2) how many adults in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England (i) were diagnosed with and (ii) required treatment for rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997. [140829]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is not available.

Bereavement Counselling: Buckinghamshire

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what resources and funding have been made available for bereavement services in 2006-07 in Buckinghamshire primary care trust; and if she will make a statement. [141190]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is a matter for Buckinghamshire primary care trust (PCT). PCTs are responsible for the provision of local services, including bereavement services.

Blood Transfusions

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what factors she will take into account when making a decision on whether to instigate prion filtration in blood transfusion. [142831]

Caroline Flint: The Department will take advice on the use of prion reduction filters from independent evaluations recommended by the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee to test the efficacy and reproducibility of the filters, an approach endorsed by Advisory Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Blood and Tissues and Organs. The Department will take the following factors into account when considering prion reduction filters: the results of clinical safety trials and whether they indicate no adverse effect on patients with the use of filtered blood; that filtered blood units meet the required product specification; the results of an independent evaluation of the efficacy of the filtered in reducing variant Creutzfeld-Jakob Disease (vCJD) infectivity in blood; estimates of the prevalence of preclinical vCJD or a carrier state in the donor population and consequent estimates of infections prevented through filtration and the benefit of life years saved; the cost of implementation of filtration compared with the benefit received and the availability of other technologies to reduce infectivity in blood.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if her Department will introduce new treatments and technologies to reduce the risk to public health from blood transfusions on the basis of successful patient trials in Europe and the US. [142833]

Caroline Flint: NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) has a duty to investigate any new technologies which might improve the safety of the blood supply. Currently, NHSBT is investigating vCJD screening, new filters to remove infectious prions, bacterial screening of platelets and pathogen inactivation of platelets. Such assessments consist of review of manufacturers' data on efficacy and quality of the product, laboratory studies and clinical trials as appropriate. NHSBT might need to perform additional studies. Only licenced methods are considered.

All blood safety measures are considered by the Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Blood, Tissues, and Organs for Transplantation.

Blood: Contamination

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many of the documents rediscovered by her Department referred to in the Review of Documentation relating to the Safety of Blood Products—1970-1985 relate to self-sufficiency; and if she will make a statement. [142663]

Caroline Flint: The review identifies that 20.5 per cent. of papers have been categorised as relating to self sufficiency. The focus of the review was 1970-85, and 90 per cent. of the documents related to this time period, just under 10 per cent. fell outside this timeline.

Lord Archer has been advised that the Department will release all papers identified in the review, in line with the Freedom of Information Act 2000. The papers will be released to Lord Archer's inquiry as quickly as possible, in batches on a monthly basis.

British Food

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of food served in (a) buildings occupied by her Department and (b) NHS hospitals was of British origin in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006. [111125]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: 80 per cent. of food served through the approved supplier of catering and hospitality services to the Departmental estate was home-grown and 20 per cent. produced from other countries in 2005 and 2006.

National health service trusts select the suppliers that provide food for their trust and information relating to the proportion of food served of British origin in all NHS hospitals is not held centrally. However, NHS Supply Chain manages approximately 55 per cent. of the NHS food market, with the balance via facilities management companies and smaller wholesalers. For the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, NHS Supply Chain sourced 59 per cent. of meat from the United Kingdom, while the remainder was imported. The organisation sourced 40 per cent of fruit and vegetables in the UK, while 60 per cent. was imported.

Dental Services

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people accessed open access dental surgeries by health region in the last 12 months. [140985]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on people accessing open access dental surgeries is not collected centrally. However, information on patients seen in the last 24 months in all dental primary care settings is available.

Numbers of patients seen in the previous 24 months ending 31 March, 30 June, 30 September and 31 December 2006 are available in Section F1 of Annex 3 of the National Health Service Dental Statistics for England Q3: 31 December 2006 report, and copies are available in the Library.

Information is as at strategic health authority and primary care trust level in England and the report, published by The Information Centre for health and social care, is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-for-england-q3:-31-december-2006

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times her Department was found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [139213]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The definition of found to have been in breach can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act 1998 can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Gateway Reference Number

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many documents coded with a gateway reference number were issued by her Department in each year since 2000. [139240]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is shown in the following table.

External gateway reference numbers issued for the Department for calendar years 2000-06

	The Department external gateway reference numbers issued
2000 and 2001[1]	—
2002[2]	445
2003[2]	887
2004[3]	820
2005[3]	1,045
2006[3]	1,148

[1] For years 2000 and 2001: no figures available as the Department's external gateway was introduced in December 2001.

[2] For years 2002 and 2003: the figures include all documents received by the Department's external gateway; and the way the data is captured does not allow reference numbers issued to arms length bodies, other Government Departments and external organisations to be excluded.

[3] The Department's external gateway database was introduced in August 2003 and the quality of data is much more robust for years 2004-06 and not comparable to pre-August 2003.

The table highlights the number of documents/communications approved for publication/issue to the national health service/social care and that received a departmental external gateway reference number. However, these figures do not represent actual documents/communications issued, as the publication of some could have been re-considered following approval.

In addition, the majority of approved documents/communications are not directly issued to the NHS/social care as individual communications. Instead, brief summaries of the document are communicated via weekly, monthly or quarterly bulletins, with web addresses where more detailed information can be found. In some instances, documents may be approved simply for publication on the Department website only.

No one in the NHS will receive all of these documents/communications. The vast majority are targeted to specific organisations. For example, some will go to ambulance trusts, some to primary care trusts, some to strategic health authorities and so on. The communications are then further targeted so that only the appropriate audience within those organisations receive the documents, for example, cancer leads, public health leads, mental health leads, chief executives, finance directors etc.

Ministerial Travel

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which Ministers in her Department have visited India in the last 12 months; on how many occasions each Minister visited India; and what the length was of each visit. [135539]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government publishes an annual list of Cabinet Ministers' travel overseas costing over £500 along with the total cost of all ministerial travel. Information for 2005-06 was published on 24 July 2006 and is available in the Library. Information for 2006-07 will be published as soon as it is ready.

All travel is in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers.

A detailed list of visits by all United Kingdom Ministers to India since 2003 can be found on the British High Commission website at:

Departments: Internet

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for which Government websites she is responsible; how many visitors each received in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the cost (a) was of establishing and (b) has been of maintaining each site. [135719]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has ownership of two main websites. They are:

1: The Department of Health website (www.dh.gov.uk)

	Visits
2004-05	8,643,914
2005-06	10,980,854
2006-07	10,168,508

Costs:

(a) the cost of establishing the Departmental corporate website site on a new service in 2006-07 was £1,570,000

(b) the cost of maintaining the existing service in parallel in 2006-07 was £2,343,643. This includes the cost of contingency arrangements due to the late delivery of the new service, most of which will be recovered in compensation from the supplier.

2. The NHS website (www.nhs.uk)

	Visits
2005-06	12,404,000
2006-07	17,657,409

Costs:

The cost in 2006-07 (covering development, content, delivery and staffing) was £1.7 million.

In addition to the two main websites (above), the Department funds and/or manages a further 111 websites.

The Department is actively engaged in reducing this number of sites, in accordance with the guidelines and timetables set for website rationalisation under Transformational Government.

Indeed, the Department has already shut down 27 websites and has plans in place to terminate 53 sites out of the 111 figure above. By the end of this project in 2011, all 111 sites will either be closed or migrated to DH.gov.uk, NHS.uk, NHS Direct, Directgov or Business Link.

The information in the table lists visitor figures for 35 sites. To assemble the statistics for the other sites would incur disproportionate cost.

The total estimated cost for these websites in 2006-07 was £699,134. This cost is approximate and cannot be broken down further. Some sites include campaign expenditure and start-up funding and therefore costs will be spread over a period of years.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's directorates are; and how many (a) individuals and (b) full-time equivalent staff work in them. [137292]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The individual and full-time equivalent breakdown for each of the Department's directorates, as at 30 April 2007, is shown in the following table.

Directorate	Number of individuals	Number of full time equivalents
Clinical Programmes	67	61.6

[2] Includes Regional Public Health Groups.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff funded by the public purse in her Department are classified as people without posts. [137668]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department currently has 47 people not in permanent posts but carrying out meaningful work across the organisation until a permanent post can be identified to which they are then deployed.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many of her Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May 2007; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140126]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Special advisers involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are available in the Library.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) the NHS in each year between 1997 and 2006; and what the total cost was of those bonuses in each year. [139265]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The available information is as follows:

	Number of bonuses awarded	Total cost (£)
2004-05	123	642,625.00
2005-06	172	884,985.88
2006-07	164	1,073,050.62

The information for years between 1997-98 and 2003-04 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

MHRA (Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency)

	Number of bonuses awarded	Total cost (£)
2005-06	62	254,567.60
2006-07	60	342,597.00

NHS PASA (Purchasing and Supply Agency)

	Number of bonuses awarded	Total cost (£)
2005-06	2	7,430.00
2006-07	7	31,758.45

Both the MHRA and NHS PASA do not hold bonus information going back any further then 2005-06.

The national health service does not employ senior civil servants.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by her Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139425]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available.

Diabetes

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in England were diagnosed with Type 2 diabetes in each of the last 30 years. [140640]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of people diagnosed with type 2 diabetes is not available in the format requested. Figures are not available for type 1 and type 2 diabetes separately.

The total number of patients aged 17 and over on practice registers in England who have an appropriate diabetes diagnosis in 2004-05 was 1.77 million people[1].

The total number of patients aged 17 and over on practice registers in England who have an appropriate diabetes diagnosis in 2005-06 was 1.89 million people[2].

It is estimated that over 90 per cent. of people with diabetes have type 2 diabetes.

Notes:

The difference between 1.77 million in 2004-05 and 1.89 million in 2005-06 does not mean that extra 0.12 million patients were diagnosed within those 12 months. The figures are a function of diagnosis recording on practice registers, and therefore were subject to data quality review in that period, as the QOF was being established. Patients with diabetes aged under 17 are not included because they are regarded as receiving their diabetes management in the secondary care sector.

Doctors: Training

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to safeguard patient care at the beginning of August 2007 when doctors in training will all change jobs. [135693]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Not all doctors in training will change jobs on the same date at the beginning of August. Arrangements for 2007 will reflect current practice as most doctors at the level equivalent to the senior house officer grade will start in the first week of August, while doctors at the equivalent of the specialist registrar grade will have staggered start dates.

To ensure service is maintained at the beginning of August and patient care is not compromised, NHS Employers are working with trusts to plan now for managing the transition in the period after 1 August. These plans include advertising locum posts on NHS jobs to fill training posts and using extensions to contracts or service posts.

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the reasons were for abandoning the policy of staggered changeover dates for doctors in training posts. [135694]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The previous policy has not been abandoned. Arrangements for 2007 will reflect current practice.

In the past most doctors at senior house officer (SHO) level changed over in the first week of August. The doctors at specialist registrar (SpR) level traditionally change over in July, September or October.

New specialty training programmes commence in August 2007. Most doctors at the level equivalent to the SHO grade will continue to start in the first week of August. Doctors at the equivalent of SpR level will continue to have staggered start dates.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 582W, on the Medical Training Application Service (MTAS) website, whether her Department monitors the number of visitors to the MTAS website; and what other information about visits to the MTAS website her Department monitors. [140719]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 6 June 2007]: The Department's supplier monitors the number of visitors to the Medical Training Application Service website and page visits. The total average daily visits and peak daily visits are reported to the Department monthly. The most recent figures are for the month of April and are shown in the table.

	April
Total number of visits to the website in period	245,314
Average number of visits per day within the period	8,177
Peak number of visits in one day within the period	22,423
Cumulative number of users registered	51,474

Elderly: Malnutrition

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what work she has undertaken on her national action plan on malnutrition among elderly patients; and when she plans to publish the outcome of that work. [140479]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department and stakeholders are drawing up an action plan to tackle the nutritional care of all adults in health and social care settings

(which will include older people). The plan will be made available once it has been shared and discussed with stakeholders this summer.

GMOs: Contamination

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the cost of the GM rice (LL601) contamination incident to (a) food businesses, (b) Government Departments, (c) local authorities, including port authorities, (d) the Food Standards Agency and (e) the catering and food service sectors. [142667]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency has not estimated the cost of the genetically modified rice (LL601) incident to itself, food businesses, Government Departments, local authorities (including port authorities) or the catering and food service sectors.

Health Services

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to maintain patient care when all junior doctors move posts on 1 August. [137208]

Ms Rosie Winterton: To ensure service is maintained at the beginning of August and patient care is not compromised, strategic health authorities are working with trusts and NHS Employers are working with the Department to plan now for managing the transition in the period after 1 August. These plans include advertising locum posts on NHS Jobs to fill training posts and using extensions to contracts or service posts.

Not all doctors in training will change jobs on the same date at the beginning of August. Arrangements for 2007 will reflect current practice as most doctors at the level equivalent to the senior house officer grade will start in the first week of August, while doctors at the equivalent of the specialist registrar grade will have staggered start dates.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library a copy of the discussion paper on providers which she presented to the King's Fund on 7 December 2006. [137293]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A copy has been placed in the Library.

Health Services: Social Work

Dr. Francis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to re-examine the role of social care providers in the running of LINKS programmes following the recent Health Select Committee report on patient and public health involvement in the NHS; and if she will make a statement. [141148]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As stated in the Government response to the Health Select Committee report, laid in Parliament on Monday 11 June, an organisation being a social care provider does not prevent it from also advocating on behalf of patients and users of health and social care services. We believe it is more than reasonable to expect potential host organisations to demonstrate that they are able to manage their existing responsibilities as well as take on the role of supporting a LINk.

The host will be accountable to the LINk and in its support function will be required to follow the LINk's direction irrespective of what its own interests might be. The sort of organisations that we expect to become hosts are used to dealing with these kinds of issues all the time, as indeed are local authorities.

The model contract specification currently being drafted, addresses this issue and will include a requirement for an organisation to demonstrate it can deliver the contract without any conflict of interest.

Health Visitors

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect of the conclusions of Agenda for Change on (a) roles and functions and (b) pay and conditions of health visitors. [139608]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Agenda for Change pay system does not specify the roles or functions of staff but it does provide an objective means of determining the weight of jobs whose role and function is determined by the employer, and therefore the pay band in which those jobs should be placed. To assist employers in objectively assessing health visitor jobs, two national job profiles have been prepared for typical health visitor roles, which would fall in pay band 6 and pay band 7. Health visitors whose jobs match these profiles would have basic pay in the ranges of £23,458 to £31,779 and £28,313 to £37,326 (1 November 2007) respectively.

Health Visitors: Manpower

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the trends in numbers of health visitors working in the NHS over the last 10 years; [139227]

(2) how many health visitors were working for the NHS in (a) September 2005 and (b) September 2006; [139228]

(3) what work force planning the NHS has undertaken, with particular reference to the future recruitment and retention of health visitors; [139230]

(4) what assessment she has made of (a) the age profile of health visitors working for the NHS and (b) its implications for future recruitment and retention of health visitors. [139232]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Table 1 shows the number of health visitors in the national health service in England over the last 10 years.

The number of health visitors has remained static over the last 10 years but there has been significant growth in the overall number of nurses working in primary and community care settings in both 2005-06 of 1,039 (1 per cent.) and since 1997 of 29,543 (38.2 per cent.).

Work force planning in terms of the recruitment and retention of health visitors is a matter for local work force planners in local primary care trusts and strategic health authorities as they are best placed to assess the health visiting needs of their local population.

Table 2 shows the age profile of health visitors as at September 2006.

Table 1: health visitors employed in the NHS (England) as at September each year (headcount) and (FTE)

	Headcount	Full time equivalent
1997	12,410	10,030
1998	12,570	10,070
1999	12,800	10,160
2000	12,827	10,046
2001	13,053	10,186
2002	12,774	9,912

2004	13,303	10,137
2005	12,818	9,809
2006[1]	12,034	9,376

[1] More accurate validation in 2006 has resulted in 232 headcount duplicate records being identified and removed from the non-medical census.

Health Visitors: Training

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many training places there are for trainees wishing to acquire health visiting qualifications. [139229]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the purpose is of the web based surveillance system for Clostridium difficile and MRSA; and if she will make a statement. [138648]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Web-based reporting systems were introduced for all cases of Clostridium difficile associated disease in patients aged two years and over from April 2007 and for all cases of bloodstream infection caused by methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) from October 2005.

These web-based systems replace the quarterly reports sent by trusts to the Health Protection Agency regional offices. They have been introduced to support initiatives to control and prevent healthcare associated infections. These systems allow more efficient collection of reports and enable trusts to enter data at any time and view their own data. They provide trusts with a more accurate picture and contribute to building a better evidence base regarding risk factors for infection as trusts can see the data to assess the effectiveness of the interventions to reduce infections.

Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust: Hospital Wards

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) mixed wards and (b) single sex wards there were in each hospital in the Hull and East Yorkshire NHS Trust in each of the last two years. [140844]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many wards in Hull and East Yorkshire hospitals NHS Trust were closed in the last 12 months. [140855]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not collected centrally. Responsibility for local health services lies with the local national health service. It is now for primary care trusts in partnership with strategic health authorities and other local stakeholders to plan, develop and improve services for local people in accordance with local health needs.

Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust: Redundancy

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many redundancies were made by Hull and East Yorkshire hospitals NHS Trust in the last 12 months. [140838]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No redundancies have been reported for the Hull and East Yorkshire hospitals NHS Trust in 2006-07.

Junior Doctors: Taunton

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many junior doctors are registered in Taunton constituency. [141212]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The General Medical Council (GMC) keeps an up-to-date register of qualified doctors; all doctors must be registered with the GMC before they can work in the United Kingdom. Further information on the CMC can be found at:

www.gmc-uk.org

The number of doctors in training and equivalent grades employed by national health service organisations within Taunton constituency is shown in the table.

Lincolnshire

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when (a) she and (b) one of her ministerial colleagues last visited Lincolnshire. [134673]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has accepted an invitation to visit The Pilgrim hospital in Boston at a date to be agreed. No other Ministers have visited Lincolnshire.

Medical Training

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 584, on medical training, whether the medical training application system was subject to formal quality assurance. [131862]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer to the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Beverley and Holderness (Mr. Stuart) on 19 April 2007, Official Report, column 745.

Medical Training Application Service

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 613-17, on the Medical Training Application Service, how many of the fixed-term specialty training posts available in 2007 will be converted into run-through training posts in 2008. [138798]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is too early at this stage to say exactly what run-through and fixed-term posts will be available next year. This will depend, as it did this year, upon the results of local discussions between trusts and deaneries to establish the appropriate number of training posts required to meet patient and service needs.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 613-17, on the Medical Training Application Service, where in the public domain the figures for the number of the medical training posts can be found. [138799]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of training posts agreed for the first round was available on the Medical Training Application Service while it was open.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 613-7, on the Medical Training Application Service, how many training posts, in addition to those remaining from the 23,500 available after Round 1, there will be in Round 2; and when Round 2 interviews will commence. [138800]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Interviews for the further recruitment round will be managed locally and will start once the offers for each individual specialty in round one have been accepted or rejected. The number of additional training posts will include at least 200 run-through posts plus substantial further opportunities.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2007, Official Report, columns 613-7, on the Medical Training Application Service, how many foundation year two applicants have failed to get an interview for ST1 posts. [138802]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As outlined in the statement by the Review of Recruitment and Selection for Specialty and General Practitioner Training in England on 4 April 2007, all eligible applicants to specialty training (excluding general practice) in England will be invited to an interview for their affirmed first preference.

NHS Work Force

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2007, Official Report, column 1121W, on the NHS work force, when she expects the East of England strategic health authority to complete its feasibility study into establishing a local voluntary guaranteed employment scheme; whether she plans to publish the study; and when her Department plans to take a decision on the viability of such schemes. [131895]

Ms Rosie Winterton: One of the recommendations of "The Action Plan - A Social Partnership Forum Action Plan for Maximising Employment Opportunities for Newly Qualified Healthcare Professionals in a Changing NHS" published on 13 April is that East of England strategic health authority undertake a feasibility study to maximise employment opportunities for newly qualified health care professionals. This will include assessing the feasibility of an employment guarantee scheme for newly qualified health care professionals.

The feasibility study will last for one year and was officially launched on 15 May by East of England strategic health authority.

The outcome of the feasibility study will determine whether employment guarantee schemes are a viable option. If so, the nature and length of these schemes will be defined upon relevant factors established through the study.

Stakeholder representatives on the social partnership forum will be involved in this decision-making process and the final outcome, once known, will be published.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 January 2007, Official Report, column 2045W, on the NHS work force, what her Department's most recent estimate is of changes in the NHS work force in the financial year 2006-07. [131903]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The recently published census showed there has been a small reduction in the overall national health service work force of 8,118 full-time equivalent (FTE) or 0.7 per cent. of the total (17,390 headcount) in England from September 2005 to September 2006. This should be seen in the context of there being almost 250,000 FTE (280,000 headcount) more staff working in the NHS in England than in 1997 as there are now over 34,000 FTE (35,000 HC) doctors and over 65,000 FTE (79,000 HC) more nurses in the NHS than in 1997.

Doctors account for 13.9 per cent. of the FTE increase in the work force and nurses 26.5 per cent., compared with just 5.5 per cent. managers.

There has been an increase in the number of doctors and an increase in the number of permanent qualified nurses now in the system. In addition, there are now fewer managers working in the NHS, the first fall since 1995.

The numbers show that the work force overall is starting to re-balance with demand equalling supply.

NHS: Consultants

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date her Department received Treasury approval for the new contract for NHS consultants agreed in October 2003. [140011]

Ms Rosie Winterton: New contracts for doctors formed part of the discussions between the Department and HM Treasury during the 2002 Spending Review, which concluded in July 2002.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department set up a (a) working group, (b) steering group and (c) any other regular series of meetings on the new contract for NHS consultants prior to October 2003. [140013]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department set up a number of working groups and reference groups, which included key stakeholders, during the negotiation and implementation of the consultant contract.

NHS: Finance

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when account was taken of forecast rates of inflation in determining the (a) prospective increase in the rates of pay for NHS nurses and (b) proposed increase in the cost of a prescription. [126191]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The review body on nurses and other health professions is required to have regard to the Government's inflation target, and its consideration of pay and price changes in relation to its recommendation of a 2.5 per cent. increase in nurses pay this year is set out in chapter 7 of its "Twenty Second Report on Nursing an Other Health Professions 2007" (Cm 7029) published in March.

No account was taken of forecast rates of inflation in determining the increase in the prescription charge from 1 April 2007.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average per capita social services spending has been (a) in England and (b) in each local authority area since 1979. [140560]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There would be disproportionate costs incurred to produce information at this level of detail across the whole time period requested. The following table therefore shows the information (in cash terms, including adults and children's social care) from 2000-01, from which time an improved means was introduced for collecting these data through an annual return.

1. The table shows total net cost of social services per head of population, this is the total spend excluding capital charges minus income received from client contributions and other income which includes income from the national health service.
2. In 2003-04 the supported people grant was introduced which should be taken into consideration when making comparisons over time. The expenditure information is actual spend and has not been adjusted for inflation.
3. Data are unavailable for the Isles of Scilly for 2000-01.

David Heyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much budget allocation was provided for (a) NHS Greater Manchester, (b) Tameside and Glossop primary care trust and (c) Oldham primary care trust in each of the last three years, broken down by main categories of activity; and how much was spent against each budget in each case. [140650]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for meeting the health needs of their population using the resources available to them. The following table shows the revenue resource limit for PCTs in Greater Manchester from the published accounts and the draft figures for 2006-07.

NHS: Labour Turnover

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate her Department has made of the number of NHS staff who left the NHS (a) to work in the private health sector and (b) to work outside the UK in each of the last three years, broken down by category of job. [139016]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

NHS: Overseas Workers

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision there is for those UK citizens who are not ordinarily resident in the UK through undertaking long term charitable or aid work abroad to access NHS care in the UK. [141978]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Anyone who is not ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom is subject to the National Health Service (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989, as amended and will be liable for charges for any hospital treatment they receive unless they are exempt from charge under a number of exemption categories listed in these regulations.

One exemption category relates to people engaged in employment outside the UK for no more than five years. Another relates to anyone who is working overseas as a missionary for an organisation with its principal place of business in the UK, for any length of time and regardless of whether they derive a salary or wage from the organisation, or receive any type of funding or assistance from the organisation. We have no plans to extend that to other unpaid charitable or aid workers. Such people will be able to access national health service hospital treatment, but they will be liable for charges for it unless considered exempt under another category.

NHS: Sick Leave

Mr. Lamley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average sickness absence rate was for NHS staff in 2006. [131954]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Average sickness absence for national health service organisations (excluding foundation trusts) from April to December 2006 is estimated at 10 working days, reported through the financial information management system. This figure equates to 4.0 per cent.

NHS: Training

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the ratio of speciality training to fixed term speciality training appointments is by speciality in England. [133708]

Nurses

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans she has to maximise the amount of time nurses spend on directly caring for patients; [138640]

(2) what plans she has to minimise the paperwork which needs to be completed by nurses as part of their duties; [138641]

(3) what estimate she has made of the proportion of time spent on a shift by a nurse who was assigned to (a) administrative work and (b) caring duties in (i) 1997 and (ii) the latest date for which figures are available. [138644]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No estimates have been made centrally. Nurses work in teams of nursing staff of different grades as well as being members of multi-disciplinary teams. They will spend differing time on patient care according to their roles and responsibilities in the team.

The Chief Nursing Officer (CNO) is working with the National Health Service Institute for Innovation and Improvement and the Royal College of Nursing to promote the spread of good practice being generated by the productive ward programme. The programme will remove processes that distract nurses and will help staff reorganise wards so that the focus is on needs of patients and on easing the workload generated by some activities.

The report of the programme, "Releasing Time to Care: Productive Ward", was released by the CNO in April and aims to promote greater efficiency so that more nursing time is released for direct patient care.

Nutrition: Drinking Water

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether it is the policy of her Department to support the World Health Organisation definition of water as an important nutrient for the human body and critical to human life. [141211]

Caroline Flint: Yes.

Physiotherapy: Graduates

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will publish the minutes of her latest meeting with the Chartered Society of Physiotherapy on physiotherapy graduates. [136714]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State for Health met the Chartered Society of Physiotherapy on 11 July 2006. There were no formal minutes of the meeting.

Public Private Partnerships: Hearing Aids

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the public private partnership for the provision of digital hearing aids; and if she will make a statement. [140655]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Following a public tendering process, the National Framework Contract (NFC) Public Private Partnership (PPP) with David Ormerod Hearing Centres and Ultravox Holdings plc was announced in October 2003.

The contract allowed national health service trusts to use the two private hearing aid dispensers to see NHS patients.

It was fundamental to the NFC that the quality of service, and hearing aid, that the patient received mirror those of the local NHS audiology department. Quality assurance was key in the initiative. Both companies demonstrated their commitment to meeting these standards and invested resources in terms of equipment, information technology and staff training in order to do so.

The NFC PPP was successful in increasing capacity in the NHS, with over 50,000 patient journeys completed through the partnership. NHS trusts have also benefitted from the competitive pricing and quality of service provision available through the PPP.

Social Services: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was allocated to Warrington borough council to fund social services in each year since 1997, broken down by funding stream; [141899]

(2) how much funding was allocated to Warrington borough council to provide services for (a) adults with learning difficulties and (b) children and young people with learning difficulties in each year since 1997. [141900]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The Government do not make allocations to social care (other than for relatively limited specific grants) but only for local government as a whole.

Within those allocations, it is for local councils to fund and provide appropriate services for their population in the light of local needs and priorities.

Overall, local councils will receive more than £65 billion in 2007-08, a 4.9 per cent. increase on 2006-07.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of people who require organ transplants; how many and what proportion of people requiring donated organs received them in the most recent year for which figures are available; what the shortfall is; and if she will make a statement. [139491]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of people registered on the organ transplant list as at 20 May 2007 is shown in table 1. Table 2 shows the number of people joining the list in years 1997, 2000 and 2003 and the percentage that have subsequently received transplants or are still listed.

The transplant list does not reflect the true extent of need for a transplant, as clinicians are reluctant to list more patients than are likely to receive organs.

An organ donation taskforce is currently looking at the barriers to increasing organ donation and will put recommendations to the Department later this year.

Table 1: Registrations for transplant list—current (as at 20 May 2007)

vCJD: Blood

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to be in a position to make a decision on the steps her Department will take to reduce the risk of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease transmission via the transfusion of blood from asymptomatic carriers. [142830]

Caroline Flint: There is currently no validated diagnostic test that would allow blood donors to be assessed as asymptomatic carriers of variant Creutzfeld-Jakob Disease (vCJD). Therefore, together with the National Blood Service, the Department has introduced a range of measures to minimise the possible risk of secondary vCJD infection through the blood supply. In July 1998 the Department announced that plasma for the manufacture of blood products, such as clotting factors, would be obtained from non-United Kingdom sources. Since October 1999, white blood cells (which may carry the greatest risk of transmitting vCJD) have been removed from all blood used in transfusion. In August 2002 the Department announced that fresh frozen plasma for treating babies and young children born after 1 January 1996 would be obtained from the United States of America, and from summer 2005 this was extended to all children under 16 years of age. In December 2002, the Department completed its purchase of the largest remaining independent USA plasma collector, Life Resources Incorporated to secure long-term supplies of non-UK blood plasma for the benefit of national health service patients. Since April 2004, blood donations have not been accepted from people who have themselves received a blood transfusion in the UK since 1980. This was extended in August 2004 to include apheresis donors and donors who are unsure if they had previously had a blood transfusion. Since late 2005, blood donations have not been accepted from donors whose blood was transfused to patients who later developed vCJD.

The Department will continue to consider further steps to ensure the safety of the blood supply as new evidence or suitable technologies become available.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether a cost/benefit assessment of introducing prion removal blood filters to reduce the transmission of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease via blood transfusion has been undertaken by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [142832]

Caroline Flint: A cost/benefit analysis of introducing prion removal blood filters can only be completed once the Department has received both results of clinical safety trials and the independent evaluation of the effectiveness of the filters in reducing infectivity requested by the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee and the Advisory Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Blood and Tissues and Organs. The analysis will also need to be informed by the outcome of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease prevalence studies currently under way.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Arlington House Camden

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many bed spaces Arlington House in Camden had (a) before and (b) after its modernisation under the hostels capital improvement programme; and what alternative arrangements were made for individuals displaced from Arlington House. [136529]

Yvette Cooper: Before its redevelopment Arlington House provided 399 beds. Following the hostels capital improvement programme (HCIP) investment this number has been reduced to 130. This has been agreed with the local authority in order to create more non-accommodation space where training, other support activities can take place, and to move homeless people out of long-term large institutional provision.

Novas who own and run Arlington House worked in close partnership with the Camden council to ensure that every client was resettled appropriately.

Council Tax Benefit

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average time taken by (a) Warrington borough council and (b) councils in (i) the north-west and (ii) England is to determine an application for (A) council tax benefit and (B) planning permission. [142459]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The average time taken by Warrington borough council and councils in the north-west and England to determine an application for council tax benefit is set out in the following table:

Council tax benefit claims

Warrington	27

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140030]

Angela E. Smith: The central part of Communities and Local Government and its predecessor Departments paid the following amounts to recruitment agencies in the specified years:

	Amount (£)
January-April 2007	34,519.80
January-December 2006	92,444.78
January-December 2005	123,600.08
January-December 2004	155,135.14
January-December 2003	93,604.62

Information prior to January 2003 and in relation to the Department's agencies is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Temporary Employment

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) temporary and (b) agency staff were employed by her Department in each of the last five years. [139983]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessor Departments employed the following numbers of casual staff in each of the last five years:

	Number
2002-03	54
2003-04	129
2004-05	131
2005-06	166
2006-07	53

This does not include staff in the Government Offices or the Department's agencies.

The information requested about agency staff is not held centrally.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139903]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessor, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, were created following Machinery of Government changes on 5 May 2006 and 29 May 2002 respectively.

The Department (and its main predecessor the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister) uses one fee-based travel agency contract administered by the Department for Transport at a combined annual fixed rate (since July 2005) of £50,000. Individual Departments' elements of this annual fixed rate are not separately identifiable. From May 2002 to July 2005, travel agent's fees were paid at 1.5 per cent. of contract turnover, an average figure of £12,500 per quarter.

It is not possible to identify separately fees for other travel contracts used by the Department, as any such fees are built in to the individual ticket prices.

The Department's Executive agencies have separate procedures for making travel arrangements, but have advised that they have not paid any travel agent fees during the period in question.

Fire Services: Cornwall

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with Cornwall Fire Authority to try to resolve the dispute there. [141099]

Angela E. Smith: I have had no discussions with Cornwall Fire and Rescue Authority seeking to resolve any disputes in that county. Industrial relations are a matter for the Fire and Rescue Authority. There is not currently an official dispute.

Fire Services: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the provision of new mobile control rooms which can interface with the new regional fire control rooms is within the scope of (a) the FireControl project and (b) the FireLink project. [142953]

Angela E. Smith: New mobile control rooms are not being provided as part of the FiReControl or Firelink Projects.

Fire and Rescue Services currently provide mobile incident command units which enable effective management of large incidents. The Firelink contract provides for those existing mobile command units and all other Fire and Rescue Service emergency response vehicles, as identified by the respective FRS, to have Firelink equipment installed. The utilisation of the data capability will only be realised once the FiReControl capability is rolled out.

Green Belt

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers the regional spatial strategy process has to change the status of green belt land; and if she will make a statement. [141584]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The regional spatial strategy (RSS) is the statutory strategic development plan. Any proposed changes to the general extent of green belt will therefore need to be set out and taken forward through that process.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers local authorities have to re-designate green belt land; and if she will make a statement. [141282]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Current policy, set out in Planning Policy Guidance note 2 (PPG2): Green Belts, makes it clear that is the responsibility of regional planning bodies and local planning authorities to designate land as Green Belt through the development plan process. Any proposed changes to Green Belt boundaries should also be made through the development plan process as set out in PPG2.

Green Belt: Gloucestershire

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proposals are contained in the South West Regional Spatial Strategy to change the status of green belt land in Gloucestershire; how much land is involved; which sites are specifically mentioned; and if she will make a statement. [141585]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The draft regional spatial strategy does not contain site specific proposals. It will be for the local planning authorities to identify specific site allocations sites in their local development documents to accommodate the housing provision in the final RSS. However, the draft RSS identifies two broad 'Areas of Search' for sustainable urban extensions, to the north of Gloucester and to the north west of Cheltenham. Both 'Areas of Search' extend into the neighbouring Tewkesbury district and both would require changes to be made to the general extent of the green belt. The draft RSS also indicates possible additions, as well as deletions, to the general extent of the green belt.

The draft RSS is currently at Examination in Public before an independent Panel. The Panel is expected to submit its report, with recommendations, to Government later this year. The Government will then consider that report and their response to it. It would not, therefore, be appropriate to make a statement at this time.

Green Belt: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what Government policy is on building on the green belt in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [142288]

Yvette Cooper: There is no designated green belt in Eastbourne or in East Sussex.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government at what time on 16 May Mr. Justice Collins gave his interim oral ruling with regard to the application by the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors for a judicial review of the decision previously made by her with regard to the inclusion of energy performance certificates in home information packs; and whether lawyers or others representing her were present when that ruling was made. [139783]

Yvette Cooper: The Treasury Solicitor's Office, who were acting for the Department, received a facsimile copy of the order, dated 17 may, at 12.27 pm on 17 May. Neither lawyers nor others representing the Department were present when the ruling was given.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether an estate agent will be able to sell a property with a home information pack produced by another estate agent. [140864]

Yvette Cooper: There is nothing in the regulations to prevent an estate agent from selling a property with a home information pack produced by another estate agent, provided that the pack complies with the terms of the regulations.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in which journals advertisements in relation to home information packs have been placed on behalf of her Department. [142690]

Yvette Cooper: Advertising for the home information packs have been placed in the following journals:

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many advertisements placed on behalf of her Department in relation to home improvement packs have been cancelled; [142691]

(2) how many advertisements have been placed on behalf of her Department in relation to home improvement packs. [142692]

Yvette Cooper: Between April 2006 and May 2007 the Department placed a total of 852 advertisements in the press and relevant magazines—of these, a total of 538 were in magazines or newspapers published before the announcement on 22 May.

299 advertisements have now been re-scheduled and will be used to promote the phased introduction of home information packs on 1 August.

15 adverts went to print before the announcement was made but are in publications appearing after 22 May. It would be irresponsible for the Government not to inform people about this important change to the way homes are bought and sold. It is vital consumer information.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on the marketing and advertising campaign to promote home information packs and energy performance certificates in the south-east Government office region. [143048]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has spent £82,335 on the promotion of home information packs and energy performance certificates in the south-east Government office region.

Homelessness

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of homeless people, broken down by constituency. [142325]

Yvette Cooper: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level, in respect of households rather than people.

Information reported each quarter by local authorities about their activities under homelessness legislation includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

The data are published in our quarterly statistical release on statutory homelessness, which includes a supplementary table showing the breakdown of key data, including acceptances and temporary accommodation, by each local authority. This is published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. The latest release was published on 11 June 2007 and contains data for the period January to March 2007:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1002882&PressNoticeID=2438

Since 1998, information has also been collected on the number of people who sleep rough—that is, those who are literally roofless on a single night—and these are also published on our website, by local authority.

Summary tables showing the total number of households (a) accepted under homelessness provisions and (b) in temporary accommodation, from 1997-98 to 2006-07, and (c) rough sleeper estimates from 1998 onwards, for each local authority are provided with this answer and have been placed in the Library.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what proportion of all lettings in (a) each London local authority and (b) across all local authorities were let to homeless households in each of the last five years; [142425]

(2) what proportion of all registered social landlord lettings, excluding sheltered and supported housing, were let to homeless households in (a) each London local authority and (b) in England in each of the last five years. [142426]

Yvette Cooper: The main sources of data on total lettings and lettings to homeless households are:

1. COntinuous REcording (CORE) data on general needs lets by Registered Social Landlords (RSLs)

2. Annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) data collected by local authorities

The proportions of all RSL lettings (excluding sheltered and supported housing) to statutorily homeless households in each London borough for the past five years are provided in the following tables.

A household is found to be statutorily homeless by a local authority if it is eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless (or threatened with homelessness) and in priority need. The main duty owed to households accepted as being statutory homeless is to secure suitable accommodation.

Housing: Camden

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Government intends to provide to Camden council for the purpose of bringing social housing up to Decent Homes standard. [141302]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The Government have increased the basic funding for council housing by 30 per cent. in real terms since 1997. Where local authorities need more than this funding to make all social housing decent, additional funding is available through setting up a high-performance Arms Length Management Organisation (ALMO); entering into a Private Finance Initiative (PFI) contract; or transferring stock to Registered Social Landlords.

Camden has one PFI scheme which covers the refurbishment of the Chalcots Estate, in Swiss Cottage. The scheme was awarded £65 million in PFI credits, and will receive PFI subsidy from 2006-07 onwards.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1101-02W, on housing: construction, what plans she has to introduce penalties for failure to comply with a completion notice. [143240]

Yvette Cooper: We have no plans to introduce penalties for failure to comply with a completion notice. Completion notices are rare, but effective in most cases. If a completion notice is ignored, the relevant planning permission ceases to be valid, except insofar as it authorises the development already carried out. Any further development carried out after the period specified in the completion notice is over may be liable to enforcement action.

It would be impracticable to give the local planning authority power to compel the completion of a development once started, for example where the developer lacked the finance to complete the work.

However, a local planning authority may compel the removal of any partially erected buildings by making a discontinuance order under section 102 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. If an order, confirmed by the Secretary of State, is not complied with, the authority can enforce it in accordance with sections 189 and 190 of the Act. Where a discontinuance order has not been complied with, section 190 of the 1990 Act enables the local planning authority to take the steps required under the order (such as removal of buildings, works or any plant or machinery, or steps to protect the environment), and to recover any expenses reasonably incurred by them in doing so from the owner of the land.

Housing: Expenditure

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much from public funds was paid to Catholic housing agencies in each year since 1997. [117948]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 1 February 2007]: 44 of the 650 registered social landlords funded by the Housing Corporation in the three years 2003-06 could be considered in some way faith-based on the basis of their constitutions. These received £52.2 million in grant over the three-year period out of a total spend of £4.9 billion, or just over 1 per cent. We do not currently have figures covering the years 1997 to 2003.

'Faith-based' here includes several categories:

(i) organisations which are run only or substantially by members of that faith;

(ii) those required to operate in the spirit of a faith or in furtherance of that faith; or

(iii) those that require that homes are let only or substantially to members of that faith, or ethnic groups closely identified with a particular faith.

In 2003-06, £40.8 million was paid to organisations in the second category, i.e. which operate in the spirit of a faith.

The majority of faith-based organisations are Christian, but we do not hold details on how many are Catholic.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total cost has been to run the Design for Manufacture competition since its inception; and how many of the resulting houses she expects to be sold for £60,000. [128191]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 19 March 2007]: English Partnerships are running the Design for Manufacture competition on behalf of the Department for Communities and Local Government. All English Partnerships' costs are expected to be balanced out by receipts of more than £50 million from the sale of the land. This exceeds the reserve price across this portfolio of sites by more than £3 million.

The competition involved additional costs compared to ordinary site disposals. These costs are for specialist technical advice to ensure the quality of these innovative homes (£470,000), for monitoring and evaluation to learn lessons from the construction phase (£70,000) and for research and information (£136,400). This latter category includes holding a public exhibition attended by over 5,000 people and circulating some 30,000 copies of the document setting out the lessons learnt so far from the competition.

Part of the competition involved a target construction cost of £60,000 for a high-quality 76.5 sq metre home, with larger and smaller homes being built at a similar cost-efficiency. The competition is creating 10 new mixed communities developments with homes of different sizes and tenures to suit families and single people. Overall, 50 per cent. of the homes being provided will be affordable, including shared ownership/equity, social housing, low cost home ownership and other supported housing such as for the elderly.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North-East Milton Keynes (Mr. Lancaster) on 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1890W, which set out precise details of one of the sites in the competition.

The other nine sites are at different stages of construction and are spread around the country. The prices of the units for sale will reflect the land value, the local market at the time they go on sale and the equity share as well as the construction cost. In total only about half the homes will be for sale at full market price.

Based on current sales prices we anticipate that on every site where homes are being sold, there will be homes available at shared ownership or shared equity stakes of between £60,000 and £70,000. The exception is on the Hastings site where all the homes will be for affordable rent.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether tests of affordability for homes to rent or buy are required to take account of local levels of household income. [141748]

Yvette Cooper: The definition of affordable housing for planning purposes established by "Planning Policy Statement 3: Housing" and the accompanying guidance "Delivering Affordable Housing" includes the requirement that affordable housing should:

"meet the needs of eligible households including availability at a cost low enough for them to afford, determined with regard to local incomes....."

What this means is that, in considering whether a home falls within the definition of 'affordable housing' or not, local authorities are required to assess whether or not the home is affordable to those eligible for such housing. One of the factors used in this assessment must be levels of local household incomes.

Housing: Northamptonshire

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her estimate is of the likely number of additional dwellings to be located in (a) Northamptonshire, (b) North Northamptonshire and (c) Wellingborough in each of the next 20 years. [141600]

Yvette Cooper: As set out in the Regional Spatial Strategy for the East Midlands (RSS8), the annual average housing provision for the period 2001 to 2021, split into five year periods, is as follows:

Northamptonshire [1]

	Per annum
2001-06	3,095
2006-11	3,475
2011-16	3,665
2016-21	3,665

[1] Excludes the Northampton figure quashed as a result of a high court challenge. This figure is being reviewed as part of the Revision to the Regional Spatial Strategy.

North Northamptonshire

	Per annum
2001-06	2,225
2006-11	2,605
2011-16	2,795
2016-21	2,795

Wellingborough

	Per annum
2001-06	595
2006-11	595
2011-16	685
2016-21	685

The housing figures beyond 2021 to 2026 are currently being assessed through the Revision to the Regional Spatial Strategy for the East Midlands.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will visit Wellingborough and Kettering to discuss future housing and infrastructure developments with members of local communities. [142220]

Angela E. Smith [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The Secretary of State has no plans at present to visit Wellingborough and Kettering.

However, my noble Friend, Baroness Andrews, chairs the Milton Keynes South Midlands Inter-Regional Board which gives the opportunity for discussions relating to sustainable housing and infrastructure developments on an on-going basis. The community is represented at these meeting by members from local authorities across the Milton Keynes and south midlands area.

Housing: Surveys

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 20 April 2007, Official Report, column 794W, on housing: surveys, what obligations residents in (a) private housing and (b) social housing are under to allow a property inspection to be undertaken as part of the English House Condition Survey. [141759]

Ruth Kelly: Participation in the English House Condition Survey is entirely voluntary for all householders regardless of their tenure. Addresses are selected at random and householders are contacted through a letter from our contractors, the Office for National Statistics, and invited to take part in both an initial household interview and in the follow-up property inspection.

Infrastructure

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to extend consultation on the draft national policy statements for infrastructural planning proposals in England to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland where there is a potential impact on those areas arising from the proposals. [142444]

Yvette Cooper: Chapter 10 of the white paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (Cm 7120) sets out our proposals in relation to Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

The Government intends that any national policy statements for air transport and for energy would be developed for the whole of Great Britain or the UK as appropriate. These policies would be developed with the full involvement of the devolved Administrations and the consultation proposed in Chapter 3 of the white paper would encompass the whole of Great Britain or the UK. Welsh, Scottish and Northern Ireland Ministers would be statutory consultees in the development of relevant national policy statements.

Planning Permission

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consultation will be conducted in communities on planning applications under the Planning Bill. [142463]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 14 June 2007]: The planning White Paper, "Planning for a Sustainable Future" proposes a three stage system for nationally significant infrastructure projects, with opportunities for public engagement at each stage.

There would be national consultation on the country's infrastructure needs. The Government would consult the public on national policy statements, which would be scrutinised by Parliament. Promoters would be required to consult the public before submitting a planning application, allowing local communities to influence a promoter's proposals early on. At the examination stage, direct questioning and a new open floor stage would help members of the public engage on a more equal footing with the professional advocates who currently dominate the process.

Planning: Use Classes Order

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to publish her review into use Classes Order legislation; and if she will make a statement. [142185]

Yvette Cooper: We have no plans to undergo a full scale review of the Use Classes Order.

We are looking at the operation of the Use Classes Order in some areas where concerns have been raised, such as around houses of multiple occupation. We have not set a timetable for this work.

Prisons: Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planning guidelines apply to the expansion of prisons; and in what circumstances they have permitted development rights. [141875]

Ruth Kelly: Local planning authorities have been encouraged to make adequate provision for new prison developments through the planning system by means of DETR Circular 03/98 "Planning for Future Prison Development". For extensions to existing prisons, the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has access to the permitted development rights in Part 34 (Development by the Crown) of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995 (SI 1995 No 418 as amended). The main restrictions to the permitted development right are that any extensions may not exceed 25 per cent. of the cubic content or 1,000 square metres of the floor area of the existing building (reducing to 10 per cent. of the cubic content or 500 square metres of the floor area in certain sensitive landscape areas and conservation areas). NOMS may also use other general permitted development rights for minor works.

Regeneration: Mining

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of regeneration schemes in coalfield communities. [141441]

Yvette Cooper: Considerable progress has been made over the past 10 years revitalising the former English coalfields, raising aspirations in these communities through regeneration, education and job creation. People are being given access to the skills and jobs they need, the environmental legacy of the coal industry is being cleaned up and the housing, economic and social needs of the local communities are being addressed. The English Partnership's Coalfield Programme; the Coalfields Regeneration Trust and the Coalfields Enterprise Fund, are delivering real change with combined budgets of over £0.5 billion. A recent independent evaluation of the Department's coalfield specific regeneration programmes available at: http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1508895, gave strong support to the approach we have taken and confirmed the effectiveness of these programmes.

Regional Government: Offices

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which English regional chambers have offices located outside the United Kingdom. [141821]

Yvette Cooper: All eight regional assemblies have use of office facilities in Brussels. These facilities are shared with other regional partners.

Service Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the evidential basis is for her statement that capping leaseholder service charges for ex-council flats would cost £40 million; what timescale that cost was estimated to arise over; and whether there is a distinction between the costs of (a) resident and (b) buy-to-rent leaseholders in the estimates made. [134207]

Yvette Cooper: The statement is based on the results of a survey conducted in March 2007 on behalf of the Department for Communities and Local Government by London Councils, the representative body of the London boroughs. No distinction was made between resident and buy-to-rent leaseholders.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Licensing

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many alcohol licences have been revoked in each London borough since November 2005. [142774]

Mr. Woodward: We do not currently hold this information centrally. The Licensing Act 2003 devolved the administration for licensing to individual licensing authorities who should hold information about licensed premises in their area.

DCMS plans a data collection exercise over the summer to gather this, and other licensing information. Results will be published in the form of a new National Statistics bulletin, currently scheduled for release in October 2007.

Broad estimates collated by the department in November 2006, based on a small sample of licensing authorities, suggested that following review, approximately 100 licences had been revoked across England and Wales in the first year under the new Licensing Act.

Cultural Heritage: Ownership

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's policy is on whether cultural objects seized from (a) Germany and (b) other countries after the second world war by the Soviet Union are Russian property following the passing of the 1998 Federal Law on Cultural Valuables Displaced to the USSR by the Russian Parliament. [142782]

Mr. Lammy: The effect of the Federal Law on Cultural Valuables Displaced to the USSR 1998 on the ownership of cultural objects situated in Russia is a question of Russian law, whether the objects in question come from Germany or other countries. It is not a matter of departmental policy. If an issue was raised in relation to the applicable law of a foreign country in legal proceedings in this country, it would be regarded as a question of fact, to be determined by the judge with the assistance of appropriate expert evidence.

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which (a) organisations and (b) individuals responded to her Department's consultation on the restitution of cultural objects spoliated in the Nazi era. [142783]

Mr. Lammy: The organisations and individuals who responded to the consultation are as follows:

Art Loss Register
British Library
Charity Commission
Commission for Looted Art in Europe
CyMAL Museums Archives and Libraries Wales
CyMRU National Museums Wales
ICOM UK
Marbles Reunited
Museums Association
National Gallery
National Museums of Science and Industry
Royal Academy of Art
Sotheby's
Tate
The National Archives
Withers LLP
Fiona Fuller
Michael Heaps FRICS

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she intends to publish the (a) summary paper of and (b) responses to her Department's consultation on the restitution of cultural objects spoliated in the Nazi era. [142784]

Mr. Lammy: I intend to publish the responses to the consultation and a summary paper before the summer recess.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much revenue her Department received from advertisements on her Department's (a) public information leaflets and (b) public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [142727]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not receive advertising revenue from public information leaflets or public websites.

Departments: Sick Leave

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what average number of days per year was taken by staff in her Department as sick leave in each of the last five years for which records are available. [143057]

Mr. Lammy: Sick absence figures are contained in the annual report "Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service" published by the Cabinet Office. Table 3-4: AWDL for small and micro Departments of the report gives details of both the average working days absence per staff year and the total staff years for each department. The most recent report for the calendar year 2005 is available in the Library of the House. This report and those from 1999 are available on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/occupationalhealth/publications/index.asp

Digital Broadcasting: BBC

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the BBC has spent on producing and broadcasting televisual content for digital transmission. [142845]

Mr. Woodward: This is a matter for the BBC. I have therefore asked the BBC's Director of Finance to consider the question raised by my hon. Friend and to write to him direct. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the BBC commenced broadcasting digital television. [142846]

Mr. Woodward: Sky Digital launched on 1 October 1998, followed by ONDigital on 15 November the same year. Both of these offerings included BBC services.

Digital Broadcasting: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance her Department has provided to residents of rural areas in Copeland in advance of digital switchover in October. [142802]

Mr. Woodward: According to the Digital UK/Ofcom Q1 2007 Tracker, awareness across the UK is higher in rural areas than in urban areas (88 per cent. in rural areas compared to 81 per cent. in urban areas). All households in the Copeland area will receive a doordrop in the next month as part of the ongoing communications campaign to drive up awareness in the final three months before switchover.

Digital UK run drop-in sessions in places throughout Copeland including the rural areas of Moor Row, Seascale, Parton and Eskdale.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance her Department has provided to tenants (a) of private landlords and (b) in social housing in preparation for digital switchover in Copeland in October. [142803]

Mr. Woodward: Private tenants cannot be identified by name or address. To communicate with tenants and residents, Digital UK has distributed a specific leaflet to libraries and CAB in the area, and on its website. Digital UK ran an advertising campaign targeting tenants in the Whitehaven News, letting them know where to find the leaflet. Digital UK provided particular information to tenants and residents in the Switchover supplement in the Whitehaven News on March 15, which is also available for download on the Whitehaven News website. In addition, Digital UK has written to the main lettings agents in the area with a letter and a factsheet about switchover, with a request to copy to their lists of tenants and landlords.

For tenants in social housing, all providers in the area have been contacted twice, including close contact with Copeland Homes, and followed up by a phone call or visit, if they had no plans. In addition, all care homes in the area have been identified, written to and contact made.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance her Department has provided to (a) schools, (b) hospitals and (c) other public facilities in Copeland in preparation for digital switchover in October. [142804]

Mr. Woodward: Digital UK have prepared a teaching pack for primary schools which 92 per cent. of schools in Copeland have agreed to use.

Digital UK and the relevant central Government Departments have also been proactively contacting local service providers, including West Cumberland hospital, to ensure they are aware of the need to prepare for switchover.

A number of other public facilities are used by Digital UK to convey communication material including local libraries, churches, the local newspaper Whitehaven News, social and community groups, West Cumbria Older People's Forum, Copeland Disability Forum and the Women's Institute.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much revenue was raised by television licence fees in the area of Copeland in which digital switchover will take place in October in the latest period for which figures are available. [142840]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not held centrally. The BBC has statutory responsibility for the administration of the television licensing system and TV Licensing carries out day to day administration under contract to the corporation. I have therefore asked the BBC's Head of Revenue Management to consider the question raised by the hon. Member and to write to him direct. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department is taking to ensure that the elderly population of Copeland is (a) aware of the need to make their televisions digitally compatible, (b) assisted to undertake this exercise and (c) protected from unfair practices by digital television retailers and installers of related equipment; and if she will make a statement. [142757]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 14 June 2007]: The Digital UK/Ofcom Tracker data for Q1 2007 shows that 97 per cent. of people in Copeland are aware of switchover. The indicative awareness figure for those aged 55 plus in Copeland is 98 per cent. compared to 92 per cent. of 16-34 year olds. In addition to working with major charities assisting elderly people such as Age Concern, Digital UK is communicating directly with elderly residents in the area.

All households in the area, including older people, have received the Border leaflet, a letter about the switchover, and will receive a leaflet three months out with detailed information on how to switch. Households will also receive a reminder one month prior to switchover. Captions are appearing on TV screens to remind people of the date of switchover.

Developed by the DTI and promoted by Digital UK, the 'digital tick' logo is used by all major electrical retailers and manufacturers to mark digital television equipment (TVs, set-top boxes and recorders). Retailers will be the first port of call for many consumers. Digital UK has developed a Switchover Training scheme for retail staff, which is being used by thousands of staff nationwide. Trained staff can be identified by badges carrying the 'digital tick' logo. All four retailers in the area have agreed to train all their staff in the next one-two months.

In order to contact those eligible for the Help scheme, all households and care homes were sent a Help scheme letter, leaflet and a form informing them about the Help scheme.

Digital UK recently held a seminar with senior representatives from Trading Standards, police, the Home Office, key charities and others in the consumer protection sector to give a thorough airing to consumer protection issues and to progress effective practices and protocols to counter sharp practice such as rogue trading, distraction burglary and scams. Further seminars are arranged for this summer and in the meantime a number of protection initiatives are under way.

Digital Broadcasting: Government Assistance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of UK households eligible for assistance in switching over to digital television will be required to pay to access assistance; what type of assistance will be available to each group; and what charges will be made to those eligible. [142674]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 14 June 2007]: Of the UK households eligible for assistance from the Digital Switchover Help scheme, we estimate that 55 per cent. will be required to pay for it. This help will comprise the provision of the appropriate equipment to convert one TV set and, where necessary, the relevant help to install and use such equipment and an aerial installation. The level of charge will be £40.

Newspaper Press: Competition

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will bring forward measures to increase competition in the newspaper industry; and if she will make a statement. [139649]

Margaret Hodge: I have been asked to reply.

The UK has in place a robust regime for the promotion of effective competition in all markets and for the effective control of mergers. The UK's independent competition regulators, the Office of Fair Trading and the Competition Commission, have powers to enforce the prohibitions in competition law on anti-competitive agreements and behaviour and to investigate markets and take appropriate action to remedy problems that may exist in those markets. They also have powers to assess the effect of mergers on competition in relevant markets. For mergers involving newspapers or other media enterprises, there is also provision under the Enterprise Act 2002 for the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry to intervene in order to require a separate consideration of the effect of the merger on the public interest—including on the plurality of different persons having control of media enterprises.

Sports: Clubs

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many (a) sporting, (b) aero-modelling, (c) bowling and (d) model flying clubs have opted out of accepting anyone under the age of 18 years old as a member in the last two years; [142464]

(2) how many instructors at model flying clubs have ceased to instruct children in the last two years. [142465]

Mr. Caborn: Neither my Department nor Sport England hold this information.

DEFENCE

War Pensions/Armed Forces Compensation Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of (a) war pensions and (b) Armed Forces Compensation Scheme claims were settled by the Veterans Agency within 50 working days in each year since 2001. [139621]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The information requested for the War Pensions Scheme (WPS) is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme (AFCS) was only introduced in April 2005, consequently information is only held from that date. From 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, 89.9 per cent. of cases were cleared within 50 days. For the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007, 87.3 per cent. of cases were cleared within 50 days.

The WPS Key target for 2006-07; to reduce the average time it takes to issue decisions on claims to war pensions to no more than 53 working days, was exceeded with an achievement of 49 working days. The AFCS key target for 2006-07; to issue decisions on AFCS claims in average of no more than 35 working days; was exceeded with an achievement of 34 working days.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence who is responsible for carrying out inspections of family accommodation at Pirbright barracks. [141843]

Derek Twigg: Inspections on Service Families Accommodation at Pirbright are carried out by representatives of Modern Housing Solutions, the Housing Prime Contractor.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of family accommodation at Pirbright barracks is (a) currently unoccupied and (b) unfit for occupation. [141844]

Derek Twigg: 21 per cent. of Service Families Accommodation (SFA) at Pirbright (105 properties) are currently unoccupied, of which 67 properties (13 per cent. of the total SFA stock at Pirbright) are unavailable for occupation.

The 67 properties include those under offer to or accepted by a service family; is awaiting return to Annington Homes Ltd in accordance with the 1996 Sale Agreement; is awaiting maintenance or upgrade work; or is held pending a future deployment of service personnel into the area.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average wait for repairs to be carried out on family accommodation at Pirbright barracks was in the latest period for which figures are available. [141846]

Derek Twigg: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions newly arriving service personnel and their families have arrived at Pirbright barracks to find that their accommodation was uninhabitable in the last 12 months. [141851]

Derek Twigg: None.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reported break ins to forces' accommodation there were in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [142101]

Derek Twigg: From information held by the service police the reported break-ins for each year are:

	Reported break-ins
1997	1,650
1998	1,619
1999	1,334
2000	1,369
2001	1,204
2002	1,535
2003	1,732

	Reported break-ins
2004	1,354
2005	933
2006	729
2007	[1]260

[1] To date.

Medical Assessment Programme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on referrals by the Medical Assessment Programme in each year since it was established. [142855]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 June 2007]: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The cost of running the Medical Assessment Programme (MAP) itself over the last financial year, excluding any onward referrals, was approximately £150,000. This included the cost of premises, staff, and the expenses for individual referrals.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel staff the Medical Assessment Programme for (a) mental and (b) physical health; and what increases are planned in each area. [142856]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 June 2007]: Since 2005, two members of staff have been working at the Medical Assessment Programme (MAP). Dr. Ian Palmer has been working one day a week at the MAP for nearly a year in addition to duties within the NHS. He will now be employed at the MAP on a full-time basis to see patients referred for mental or general health assessments. Dr. Palmer is a general practitioner and a consultant psychiatrist with a military background. He is supported in his role by his full-time secretary. We will monitor carefully the number of referrals and increase the staff resources, if required.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans from (a) the 1990-91 Gulf War, (b) Operation Telic and (c) other operations have passed through the Medical Assessment Programme. [142854]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 14 June 2007]: As at 12 June 2007, some 3,500 1990-91 Gulf veterans (including civilians), 41 Operation Telic veterans, and 138 Porton Down volunteers have attended the Medical Assessment Programme. Many of those concerned will also have taken part in other operations but this information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Winter Sports

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1182W, on armed forces: winter sports, how much public money was spent on the Army Ski Championship 2007; which commercial sponsors the event had; how the Chief of the General Staff travelled to the event; what the cost was of that travel; which senior officers attended the event; and how those senior officers travelled to the event. [140090]

Derek Twigg: The public contribution to the running of the 2007 Army Ski Championships amounted to £22,000, which paid for the transportation of equipment. The commercial sponsors for the event were Norwich Union and BAE Systems. Land Rover loaned three vehicles free of charge for use by the Army Skiing Championships during the event. Mitsubishi Motors also loaned a vehicle free of charge for use to the Chairman of the Army Winter Sports Association (AWSA) for the duration of the Championships. The championships were held in Chantmerle in South East France.

The Chief of the General Staff, accompanied by his Aide de Camp, flew from the UK to Germany and was driven from there to the championships, subsequently returning by air from Turin to the UK. The total cost for air travel was £1,705.60. CGS' driver travelled separately, driving one of the Land Rovers, incurring costs of £145 for the Eurotunnel crossing and approximately £375 on fuel. Hotel costs for the party amounted to £935.65.

Senior officers have been taken to mean those of the rank of Brigadier and above. In addition to Chief of the General Staff, nine such officers attended and these individuals are listed. All travelled by air unless otherwise stated.

Assistant Chief of the General Staff (designate), travelled at his own cost; General Officer Commanding, United Kingdom Support Command (Germany), accompanied by his Aide de Camp and driver, attending in his capacity as Chairman of the AWSA, travelled in a sponsored vehicle provided for the event at no public cost;

Director Royal Artillery;

Director Infantry;

Director Army Aviation; Director Royal Logistics Corps;

Director Electrical and Mechanical Engineers (Army);

Director Development, Concept and Doctrine Centre Land; travelled to/from the championships by car from Germany, subsequently returning by air to the UK);

Chief G7 Allied Rapid Reaction Corps, attending in his capacity as Chairman of Army Alpine Skiing, travelled to/from the championships by car from Germany.

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [142206]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence purchased some 133 GWh of electricity from renewable energy sources in financial year 2005-06. This amount represents 6 per cent. of the Department's total electricity consumption for the year in question and is reported in the Sustainable Development Commission's Sustainable Development in Government Report 2006.

A copy of the report is available in the Library of the House.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his strategy is for renewable energy and meeting energy targets in departmental buildings; and if he will make a statement. [142209]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence has agreed to achieve the Sustainable Operations on the Government estate key target to source at least 10 per cent. of its electricity from renewable sources by 31 March 2010.

We are developing a departmental strategy to maximise energy supply from renewable sources and this is expected to be completed in late 2007. Priorities include: procurement of more electricity from renewable sources; supporting the use of sites for renewable energy systems, where appropriate; and providing renewable energy systems for buildings where it is technically and economically feasible.

We are also discussing alternative sources of fuel and technology through our partnership agreement with the Carbon Trust.

Housing

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answers of (a) 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1364W, and (b) 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 688W, on housing, (1) when he expects to provide the information; [141239]

(2) when he expects to be able to provide the information requested. [130503]

Derek Twigg: I wrote to the hon. Member today. I apologise for the delay.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

GCSE

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children in (a) grammar, (b) local authority, (c) church and (d) academy schools obtained five GCSEs including English and mathematics at A*-C in London in each of the last five years. [128657]

Jim Knight: The answers to parts (a), (b) and (c) are given in the following table:

Percentage of 15[1]-year-olds obtaining five or more GCSEs at Grades A-C including English and Maths GCSE in London Government office region*

School type	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

Head Teachers: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many vacancies for head teachers there are in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [125466]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available at constituency level.

In East Sussex local authority, there were two full-time head teacher vacancies in local authority maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools in January 2006, the latest information available.

The figure given shows advertised vacancies for full-time permanent appointments (or appointments of at least one term's duration) including those being filled on a temporary basis of less than one term.

Home Education: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils are home-schooled in (a) Greater London, (b) the London borough of Havering and (c) Romford. [134547]

Jim Knight: Parents may exercise their right to educate their children at home on a temporary or permanent basis. We do not collect information about the numbers of children whose parents provide education at home, and it would be impractical to do so given the transient nature of some of this type of provision. A recent study on the prevalence of home education in England, conducted by York Consulting estimated that there were around 16,000 children being educated at home that were known to the local authority. We have not made any estimate of the number of home educated children that are not known to their local authority.

Local Education Authorities: Transport

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many education authorities provide subsidised public transport for their staff. [132311]

Jim Knight: The Department for Education and Skills does not hold any information on the number of education authorities that provide subsidised public transport for their staff.

Mathematics

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of (a) independent and (b) maintained secondary schools entered candidates for the additional mathematics qualification in 2006. [117652]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table.

Qualification type	Maintained	Independent
Additional Maths A-level	25	46
Proportion of A-level student students[1]	0.017	0.132
Additional Maths GCSE	239	74
Proportion of GCSE students[2]	0.040	0.152

[1] The proportion of A-level students is calculated as a percentage of 16 to 18-year-old pupils entered for a level 3 qualification.
[2] The proportion of GCSE students is calculated as a percentage of pupils at the end of key stage 4.

Private Education: GCE A-level

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of grade A A-levels in (a) mathematics, (b) physics, (c) chemistry, (d) English, (e) French and (f) German awarded in England were awarded to pupils at fee-paying independent schools in each of the last three years. [126877]

Jim Knight: The proportion of A-level A grades awarded to students[1] at independent fee paying schools for the subjects requested are in the following table.

[1] Students aged 16-18 at the start of the academic year (i.e. 31 August).

	2003/04	2004/05	Percentage 2005/06

Physics	39	37	38
Chemistry	40	39	37
English	28	26	24
French	46	46	44
German	47	44	44

[1] Includes further mathematics.

Pupil Referral Units: Curriculum

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupil referral units offer on their curriculum (a) English and mathematics, (b) English and mathematics and at least one science, (c) English and mathematics and ITC, (d) English and mathematics and PSHE, (e) English and mathematics, at least one science and ITC, (f) English, mathematics, at least one science and PSHE, (g) English, mathematics, one science, ITC and PSHE and (h) a full national curriculum. [133650]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Pupils: Insulin

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what steps he is taking to ensure that there are sufficient facilities for school students who require insulin injections during the school day to have the necessary medical support in schools; [126521]

(2) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of levels of provision of trained personnel in schools to support the health needs of children; [126522]

(3) what guidance his Department gives to schools on the administration to students of insulin injections during the school day. [126524]

Jim Knight: The DfES and DH have jointly recommended to schools, in 'Managing Medicines in Schools and Early Years Settings' (2005) that they should, with support from their local authority and local health professionals, develop policies on managing medicines and put in place effective management systems to support individual children with medical needs, including diabetes. The guidance advises that schools should have sufficient support staff who are trained to manage medicines as part of their duties. We have no plans to monitor training of school staff in this specific area.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Board

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what external interests have been declared by each member of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Board. [130219]

Jim Knight: Each member of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) Board completes a register of interests. This is available from QCA.

Unique Learner Number

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the progress of the unique learner number being developed for all school leavers. [126636]

Jim Knight: The internet based Learner Registration Service (LRS), which will assign the unique learner number will be launched in September 2007. The service will be available for everyone over the age of 14 in education and training.

Schools: Complaints

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what monitoring procedures are in place to ensure that his Department's guidance on school complaints procedures, LEA/01/0180/2003, is adhered to by schools and governing bodies. [127413]

Jim Knight: All governing bodies must establish and publicise a complaints procedure for the school. The extent to which the governing body has complied with this duty is part of the school's self evaluation process which underpins the current Ofsted inspection regime. At least once every three years Ofsted inspectors seek to validate the school's evaluation of its strengths and weaknesses through inspection. No separate monitoring procedures are in place to ensure schools comply with the Department's guidance on schools complaints procedures.

School: Sanitation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will take steps to encourage local education authorities to make the upgrading of school toilet and washroom facilities integral to local asset management plans for schools. [137733]

Jim Knight: Guidance was published by the Department in April with recommendations on the specification of toilet blocks in secondary schools that will help tackle bullying in schools. New designs to be used in all Building Schools for the Future Schools will make toilets more attractive, cleaner and safer for pupils to use.

Research on the use of 2006 devolved formula capital shows that around a fifth of schools have improved toilets each year from 2003-04 to 2006-07.

In the first term of government, the last 450 schools with outside toilets had them replaced.

The bulk of schools capital is allocated by formula to authorities and schools so that they can address their local asset management planning priorities, including the upgrading of toilet and washroom facilities.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock. Given the high levels of funding, authorities have the opportunity to upgrade toilets.

Schools: Yorkshire

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on how many occasions in each of the last two years a pupil at each state secondary school in Yorkshire has been found to be in possession of (a) a weapon and (b) narcotics on school premises. [129683]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold this information.

Teachers: Training

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many overseas trained teachers there are in each London borough; how many of these have not enrolled in training courses for qualified teacher status in each borough; and if he will make a statement. [135603]

Jim Knight [holding answer 8 May 2007]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

In 2005-06 information from the Training and Development Agency for Schools shows that there were 1,330 teachers in England on the Overseas Trained Teacher Programme, the employment-based route to qualified teacher status for these teachers.

Vocational Training

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many 14 to 16-year-olds received vocational training which included time away from the classroom during school hours in the last period for which figures are available. [110622]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not held centrally by the Department.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many single farm payments have been reduced as a result of failures to meet good agricultural and environmental conditions required by cross-compliance; and how many of these failures relate to agricultural practices that place drinking water, rivers, and wetlands at risk of pollution. [141701]

Barry Gardiner: Under the 2006 Single Payment Scheme year, there were 54 payments reduced as a result of claimants failing to demonstrate that they were keeping their land in good agricultural and environmental condition. None of these failures were related to agricultural practices that led to any risk of pollution. However there were four non-compliances found which could have lead to a pollution risk and these claimants received warning letters.

There were 106 payments reduced as a result of claimants failing to adhere to the Statutory Management Requirements concerning Groundwater and Nitrate Vulnerable Zones. A further six such non-compliances found merited warning letters for the claimants concerned.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1033W, on bovine tuberculosis (TB), what recommendations he received on bovine TB and badger culling at those meetings; and if he will make a statement. [142341]

Mr. Bradshaw: A range of views and suggestions on bovine TB and badger culling, among other issues, were discussed with Ministers and officials at meetings with interested parties in August 2006.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of (a) false positives and (b) false negatives resulting from tuberculosis testing of the UK cattle population. [142136]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is not possible to establish such data other than as part of a research programme where all animals are slaughtered and the disease status of each animal can be irrefutably established. No such technique is available but immunological tests are considered the best indicator of infected status.

There are two immunologically based diagnostic tests used in the Great Britain (GB) bovine tuberculosis (bTB) testing programme. The primary screening test for bTB in cattle in the UK (and Ireland) is the single intradermal comparative cervical tuberculin (SICCT) test, which is commonly known as the tuberculin "skin test". In October 2006, the Government extended the use of the gamma interferon (g-IFN) diagnostic blood test, alongside the skin test (as permitted by EU legislation), in certain prescribed circumstances.

Research shows that when the skin test is applied to cattle in bTB-free herds in GB there is a one in 1,000 chance that a non-infected animal will be wrongly classified as a reactor. This is known as the test's false positive rate. An alternative way of defining this is to say that the skin test has a specificity of 99.9 per cent. Although the probability of getting at least one false positive result increases with the size of the herd being tested, it would be extremely rare to find more than one false positive in any herd. The skin test is designed to detect an immune response at a relatively early stage in the infection process. Therefore, the percentage of test reactors without visible tuberculous lesions is not an indicator of the false positive rate for this test.

Various studies have shown that the sensitivity of the skin test (i.e. its ability to identify infected animals as positives) varies between 77 per cent. and 95 per cent., i.e. it can be expected to miss about one or two in every 10 infected cattle on a single round of testing (10-20 per cent. false negative rate).

For all diagnostic tests there is a trade off between sensitivity and specificity, so different interpretations of the test can be used under different disease situations. Sensitivity is enhanced in herds with post-mortem or culture-confirmed infection by application of severe interpretation.

With regard to the g-IFN blood test, performance evaluation carried out in a number of countries shows that at the laboratory cut offs used in GB, it has a sensitivity comparable to or marginally better than that of the SICCT (between 73 and 100 per cent., with a median value of about 87 per cent.). Because the two tests detect slightly different sub-groups of infected cattle, by combining the two tests a higher overall sensitivity can be achieved. A trial in GB, established to evaluate the specificity of the blood test, confirmed the findings of previous studies by concluding that the commercially available blood test had a specificity of between 95-97 per cent. (i.e. there is a likelihood that slightly more false positive reactors are identified when the gamma test is applied, as opposed to the skin test). It is for these reasons that the g-IFN blood test cannot be used for routine surveillance and is best used in parallel in infected herds to maximise the detection of infected animals.

Carbon Emissions

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government have taken to date to try to reach the UK target of a 20 per cent. reduction in carbon emissions by 2010 compared with 1990; and what further steps it intends to take. [142112]

Ian Pearson: The UK Climate Change programme, revised in 2006, sets out the Government's policies and measures to reduce carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions up to 2010. The target to reduce emissions to 20 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010 was always designed to be stretching and as we have acknowledged, it looks increasingly difficult to achieve.

Our latest projections, published in the recent Energy White Paper, suggest that our CO_2 emissions, including the impact of the EU Emissions Trading scheme, could fall to about 16 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010. This would represent definite progress towards the domestic target. It would also mean that we had reduced our emissions of the basket of greenhouse gases to more than 23 per cent. below base year levels, a percentage reduction almost double what we are required to achieve under the Kyoto protocol.

However, it does show why we need to do much more to reduce emissions. The long-term framework that the Climate Change Bill will provide, and the new measures announced in the Energy White Paper, which will further reduce emissions up to 2020, are therefore essential.

If every household, business and community took measures to reduce their CO_2 emissions by reducing energy used in the home and in buildings, and by changing how journeys are made, we could still make further progress towards our 2010 target. The Government are continuing to encourage and enable those choices and changes in behaviour through initiatives such as the "Act on CO_2" campaign, and by funding the work of the Carbon Trust and Energy Saving Trust.

Carbon Price

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what his policy is on the level of carbon price which should be used to calculate emission limits for the EU Emissions Trading Scheme; [142104]

(2) what the price of carbon is; and what assessment he has made of trends in the price of carbon over the last 12 months. [142105]

Ian Pearson: The Government do not set or seek a particular price for carbon allowances. Under the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, the Government set a cap on the total emissions that may be emitted by the installations covered by the scheme in the UK, as does every other member state for their installations. The total EU cap sets a limit on allowances available in the market and the demand for allowances from installations to cover their emissions then determines the price.

The price for a carbon allowance for one tonne of CO_2 in phase I carbon price was €0.24 at market close on 12 June. The forward price for phase II 2008 allowances was €22.61 at close on 12 June.

Climate Change: Young People

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his counterpart in the Welsh Assembly Government on extending the climate change champions young ambassadors scheme to Wales. [141620]

Ian Pearson: We have announced our intention to hold a second climate change champions competition. Initial discussions on whether the Welsh Assembly Government might like to run an extension of the competition have taken place at official level and these discussions will be taken further as we develop our plans.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff funded by the public purse in his Department are classified as people without posts. [137705]

Barry Gardiner: People without posts are required to join DEFRA's Priority Movers List. There are currently 136 staff on the Priority Movers List. Staff on the Priority Movers List have access to vacancies within DEFRA before they are advertised more widely and management support is given to staff without posts in order to maximise redeployment opportunities. Staff are engaged on short-term projects within the Department while looking for permanent positions.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff funded by the public purse in the Pesticides Safety Directorate are classified as people without posts. [141638]

Ian Pearson: I assume the hon. Member is referring to the number of staff employed by Pesticides Safety Directorate (PSD) for which the agency does not have the funding or who are deemed to be surplus to existing requirements. PSD has no such staff.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [140035]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA came into being in June 2001. From information held centrally, the amount (including VAT) paid by core DEFRA in each financial year commencing with 2002-03, when information was first available, is shown in the following table.

2002-03	684,795.34
2003-04	1,106,361.08
2004-05	447,712.00
2005-06	999,207.53
2006-07	1,418,359.43

Expenditure by DEFRA's Executive agencies is not held centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

DEFRA's use of recruitment agencies is limited to recruiting specialist and senior posts requiring specialist skills which are not readily available internally and therefore requires recruitment of the right talent and experience from outside of the organisation.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the UK Government's assessment is of the effectiveness of (a) the total level of permitted emissions and (b) the national distribution of permits under the EU Emissions Trading scheme; [142108]

(2) what new limit of total carbon output the UK Government are seeking for the 2008 European Emissions Trading scheme. [142113]

Ian Pearson: In Phase I (2005-07) of the EU Emissions Trading scheme (EU ETS), the UK National Allocation plan (NAP) is set to deliver emission savings of 65 million tonnes of carbon dioxide (CO_2). For Phase II (2008-12), our cap is set to deliver emission savings of 145 million tonnes of CO_2 over a five year period. Overall, the EU member states have to date emitted around 220MtCO_2 below the total cap.

The results to date have shown the trading mechanism and institutional framework is viable and functioning as envisaged. We believe this is a solid base on which to build for the future. In the UK, compliance has been excellent. In 2006, all operators surrendered sufficient allowances within the deadlines. There have been no successful legal challenges to the national distribution of allowances.

In Phase II, the cap on the total number of allowances allocated to installations in the UK will be 246.17 million allowances (tonnes of CO_2) each year. The EU ETS however, is a trading scheme and under the scheme rules, operators may emit more or less than the allocated amount and purchase or sell allowances to meet their requirements.

Eunomia Consultancy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of each report that the Eunomia consultancy has produced for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies. [104097]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following reports have been produced by Eunomia for core-DEFRA. Placing copies of the Reports in the Libraries of the House would cost in excess of £4,000. On this occasion therefore a website link for each Report has been added.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many foreign-registered vessels have pair trawled within the UK's 12 mille limit in each month since the ban on British pair trawlers inside the 12 mile limit was implemented. [142156]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the total number of foreign vessels that have pair trawled within the UK 12 mile limit in this period is not available, since their countries of registration are not required to submit this information to us and it is not possible for our own enforcement authorities to inspect all such vessels at all times.

However, the number of pairs of foreign vessels which have been confirmed from our own inspections at sea and other sightings as engaging in pair trawling within the UK 12 mile limit is set out in the following table. This includes the proportion of pairs of foreign vessels which were observed in ICES area VIIe, within which the English ban on pair trawling applies.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions

he has had with his (a) Scottish, (b) Welsh and (c) Northern Ireland counterparts on UK fisheries since May 2007; and if he will make a statement. [142306]

Mr. Bradshaw: I met with my Scottish counterpart, Richard Lochhead, on 6 June in advance of the 11-12 June Agriculture and Fisheries Council. He also accompanied me to the Council itself and we had regular discussions as the negotiations developed.

I have not met my counterparts from Wales and Northern Ireland on fisheries matters since May 2007. My officials are however in regular contact with their counterparts from the devolved administrations on fisheries matters to ensure a coherent UK line.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the timetable outlined in Annex III of the Communication from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament on a Community Action Plan to reduce discards of fish (COM(2002)656 final), dated 26 November 2002 has been met; and if he will make a statement. [142313]

Mr. Bradshaw: There hasn't been the detailed analysis at Community level of the various options identified in the report that was anticipated. However, the more recent Commission Communication takes the discussion forward, to reflect those developments which have occurred in the interim, like increased data on the scale of the problem (and its geographical and fisheries distribution) and the application of technical measures to improve selectivity.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent on fisheries enforcement in each year since 1997. [142314]

Mr. Bradshaw: UK expenditure on fisheries enforcement including monitoring control and surveillance on land, at sea, aerial surveillance and satellite monitoring is set out in the following table:

	£ million
1997	[1]
1998	24.0
1999	24.8
2000	24.8
2001	25.7
2002	23.9
2003	24.6
2004	25.4
2005	26.8
2006	26.6

[1] Files not available to confirm figures.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the Communication from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament: A Policy to reduce unwanted by-catches and eliminate discards in European fisheries (COM(2007) 136 final) dated 28 March 2007; and if he will make a statement. [142337]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government welcome what they consider to be a forward-thinking and radical paper, focusing on the single issue that does most to discredit the Common Fisheries Policy in the eyes of the public.

It is particularly welcome that the Commission has focussed on the economic incentives on fishermen that give rise to discarding—it is only if we focus on these that we will find solutions that work.

But much greater thought is needed on practical implementation, particularly in relation to the concept of a discard ban. The Communication underplays significantly the enforcement problems and associated costs that a complete ban would bring, especially in the mixed fisheries found in waters all around the UK. The UK looks forward to participating actively in that additional work. We must also involve stakeholders to ensure the measures are effective in practice.

Fuels: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information his Department holds on the relative carbon emission profiles of (a) kerosene, (b) wood, (c) coal, (d) electricity, (e) natural gas and (f) liquefied petroleum gas when used as domestic fuels. [142512]

Ian Pearson: The following table shows CO_2 emissions per unit of energy consumed, and total emissions, from fuels in the domestic sector.

The second column refers to emissions per unit energy consumed, in kilograms of carbon dioxide per gigajoule (GJ), and the third column contains total UK emissions from the use of the corresponding fuel in the domestic sector, in million tonnes of carbon dioxide. The data include emissions associated with the fuel production, for example at power stations, refineries, and in the transportation of wood fuel.

The data in the table refer to the geographical coverage of the United Kingdom.

CO_2 emissions from the domestic sector in 2005

Fuel	Emissions per unit of energy consumed ($kgCO_2/GJ$) including emissions associated with production	Total emissions including emissions associated with production ($MtCO_2$)
Burning oil[1]	75.40	8.16
Wood[2]	6.94	0.06
Coal	82.59	0.76
Anthracite	89.18	0.953
Electricity	146.27	61.30
Natural gas	52.26	71.84
LPG	66.72	0.98

[1] The UK GHG inventory reports the use of domestic kerosene under burning oil, following the classification used by the DTI.
[2] Wood figures include the effect of absorption of CO_2 during the lifetime of the tree.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what arrangements are in place to ensure that contamination of non-genetically modified (GM) potato crops (a) via

GM volunteers and (b) otherwise (i) is minimised and (ii) is detected if it occurs. [142665]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 14 June 2007]: It is assumed that this question relates to the statutory consents granted to BASF to conduct trials of GM disease-resistant potatoes. The consents specify a number of detailed conditions to ensure that a GM presence does not arise in conventional potato crops. These include appropriate requirements on managing volunteers, crop separation, monitoring and reporting. Compliance with the consent conditions will be checked by the DEFRA GM Inspectorate.

Landfill: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department and its agencies have made of changes in the cost of waste collection and disposal to local authorities of (a) increased landfill tax since 1997 and (b) the Landfill Allowances Trading Scheme. [142172]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government take account of the impacts of landfill tax and the Landfill Allowances Trading Scheme (LATS) when allocating local government funding. In the 2004 Spending Review (which takes us through to 2007-08), revenues from the landfill tax escalator were recycled back to local councils via Revenue Support Grant. Decisions on future funding will be taken in the context of this year's Comprehensive Spending Review.

It is not possible to simply attribute a proportion of the actual costs of waste collection and disposal to landfill tax or LATS. These economic instruments influence local government behaviour, and were they not in place, local authorities would pursue different waste management choices with different cost implications.

The net current expenditure on waste collection and disposal by local authorities in each year for which figures are available since 1997 is shown in the following table.

Net current expenditure on waste collection and disposal

	Amount (£000)

Odour Pollution

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many orders have been served by local authorities to tackle problems of odour in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [141693]

(2) how many orders have been served by the Environment Agency to tackle problems of odour in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [141694]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency (EA) is responsible for regulating and inspecting sites that fall under a number of environmental regulatory systems, including the waste management licensing system and the pollution prevention and control regime. The EA's national enforcement database records details of EA enforcement action, however, these records do not differentiate between different types of offences. The information requested is therefore not available due to the disproportionate cost involved.

Local authorities also have power to issue notices in relation to odour problems under the pollution prevention and control regime. However, data collected are similarly restricted to the total number of notices issued by local authorities relating to any regulatory matter on emissions from designated Part A2 and B installations. A breakdown of notices served by local authorities solely for odour offences is therefore also not available.

DEFRA currently does not collate statistics on the number of statutory nuisance abatement notices served by local authorities to tackle odours, under section 79 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990. Local authorities do not have a duty to collect this data.

Private Sewers

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish the consultation paper on how private sewers and drains will be transferred to the sewerage undertakers; and if he will make a statement. [143282]

Ian Pearson: A public consultation will take place over the summer on the implementation options for the transfer of private sewers to water and sewerage companies. This will also consider questions of the scope of transfer and the prevention of new private sewers.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government intends to take to ensure the independence of the successor body to the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management. [141781]

Ian Pearson: The reconstituted Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM) will be appointed as an advisory non-departmental public body, according to the Code of Practice of the Commissioner of Public Appointments, as was the original CoRWM Committee. It will therefore be independent of Government or any other interest.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what meetings he has held with the (a) Environment Agency, (b) the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate and (c) Office of Civil Nuclear Security on the new arrangements for the setting of packaging standards for radioactive waste; and if he will place in the Library copies of the minutes of such meetings. [141796]

Ian Pearson: No such meetings were held by the Secretary of State. However, as stated in his announcement of 25 October, the independent environment and nuclear safety regulators believe that this proposal to nominate the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) as the geological disposal facility implementing body provides a framework that they can regulate in a strong and effective manner. They are content that the NDA will be responsible for implementing the geological disposal programme, within the constitutional arrangements described. The regulators' support is of major importance, as strong independent regulation is key both to ensuring the safety of people and the environment and to securing confidence and trust in the delivery arrangements.

Recycling: Odour Pollution

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what level of odours from green waste recycling centres his Department classifies as acceptable; and if he will make a statement. [141683]

Mr. Bradshaw: The European waste framework directive (2006/12/EC) requires member states to ensure that waste is recovered or disposed of without endangering human health and without using process or methods which could harm the environment. This includes without causing a nuisance through odours.

The level of odour emission acceptable from green waste recycling centres depends on a number of factors, including the nature of the activity and the regulatory regime within which it operates and the proximity of those that may be affected. Where the activity is subject to a waste management licence, the prevention of odour may be imposed by way of conditions to that licence. This requirement may be monitored qualitatively or quantitatively by the operator and assessed by regulators on a case-by-case basis.

In addition, section 79 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 places a duty on local authorities to inspect their areas periodically to detect any statutory nuisances that may exist or are likely to occur or recur. There is also a duty to take reasonably practicable steps to investigate complaints of statutory nuisance. Odour may be considered as a statutory nuisance if it is considered to be "any dust, steam, smell or other effluvia arising on industrial, trade or business premises and being prejudicial to health or a nuisance".

Operations regulated through the waste management licensing system may still be subject to action against statutory nuisance.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations have been received by (a) his Department and (b) the Environment Agency on concerns about odour from the Green Waste Recycling Centre in Haynes West End, Bedfordshire; and if he will make a statement. [141692]

Mr. Bradshaw: I am not aware of any representations received by my Department on odour problems from this site. However, I understand that the Environment Agency (EA) has received in excess of 250 odour complaints about the site since December 2005.

The site operates under a waste management licence and is regularly inspected for compliance with the licence conditions by the EA. Sites operating under a waste management licence have an overarching requirement to recover or dispose of waste without causing harm to human health or pollution of the environment. This includes without causing a nuisance through noise or odour.

The EA have assessed all reported complaints, often in collaboration with the local authority environmental health officer, but only a few have been substantiated as being caused by failures on site. Where this is the case, action has been taken to bring about improvements to the company's working procedures.

Recycling: Paper

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pages in his Department's publication Waste Strategy for England 2007 are printed on uncoated paper. [142616]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste Strategy 2007 document does not contain any pages printed on uncoated paper. All copies of the Waste Strategy 2007 produced by The Stationery Office were printed on 'Evolution Satin' paper. This is a coated paper and contains 75 per cent. recycled paper and 25 per cent. ECF Elemental Chlorine Free (ECF) pulp, which is Forestry Stewardship Council certified.

We are obliged to purchase and use paper specified within the Department for Transport's Recycled Printing Papers Framework (PPAD 09/034/023). In the case of the Waste Strategy document, a coated paper was used due to the colour content.

Although some printed copies of the Strategy have been distributed, we would encourage people to view the Strategy online, where possible, in order to avoid wastage.

Territorial Waters: Contamination

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures he has taken to reduce discards in UK territorial waters in each year since 1997. [142312]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have for a number of years been actively encouraging the widespread application of more selective gears by the UK fleet, developed with the assistance of departmental funding. In this period, we have also worked with the European Commission (and other member states) to introduce a range of enhanced technical measures at Community level, designed to make EU fisheries more sustainable for the longer-term. These have included increases in mesh size, the adoption of sorting grids and the application of square mesh panels in particular fisheries.

Waste Disposal: Business

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance has been produced by his Department and its agencies for local authorities on penalties for businesses who dispose of rubbish in municipal public litter bins. [142376]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have not issued specific guidance on this matter. The Government's role is to establish the legislative framework and to issue explanatory guidance on the legislation when it is initially introduced. It is for the relevant enforcement authorities to interpret the legislation, based on their own legal advice, and to apply it appropriately in each individual case.

The Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 made certain amendments to the offences in the Environmental Protection Act 1990 which cover illegal waste disposal. This includes: section 33, which is the main fly-tipping offence; section 34, which sets out the waste duty of care; and section 47 on receptacles for commercial waste. Businesses that dispose of rubbish in municipal public litter bins may be committing one of these offences, but this would depend on the individual circumstances of any given case.

DEFRA published general guidance on the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act in April 2005, which has been distributed to all local authorities in England and Wales.

Waste Management

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what incentives his Department has given local authorities to reduce their waste arisings; and what penalties they will face if they fail to do so; [142610]

(2) what measures his Department (a) has introduced and (b) plans to introduce to reduce waste arisings. [142664]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 14 June 2007]: Action to reduce the amount of waste produced in the first instance is driven by regional and local strategies and supported by nationally funded programmes.

The amount of waste collected from households per head is measured under local authority (LA) best value performance indicator (BVPI) 84a. BVPIs have statutory performance targets and are monitored by the Audit Commission. As a standardised suite of performance indicators, BVPIs help central Government and the public to monitor, analyse and compare the achievements of LAs.

In addition, the Government are providing funding and support to LAs to help them promote and develop more sustainable waste management practices such as recycling, reuse and waste minimisation.

The Waste Minimisation Programme, run by the DEFRA-funded Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), is working to stem the growth of household waste. This is part of a package of measures to enable the UK to meet the requirements of the Landfill Directive and move towards sustainable waste management.

As part of its Waste Minimisation Programme, WRAP is working with 13 major retailers to reduce the amount of waste from supermarkets. This includes looking at ways to redesign packaging, as well as providing support for research and development into waste minimisation. It is also working with LAs to establish greater participation in recycling and home composting. This is achieved by WRAP through a variety of means, for example through LA advice and training; food waste collection trials with selected authorities; funding support for campaigns to boost recycling participation in local areas; and a targeted National Home Composting Programme.

LAs have also received £45 million in 2005-06, £105 million in 2006-07 and £110 million in 2007-08 under the Waste Performance and Efficiency Grant to help them develop new and more efficient ways to deliver waste reduction and increase recycling.

The recently published Waste Strategy 2007 puts forward a range of measures to further reduce waste arisings and build on recent improvements in recycling. A greater focus on waste prevention has been recognised through a new target to reduce the amount of household waste not reused, recycled or composted, from over 22.2 million tonnes in 2000 by 29 per cent. to 15.8 million tonnes in 2010, with an aspiration to reduce it to 12.2 million tonnes in 2020—a reduction of 45 per cent. This is equivalent to a fall of 50 per cent. per person (from 450 kilograms per person in 2000 to 225 kilograms in 2020). The strategy also sets higher national targets for household waste recycling and composting to reach at least 40 per cent. by 2010, 45 per cent. by 2015 and 50 per cent. by 2020.

There are no specific penalties to encourage LAs to reduce their collected waste volumes. The Landfill Allowances Trading Scheme (LATS) places limits on the amount of biodegradable municipal waste that authorities can landfill. LAs that exceed limits are liable to a penalty of £150 per tonne. Minimising municipal waste arisings helps LAs meet their LATS obligations and so avoid incurring penalties.

Waste Management: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what measures have been put in place to ensure that green waste in Bedfordshire is (a) processed and (b) recycled to required standards; and if he will make a statement; [141681]

(2) what measures the Government are putting in place to ensure material deposited at green waste recycling centres is recycled to acceptable standards; and if he will make a statement; [141684]

(3) what measures the Government have put in place to ensure green waste recycling centres meet the terms of their licences; and if he will make a statement. [141687]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government strongly supports the composting of organic waste. This is an important component of meeting targets for recycling and composting, as well as those under the landfill directive to reduce the landfilling of biodegradable municipal waste.

Composting of green waste is classified as a waste recovery operation under the waste framework directive and is carried out under a waste management license issued by the Environment Agency (EA) or a registered exemption from the need for a license. The EA is the competent authority responsible for carrying out regular inspections on such sites, including those in Bedfordshire, to assess compliance with the license conditions.

Sites operating under a waste management licence must recover or dispose of waste without causing harm to human health or pollution of the environment. This includes causing a nuisance through noise or odour.

The EU Animal By-Products Regulation also applies to the composting of some materials. The regulation permits low-risk animal by-products ('Category 3' material) to be composted or treated in an approved composting or biogas plant and treated to an EU standard. Alternative treatment standards are due to be introduced later this year. However, these must demonstrate the capability to meet a specified level of pathogen reduction.

In addition, the DEFRA funded Business Resource Efficiency and Waste programme (BREW), the Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) and the EA have developed a quality protocol for compost in consultation with industry and other interested parties. The protocol sets criteria for, and allows, the full recovery, production and use of quality compost from waste organic materials without the need for further regulation beyond the point of production.

Water Abstraction

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many permanent abstraction licences have been amended to make them time-limited since the Water Act 2003 was introduced; and how many of those amendments were taken voluntarily. [142180]

Ian Pearson: Six abstraction licences have had time limited status since regulations were introduced in April 2006. These covered apportionment (splitting) of permanent abstraction licences that 'change hands'.

Nine permanent abstraction licences have been voluntarily converted to time limited status since the Water Act 2003.

The Environment Agency has converted 24 of its own abstraction licences to time limited status.

Water: Contamination

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has any targets to reduce discards in UK waters. [142267]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government are extremely concerned about the level of discarding generally and is clear that significant steps must be taken to reduce it.

However, this is a problem which requires EU-wide action and we will therefore be working with the Commission (and other member states) to ensure their latest initiative is fully effective in delivering appropriate solutions throughout the community.

Water: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department or its agencies are conducting into (a) water rates and (b) unmetered water charging. [142258]

Ian Pearson: The Government commissioned and published research into alternative methods of water charging, both measured and unmeasured, in their review of water charging in 1998-99. We are currently updating this research, looking at the distributional impacts of a range of measured and unmeasured tariffs, and will report later this year.

Water: Infrastructure

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the co-operation and information sharing by the Regional Planning Bodies with statutory bodies to determine the extent and location of new water infrastructure required in England. [141324]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

In developing their regional spatial strategies, the regional planning bodies are required to consult with water undertakers in helping to develop the broad development strategy for the next 20 years, including the provision of infrastructure and management policies governing future distribution of regionally or sub-regionally significant activities and development within the region.

The draft RSS is then publicly consulted on and independently examined in public. This process allows issues to be highlighted for further scrutiny and any underlying evidence to be tested for robustness—including any matters relating to water infrastructure and provision.

Water: South East Region

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what studies his Department has undertaken on the capacity of water resources to meet plans for increased housing numbers, with particular reference to the south-east of England. [141322]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA worked very closely with the Department of Communities and Local Government (CLG) throughout 2005, to analyse the environmental impacts of the increased levels of housing supply proposed in Kate Barker's review of housing supply. This work led to the publication of the Entec Report: "A sustainability impact study of additional housing scenarios in England", in December 2005. The comprehensive package of environmental measures announced as part of the Government's response to the Barker review was informed by this analysis. Close inter-departmental liaison is ongoing.

My Department has been involved in the appraisal of the New Growth Point Proposals, to ensure that the environmental implications of these proposals for increased levels of growth in the wider south, have been considered from the start. We have worked closely with Natural England and the Environment Agency to scrutinise the proposals to determine whether the levels and locations of growth present any problems with respect to water resources, and also flood management, water quality, green infrastructure and biodiversity/ designated sites.

DEFRA has co-funded a study with CLG and the Environment Agency to investigate how total water demand in the Thames Gateway can be managed to ensure that development does not place additional demand on existing water resources. We are calling the concept 'water neutrality'. We are currently considering in further detail exactly what this might mean for the Gateway, and will report on the study findings in due course.

On 1 April 2007, the preparation of water companies' 25 year water resource management plans became a statutory requirement under the Water Act 2003, and will be subject to public consultation. These plans, which had hitherto been prepared voluntarily, set out the demand and supply measures water companies plan to take to maintain security of supply for their customers. Local authorities are statutory consultees for these plans and will be able to comment on the measures water companies are taking in respect of new housing developments.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departments: Sovereign Strategy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from her Department held with Sovereign Strategy in each year between 1997 and 2006. [136853]

Margaret Beckett: Obtaining the information requested for the time period the right hon. Member has specified would incur disproportionate cost. However, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe has met Alan Donnelly, Executive Chairman of Sovereign Strategy, on a number of occasions as they have been personal friends for a number of years. Mr. Donnelly is well known to many Ministers and is likely also to have met others on a number of occasions over this period.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the security walls being constructed in Baghdad on the security situation in Baghdad; and if she will make a statement. [139613]

Margaret Beckett: The security walls are being constructed by the Multinational Force (Iraq), under US command. We understand that they are a temporary measure to create secure neighbourhoods as part of a much wider range of measures being taken as part of the Iraqi-led Baghdad security plan. This plan, and the increase in US troop numbers in and around Baghdad, are designed to improve the security situation in Iraq.

It is too early to judge the success of the plan, not least because not all the additional US military units are in place. However, early indications show some signs for encouragement. Whilst the incidence of high profile suicide attacks remains of deep concern, other forms of sectarian violence are below pre-plan levels and the Iraqi security forces have so far performed well. Ultimately, efforts to improve security in Baghdad are designed to create the conditions in which Iraqis themselves can make progress on reconciliation and power-sharing, and we continue to provide encouragement and practical support to this process.

Malaysia: Military Decorations

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance is being offered to the Malaysian High Commission to speed up the rate of issuance of the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal for veterans. [140802]

Margaret Beckett: The Pingat Jasa Malaysia (PJM) is a commemorative medal issued by the Malaysian Government for service between August 1957 and August 1966. The issue of this medal to veterans is a matter for the Malaysians. The Ministry of Defence has agreed to endorse applications for the PJM from veterans and to pass them on to the Malaysian High Commission. Veterans who wish to check the progress of their applications should write to the Malaysian High Commission.

Middle East: Global Conflict Prevention Pool

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the annual budget of the Middle East and North Africa strategy of the UK Global Conflict Prevention Pool is, broken down by expenditure on each country involved. [141203]

Margaret Beckett: The budget for the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) for financial year (FY) 2007-08 is £3 million. The following table details expenditure on each country in the proposed allocations for MENA GCPP.

Financial year 2007-08

	Amount (£)
Budget	3 million
Israel and the occupied Palestinian territories	1,400,000
Lebanon	1,085,000
Libya	265,000
Jordan	50,000
Yemen	200,000
Total allocation	3,000,000

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the role of the Government's Global Conflict Prevention Pool is in relation to the Middle East Peace Process; and if she will make a statement. [141201]

Margaret Beckett: Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) mechanisms and resources are used to support UK policy towards the Middle East Peace Process. GCPP funds projects in the region that aim to address drivers of conflict in order to enhance the prospect of a sustainable two-state solution. Examples include:

a project which has helped move the route of the separation barrier closer to the green line;

a project which aims to raise awareness of planning problems in Palestinian villages in Israeli controlled areas of the West Bank and take action to tackle this problem;

a project identifying systematic failures in due process in the Israeli military courts and attempting to correct them through legal and public advocacy; work to facilitate freedom of movement for Palestinians in the Occupied Palestinian Territories through legal and administrative action and promoting access to the Israeli judicial system; and providing assistance to close protection for Palestinian President Abbas.

Project Al Yamamah

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has received from the United States Government on the Government's decision to suspend the Serious Fraud Office inquiry into the Al-Yamamah deal; when those representations were received; and if she will make a statement. [142422]

Margaret Beckett: US officials participated fully in the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Working Group on Bribery discussions on 16-18 January and 12-14 March. On 19 January the Economic Counsellor from the US embassy met with Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials and registered American concerns about the Serious Fraud Office's decision. In the meeting it was made clear that the decision to discontinue the investigation was taken by the Serious Fraud Office Director alone on considerations of national and international security.

Somalia: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of (a) the numbers of African Union troops deployed in Somalia and (b) the impact of that deployment on the security situation in the country. [141197]

Margaret Beckett: The African Union (AU) mission to Somalia (AMISOM) currently has about 1,700 Ugandan troops deployed to Somalia. The UK is working closely with international partners to seek to increase the number of AMISOM troops from other AU countries.

AMISOM was authorised by UN Security Council Resolution 1744, which was sponsored by the UK and adopted unanimously on 20 February. The troops currently deployed are playing an important part in ensuring stability in the parts of Mogadishu and Baidoa in which they are operating. We judge that AMISOM has a crucial role to play in creating the security conditions that would enable a fuller withdrawal of Ethiopian troops from Somalia.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support is being provided by (a) the UK and (b) the EU to the African Union AMISOM force in Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [141568]

Mr. McCartney: The Government believe it is vital that a successful African Union (AU) Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) deployment ensures lasting stability in Somalia. The UK has offered planning, and logistical, support for a Somalia planning cell within the AU's Peace and Security Operations Division in Addis Ababa. The UK has also offered planning, logistical and financial assistance direct to troop contributing countries, including £1.3million to Uganda.

We strongly support the early disbursement of the EU's pledge of €15 million to AMISOM.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what requests have been received by the UK from the African Union (AU) for NATO air transport support for AU troops in Somalia; and if she will make a statement. [141198]

Margaret Beckett: The UK has not been approached directly by the African Union (AU) in connection with requests for NATO air transport support for AU Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) troops in Somalia. We understand that the AU has made a request to NATO in connection with air transport support. The UK will wish to support NATO on this issue where we can.

The UK strongly supports AMISOM and is already offering planning assistance to several potential troop-contributing countries and logistical support for the AU military cell in Addis Ababa.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the role of the Africa Conflict Prevention Pool is in relation to the conflict in Darfur; and if she will make a statement. [141202]

Margaret Beckett: The Africa Conflict Prevention Pool (ACPP) has provided vital funding to underpin UK efforts to address the problems of Darfur.

The UK is a leading supporter of the African Union (AU) Mission in Sudan (AMIS) and we have committed over £10 million of bilateral assistance through the ACPP. This funding has been used to pay for vehicles and rapid deployment kits for AMIS personnel. The ACPP has also provided funding for UK military training teams based in Africa to support pre-deployment training for approximately 4,000 AMIS peacekeepers drawn from Nigeria, Rwanda, Ghana and Gambia. A further £62 million of bilateral support for AMIS has been committed through the peacekeeping budget.

In addition, over £600,000 of ACPP funds were used to provide budgetary support for the AU's efforts to broker a political settlement through the Inter-Sudanese Peace Talks on Darfur in Abuja, which led to the signing of the Darfur Peace Agreement (DPA). The ACPP has subsequently funded work to help the AU explain the benefits of the DPA to the people of Darfur, and for an expert to support the AU in preparing the Darfur-Darfur Dialogue and Consultation. We stand ready to support a secretariat to the AU and UN mediators who have prepared a roadmap for taking forward the political process.

Sudan: Violence

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the trend of attacks on civilians in the eastern part of Southern Kordofan, Sudan, since January 2007; and if she will make a statement. [142997]

Mr. McCartney: We are concerned about the deterioration in security over recent months in South Kordofan. This appears to be caused by the lack of progress in implementing the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) in the region, exacerbated by local problems over land use and migratory routes. We are also concerned about previous incidents of violence in Kordofan by Darfur rebels and the further risk that the conflict in Darfur could spill over into Kordofan.

As Southern Kordofan is one of the "Three Areas" under the CPA, we are monitoring the situation there through the Assessment and Evaluation Committee that oversees the implementation of the CPA. We have also made it clear to the Darfur rebels that it is unacceptable to spread this conflict into Kordofan.

Syria: UN Resolutions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of Syrian compliance with UN Security Council Resolution 1701; and if she will make a statement. [141199]

Margaret Beckett: In March, the UN Secretary-General reported that there was mounting evidence that Hezbollah was rearming and smuggling arms across the Syria/Lebanon border in breach of UN Security Council resolution (UNSCR) 1701. I will arrange for a copy of his report to be placed in the Library of the House, it as also available on the UN website at http://www.un.org/Docs/sc/sgrep07.htm While the UN Secretary-General's report did not specifically identify the supplier of these arms, we continue to judge that Syria is involved in providing Hezbollah with weapons as well as facilitating the transfer of weapons from Iran in breach of UNSCR 1701. This is a serious concern.

The UK continues to work to ensure the full implementation of UNSCR 1701. We are working to improve Lebanese border-monitoring capability through a bilateral programme of assistance, support to a German-led initiative and work through the UN.

Zimbabwe: Human Rights

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 600W, on Zimbabwe: human rights, what steps have been taken by the EU to engage with southern African Governments on the situation in Zimbabwe; and what the outcome has been of these steps. [137471]

Margaret Beckett: The situation in Zimbabwe continues to deteriorate with economic, political and social indicators worsening by the week. On behalf of the EU the presidency, through its Ambassadors or local representatives, has engaged directly with governments in the Southern African Development Community (SADC) region to express the EU's concern at human rights abuses within Zimbabwe, which many African Governments share. The EU troika held a formal dialogue with South Africa on 14 May at which Ministers discussed Zimbabwe. Both sides agreed that meaningful internal dialogue in Zimbabwe is crucial to the resolution of the crisis. The EU troika met with the African Union (AU) delegation at ministerial level on 15 May. The AU noted its continuing support for the SADC initiative and President Mbeki's role. The EU awaits the outcome of this initiative with interest and will return to the situation in Zimbabwe at the UN Human Rights Council in September, following the EU statement in March condemning state-sponsored violence. The UK will continue to ensure that opportunities available at EU level are taken to raise the deteriorating situation in Zimbabwe and to highlight the EU's condemnation of ongoing political violence and human rights abuses.

Zimbabwe: Travel Restrictions

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the UK Government are taking to press the EU to extend its 2002 sanctions to the family members and business associates of those members of the Zimbabwean government already subject to EU sanctions. [143003]

Mr. McCartney: The EU visa ban list already includes a number of Robert Mugabe's family members, who hold positions in the Zimbabwean Government. We do not intend at present to press for the inclusion of all family members of those principals on the EU visa ban list. Where we receive sufficient and accurate information concerning the presence of those children and family members in the UK, we actively investigate the sources of financing for their study and presence to see whether it breaches the terms of the asset freeze under the EU's targeted measures. We will do the same with known business associates.

HEALTH

Audiology Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 789W, on audiology services, what steps she plans to take to ensure that the planned additional audiology patient pathways are provided. [137710]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Strategic health authorities (SHAs) have provided assurance that their activity plans for 2007-08 will deliver the 18-week milestones including six-week maximum waits for all diagnostic tests by March 2008. SHAs have generally taken the view that they can achieve the necessary reductions in audiology waiting times with a modest procurement of additional independent sector capacity.

The SHAs are confident that the remaining capacity can be found through a combination of more efficient use of existing capacity, extra investment in NHS-provided services and the roll out of the one-stop assessment and fit service model, all of which should have a substantial impact, as set out in ‚Improving Access to Audiology'. Services in England, copies of which are available in the Library.

The additional independent sector capacity will be provided through extensions to the existing diagnostics phase 2 procurement and local procurement.

Blood: Safety

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will release all remaining documents from those which were rediscovered by her Department referred to in the Review of Documentation relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970 to 1985 before the end of the inquiry chaired by Lord Archer into contaminated blood and blood products; and if she will make a statement; [142679]

(2) how many of the documents rediscovered by her Department referred to in the Review of Documentation relating to the Safety of Blood Products 1970 to 1985 relate to the period after 1985; and if she will make a statement. [142681]

Caroline Flint: The review identifies that 20.5 per cent. of papers have been categorised as relating to self sufficiency. The focus of the review was 1970-85, and 90 per cent. of the documents related to this time period, just under 10 per cent. fell outside this timeline.

Lord Archer has been advised that the Department will release all papers identified in the review, in line with the Freedom of Information Act. The papers will be released to Lord Archer's inquiry as quickly as possible, in batches on a monthly basis.

Cancer: Medical Treatments

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the merits of the provision of photodynamic therapy for cancer on the NHS; and what estimate she has made of the cost implications of the provision of such treatment. [141260]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 June 2007]: As part of its programme of work on interventional procedures, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has issued guidance on the use of photodynamic therapy (PDT) in the treatment of several cancers.

NICE has stated that PDT for the treatment of Barrett's oesophagus, advanced bronchial carcinoma, endobronchial carcinoma, bile duct cancer and skin tumours is safe and works well enough for use in the national health service, provided normal arrangements are in place for consent, audit and clinical governance.

NICE has also issued guidance on the use of PDT for early stage oesophageal cancer, stating that current evidence on PDT for the treatment of this disease is not adequate to support its use without special arrangements for consent, audit and clinical governance.

The Department has not made any estimate of the cost implications of the provision of PDT for the treatment of cancer.

It will be for the NHS at a local level to decide whether to offer this treatment to patients.

Care Homes

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applications for continuing care assessments were made in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006; and what proportion were (i) agreed and (ii) declined in each health authority in England. [142260]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is not available in the format requested. The available information is shown in the following table.

Care Homes: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people lived in a care home for elderly people in each London borough in each of the last five years. [142780]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Information Centre for health and social care collects data on the number of care home residents whose care is funded, wholly or in part, by local councils, but not on the number of those funding their own care.

The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI), as part of its regulation work, collects and publishes data on the numbers of registered care and nursing homes and places in England, but not on occupancy levels or numbers of residents. This information is available at:

www.csci.org.uk/professional/ask_csci/statistics_and_data_about_care/facts_and_figures/headline_statistic_spreadsheet.aspx.

CJD

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps have been taken to inform those who received blood known to be at risk of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) contamination that they could be at risk of contracting vCJD; and if she will make a statement. [142680]

Caroline Flint: The Creutzfeld-Jakob Disease (CJD) incidents panel advises on the assessment and management of risk to patients who may potentially have been exposed to CJD following medical interventions. In December 2003, following the first suspected case of variant Creutzfeld-Jakob Diseases (vCJD) transmission through whole blood transfusion, the first patient notification exercise was undertaken to notify recipients of blood components donated by people who later developed vCJD. There are currently around 24 people in this group who are still alive.

Since then, three other notification exercises have been implemented in respect of recipients of certain plasma products. There are approximately 5,000 people in this group, which includes patients with haemophilia A and B and Von Willebrand's Disease to whom it was indicated that they had received United Kingdom sourced plasma derived vCJD implicated products during the period 1980-2001, and would therefore be considered at risk of vCJD for public health purposes. Additionally notification has been given to about 100 blood donors to patients who later developed vCJD.

All the information documents used for these notification exercises are available on the Health Protection Agency website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/cjd/information_documents.htm.

Conal Timoney

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role Conal Timoney had in her Department at the time of the publication of the contract notice (a) 2006/S 114-121806 and (b) 2006/S 135-145353; whether he performed that role as a civil servant or consultant; and what role he currently has. [142040]

Andy Burnham: At the time of the publication of the contract notices 2006/S 114-121806 and 2006/S 135-145353 Conal Timoney's role within the Department's Commercial Directorate was Director of Communications. This role was performed on a contractual basis. Conal Timoney is currently the Commercial Directorate's Director of Strategy.

Departments: Contracts

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the definition is of (a) service category No. 25 at section II.2 of the contract notice 2006/S 114-121806 and (b) service category No. 27 at section II.2 of the contract notice 2006/S 135-145353. [142042]

Andy Burnham: Service categories are listed within Directive 2004/18/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council. Service Category No. 25 is defined as health and social services. Service Category No. 27 is defined as other services.

Departments: E-mail

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) divisions and (b) individuals have access to e-mails coming to the csf@dh.gsi.gov.uk account. [142041]

Andy Burnham: The csf@dh.gsi.gov.uk mail-box is managed by the Framework for procuring External Support for Commissioners project team within the Commercial Directorate of the Department.

Departments: Press

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which subject areas were covered by each of her Department's press officers (a) in May 2005 and (b) in the most recent period for which the information is available. [124939]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The most recent list of the subject areas covered by the Department's press office has not changed since May 2005. Information on how these subjects were broken down between individual press officers in May 2005 is not available. The available information has been placed in the Library.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date she last met the Chancellor of the Exchequer to discuss the forward budget for her Department. [140014]

Andy Burnham: The Secretary of State and Departmental officials hold regular discussions with their counterparts at HM Treasury on the forward budget for the Department of Health, the national health service and social care as part of preparations for the 2007 comprehensive spending review.

Doctors: Registration

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what safeguards are in place to ensure that doctors employed by the national health service are registered with the General Medical Council; what procedures are followed if a doctor is found to be unregistered; and if she will make a statement. [140630]

Andy Burnham: Doctors must be registered with the General Medical Council (GMC) to practise medicine in the United Kingdom.

It is the responsibility of individual employers to carry out pre and post-appointment registration checks on employees. Processes are in place to prevent unsuitable people from gaining employment in the national health service. Employers should undertake a variety of checks before someone is offered an NHS post including verification of identity, confirmation with professional regulatory bodies and criminal records bureau checks on staff who have access to patients in the normal course of their work.

Elderly: Care

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to ensure privacy and dignity in toilet use for the elderly in hospitals and care homes; and if she will make a statement. [141451]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Regulation 12 of the Care Homes Regulations 2001 states that:

(4) The registered person shall make suitable arrangements to ensure that the care home is conducted-

(a) in a manner which respects the privacy and dignity of service users;

Standard 10 of the National Minimum Standards for Care homes for Older People includes the following requirements.

10.1 The arrangements for health and personal care ensure that service user's privacy and dignity are respected at all times, and with particular regard to:

personal care-giving, including nursing, bathing, washing, using the toilet or commode; consultation with, and examination by, health and social care professionals; consultation with legal and financial advisors;

maintaining social contacts with relatives and friends;

entering bedrooms, toilets and bathrooms;

following death.

The Healthcare Commission assesses the performance of the national health service against the standards set out in "Standards for Better Health", published by the Department in 2004.

In carrying out its assessments, the Commission looks at the setting in which care is provided to ensure that, among other aspects, patients enjoy as much privacy as possible and are treated with dignity and respect.

Harwich Hospital: Maternity Services

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether there are plans to change provision of maternity services at Harwich hospital; and if she will make a statement. [141595]

Andy Burnham: This is a local matter. It is for primary care trusts to commission services to meet the needs of the communities that they serve. I am advised that Essex Rivers healthcare national health service trust has announced a temporary change to the maternity unit it runs at the Fryatt hospital in Harwich.

This means that from 1 June, midwives will be based at the unit from 7.30 am-9 pm, seven-days-a-week, rather than the current round-the-clock basis.

Outside of those times, women will still be able to deliver at the unit by contacting the on-call midwife. This is a common maternity service model used by the trust at its other sites such as Halstead hospital.

Hay Fever

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what action her Department is taking to reduce levels of hay fever; [139932]

(2) what action her Department is taking (a) to mitigate the risks of high pollen levels and (b) to reduce the projected number of hay fever cases in the summer months; [139931]

(3) what assessment she has made of the potential links between global warming, environmental change and the levels of hay fever in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [139921]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are taking no specific action to reduce the levels of hay fever, or mitigate the risks of high pollen levels. However, NHS Direct, NHS Direct on line and NHS Direct interactive have been established to provide advice and information on health and self-care. Through these services, people suffering from hay fever have access to information to help them manage their condition and minimise their exposure to pollen. Over the counter and prescription medicines are also available to alleviate the associated symptoms of this condition.

We have not assessed the potential links between global warming, environmental change and levels of hay fever in the United Kingdom.

Health Insurance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were covered by private health insurance in each year since 1997. [142689]

Andy Burnham: We do not routinely collect these data centrally. However, Laing and Buisson Healthcare Market Review (2006-07), the industry standard, has recently published the following United Kingdom figures.

Private medical insurance

	Persons covered, 31 December (Thousand)
1997	6,679
1998	6,824
1999	6,536
2000	6,867
2001	6,663
2002	6,711
2003	6,615
2004	6,553
2005	6,536

Source:
Data are from Laing and Buisson survey aggregates for all insurers.

Health Services: Urgent Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will publish her urgent care strategy. [142046]

Andy Burnham: Officials are continuing to develop the strategy, which is being informed by responses to the "Direction of Travel for Urgent Care: a discussion document" and other work with stakeholders, including service users and carers. A new strategy on urgent and emergency care will be published in due course.

Health Services: Access

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts in England restricted access to health care by instructing health care practitioners not to refer patients for named health care interventions at the end of the 2006-07 financial year; and whether the practice is continuing. [138614]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally.

Hospitals: Parking

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons hospital staff are not exempt from hospital parking fees; and if she will make a statement. [141213]

Andy Burnham: Arrangements and charges for car parking on healthcare premises are a matter for individual national health service bodies, taking account of all the relevant local factors. This includes what, if any, concessions or exemptions to offer hospital staff.

NHS bodies have income generation powers which allow them to raise additional income by marketing any spare capacity resulting from a non-core function, or by exploiting intellectual property rights. Certain rules must be followed, including the fact that profits raised must be used to improve health services. Charging for car parking is a common example of an income generation scheme.

Latex: Allergies

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines her Department issues on the use of latex gloves in the healthcare sector; and if she will make a statement. [140072]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not now issue guidelines on this subject. The NHS National Patient Safety Agency (NHS NPSA) on 26 May 2005 advised all national health service organisations in England and Wales to take better steps to protect patients with latex allergy. Guidance was entitled 'Protecting People With Allergy Associated with Latex' and has been placed in the Library.

Leicestershire Partnership NHS Trust: Waiting Lists

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was in Leicestershire Partnership NHS Trust for patients requiring cognitive behavioural therapy in the latest period for which figures are available. [143130]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally.

Marvin Swartz

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent communications her Department has had with Dr. Marvin Swartz of the Duke University Medical Center, North Carolina; and what fees and expenses her Department has (a) paid and (b) undertaken to pay to Dr. Swartz. [141651]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Dr. Marvin Swartz and a number of British psychiatrists were invited to speak to MPs about the Mental Health Bill on 5 June 2007. The purpose of the event was to give MPs access to useful evidence on the benefits of community treatment orders (CTOs), resulting from discussions at Committee Stage of the Bill about what evidence there was that CTOs work. I chaired the meeting.

Dr. Swartz was invited to the meeting as an internationally recognised expert on the use of CTOs in mental health, who has pioneered research into their use. Dr. Swartz also expressed an interest in attending the meeting as he felt that his research, which shows the benefits of CTOs, had been misrepresented in the debate over the Mental Health Bill.

Dr. Swartz was not paid a fee for his contribution to the meeting, but was reimbursed for his rail fare from Manchester, where he was speaking at an academic conference, to London, his overnight hotel accommodation on 4 June, his taxi and rail fare from Central London to Heathrow on 5 June and, because the meeting entailed a change in his planned itinerary in Europe, some of the cost of his air fares.

Maternity Services: Publications

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when NHS Maternity Services, England: 2005-06 will be published. [141184]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The latest National Health Service Maternity Statistics, England 2005-06 will be published shortly.

Medical Treatments

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what ability (a) primary care trusts and (b) hospital trusts have to deny non-urgent treatment to patients whom they consider to be leading unhealthy lifestyles; and if she will make a statement. [142996]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for doctors to determine, in consultation with patients and their family, what care is clinically appropriate for each patient, based on an individual assessment of need and of the risks and benefits of all available treatment types. This assessment will take into account lifestyle choices which may affect the efficacy of treatment.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when her Department expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Billericay of 18 May 2007 on the proposed independent sector treatment centre for Basildon. [143137]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The letter was answered on 11 June 2007.

Mental Health Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts are offering cognitive behavioural therapy privately to patients using NHS facilities. [143131]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not centrally available.

Muscular Dystrophy: Drugs

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans her Department has to fast-track new drugs and therapies for Duchenne muscular dystrophy; [141446]

(2) if she will make the drug PTC-124 available through the NHS to all boys with Duchenne muscular dystrophy with single point variations of the gene; [141448]

(3) what steps her Department has taken to identify boys with Duchenne muscular dystrophy with single point variations of the gene. [141449]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have no specific plans to fast-track new drugs or therapies for the treatment of Duchenne muscular dystrophy.

PTC124 is a drug currently undergoing clinical trials in the United States for the treatment of Duchenne muscular dystrophy. PTC Therapeutics, the company behind this drug, has not currently organised clinical trials in the United Kingdom.

We have not taken any specific steps to identify those boys with Duchenne muscular dystrophy who would benefit from the drug PTC124; those whose disease is caused by the 'nonsense' mutation.

Muscular Dystrophy: Health Services

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group about commissioning services for muscular dystrophy and neuromuscular conditions. [141237]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has received no advice in the last 12 months from the National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group about muscular dystrophy and neuromuscular conditions.

NHS Appointments Commission

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of the process of appointing members to the NHS Appointments Commission. [143262]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The direct costs of appointing the new chair, non-executive directors and commissioners to the new Appointments Commission amounted to £42,900. This sum includes the cost of advertising, the use of recruitment consultants for the chair post, independent assessors and interview expenses.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many practices received the initial incentive payment (component one) for agreeing a plan for the implementation of the practice based commissioning DES and specific objectives in 2006-07; and how many received the incentive payment (component two). [142047]

Andy Burnham: As of 31 March 2007, 6,940 practices (83 per cent.) had received component one of the practice based commissioning directed enhanced service payment.

The Department does not currently collect data on the number of practices receiving component two of the payment.

NHS: Interpreters

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what expenditure in 2006-07 was for interpreters in the national health system; and what expenditure is forecast for 2007-08. [142768]

Ms Rosie Winterton: National health service organisations are not required to report their planned or actual spending on interpretation and translation services to the Department. Therefore, it is not possible to provide either an estimate of spending in 2006-07 or a forecast for 2007-08.

When planning interpretation and translation services, NHS organisations should take due account of their legal duties, the composition of the communities they serve, and the needs and circumstances of their patients, service users and local populations, and costs.

The Government have established the independent Commission on Integration and Cohesion to look at Government policies and public services and to report in 2007. As part of its brief, the Commission has looked at the provision of language services across Government. The Department is fully supporting the Commission in its work.

NHS: Procurement

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with patient representatives on changes to the portfolio of the National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [141238]

Andy Burnham: The Secretary of State has had no discussions with patient representatives about changes to the portfolio of the National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group (now known as the National Commissioning Group (NCG)) in the last 12 months.

Due to the very specialised nature of the services in the NCG's portfolio, clinical advisers to the NCG ensure that discussions take place with the patient representative groups specific to individual services. (Examples of the relationships between individual patient representative groups and the NCG are set out in its annual report.)

"The Review of Commissioning Arrangements for Specialised Services" published in May 2006, recommended the strengthening of patient involvement in the NCG decision-making process. To help achieve this, the Appointments Commission are currently running an open competition to appoint lay members to the group.

NHS: Public Appointments

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health where responsibility lies for (a) recognising, (b) commending and (c) thanking former members of the boards of (i) primary care trusts and (ii) health authorities for their services to the NHS. [142829]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 14 June 2007]: It is the responsibility of the Appointments Commission to acknowledge the contribution of chairs and non-executive members. It is good practice for the local employing body to acknowledge the contribution of former executive board members.

Royal London Homeopathic Hospital

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the future of the Royal London Homeopathic hospital. [142281]

Andy Burnham: This is a matter for the chair of The University College London Hospitals National Health Service Foundation Trust. We have written to Robert Naylor informing him of the hon. Member's enquiry. He will reply shortly and a copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

Simon Morgan

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role Simon Morgan had in her Department at the time of the publication of the contract notice 2006/S 135-145353; whether he performed that role as a civil servant or consultant; and what role he currently has. [142039]

Andy Burnham: At the time of the publication of the notice, Simon Morgan's role within the Department's Commercial Directorate was the project lead for the Framework for procuring External Support for Commissioners (FESC). He is a contractor working within the Department's Commercial Directorate. His current role is the project lead for FESC.

Streptococcus: Pregnant Women

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will introduce enrichment culture method tests of all pregnant women to test for streptococcus B; and if she will make a statement. [142018]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The current position is that routine screening of group B streptococcus (GBS) should not be offered to all pregnant women. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) guideline on antenatal care states that pregnant women should not be offered routine antenatal screening for GBS because evidence of its clinical effectiveness and cost effectiveness remains uncertain.

A proposal for NICE to appraise the use of an enriched culture medium for the detection of GBS carriage in a subset of pregnant women with clinical risk factors has been submitted on behalf of the UK National Screening Committee's GBS Coordinating Group and is under consideration.

Strokes: Advisory Services

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many acute trusts have a member of staff responsible for ensuring that patients receive adequate information on the services available to them when they are discharged from hospital following a stroke; [142827]

(2) how many NHS acute trusts have (a) carried out an audit of the information they provide to people leaving hospital following a stroke and (b) have a strategy covering the information which should be provided. [142828]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answers 14 June 2007]: The Department does not collect this data centrally.

The Royal College of Physicians' National Sentinel Audit measures the quality of all stroke units against various criteria. The 2006 audit shows that 99 per cent. of stroke units display literature on stroke, 59 per cent. have patient versions of the national or local guidelines available and 82 per cent. provide information about social services' local community care arrangements.

The Department is currently developing a national stroke strategy for England which is considering the need for improved information provision.

Wheelchairs: Children

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what specialist wheelchairs funded by the NHS are available for disabled children; whether equipment maintenance is provided; and if she will make a statement. [143145]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Each primary care trust (PCT) sets its own eligibility criteria, which will take into account individual need and local resources. Based on assessment of need and local eligibility criteria, PCTs decide what specialist wheelchairs should be made available for disabled children. All national health service wheelchair services are funded out of general allocation funding to PCTs. Maintenance of wheelchairs is also determined at local level.

NHS wheelchairs including specialist wheelchairs for children are supplied and maintained free of charge to disabled people whose need for a wheelchair is permanent. Indoor/outdoor electric chairs can be provided to disabled people who cannot propel a manual chair. Attendant controlled power chairs are also available if needed.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1441-2W, on Departments: public expenditure, for which losses his Department was granted Treasury approval in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [136319]

Mr. Byrne: All losses incurred by the Home Office during the last five years have been managed by the Department within the scope of authorities delegated by the Treasury, the thresholds for which were set out in the reply provided to the hon. Member on 27 March 2007.

The overall level of losses incurred by the Home Office in any one year is reported in its resource accounts.

Driving: Mobile Phones

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he had with the Secretary of State for Transport regarding the use of mobile telephones while driving in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [142816]

Mr. Coaker: Ministers and officials discuss, as necessary, on roads policing issues, including the use of mobile phones while driving. Such discussions include for example the inclusion in the Road Safety Act 2006 of a provision (section 26), amending the Road Traffic Act 1988 to increase the penalty for offences involving mobile phone use while driving.

Entry Clearances: Fees and Charges

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007 to question 130861, on cost recovery, whether the new charges for visas, residency and naturalisation are in excess of full cost recovery. [132737]

Mr. Byrne: As I set out to the House in the Third Delegated Legislation Committee on 26 March 2007, in setting fees above normal cost recovery levels we have done so on the basis of the value to the migrant of a successful application (or for work permits, the employer) in reliance of the powers in section 42 of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc) Act 2004.

The fees set at levels above cost recovery are set out in the Immigration and Nationality (Fees) Regulations 2007. The fees at or below cost recovery levels are set out in the Immigration and Nationality (Cost Recovery Fees) Regulations 2007.

Genetics: Databases

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) adults and (b) children resident in Northern Ireland appear on the national DNA database; how many do not have any convictions or cautions in each case; and if he will make a statement. [140159]

Paul Goggins: I have been asked to reply.

Responsibility for the maintenance and development of the national DNA database lies with the Home Office, however I am advised that the total number of subject sample profiles currently retained on the National DNA database which were taken by the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) is 39,055. These are categorised as follows:

Samples taken from children (those aged under 18)—3,355

Samples taken from adults (those aged 18 and over)—35,700.

The aforementioned figures relate to the number of subject sample profiles retained and not the number of individuals from whom samples have been taken, as DNA samples have been taken from some individuals on more than one occasion. The National DNA database does not hold information on a person's address, which means that a sample taken by the PSNI will not necessarily relate to a person resident in Northern Ireland.

Information on convictions and cautions is not held on the national database and it is therefore not possible to provide a breakdown against DNA samples retained.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1751-2W, on human trafficking, how many of those charged under each section in each year were convicted; and how many in each category were sentenced to a term of imprisonment. [128321]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 19 March 2007]: Data on the number of defendants convicted, sentenced, and given immediate custody at all courts' under S57, S58, S59 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003; and S25 (1)(a), S25(1)(b), S25(1)(c), S25, S25A, S25B of the Immigration Act 1971, in England and Wales in 2005, from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform can be found in the following table. The 2006 Court proceedings data will be available in the autumn of 2007.

The number of defendants convicted, sentenced, and given immediate custody at all courts' under S57, S58, S59 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003; and S25(1)(a), S25(1)(b), S25(1)(c), S25, S25A, S25B of the Immigration Act 1971, in England and Wales in 2005[1,2,3]

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.
[3] The sentenced column may exceed those found guilty, as it may be the case that a defendant found guilty and committed for sentence at the crown court may be sentenced in the following year.

Immigrants: Turkey

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with colleagues in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on changes to the terms of the Ankara Agreement with Turkey; and if he will make a statement. [142516]

Mr. Byrne: The Ankara Agreement has not recently been discussed by Home Office and Foreign and Commonwealth Ministers and no changes to its terms are planned. Any change to the Ankara Agreement would have to be negotiated by the EU and Turkey.

Road Traffic Act 1988

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with chief constables on the deployment of officers to enforce section 41D of the Road Traffic Act 1988; and if he will make a statement. [142813]

Mr. Coaker: Deployment of resources is an operational matter for individual chief officers. This particular issue has not featured in my discussions with them.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted in (i) Essex, (ii) Southend and (iii) England and Wales of an offence under section 41D of the Road Traffic Act 1988 since that section came into force. [142814]

Mr. Coaker: Section 41D of the Road Traffic Act 1988 was inserted by the Road Safety Act 2006 and came into effect on 27 February 2007. Data on its operation will be available in 2009.

Using a mobile phone whilst driving became an offence under earlier legislation in December 2003. Information on this offence can be found in Offences relating to motor vehicles—Supplementary tables 2003 and Offences relating to motor vehicles—supplementary tables 2004, available in the Library and at:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pubsstatistical.html

Safety Belts: Vans

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will launch a campaign to target van drivers not wearing seat belts in breach of the 50 metre delivery exemption limit. [142899]

Mr. Coaker: Failure to wear a seat belt in this situation is an offence under section 14 of the Road Traffic Act 1988 and associated regulations. The Roads Policing Strategy, agreed by ACPO, the Department for Transport and the Home Office recognises failure to wear seat belts generally as one of the key behaviours leading to avoidable deaths and injuries on the roads and gives an undertaking to tackle it. Enforcement of the law is an operational matter for individual chief officers of police. I have no plans to ask them to launch such a campaign.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Finance

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total expenditure on setting up and running the Serious Organised Crime Agency has been since its creation, broken down by region. [141918]

Mr. Coaker: The information is as follows:

Running costs:

An analysis of SOCA expenditure by region is not available. Final costs will be reported through the audited financial accounts and laid before Parliament later in the year.

Set-up costs:

(a) Set-up costs 2005-06

These were reported in the 2005-06 accounts of the Home Office, the National Crime Squad (NCS) and the National Criminal Intelligence Service (NCIS), each of which incurred expenditure to support the set-up of SOCA. In total, £8.9 million net additional resource expenditure plus capital expenditure of £7.73 million was incurred. Additionally, in 2005-06, NCS and NCIS also reported a total of £10.65 million of their core budget expenditure as being related to SOCA preparations. This included the value of NCS/NCIS staff time spent on the implementation and planning for the new Agency.

(b) Transitional Costs 2006-07

Transition costs in 2006-07 of £33.5 million; including a one-off cost of approximately £8 million, were incurred.

Theft: Mobile Phones

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to reduce the theft of mobile telephones; and if he will make a statement. [142812]

Mr. Coaker: Mobile phone theft is a key driver for robbery. The Government, police and industry have developed a strong partnership working together to tackle mobile phone theft. The Mobile Phone Crime Reduction Charter was launched by industry leaders in July 2006 and successfully achieved its target of blocking over 80 per cent. of stolen handsets within 48 hours. The Government and Metropolitan police fund a National Mobile Phone Crime Unit to provide a national centre of excellence and operational support around the country. We have robust legislation in place to target criminals who re-programme stolen handsets. The Government are continuing to engage industry on the issue of better crime proofing handsets as they become increasingly multi-functional in the future.

Theft: Wheelie Bins

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what data are recorded in relation to the theft of wheelie bins. [142382]

Mr. Coaker: No statistics are available centrally in relation to the thefts of wheelie bins. Such offences would be included within the recorded crime classification of 'other theft'.

Vladimir Ismaili

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 20 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1059-60W, on Vladimir Ismaili, whether Vladimir Ismaili has been recaptured; and if he will make a statement. [141084]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 12 June 2007]: Vladimir Ismaili is still at large and a warrant for his arrest has been issued by Manchester Crown court.

Written Questions

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to answer questions (a) 129923 and (b) 129924, on illegal firearms, tabled on 21 March by the hon. Member for Taunton. [134389]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 30 April 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member on 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 890W.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: International Assistance

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the humanitarian situation in Afghanistan. [143181]

Hilary Benn: The humanitarian situation in Afghanistan is regularly assessed by the Afghan Government and the UN. DFID is in close touch with the Government of Afghanistan (GoA) and the UN on these issues, which include the situation of refugees and returnees, those affected by severe weather conditions and those affected by mines.

Since 2001 over 4.8 million refugees have returned to Afghanistan. During a six week grace period from March-May 2007, 200,000 refugees returned to Afghanistan from Pakistan with assistance from the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). Statistics indicate that Kabul, Nangahar and Kunduz are absorbing the largest number of returnees at 51 per cent. UNHCR state they are coping well with the influx of returnees and are facilitating safe returns, which includes addressing any problems returnees may face on their journey back to Afghanistan, and providing any support once they have arrived at their final destination.

We have received a number of reports from diplomatic and other sources on the expulsion of illegal Afghan migrants from Iran. We are in close contact with the Government of Afghanistan and the office of the UNHCR on this issue. The UN WFP has despatched food to Zaranj, the main entry point into Afghanistan for families being deported from Iran.

Severe weather conditions like the recent rains and snow melt in Helmand caused considerable flooding. The Provincial Government response was supported by the UN, which has provided assistance to 735 households (5,145 people). The UK-led Provincial Reconstruction Team (PRT) supported a request to air-lift a pump to the dam. No further request for PRT assistance has been made to date.

17 per cent. of the Afghan population are living in one of 2,374 mine-contaminated communities. DFID has provided up to £1.4 million this year as part of HALO's three year global mine action programme for 2007-10.

Burma: Overseas Aid

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what grants his Department provided for environmental projects in Burma in each of the last five years; and what the value of each grant was. [142036]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is providing £4 million over four years to the United Nations Development Programme's Human Development Initiative in Burma. The project aims (i) to strengthen the capacity of poor communities to address their basic needs; and (ii) to provide continued and constructive engagement with selected remote rural communities in the areas of social development and sustainable livelihoods. One of the intended project outcomes is an increased local capacity for sustainable environmental management, achieved through improved community skills for good environmental management; better planning by communities of the use of their local natural resources; and the introduction of energy-efficient technologies and community forestry initiatives to reduce the demand for wood for fuel.

DFID has also provided a grant of £580,000 over three years to the non-governmental organisation Forest Trends, to assess the impacts of the Chinese timber market throughout SE Asia, including in Burma. Copies of their reports are available at:

www.forest-trends.org

The British Embassy in Rangoon has recently provided a grant of £32,000 from the Grassroots Development Programme (GDP) fund to support seven environmental projects in Burma. The main objectives of the projects are to enhance village livelihoods through an improved management of agriculture, natural resource and agro forestry.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in his Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141965]

Hilary Benn: No Ministers in the Department for International Development are allocated a ministerial residence.

Developing Countries: AIDS

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received on the target of access to AIDS treatment for all in the developing world by 2010. [142214]

Mr. Thomas: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development received letters on universal access by 2010 from a number of campaign groups. Members of Parliament, and members of the public in the run up to the G8 summit in Heiligendamm. The G8 reaffirmed their commitment to the goal of universal access to comprehensive HIV/AIDS prevention programmes, treatment, care and support by 2010, and pledged to contribute $60 billion towards fighting HIV/AIDS, malaria and TB over the coming years.

G8 Commitments: Poverty Relief

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on progress on the 2005 G8 commitments on poverty relief. [142265]

Hilary Benn: DFID submits a regular report to Parliament detailing progress against agreed commitment milestones arising from the 2005 G8 commitments on poverty relief.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what factors account for the growth in his Department's bilateral spending on grants and other aid in kind, excluding funding for partnership programme agreements and other Civil Society Organisations since 2001-02; and which institutions were the major recipients. [141283]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 11 June 2007]: The heading "grants and other aid in kind" is used for statistical purposes to classify DFID bilateral assistance which is not covered by the main aid-type categories such as financial aid (including budget support), technical co-operation and humanitarian assistance. In addition to funding for partnership programme agreements and other civil society organisations this category will include, amongst other things, a growing proportion of DFID bilateral support which is disbursed through international institutions and multilateral organisations. This funding is additional to core contributions to these organisations which are reported separately. For example in Sudan, DFID has committed £47 million over three years to two multi-donor trust funds administered through the World Bank. But, in general, projects and programmes coded under this heading are too diverse to provide a meaningful summary or an isolated cause for the overall increase. However, DFID is in the process of reassessing the way it categorises this element of its aid programme to provide a more useful breakdown for users in future reports.

JUSTICE

Human Rights

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what plans she has to attend meetings with foreign counterparts to discuss the promotion of human rights. [141807]

Vera Baird: From time to time, the Secretary of State for Justice and Baroness Ashton meet with their foreign counterparts to discuss topics of common interest, including human rights. Ministers in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office also regularly discuss human rights issues with their counterparts. Neither the Secretary of State nor Baroness Ashton has any such meetings specifically planned at this time.

Legal Aid

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many firms of solicitors who previously undertook legal aid work did not sign the new contract for legal aid work. [142714]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission's (LSC) new unified contract applies for civil legal aid providers from 1 April 2007. 2,408 of 2,531 unified contracts were signed and returned to the LSC by solicitors. This represents 95 per cent. of civil legal aid solicitors.

Legal Aid: Interpreters

Mr. Steen: To ask Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what expenditure in 2006-07 was for interpreters in the legal aid system; and what expenditure is forecast for 2007-08. [142767]

Vera Baird: The information is not available. Legal aid expenditure on interpreters forms part of the overall disbursement claimed by legal service providers and cannot be separately identified.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice when she plans to reply to the letter to her dated 30 April from the right hon. Member for Manchester Gorton with regard to Mr. M. A. Raja. [142713]

Vera Baird: My right hon. Friend the Lord Chancellor replied to my right hon. Friend on 4 June and the letter was sent on 7 June. I apologise for the delay.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of monitoring the time spent processing requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 for the purposes of the proposed fees regulations. [121731]

Mr. Hain: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 22 February 2007, Official Report, column 866W, by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at that time for the Department for Constitutional Affairs (now the Ministry of Justice).

District Policing Partnerships

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost was of district policing partnerships in Northern Ireland for the year ending 31 December 2006. [141633]

Paul Goggins: The cost of District Policing Partnerships (DPPs) is not available for the year ending 31 December 2006, as information is compiled according to the financial year, 1 April to 31 March.

The cost of DPPs for the financial year ending 31 March 2007 was £3.78 million. Funding provided by NIPB was £2.8 million and funding from local councils was £0.98 million.

Immigrants

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the (a) number of (i) Polish, (ii) Lithuanian, (iii) Romanian, (iv) Chinese, (v) Portuguese and (vi) other foreign nationals living in Northern Ireland and (b) number of foreign nationals who arrived in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [142637]

Mr. Hain: This is now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Administration.

Medicine: Education

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the ratio of specialty training to fixed term specialty training appointments is in each specialty in England. [134980]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

Percentage split of posts by post type

Specialty	Theme	Post types (percentage) Specialty training	Fixed-term specialist training appointment (FTSTA)	Academic

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Business: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many business start-ups there were in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since 1997. [141897]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups. DTI data on the number of VAT registrations, and the start of year stock of VAT registered businesses, in East Sussex and Eastbourne from 1997 to 2005 are shown in the following table. Data for 2006 will be available autumn 2007.

VAT registrations and start of year VAT stock

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

Source:
Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2005, Small Business Service, available from: http://www.dtistats.net/smes/vat/index.htm

Although numbers of registrations in Eastbourne and East Sussex have remained fairly constant, the start of year stock has risen by 10 per cent. over the period in Eastbourne, and by 12 per cent. in East Sussex.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register may not have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2005.

Cement

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what tonnage of bagged ordinary portland cement was imported into the UK in each quarter of each year since 2004; [R] [142998]

(2) what tonnage of bulk ordinary portland cement was imported into the UK in each quarter of each year since 2004. [R] [143001]

Margaret Hodge: Figures are not available separately for bagged and bulk portland cement. HM Revenue and Customs Overseas Trade Statistics give the following figures for imports of portland cement, whether or not coloured, in thousand tonnes.

Imports of portland cement

	Quarter	Weight (thousand tonnes)
2004	Q1	413

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what tonnage of bagged cement (with additives) was (a) produced in the UK and (b) imported into the UK in each quarter of each year since 2004; [142999]

(2) what tonnage of ordinary Portland cement was produced in the UK in each quarter of each year since 2004. [143000]

Margaret Hodge: The Office for National Statistics publishes annual figures for Product Sales and Trade: Cement (PRA 26510). Combining the figures for white and grey Portland cement gives the following volume data in million tonnes.

Tonnes (million)

	UK manufacturer sales	Total exports	Total imports	UK net supply
2004	12.2	0.2	2.0	14.0
2005	12.1	0.3	1.6	13.3
2006	11.2	0.6	1.4	12.1

Clothing: Safety

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what the reasons are for the differences in the safety flammability requirements set out by the Nightwear (Safety) Regulations 1985 for pyjamas and nightdresses; and if he will make a statement; [138095]

(2) what representations he has received requesting a review of the applicability of the Nightwear Regulations to pyjamas; [138093]

(3) if he will assess the merits of extending to pyjamas the flammability requirements of the Nightwear Regulations applying to other nightwear. [138094]

Mr. McCartney: I have received no direct representations on this issue. I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham (Tim Loughton), on 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1041W. I also refer the hon. Member to the replies I gave her on 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1266W, covering the question of amending the Nightwear (Safety) Regulations 1985 to make it compulsory for children's pyjamas to meet the flammability requirements of the regulations. Regarding the reason for differentiating between pyjamas and nightdresses, a line was drawn between them on the basis that nightdresses involve free-flowing designs which are more likely to catch light from open fires. Nightdresses which comply with the flammability test of the regulations tend to be made from man-made fibres such as polyester. Pyjamas and nightdresses made from cotton would need to be treated with flame retardant chemicals in order to pass the same test. Such chemicals can affect the feel and comfortability of the fabric, and could pose problems for allergy sufferers. It is important to note that even chemically treated fabrics, and those with natural flame resistance, will not be completely safe from ignition, so parental guidance and supervision has a key role here, too. Legislation has to seek to provide a balance between appropriate levels of fire safety and health/comfortability requirements.

Companies: Allergies

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how much his Department spent on providing information to companies on compliance with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 in relation to allergies in each of the last five years; [140541]

(2) what information his Department provides to companies on compliance with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 in relation to allergies. [140529]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answers 4 June 2007]: General guidance on employers' responsibilities under the Disability Discrimination Act is available on the employing people pages on businesslink.gov and on the Department for Work and Pensions site as the Department responsible for the Act. The DTI has not spent any further money on providing information to companies on allergies and the Disability Discrimination Act in the five year period.

Company Liquidations: North West Region

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many company liquidations took place in the North West in each year since 1997. [143732]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table records the numbers of compulsory liquidations in the "North West" region classified according to Official Receiver's (OR) Offices from 1999-2000 to 2006-07. Figures have been provided by financial year due to the movement of individual OR offices between broader regions coinciding with financial years. Prior to 1999-2000 the "North West" region did not exist separately and the Northern region (as it was then included OR offices in the "North East". For this reason comparable figures for the earlier years are not readily available.

Number of Compulsory Liquidations in the North West for each financial year from 1999-2000:

Financial year	Compulsory liquidations
1999-2000	672
2000-01	620
2001-02	651
2002-03	927
2003-04	629
2004-05[1]	522
2005-06[1]	721
2006-07[2]	707

[1] In 2004-05 and 2005-06 Stoke-on-Trent moved to the Midlands region and is not included in the above figures for those years. In 2004-05 there were 62 compulsory liquidations under the Stoke-on-Trent Office, in 2005-06 there were 95.
[2] In 2006-07 Stoke-on-Trent moved back to the North West region.
Note:
Official Receiver's offices in the North West region include Blackpool, Chester, Liverpool, Manchester and Stoke-on-Trent.

Departments: Caparo Group

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made payments to Caparo Group or its companies since 1997. [141916]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There is no record of any payment by DTI to any of the companies in the Caparo Group since the implementation of the current finance system in September 2003. To access records before this date would incur disproportionate cost.

The Department does not hold financial records at this level of detail for its agencies.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many staff funded by the public purse in each regional development agency are classified as people without posts. [142200]

Margaret Hodge: The Regional Development Agencies tell me that they have no staff funded by the public purse who are classified as without posts.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many civic amenity sites are registered as designated collection facilities for all five categories of waste electrical and electronic equipment under the EU Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [142743]

Malcolm Wicks: Of the 1,046 civic amenity sites which have applied for designated collection facilities approval 867 will collect all five categories of WEEE.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive designated collection facilities are in rural areas. [142744]

Malcolm Wicks: There are 1,046 local authority civic amenity sites that have registered as designated collection facilities (DCFs). This represents 100 per cent. of local authority sites in Northern Ireland, Wales and Scotland and 97 per cent. of sites in England. In addition there are a further 400 private DCFs including local authority waste transfer stations.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many compliance schemes are available for electronic producers with recycling obligations under the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Regulations. [142745]

Malcolm Wicks: There are 37 approved producer compliance schemes registered with the environment authorities, details of which are available on both the DTI website:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/innovation/sustainability/weee/page30269.html

and the Environment Agency website:

http://www.environment-agency.gov.uk/weee

Energy: Shoreham

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made as part of its energy review of the uses to which Shoreham Harbour and its surrounding areas might be put. [142553]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 14 June 2007]: The Department's White Paper "Meeting the Energy Challenge" sets out the Government's international and domestic energy strategy to respond to the challenges identified in the 2006 Energy Review Report. It does not include assessments of geographically specific areas.

Gardens: Heating

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his estimate is based on figures from the Market Transformation Programme of the number of (a) gas and (b) other outdoor patio heaters there are used by (i) households and (ii) businesses. [140647]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer my hon. Friend the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Climate Change and the Environment, on 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 917W.

Insolvency

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many extensions to the three-year period referred to in section 238A(2) of the Insolvency Act 1986 insolvency agencies have applied for in order to pursue people under section 238A(6) of that Act. [143179]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As the hon. Member is no doubt aware, there is no section 238A in the Insolvency Act 1986, and I assume that the question relates to section 283A of that Act.

In cases where the Official Receiver is trustee in bankruptcy there are two cases where such extensions have been sought. Both are yet to be determined by the court. I am also aware of another case where there is an application for either a charging order or an extension of the three-year period. That case is also yet to be determined.

There may however be cases where a licensed insolvency practitioner is the trustee in bankruptcy and a similar application has been made. The Insolvency Service would not automatically be notified in such cases. HM Courts Service records do not show this information.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many grants were awarded under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in each month of 2007; how many in each month were for solar photovoltaics; and what the value was of each grant. [142451]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The following table sets out the total number of grants awarded under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme phase 1 in each month of 2007 for all technologies, with specific information on grants awarded to solar photovoltaics installations.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was spent on administering the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in the 2006-07 financial year. [142452]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 12 June 2007]: For the 2006-07 financial year, the total administration costs for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 was £509,044.54. This included set up costs for Phase 1, which started in April 06. Phase 2 started in December 2006 and the total administration costs for 2006-07 financial year was £130,625, including set up costs.

These costs do not include work undertaken by civil servants in supporting delivery of the programme.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much was spent on the recent restructuring of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme. [142453]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 12 June 2007]: The overall costs are forecast to be in the region of £90,000.

Maternity Leave: Paternity Leave

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate he has made of the take-up rates of (a) paid maternity leave, (b) unpaid maternity leave, (c) paid paternity leave and (d) unpaid paternity leave in the latest period for which figures are available. [136543]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 9 May 2007]: The most recent estimates are based on the Maternity and Paternity rights and benefits in Britain: Survey of Parents, conducted in 2005. The survey is based on a random sample of mothers who had a baby in December 2003 and their partners. Of mothers in paid work, all took at least some of their entitlement to maternity leave, and 98 per cent. received some form of maternity pay; approximately 2 per cent. of mothers in paid work did not receive maternity pay.

Of fathers in paid work, 93 per cent. said they had taken some leave around the time of the birth. Of these, around 80 per cent. said they had used at least some of their statutory paid paternity leave entitlement which was brought in 2003. The remainder took other forms of leave. No estimate has been made of the take-up of unpaid paternity, although almost all fathers who qualify for paternity leave will also qualify for Statutory Paternity leave.

The report findings from this survey is available in the Members' library, on the DTI website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/files/file27446.pgf and from the DTI Publications Order-line 08701 502500, quoting URN 06/836.

Nuclear Power Stations

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what consideration his Department makes of population density when considering potential locations for new power stations; [142552]

(2) whether his Department has identified any sites for potential new nuclear power stations to be built in Sussex; [142550]

(3) what criteria his Department uses to determine the location of new nuclear power stations. [142554]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answers 14 June 2007]: DTI has not identified any locations for new nuclear power stations. Any new nuclear power stations would be built by the private sector but no decisions would be taken on any potential location for a new nuclear power station pending the carrying out of a full strategic siting assessment (SSA).

DTI is consulting on a proposed process for carrying out an SSA. If the Government confirms its preliminary view that it is in the public interest to allow energy companies the option of investing in new nuclear power stations, DTI would consult separately on the siting criteria that would underpin such an assessment. Such criteria would include demographic considerations, including with regard to population density and distribution. In addition to the SSA, any proposed new nuclear sites would need to comply with the rigorous site-specific safety and environmental requirements of the independent regulators.

Post Offices

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the performance of Crown Post Offices transferred to the private sector in (a) England and (b) Worcestershire; and if he will make a statement. [138700]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. Operational matters are the direct responsibility of the company's management.

However, results of Post Office Ltd's customer surveys from the six pilot franchises to WH Smith last year are overwhelmingly positive. The majority of customers welcome the pleasant environment, excellent levels of customer service, convenient locations and extended opening hours.

Post Offices: Somerset

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he plans to publish his proposals on post office closures in Somerset; and if he will make a statement. [143128]

Jim Fitzpatrick: On 17 May my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced the Government's response to public consultation on the Post Office network.

Now that the Government have announced their decisions it will be for Post Office Ltd. to strategically develop the network through 50 to 60 local area implementation plans over the next 18 months.

Following initial input from sub-postmasters, Postwatch and local authorities, these plans will include closure proposals which will then be put to local consultation ahead of final decisions.

Radioactive Materials

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate his Department has made of the total amount of radioactive material unaccounted for from nuclear power stations since their establishment. [141854]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 11 June 2007]: Following consultation with the hon. Member, the question will be answered with respect to nuclear material unaccounted for (MUF). MUF is the inventory difference that occurs when the result of a physical inventory of nuclear material is compared with the book inventory. The difference may be negative (an apparent loss) or positive (an apparent gain). MUF is a recognised feature of accounting for nuclear material at processing plants and is caused primarily by the uncertainties inherent in the techniques used to measure nuclear material. An explanation of MUF is available at:

http://www.hse.gov.uk/nuclear/safeguards/muf.htm.

There should be no such MUF for nuclear power stations. Nuclear material in the form of discrete items (fuel elements) is added to the inventory on receipt at the power station site and subtracted from that inventory when fuel is shipped from the site.

Nuclear materials balance figures for UK sites where nuclear material is processed, and hence MUF arises, are published annually. For figures since 1974, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 15 June 2004, Official Report, column 820W. More recent figures are available at the UK Safeguards Office website at:

http://www.hse.gov.uk/nuclear/safeguards/materials.htm.

There is no evidence to suggest that there have been any real losses or gains of nuclear material.

Royal Mail: Government Assistance

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment was made of compliance with EU rules on state aid before each of the four instances of Government assistance to Royal Mail being investigated by the European Commission was announced. [140113]

Mr. Darling [holding answer 4 June 2007]: The support that the Government have given to the Royal Mail mails business has been provided on a commercial basis. This has been verified by independent sources.

Turbines: Health Hazards

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 1003W, on turbines: health hazards, what qualifications Hayes McKenzie possessed in relation to infrasound emitted by wind turbines; and what role medical experts played in the production of the report. [142509]

Malcolm Wicks: The Hayes McKenzie report for DTI "The measurement of Low Frequency Noise at three UK wind farms" investigated the levels of low frequency noise and infrasound emitted by wind turbines, it was not within the remit of the study to undertake new medical analysis.

However, the study did refer to the document prepared for the World Health Organization "Community Noise" which states that "there is no reliable evidence that infrasounds below the hearing threshold produce physiological or psychological effects".

It also referenced work undertaken for DEFRA on low frequency noise and its effects.

Dr. Andrew McKenzie and Malcolm Hayes are acoustic experts with between them over 45 years experience. They have conducted work in relation to wind turbines at over 400 proposed, consented or completed sites in the UK and overseas.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research his Department has carried out on the numbers of individuals and households adversely affected by infrasound emitted by wind turbines. [142510]

Malcolm Wicks: DTI and DEFRA have recently commissioned a report by Salford university one of the objectives of which is "to establish the levels and nature of the noise complaints received across the UK relating to noise issues from wind farms, both historic and current, and determine whether Aerodynamic Modulation (AM) is a significant effect".

This report will be published later this summer.

TRANSPORT

Cycle to Work Scheme

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many institutions are participating in the Cycle to Work scheme in (a) the UK and (b) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland. [143423]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not centrally collected as the scheme is not run by central Government.

Employers are responsible for implementing the scheme where they can take advantage of the tax exemption provided in the Finance Act 1999 and the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 to provide cycles for their employees to commute to work.

Freight: Blaenau Ffestiniog

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to protect the Blaenau Ffestiniog goods yard for future freight use. [141018]

Mr. Tom Harris: Blaenau Ffestiniog goods yard was marketed extensively—over and above the normal consultation process that the company undertakes prior to putting a property up for sale—to the rail freight community during 2006. No interest in purchasing the site for rail freight use was received. In addition, no objections to the sale were received from the rail industry or from the Welsh Assembly Government who stated that there was no public or private interest in the site. As such, following the formal consultation process that BRB (Residuary) Ltd. are required to undertake prior to releasing properties for sale, the site was sold at auction on 6 June 2007.

Railways: Portsmouth

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ensure that passengers receive compensation following the conclusions of the Office of Rail Regulation Report on the Portsmouth re-signalling project by Network Rail; and if he will make a statement. [143164]

Mr. Tom Harris: Stagecoach South Western Trains is obligated to compensate passengers where disruption to services meets its compensation obligations under the National Rail Conditions of Carriage and in particular under its Passengers Charter.

The Department has ensured that where necessary that Stagecoach South Western Trains has plans to meet its obligations to passengers.

TREASURY

Capital Gains Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what research his Department has conducted on the effect of removing exemption from capital gains tax in relation to primary residences. [142354]

Ed Balls: Primary residences are exempt from capital gains tax. Figures relating to the cost of exempting gains on primary residences from capital gains tax are published in Table 1.5 on the HMRC website.

Capital Gains Tax: Tax Allowances

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the annual value of capital gains tax taper relief on carried interest in each of the last three financial years. [141157]

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the annual revenue yield from treating as income for tax purposes the capital gains received by private equity funds on disposals of assets held by the funds they manage; and if he will make a statement. [141427]

Ed Balls: Information is not collected in such a way as to enable these stimates to be made.

Child Tax Credit

Ms Buck: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many parents of children aged 11 years and over were in receipt of the child care element of children's tax credit in each of the last three years. [142429]

Mr. Timms: The following table shows the number of in-work families with a child aged 11 years or over who were benefiting from the child care element of working tax credits at selected snapshot dates in the last three years.

	Snapshot date
	April 2005	April 2006	April 2007
Families with at least one child aged 11 or over	259,500	286,500	314,600
Of which:
Families where all children were aged 11 or over	13,800	16,900	20,600

The bottom row of figures in the table shows families where all child care costs can be attributed to children aged 11 or over. For families with two or more children, it is not possible to say which child the family are claiming child care costs for. It is likely that most families with children under and over the age of 11 are claiming child care costs for younger siblings, as opposed to any child aged 11 or over.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency has the (a) authority and (b) ability to conduct a council tax rebanding exercise without a formal council tax revaluation. [142352]

Mr. Timms: Listing officers of the Valuation Office Agency have a duty, under the Local Government Finance Act 1992, to compile and maintain council tax valuation lists. Maintaining valuation lists can include work to re-band properties individually, in relation to their market value as at 1 April 1991, where the existing entries are found to be incorrect, but does not extend to a partial or full revaluation which requires express statutory authority by secondary legislation.

Debts: Burma

Paul Holmes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when Burma last repaid debt owed to the UK Government; what recent steps the Government have taken to recover debt owed by Burma; and what legal options are available to the Government to recover debt owed by Burma. [141625]

Ed Balls: ECGD—the Export Credits Guarantee Department—has unrecovered claims totalling £22.9 million in respect of seven contracts in the power, textile and water sectors on which claims were paid to UK banks/exporters between 1988 and 1998. There have been no recoveries since 1990.

The UK also has two outstanding aid loans amounting to £1.06 million that are managed by the World Bank. These represent the UK's share of co-funded loans from the EU. The loans reverted to bilateral status in 2005. These loans are not currently being serviced by Burma.

Given the economic and political situation in the country, HMG does not consider that legal action would be appropriate.

Pension Funds: Taxation

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the actuarial valuation assumptions referred to in the Inland Revenue policy note of 21 May 1997 as very cautious were; [141538]

(2) what evidence the Inland Revenue's Savings and Investment Division collected to support its view expressed to him on 21 May 1997 that actuarial valuation assumptions tended to very cautious. [141597]

Ed Balls: The policy note of 21 May 1997 describes actuarial valuation assumptions as tending to be "very cautious", on the basis of advice from the Government Actuary's Department (GAD) that the dividend growth model used by actuaries implicitly assumes

"a conservative real rate of return on equity. [This] tends to mean that actuarial value is somewhat less than the market value..."

GAD's rationale is explained on pages 34 and 35 of the 27 June document released on 30 March.

Taxation: Quarrying

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 1 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-31W, on taxation: quarrying, what steps the Government are taking to specify in their procurement policies the use of recycled demolition waste rather than virgin aggregates. [138769]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), established by Government, is encouraging major construction clients, their advisors and main contractors to make clear commitments to use products with higher recycled content. This includes encouraging the greater use in public sector construction projects of recycled demolition waste rather than virgin aggregates. WRAP's target for its 2006-08 business plan is for £10 billion worth of construction projects to set requirements for waste minimisation, recycling and recycled content. WRAP is making good progress towards achieving this target, and is working with other programmes to ensure that these commitments are put into effect.

Tree Preservation Orders

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidelines have been produced for the use of tree protection orders in relation to (a) Crown land and (b) the sale of Crown land to the private sector. [142170]

Ruth Kelly: I have been asked to reply.

Paragraph 50 of Communities and Local Government's Circular 02/2006, "Crown Application of the Planning Acts", provides guidelines on the use of Tree Preservation orders (TPOs) on Crown land.

No guidelines have been issued specifically on TPOs and the sale of Crown land to the private sector. However, the Department's policy document "Tree Preservation Orders: A Guide to the Law and Good Practice" makes clear that local planning authorities may consider it expedient to make TPOs where land, including Crown land, is about to change hands.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the project topic was of the Gateway Review undertaken for the Valuation Office Agency in October 2005. [142366]

Mr. Timms: This was a Gate 4 review of the Valuations Project, which formed part of the programme of projects in place to implement the council tax revaluation in England in 2007, which was postponed on 20 September 2005. The review was a pre-planned independent audit of the soundness of the work done up to that point, and the project was awarded 'Green status' to signal that the project was ready for implantation.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2134W, on the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), whether the VOA carbon off-set foreign visits made by their staff; and at what cost for visits made in the last 12 months. [142402]

Mr. Timms: As part of the Government estate, and to meet the sustainable operational targets, the VOA has recently committed to offset it's carbon dioxide emissions through the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). DEFRA advised, on the 18 May 2007, that the total cost to offset its emissions for 2006-07 financial year is £822.53 (for 83tCO_2 emitted). This total includes domestic and international flights.

VAT: Memorials

Tony Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many UK charities have been refunded VAT for the construction, renovation and maintenance of war memorials since August 2005; and what total sum has been refunded in that period. [142591]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Memorials Grant Scheme returns as a grant the equivalent of the VAT incurred by charities and faith groups in establishing or maintaining memorial structures. Since August 2005, grants totalling £660,000 have been made. Of this, grants totalling £529,851 have been made to nine UK charities for the construction, renovation or maintenance of war memorials. Additional sums have been paid to faith groups for the maintenance of war memorials in their care.

Welfare Tax Credits: Wimbledon

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many claimants of tax credit there are in Wimbledon. [143134]

Mr. Timms: Estimates for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 of the number of in-work families with tax credits awards (including out-of-work families in 2005-06), based on final family circumstances and incomes for 2003-04, 2004- 05 and 2005-06 are published in "Child and Working Tax Credit Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2003-04 Geographical Analysis", "Child and Working Tax Credit Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2004-05 Geographical Analysis" and "Child and Working Tax Credit Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2005-06 Geographical Analysis". These publications and provisional estimates for the number of in-work families by constituency with tax credit awards as at selected dates in 2006-07 (including out-of-work families in April 2007) are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 27th March 2007, Official Report, columns 1441-2W, on Departments: public expenditure, for which losses his Department was granted Treasury approval in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [136769]

Mr. Byrne: I have been asked to reply.

All losses incurred by the Home Office during the last five years have been managed by the Department within the scope of authorities delegated by the Treasury, the thresholds for which were set out in the reply provided to the hon. Member on 27 March 2007.

The overall level of losses incurred by the Home Office in any one year is reported in its resource accounts.

WALES

Departments: Renewable Energy

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by his Department from renewable sources in the most recent year for which figures are available. [142205]

Mr. Hain: 83,176 kilowatt hours—100 per cent. of the energy purchased by the Wales Office was from renewable sources in this current year.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what his strategy is for renewable energy and meeting energy targets in departmental buildings; and if he will make a statement. [142208]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office, as an associated office of the Ministry of Justice, is included under the Ministry of Justice strategy.

The strategy employed focuses on procuring as-much renewable electricity as is feasible.

The strategy deployed to meet the Department's energy targets is a system of monitoring buildings of similar ages, sizes and functions. We investigate any anomalies in demand. We also invest in energy saving measures in addition, promoting best practice.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Social Security Benefits: Patients

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what benefits are available to parents whose children below the age of three years are in hospital; and if he will make a statement. [143143]

Mr. Plaskitt: Parents who are responsible for children below the age of three years who are in hospital are able to claim the same benefits and increases as all other persons responsible for children; the exact amounts that they receive will depend upon the individual circumstances of each such case.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 18 June 2007

PRIME MINISTER

Africa

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Prime Minister what the cost was to the public exchequer of his recent visit to Africa; and if he will make a statement. [141420]

The Prime Minister: Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. Copies of these lists are available in the Library of the House. Information on the number of officials accompanying Ministers on overseas visits is included in the list.

All Ministers' travel arrangements are in accordance with the arrangements for official travel set out in chapter 10 of the "Ministerial Code", and the accompanying guidance document, "Travel by Ministers". Information for 2007-08 will be published in the normal way.

Czech Republic: Ballistic Missile Defence

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister what matters concerning the deployment of missile defence systems he discussed with his Czech counterpart on 13 June. [143939]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the press conference I held with Prime Minister Topolanek on 13 June 2007 (http://www.number-10.gov.uk/output/Page11944.asp). A transcript of this is available on the No. 10 website and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Departments: Attorney-General

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions and on which dates since 1 January 2006 (a) he and (b) members of his staff at No. 10 Downing Street have spoken to the Attorney-General; and if he will make a statement. [143042]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister what the cost has been of his overseas visits since 10 May 2007; which countries he has visited; how many (a) officials, (b) advisers and (c) members of his family accompanied him; what the cost was in each case; where he and those who accompanied him stayed during each visit; what the cost was in each case; if he will list those persons he met during each visit; which British Government Departments provided briefing material for his use during each visit; and if he will make a statement. [142818]

The Prime Minister: Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. Copies of these lists are available in the Library of the House. Information on the number of officials accompanying Ministers on overseas visits is included in the list. All Ministers' travel arrangements are in accordance with the arrangements for official travel set out in chapter 10 of the "Ministerial Code", and the accompanying guidance document, "Travel by Ministers". Information for 2007-08 will be published in the normal way.

Briefing for my visits is provided by the relevant Government Departments. I meet a wide range of people during my visits, including foreign leaders, details of which can be found on the No. 10 website.

IBM Corporation

Mr. Gray: To ask the Prime Minister when his meeting at No. 10 on 2 December 1999 with Mr. Louis Gerstner Junior of the IBM Corporation of New York was first sought to be booked; whether discussions included the transfer pricing review of IBM then being undertaken by Inland Revenue in August 1999; and whether a record of the meeting exists. [144040]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 21 February 2005, Official Report, column 193W.

Saudi Arabia

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister whether (a) he and (b) Downing Street staff have (i) met and (ii) had discussions with (A) Prince Bandar of Saudi Arabia and (B) his representatives since May 1997; and if he will make a statement. [143091]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 754W.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

BAE Systems: Saudi Arabia

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will request the Director of the Serious Fraud Office to reopen the investigation into the allegations of bribery in relation to the Al Yamamah contract. [142300]

The Solicitor-General: No.

Departments: Data Protection

Grant Shapps: To ask the Solicitor-General how many times the Law Officers' Departments were found to have been in breach of the Data Protection Act 1998 in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [139234]

The Solicitor-General: I am answering this question on behalf on the Crown Prosecution Service, Serious Fraud Office, Revenue and Customs Prosecutions office, HMCPS Inspectorate and the Attorney-General's office.

The definition of "found to have been in breach" can be broad. Depending on their nature, breaches by Government Departments of the Data Protection Act can be dealt with by the Information Commissioner, the courts or by Departments at an informal local level. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animal Welfare

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Minister for Children on the potential for co-ordination between efforts to identify potential abusers of children and of animals. [142887]

Mr. Bradshaw: There have been no discussions between DEFRA and the Department for Education and Skills on this issue.

Animal Welfare: Transport

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 334W, on animal welfare: transport, what the figure of 217 non-returned journey logs represents in terms of the proportion of journey logs approved by his Department between 5 January and 30 March 2007; how many of the 217 journey logs have still not been returned; and what steps he is taking in respect of those persons and organisations that have failed to return journey logs on time and in compliance with the legal requirements. [142693]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is set out in the following table. The data have been collated from spreadsheets completed by Animal Health Divisional Offices from 5 January 2007 to 30 April 2007.

	Number/ percentage
Total number of journey logs approved	2,004
Number of journey logs not returned within one calendar month[1]	294
Number of journey logs still outstanding	182
Percentage outstanding	9.08

[1] This figure has increased since the answer given on 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 334W, due to additional data being entered onto journey log spreadsheets.

Warning letters have been issued, as the standard response, to transporters who have not returned journey logs. These letters cautioned that non-compliance with journey log rules, as per Council Regulation (EC) 1/2005, may lead to future journey logs not being processed until outstanding logs are returned, with the possibility that repeated offences will lead to conditions being imposed on Transporter Authorisations.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the State Veterinary Service/Animal Health on (a) the views of individual state-employed vets on bovine TB and (b) the communication of such views to farmers. [142886]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Minister of State and DEFRA policy officials meet with the chief executive and others from Animal Health to discuss the organisation's objectives.

Those objectives include the delivery of agreed animal health and welfare strategies and policy, as well as supporting the development of evidence-based policy.

The views of individual state employed vets and the communication of such views to farmers would not form part of those discussions.

Cotswolds Conservation Boards: Finance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the grant aid settlements given to the Cotswolds Conservation Boards by Natural England were in each of the last five years for which figures are available; what recent discussions he has had with Natural England about the level of these grants; and if he will make a statement. [143695]

Barry Gardiner: The Cotswolds Conservation Board was established in December 2004. Responsibility for its funding initially lay with the Countryside Agency but, since its creation, lies with Natural England. The funding is as follows:

2007-08	617,314
2006-07	631,816
2005-06	810,387
2004-05	456,192

The figures represent total funding for core (administrative) costs, specific projects and the Sustainable Development Fund. However, the 2004-05 figures do not include the Sustainable Development Fund (created in June 2005) nor one-off set-up costs for the board which were met by the Countryside Agency. The reduction in funding from 2006-07 to 2007-08 is attributable to a reduction in support for specific projects. There has been no reduction in core funding.

I have not had any discussion with Natural England about this matter.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139403]

Barry Gardiner: Legal fees of counsel and solicitors in private practice incurred by this Department and its agencies over the past five financial years are as follows:

	£000
2002-03	3,107
2003-04	2,810
2004-05	4,615
2005-06	3,975
2006-07	1,754

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff funded by the public purse in the Veterinary Medicines Directorate are classified as people without posts. [141640]

Mr. Bradshaw: None.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 80-1W, on Domestic Wastes: Waste Management, if he will place in the Library (a) the documents outlining the assumptions about the costs of alternate weekly collections and (b) the initial report of the preliminary benchmarking project run by Be-Environmental. [142396]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have arranged for copies of the Waste and Resources Action Programme's (WRAP) Kerbside Analysis Tool user manual to be placed in the House Library.

The aim of the Be-Environmental study was to conduct a comparison of a number of consultants' proprietary collection cost models. This formed Phase 1 of a more comprehensive study of the costs and performance of different collection systems and involved using models to determine the costs of a number of collection options.

It is not WRAP'S intention to publish this as a stand-alone report. WRAP is using the findings to inform Phase 2 and will incorporate the relevant sections in the overall study report, which is expected to be completed early next year.

Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pilot projects have been established by European Union member states following the communication from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament, "Promoting more environmentally-friendly fishing methods: the role of technical conservation measures" (COM(2004) 438 final), dated 21 June 2004; and if he will make a statement. [142282]

Mr. Bradshaw: Since the release of the communication, the UK has developed two discard pilot projects. The first focused on improving selectivity in the north east coast prawn fishery. I have arranged for a copy of the report of this project to be laid in the Library of the House. The second, for which the details are still being finalised, will be a project run jointly with the Irish Government, which will look at discarding across a range of fisheries in the Irish Sea.

Details of pilot projects undertaken by other member states are not available.

Forestry

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made pursuant to the duty imposed by section 1(3) of the Forestry Act 1967, of the adequacy of national reserves of growing trees. [143606]

Barry Gardiner: The Strategy for England's Trees Woods and Forests to be published on 20 June sets out our objectives for their future role in England. This strategy focuses on maximising the public benefits which trees, woods and forests can deliver. Changing demands from society mean that public benefit is the key test of "adequacy" today. Sustainable management of the existing resource is just as important as new woodland creation. Increased afforestation must be linked with identifiable public benefit.

We have seen a long-term increase in the area of woodland in England and the Forestry Commission monitors this through the national survey of woodland, which has been carried out every 15-20 years since 1924. In addition the Forestry Commission publishes softwood availability forecasts to help inform the plans of wood-using industries and investors. At present we estimate that only around one quarter of annual growth is harvested from England's native woodlands each year, and only 60 per cent. of the annual growth from England's conifer forests.

Nappies

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the revised version of the Environment Agency report Life Cycle Assessment of Disposable and Reusable Nappies in the UK, May 2005, will be published. [142520]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Environment Agency expects to publish a further report on nappies by the end of the year.

Waste Disposal

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence he has examined on whether there has been a causal link between the rate of growth of gross domestic product and the rate of growth of (a) municipal waste and (b) business waste in the UK. [142612]

Mr. Bradshaw: The most recent statistics[1] show that since 2000, waste (business and municipal) has grown significantly less than the UK's gross domestic product (GDP). This equates to average growth in waste of less than 0.5 per cent. per year, over the last five years. The average municipal waste growth up to the millennium was around 3.5 per cent. per year, indicating a significant step change in the UK's waste management. Data for 2006-07, expected in autumn 2007, will provide further useful evidence on whether the trends of recent years have been sustained.

Between 1998-99 and 2002-03, the amount of waste produced by businesses in England fell from 69 million tonnes to 68 million tonnes per year[2], while GDP increased by about 10 per cent. In this period, industrial waste fell by 6 per cent. (2.5 million tonnes), declining faster than industrial gross value added (GVA)[3], which fell by 3.5 per cent. Commercial waste increased by 6 per cent. (1.7 million tonnes), compared with the 29 per cent. increase in commercial GVA. These changes mainly reflect increased employment in the service sectors and a decrease in industrial activity, along with increasing reliance on imports.

The overall aim of waste prevention is to decouple waste growth from increases in GDP. The recently published Waste Strategy 2007 renews the Government's commitment to breaking the link between economic growth and waste growth, by placing more emphasis on waste prevention and re-use.

[1] Municipal Waste Statistics 2005-06.

[2] Environment Agency Survey of Commercial and Industrial Waste 2002-03.

[3] Gross value added (GVA) measures the contribution to the economy of each individual producer, industry or sector. The GVA generated by any unit engaged in production activity can be calculated as the residual of the units' total output less intermediate consumption (that is, goods and services used up in the process of producing the output), or as the sum of the factor incomes generated by the production process.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what statistics his Department keeps on levels of (a) household waste, (b) commercial waste, (c) industrial waste and (d) other waste in the UK; and how these statistics are used to measure the UK's progress in reducing the amount of waste it produces. [142618]

Mr. Bradshaw: Waste statistics kept by my Department are available from the DEFRA website at the following address:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/waste/index.htm

The recently published Waste Strategy contains a series of national level performance indicators, including on household waste per head after reuse, recycling and composting and waste arisings by key sectors (municipal, commercial and industrial, and construction and demolition waste). These indicators will be used to track progress in delivering the objectives of the strategy.

Waste Management

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance his Department has given to (a) manufacturers and (b) commercial enterprises on methods by which they can reduce their waste arisings. [142615]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA's Business Resource Efficiency and Waste (BREW) Programme has been established to provide targeted guidance and support to businesses to improve their resource efficiency and to minimise the levels of waste that are unnecessarily sent to landfill. For example, the BREW Programme funds the National Industrial Symbiosis Programme (NISP). NISP matches one operator's waste with another's raw material needs. In the first two years of its operation, in the region of 1.7 million tonnes of material have been diverted from landfill, with £70 million of cost savings.

An early assessment of selected BREW activities suggests that the programme has made a good start in returning landfill tax receipts to businesses and helping them improve their resource efficiency. Around £4 has been saved by business for each £1 of BREW-funded advice and support. There were also reductions in water use, waste sent to landfill and the amounts of raw materials used by businesses. Many of the benefits will be seen beyond 2005-06, and work is currently under way to assess the impact of programme spending in 2006-07. More details about the BREW Programme can be found on the DEFRA website.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) is also working across a range of industry sectors to reduce waste arisings. For example, WRAP is working with retailers and their supply chains towards its 2006-08 business plan target to secure reductions in packaging waste of 80,000 tonnes a year. WRAP has specific programmes with the construction and manufacturing sectors.

My Department has also produced the publication "Saving money by reducing waste", which gives practical guidance on waste minimisation for farmers and growers and is available from the DEFRA website.

Apart from guidance and support offered by DEFRA, there are also two sets of regulations in place to encourage producers (including retailers) to minimise, recycle and recover packaging and reduce packaging waste. We have asked the Advisory Committee on Packaging to work with industry to find further solutions to the challenge of minimising packaging, and recommend ways of encouraging businesses to further reduce the amount of packaging they use.

The Food Industry Sustainability Strategy (FISS), which was published in April 2006, also challenged the food manufacturing sector to reduce its own waste by 15-20 per cent. by 2010. Thirteen major grocery retailers (representing 92 per cent. of the UK grocery sector) have signed up to a voluntary agreement, the "Courtauld Commitment", and are working with WRAP to:

(i) design out packaging waste growth by 2008;

(ii) deliver absolute reductions in packaging waste by March 2010; and

(iii) identify ways to tackle the problem of food waste.

WALES

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 4W, on council tax: valuation, what change there was in council tax receipts as a result of revaluation (a) between 2004-05 and 2005-06 and (b) in subsequent years. [141649]

Mr. Hain: The revaluation and rebanding exercise was intended to be revenue-neutral. Year-to-year changes in the level of council tax receipts are the result of local authority budget decisions.

The increase in Band D council tax was 3.8 per cent. between 2004-05 and 2005-06; 4.5 per cent. between 2005-06 and 2006-07, and 4.4 per cent. between 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Additional Learning Needs Order

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what (a) procedures and (b) schedule for all forms of consideration and agreement of the Legislative Competence Order on Additional Learning Needs he is seeking to establish by both Houses of Parliament. [143764]

Mr. Hain: The Government intend to present all proposed draft Orders in Council to Parliament for pre-legislative scrutiny in all but exceptional circumstances.

On conclusion of pre-legislative scrutiny, the Welsh Assembly Government, in consultation with the UK Government will consider the recommendations made by Parliament and prepare a draft Order in Council.

The draft Order in Council will then be formally laid before Parliament and will be subject to affirmative resolution by both Houses. If approved by Parliament the Order in Council will be submitted to Her Majesty for approval.

The Government envisage a similar procedure for proposed draft Orders in Council that are put forward by Assembly committees or Back-Bench Members.

The Government expect the proposed draft Order in Council on Additional Learning Needs to follow the procedure set out.

Legislation

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will bring forward proposals to provide for all proposed legislative competence orders laid before the National Assembly for Wales to be referred automatically to the Welsh Affairs Committee and an appropriate committee in the House of Lords for pre-legislative scrutiny. [143352]

Mr. Hain: The Government gave assurances about pre-legislative scrutiny for proposed Orders in Council during the passage of the Government of Wales Bill, 24 January 2006, Official Report, column 1329. Both the House of Commons Welsh Affairs Select Committee and the House of Lords Constitution Committee have announced that they will conduct pre-legislative scr[illegible] of proposed draft orders in Council and the Go[illegible]t very much welcome this approach.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

House of Lords: Reform

Mark Williams: To ask the Leader of the House if he will undertake a formal public consultation on the electoral system for the House of Lords. [142122]

Mr. Straw: The Government will listen carefully and consider the issues raised during the debates earlier this year on the electoral system for the House of Lords. As I have indicated, I will return to Parliament to make a statement outlining the Government's approach on the way forward.

Members: Costs

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Leader of the House what the annual cost per hon. Member of the House is on the public purse. [142448]

Mr. Straw: The overall costs of the House of Commons are the sum of the Estimates for House of Commons: Administration and House of Commons: Members. A range of the costs within the Administration Estimate (and also within the Members Estimate) do not relate solely to Members. Information for recent years is given in the table.

£ million

Financial year	Total cost[1]	Total per Member[2]
2006-07 (provisional)	365.8	0.57
2005-06	[3]477.2	[3]0.74

[1] In accordance with the principles on which the accounts are prepared, the information is in resource rather than cash terms.
[2] Using a figure of 646 members for 2005-06 and 2006-07.
[3] Expenditure on the Administration Estimate for 2005-06 included a technical accounting adjustment for pension liabilities (£116 million) and the General Election in that year involved payment of Resettlement Grants and Winding Up Allowance to retiring Members on the Members Estimate (£9 million); adjusted for these elements, the per member figure would be £0.55 million.

Oral Questions

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Leader of the House what consideration he has given to the amount of time allocated for oral questions to (a) the Home Department and (b) the Ministry of Justice. [143156]

Mr. Straw: The allocation of time within the oral question rota for the Home Office and for the Ministry of Justice is being reviewed and announcements will be made in due course.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) off sale outlets and (b) licensed premises were prosecuted for serving alcohol to individuals under the age of 18 years old in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [142639]

Maria Eagle: The following table gives the number of prosecutions and convictions for the offences of "selling intoxicating liquor to a mi[illegible]or" and "permitting minor to consume alcohol on licensed premises" For the former, it is not possible to identify separately those proceedings brought against off sale outlets and licensed premises.

Data cover the calendar years 2003 to 2005 and are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Number of prosecutions and convictions for the offences of 'selling intoxicating liquor to a minor' and 'permitting minor to consume alcohol on licensed premises' 2003-05

	Selling intoxicating liquor to a minor		Permitting minor to consume alcohol on licensed premises
	Prosecutions	Convictions	Prosecutions	Convictions
2003	5	3	0	0
2004	7	2	0	0
2005	8	3	5	0

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in his Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141963]

Mr. Hain: When in Northern Ireland I stay at Hillsborough castle. As well as providing overnight accommodation for me, the facilities at Hillsborough castle are also used to provide official hospitality and overnight accommodation for members of the Royal Family, visiting dignitaries and diplomats. Other activities at the castle include departmental meetings, the Annual Garden Party and Citizenship Ceremonies. In addition to its use by the Northern Ireland Office and other Government Departments, charities and local community groups can request to use the facilities, generally for fund raising purposes, and the castle and grounds are open at certain times of the year for guided tours.

The costs associated with my overnight accommodation at Hillsborough castle cannot be separated from the overall cost. The cost of running Hillsborough castle for the 2005-06 financial year was £4,948,666.27. As custodians of this listed building the NIO takes seriously the need to preserve, maintain and refurbish the fabric of the building. This cost includes the maintenance of the buildings and grounds, and the security of the castle, the grounds, and that of Ministers, officials and visitors while present at the castle. It also includes the cost of catering, hospitality and administration. £3,165,938.56 is included in this amount in respect of cost of capital and depreciation.

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent by his Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139420]

Mr. Hain: In each of the last five years the Department and its agencies has spent the following on public relations:

2002-03	7,758.13
2003-04	54,985.83
2004-05	29,440.29
2005-06	97,158.00
2006-07	128,901.57

The reason for the increase in spend during 2005-06 and 2006-07 is due to the Youth Justice Agency's specific strategy of raising public awareness of the additional services available locally through the roll-out of the Youth Conferencing process across Northern Ireland.

Freedom of Information

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Freedom of Information requests have been received by each Northern Ireland Office (a) Department or (b) agency since the Freedom of Information Act 2000 came into force; and how many of those requests were (i) agreed and (ii) denied. [123452]

Paul Goggins: An administrative error meant that the answer to this question was not tabled prior to restoration. Had it not been missed, the answer would have indicated that the response rates for the NI Departments are as listed in the following table.

This, however, would now be a matter for the Northern Ireland administration.

The information provided covers the period from 1 January 2005 as although the Freedom of Information Act received Royal Assent in 2000 it only came into force from 1 January 2005.

Department	Requests received—1 January 2005 to 30 September 2006[1]	Number of resolvable requests[2]	Number granted in full	Number granted in part	Number withheld in full

[2] Excludes requests on hold or lapsed, where information is not held or where the request was outstanding at time of reporting.
[3] DCAL figures includes requests made to the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland.

The Department for Constitutional Affairs published quarterly reports for Whitehall Department; statistics for the Northern Ireland Office are included in these. Figures for the first quarter of 2007 (1 January to 31 March) will be published in due course.

The following table covers figures relating to the performance of the Northern Ireland Office. The information supplied in relation to the Northern Ireland Office does not include information on the agencies. The agencies are not required to monitor statistics relating to Freedom of Information requests.

Department	Requests received—1 January 2005 to 31 December 2006[1]	Number of resolvable requests[2]	Number granted in full	Number granted in part	Number withheld in full
Northern Ireland Office	400	302	140	58	54

[1] Figures include requests made under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004.
[2] Excludes requests on hold or lapsed, where information is not held or where the request was outstanding at time of reporting.

Immigrants: Crime

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many foreign nationals were convicted of criminal offences in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [142638]

Maria Eagle: At present information in relation to nationality is not included in court sentencing data and therefore it is not possible to calculate the number of foreign nationals who were convicted of criminal offences. I anticipate that such information will become available with the development of the Causeway information system.

Northern Ireland Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list those matters on which he will answer questions following the resumption of devolved government; and if he will make a statement. [142385]

Mr. Hain: I will answer questions on those matters for which I retain responsibility following the restoration of devolution in Northern Ireland—primarily for policing, security policy, prisons, criminal justice, constitutional matters and the operation of the Northern Ireland devolution settlement.

DEFENCE

Ghana

9. Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assistance his Department is providing to peace support training in Ghana. [142917]

Derek Twigg: We provide a Defence section within the high commission and an eight man British Military Advisory Training Team as assistance to peace support training in Ghana. Ghana currently deploys upwards of 2,800 peacekeepers on peace-support operations both within Africa and elsewhere. The Defence Advisers and British Military Advisory Training Team provide day to day advice, training and assistance to this process.

Unexploded Ordnance

10. Lynda Waltho: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the steps taken to remove land mines and explosive remnants of war. [142918]

Derek Twigg: The UK has been actively engaged in removing landmines and explosive remnants of war worldwide. This has had a real impact in reducing civilian casualties. The UK is contributing funds towards humanitarian de-mining programmes and initiatives to train de-mining personnel in Kenya and Kosovo and has built an explosive destruction facility in Bosnia. In addition since 2001, the Department for International Development has contracted at least £10 million per year on mine action. In April 2007, DFID announced a further £30 million to mine action over the next three years.

Warship Procurement

11. Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the types and numbers of future warships to be ordered for the Royal Navy. [142919]

Des Browne: Over the next 20 years we expect to contract for or build more than 20 major warships, including nuclear attack submarines, new aircraft carriers and more air defence destroyers, and to begin a new class of fleet escorts. Numerous support ships will also come into service over this period.

Naval Accommodation

12. Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what account is taken of the implications for naval accommodation when decisions are made about royal naval training and the basing of ships. [142920]

Derek Twigg: The potential implications for naval accommodation, for both single personnel and families, are always taken fully into account whenever decisions are taken about royal naval training or the basing of ships. These considerations are an integral component of any review, such as the defence training review and the naval base review, that could have implications for the location of naval personnel.

Operational Injuries

13. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many very serious injuries have been sustained in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq in 2007. [142921]

Derek Twigg: Between 1 January this year and 31 May, seven military personnel in Afghanistan and 14 military personnel in Iraq were categorised as very seriously injured. Regretfully, there have in addition been 16 fatalities in Afghanistan and 24 in Iraq during 2007.

Super Garrisons

14. Mr. Kidney To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the development of super garrisons in the UK. [142923]

Derek Twigg: The Army aspires to quartering the majority of its units in fewer, bigger and better garrisons, known as "super garrisons" over the coming decades. Detailed work to develop this approach is continuing. The actual locations of super garrisons have yet to be decided.

Surplus Military Equipment

15. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what safeguards are in place to prevent the acquisition of dangerous surplus military equipment by private individuals. [142924]

Des Browne: The MOD takes the disposal of military equipment very seriously. Other than major capital platforms sold on a Government-to-Government basis, the MOD does not sell any item that has a potential dangerous or offensive use, and all such items are destroyed or recycled. Other equipment sold into the commercial marketplace is demilitarised and declassified before sale, as appropriate.

Cocaine Interdiction

17. Siobhain McDonagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what role the Royal Navy is playing in the prevention of cocaine smuggling in the Caribbean. [142926]

Des Browne: The Royal Navy makes a major contribution to international counter drug operations in the Caribbean as one element of the UK's broader counter drugs engagement in the region. During 2006-07 Royal Navy vessels were involved in the seizure of over 17 tonnes of cocaine, with a street value in the UK of £680 million.

Airfield Review

18. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received on his airfield review. [142927]

Derek Twigg: Ministers have received a number of representations from hon. Members and the public about studies that have been and are being undertaken across military airfields.

Troop Relocations

19. Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the relocation of Army personnel from Germany. [142928]

Derek Twigg: As part of the Future Army Structures, I can confirm that the transition of 4th Armoured Brigade into 4th Mechanized Brigade has been made and the unit continues to train and equip for its new role. 4th Mechanized Brigade will move from Osnabrück to Catterick during 2008-09.

In addition the BORONA Programme is currently assessing a number of possible UK locations for elements of the British Army's Germany-based units. No decisions have yet been taken.

RAF Cosford

20. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of RAF Cosford. [142929]

Derek Twigg: The aeronautical engineering and communications and information systems training currently delivered at Cosford will relocate to St. Athan as proposed by the Metrix Consortium as part of the defence training review programme. No significant moves, however, are anticipated before 2011. There are currently no plans to close Cosford, and we are exploring a number of proposals for the future defence use of the site.

Veterans Badge Scheme

21. Mr. Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the veterans badge scheme. [142930]

Derek Twigg: The veterans badge scheme has proved extremely popular since it was launched in 2004, with over 460,000 issued to date. It is my intention that all armed forces veterans should receive their badge at the earliest opportunity. A regular programme of extensions to eligibility has been conducted based on our capacity to handle demand, and further extensions of eligibility to apply for the badge will follow as soon as practicable.

BAE Systems Arms Contracts

22. Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the role of his Department in the negotiation of BAE Systems arms contracts. [142931]

Des Browne: BAE Systems is the largest supplier of defence equipment to the Ministry of Defence, providing products and services in the air, sea, land and space sectors. As with all contracts placed by MOD acquisition staff, the contracts with BAE Systems are negotiated against a strict set of terms and conditions in order to deliver acquisition programmes to meet operational, programme requirements and to achieve best value for money.

As with other UK defence companies, we also support the company's efforts in the defence export market through the Defence Export Services Organisation.

CAT Scanners

23. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress is being made in ensuring the provision of CAT scanners in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [142932]

Derek Twigg: Computerised tomography scanners are now fully operational in both Iraq and Afghanistan.

Bevin Boys

24. Mr. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made towards recognising the contribution of the Bevin Boys to the second world war effort; and if he will make a statement. [142933]

Derek Twigg: Following the Prime Minister's Statement on 24 January that the Government would be announcing proposals to give recognition to the Bevin Boys, it has been agreed that responsibility for implementing the Prime Minister's decision should lie with the Department of Trade and Industry, as the Department responsible for the coal mining industry. I understand that a statement giving specific detail on the Government's proposals is imminent.

Veterans: Mental Health

Mr. Joyce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what provision his Department has made for the mental health care of veterans. [142925]

Derek Twigg: I announced on 11 June that the Ministry of Defence was expanding the medical assessment programme at St. Thomas's Hospital, London, to provide assessments to any veteran suffering from mental health problems as a result of service in operations since 1982. For the longer term, the MOD is working with the four UK Health Departments to pilot a new community-based service that will provide NHS health professionals with access to expertise in military mental health.

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many units of family accommodation at Pirbright barracks are occupied by squatters; and what steps are being taken to ensure such accommodation is not occupied by squatters or vandalized. [141849]

Derek Twigg: We are aware of two incidents of squatters having taken over empty Service Families Accommodation (SFA) at Pirbright, both of which occurred in the early part of last year. The properties were "outside the wire".

In both cases, the squatters were removed and steps taken to ensure that the properties are not occupied or vandalised by squatters again.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what programmes his Department is funding to look at counter measures against the RPG29 and other shaped charge threats to British armoured vehicles. [142922]

Des Browne: We constantly assess the threats facing our forces on operations and have a number of programmes in place to ensure we are fielding the most suitable protection measures.

For reasons of operational security, I cannot provide any further detail on the programmes or protection measures employed by our forces.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139319]

Derek Twigg: The proceeds from the disposal of surplus defence land and buildings are as follows:

Financial year	£ million
2001-02	185
2002-03	281
2003-04	207
2004-05	216
2005-06	258

It should be noted that 2001-02 includes disposals in the UK and North West Europe only. Disposals in the rest of the world cannot be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

2006-07 figures will be available once the agency accounts of Defence Estates—the Ministry of Defence organisation responsible for the defence estate—have been audited. A copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many weapons mounted installation kits and general purpose machine guns are in theatre in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [142525]

Des Browne: The Ministry of Defence is currently conducting a policy review of what information can be disclosed about operational equipment without compromising operational security or effectiveness. Until that review is complete, I am withholding this information as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

Military Bases: Cyprus

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence upon what grounds and for what reason a currency other than sterling will be used by British troops based on UK sovereign territory in Cyprus from next year; what consultations have taken place in connection therewith; with whom those consultations have taken place; and if he will make a statement. [143140]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 15 June 2007]: Appendix O to the 1960 treaty establishing the Republic of Cyprus states

"the currency of the Republic will be legal tender in the Sovereign Base Areas (SBAs)".

Since 1960 the SBAs, including the large numbers of Cypriot citizens and British military personnel resident there, have used the Cyprus pound and not the pound sterling. The Republic of Cyprus is expected to replace the Cyprus pound with the euro from 1 January 2008. If this happens then the legal tender in the SBAs will become the euro. Use of a currency in the SBAs other than that circulating in the Republic of Cyprus would be impractical, and would run counter to the 1960 treaty.

UK military and UK based civilian staff will continue, as now, to be paid in pounds sterling and they can continue, as now, to elect to have a portion of their salary paid in the local currency into a local bank account. The same process applies in other overseas locations including Germany which also now uses the euro.

HMG has consulted both the Government of the Republic of Cyprus and the European Commission on the practical aspects of euro use.

Veterans Day

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding his Department has allocated for local events to mark Veterans Day 2007; and whether all the funding has been allocated to local events. [142431]

Derek Twigg: £250,000 was initially allocated to regional events meeting the criteria set for Veterans Day 2007. However, in view of the high number of compliant bids received, this has been increased and a total of £319,000 has now been awarded. We have had to give priority to those proposals that have clearly supported the objectives set out for Veterans Day. The closing date for applications has now passed.

War Pensions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many ex-service personnel are waiting for financial entitlements from the Veterans Agency; [131714]

(2) how many service personnel are awaiting (a) war disablement pension payments and (b) Armed Forces Compensation Scheme payments from the Veterans Agency. [131729]

Derek Twigg: At the end of March 2007 there were 6,016 claims being processed for a war disablement pension or associated supplementary allowances under the War Pension Scheme.

Under the War Pension Scheme (WPS), only medical discharge cases involve serving personnel—all others will involve ex-service personnel. At the end of March 2007 there were 348 WPS medical discharge cases under consideration. Some of these individuals may have left the service.

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme deals with claims from both serving and ex-service personnel. At the end of March 2007 there were 111 medical discharge cases and 400 injury/illness cases being processed under this scheme.

Of the 400 injury/illness claims being considered 156 cases were from ex-service personnel and 244 cases were from service personnel.

Clearance times under these schemes reflect the fact that many claims require extensive medical evidence to be gathered under various sources, and it is often necessary to seek further information in the light of the initial evidence received. Evidence then needs to be collated and assessed before a decision is taken.

Some 35,500 WPS claims and 4,800 AFCS claims were received in 2006-07, so it is inevitable that at any one time there will be several thousand being processed. This is normal work in progress, not a backlog.

The WPS key target for 2006-07, to reduce the average time it takes to issue decisions on claims to war pensions to no more than 53 working days, was exceeded with an achievement of 49 working days. The AFCS key target for 2006-07, to issue decisions on AFCS claims in an average of no more than 35 working days, was exceeded with an achievement of 34 working days.

Not all claims being processed will result in a payment.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 739W, on the Arts Council, how many projects of all sizes were cancelled by Arts Council England in each of the last five years. [143017]

Mr. Lammy: On average, the Arts Council receives approximately 8,500 applications a year, resulting in awards for 4,500 projects on average.

It is not possible systematically to identify records on the Arts Councils grants systems of awards that were cancelled. Consequently to provide an answer would involve manually examining hundreds, if not thousands of records, which would incur disproportionate costs.

Casinos

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will bring forward proposals to establish a parliamentary committee to consider the Casino Advisory Panel's report in respect of the regional casino and that of the House of Lords Merits of Statutory Instruments Committee. [143186]

Mr. Caborn: Ministers are currently considering the options in the light of the defeat of The Gambling (Geographical Distribution of Casino Premises Licences) Order 2007 in the House of Lords on 28 March, and there is no set timetable for an announcement.

Departments: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in her Department received bonus payments in 2006-07; what proportion of the total workforce they represented; what the total amount of bonuses paid was; what the largest single payment was; and if she will make a statement. [143098]

Mr. Lammy: The Department makes bonus payments to its staff for two purposes:

(a) special bonuses to reward outstanding contributions in particularly demanding tasks or situations; and

(b) performance bonuses to reward highly successful performance over a whole year.

(a) Staff bonuses

	2006-07
Number of staff awarded special bonuses	111
Percentage of workforce	21.5
Total value of special bonuses (£)	69,565

(b) Performance bonuses

	2006-07
Number[1] of staff awarded performance bonuses	154
Percentage of workforce	29.9
Total value of performance bonuses(£)	343,595

[1] 2006-07 relates to the financial year

Notes:

1. In any one year, some staff may receive both a special bonus and an end year performance bonus.
2. Performance bonus payments relate to performance in the previous year.

The largest single bonus payment was £10,000.

Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what work her Department has undertaken with (a) Age Concern, (b) the Royal National Institute for the Blind, (c) the Royal National Institute for the Deaf, (d) Copeland Borough Council, (e) the Citizens' Advice Bureau and (f) other public sector or charitable organisations in relation to digital switchover in October 2007. [142842]

Mr. Woodward: DCMS and Digital UK work closely with leading charities through the Digital Switchover Consumer Expert Group. Representatives include Age Concern, the Royal National Institute for the Blind, and the Royal National Institute for the Deaf and the Citizens' Advice Bureau.

Digital UK is running an ongoing programme of drop-in sessions at a number of locations in the Border TV region and is in Whitehaven this week with the national roadshow.

Copeland borough council hosts the Digital Switchover Steering Group which meets every month. There are a number of joint events with Digital UK, including public meetings. In addition, Digital UK contributes to the council's newsletter with contributions, information and updates on switchover in the area.

In Copeland, Digital UK co-locate their offices with Age Concern North West Cumbria (ACNWC) and all ACNWC staff have been trained to provide support on the digital switchover. Digital UK also work closely with the West Cumbria Society for the Blind, with whom they held a joint event at the beginning of the month. Digital UK also hold joint events with the Cumbria Deaf Association and have worked with the local Citizen's Advice Bureau.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what work her Department is undertaking to develop public service applications delivered via digital television; and if she will make a statement. [142847]

Mr. Woodward: A return path, which would facilitate interactivity with public service applications via digital television, is not currently a requirement for set-top boxes provided by the Digital Switchover Help Scheme. However, officials continue to have discussions with various parties about how these services might be delivered, and the requirements for Help Scheme set-top boxes are kept under review so that equipment will be updated so as best to meet the needs of the groups the scheme is intended to serve.

Digital Broadcasting: Border Television

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what involvement her Department has had with Border Television in preparation for the digital switchover in Copeland in October. [142843]

Mr. Woodward: Digital UK is in regular contact with the editorial team and management at Border TV. Border TV offers a vital local service to viewers in the region, and Digital UK's regional manager for the Border TV region, John Askew, regularly appears on local news programmes to explain to viewers what they can practically do to prepare their homes for the switch.

In addition, the local news features a regular programme entitled "Ask Tim" whereby viewers send in their questions to the presenter who answers them on air. The digital TV switchover is regularly featured as a topic on "Ask Tim" and this is largely down to the ongoing and constructive relationship between Digital UK and Border Television.

Digital Broadcasting: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has collated data on the number of digital (a) televisions and (b) receivers sold in Copeland since the announcement in 2006 relating to digital switchover taking place there in October. [142844]

Mr. Woodward: Digital UK is speaking to retailers on a monthly basis to assess how much kit they are selling and the feedback from this process is included in the Whitehaven monthly progress report.

According to the Q1 2007 Digital UK Tracker, 70 per cent. of primary sets in Copeland have already been converted. A further 27 per cent. of other sets have been converted. The proportion of the total number of sets converted is 49 per cent. We expect many people to wait until very near the time of switchover until they buy their equipment.

It should be noted that there is currently no availability of Freeview in Copeland and that the only method for going digital before the switchover is satellite. It is only by switching off the analogue signal that Freeview can be made available to homes in Copeland.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what methodology was used to decide that Copeland would be the first area in the UK in which digital switchover would occur; and if she will make a statement. [142848]

Mr. Woodward: Copeland was chosen as it offers an ideal environment in which to refine plans for the national switchover programme. The area is a clearly defined one with little broadcast overlap. Copeland has a good demographic mix, 16 per cent. 65+, 6.6 per cent. 75+, 21.4 per cent. registered disabled, living in a mix of private/rented housing/multiple dwelling units.

The area will benefit significantly as the Whitehaven, Gosforth and Eskdale Green transmitters do not provide digital terrestrial TV currently.

Digital Broadcasting: Finance

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much digital switchover implementation in October will cost the public purse, broken down by main budget heading. [142841]

Mr. Woodward: The cost of switchover in Whitehaven in October will be met by the broadcasters. In addition, it is estimated that up to £1 million of the £603 million budget for the Digital Switchover Help Scheme (which is funded through the licence fee) will be applied in Whitehaven.

Digital UK

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) regulatory and (b) oversight role her Department has over Digital UK. [142849]

Mr. Woodward: Digital UK is an independent organisation set up by the Public Service Broadcasters (BBC, ITV, Channel Four, Five, S4C and Teletext) and the multiplex operators. DCMS works closely with Digital UK to deliver a successful switchover.

Schools: Sight Impaired

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what provisions she plans to put in place to improve the access to sport in schools for blind and partially sighted children. [143016]

Mr. Caborn: The National School Sport Strategy aims to increase the proportion of all schoolchildren who spend at least two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport. The strategy includes a variety of measures to encourage take-up among children and young people with special needs and disabilities, including those who have visual impairments.

For example, the Youth Sport Trust has recently been working with disability sport organisations, including British Blind Sport, to develop new resources for teachers and coaches working within our network of 100 multi-sport clubs for young disabled people. This network of clubs is scheduled to grow to 450 by 2009 to cover every School Sport Partnership in the country.

Swimming Pools: Finance

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what financial assistance is available to fund community swimming pools. [143129]

Mr. Caborn: Financial assistance for community swimming pools is available through Sport England's Community Investment Fund (CIF). Applicants need to meet CIF criteria and show strong links with Sport England Regional Sports and Amateur Swimming Association strategies. Since 1997 swimming has been the biggest recipient of lottery funding, having attracted £249 million of which £242 million has gone to community swimming.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Training

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2007, Official Report, column 1122W, on departments: training, how much expenditure was incurred on services provided by each of the two firms referred to in the last year for which figures are available. [141702]

Hilary Armstrong: Cost incurred using these suppliers in 2006-07 will be available only when the Department's resource accounts are fully audited and laid before Parliament. This is expected to be before the 2007 summer recess.

MINISTER FOR WOMEN

Equal Opportunities: Ethnic Groups

Ms Abbott: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government are taking to address inequalities faced by ethnic minority women in the workplace; and if she will make a statement. [140849]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Edmonton (Mr. Love) on 14 May 2007, Official Report, columns 520-21W.

Equal Opportunities: Public Bodies

Ms Abbott: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government are taking to increase diversity in (a) the judiciary, (b) the police, (c) Parliament and (d) other UK institutions; and if she will make a statement. [140848]

Meg Munn: The Government are committed to increasing diversity and equality of opportunity in UK institutions. The Ministry of Justice is working with the judiciary and Judicial Appointments Commission to increase diversity, for example, by promoting the judicial service and widening the range of people eligible to apply for judicial office. The Judicial Diversity Strategy, setting out the approach, was announced to Parliament by written ministerial statement on 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 25WS. The Judicial Appointments 8th Report published in March 2006 showed that the proportion of female judges appointed in the previous year had increased from 31 per cent. to 41 per cent. Between 2001 and 2006 the percentage of female judges rose from 14 to 18 per cent. The percentage of those from a BME background appointed increased from 5 per cent. to 17 per cent. over the previous seven years.

Colleagues in the Home Office are extremely active in pushing for greater diversity in the police and have introduced a number of initiatives looking at recruitment, retention and progression. These include positive action guidelines on recruitment, and a toolkit looking into the setting of targets for the recruitment of women. Twenty-Two per cent. of police officers are women, and 3.7 per cent. of police officers are from ethnic minority backgrounds. Progress has been made in recruiting minority ethnic Special Constables (6.6 per cent.) and Police Staff (6.9 per cent.) and especially minority ethnic Police Community Support Officers (15.2 per cent.).

In 2002 we introduced the Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Act allowing positive measures towards women's increased participation in politics. This legislation is having an impact. Women now make up 20 per cent. of MPs compared with 9 per cent. before 1997. However, there is still a long way to go: only 2.3 per cent. of MPs are from non-white backgrounds, compared with around 8 per cent. of the population. The Discrimination Law Review is considering the case for widening the scope of positive measures to target the selection of political candidates beyond gender. It is also looking at how to widen the range of voluntary positive action measures available to organisations as employers and service providers in order to prevent or compensate for disadvantage or to meet the special needs of groups protected by discrimination law. Our consultation paper, "A Framework for Fairness", setting out our proposals for a Single Equality Bill, was published on 12 June.

Refuges: Edmonton

Mr. Love: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many recorded cases there were of women being housed in refuges and safe houses in Edmonton constituency in 2006. [140756]

Meg Munn: The information requested is not available centrally at constituency level.

TRANSPORT

A303

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans are in place to upgrade the A303 to a dual carriageway; and what the likely completion date is of each scheme. [142990]

Dr. Ladyman: I have accepted the Region's advice that priority for a start on a second strategic route in the South West should be given to either the A303 Ilminster Bypass or Stonehenge, if the current review identifies a deliverable and affordable scheme.

The A303 Ilminster Bypass is included within the 10 year forward programme which forms part of a high quality strategic route to the South West. Subject to regional funding, construction on this scheme could begin in 2014-15 with completion in 2017. The Stonehenge Report is still under review.

The remaining unimproved sections of the A303 are:

A303 Chicklade Bottom to Mere Improvement

A303 Sparkford to Ilchester and Podimore Junction Improvement

A303 Wylye to Stockton Wood Improvement.

These three schemes are in the Region's longer-term list of priorities (beyond 2016) and are currently on hold.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were (a) killed and (b) seriously injured on the single carriageway sections of the A303 in each of the last 10 years. [142966]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of people killed and seriously injured on the single carriageway sections of the A303 in each of the last 10 years are shown in the table as follows:

	Fatal	Serious
1997	3	26
1998	6	29
1999	6	21
2000	2	15
2001	6	22
2002	6	28
2003	2	19
2004	6	14
2005	4	11
2006	3	16
Total	44	201

A449: Safety Measures

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will request the Highways Agency to conduct a full review of the safety of the A449 between Claines roundabout and Ombersley before the agency transfers responsibility for the road to Worcestershire county council. [142599]

Dr. Ladyman: A full safety study on this section of the A449 was carried out in 2004. The resulting recommendations for improvements to the road were promoted at a public exhibition. A safety scheme involving improvement to the elevation of the bends and signing, and the installation of two mobile safety camera sites was completed in 2005. As a result of a follow-up Road Safety Audit of these works, further improvements are to be carried out later this year. These include additional signing and installation of an anti-skid surface and hazard marker posts.

Negotiations are continuing between the Highways Agency and Worcestershire county council about the transfer of responsibility for the A449 to the local authority and no further safety reviews are anticipated.

Airbus A380

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many airports in the UK have the (a) facilities and (b) runway distance to operate the new Airbus A380 when it comes into service; [142994]

(2) how many airports in the UK have the (a) facilities and (b) runway distance to operate the Boeing 747-8 (extended range). [142995]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 15 June 2007]: Neither the A380 nor the B747-8 require any more runway length than other heavy jets currently in service.

In the UK only London Heathrow airport has so far developed facilities specifically to cater for A380 and B747-8 operations.

The development plans for London Stansted airport also include A380 and B747-8 facilities. Other UK airports have either yet to declare their plans for dealing with these aircraft or are content to operate them with existing facilities.

Automatic Train Protection: Inquiries

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of the 1999 Health and Safety Commission inquiry into train protection systems. [143705]

Mr. Tom Harris: £1.2 million

Blue Badge Scheme: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations his Department has received on the consultation on extending the Blue Badge disabled parking scheme to include children under two years of age. [143700]

Gillian Merron: The Department is proposing to extend the eligibility criteria for a Blue Badge to children under the age of two with specific medical conditions.

The consultation exercise is due to finish on 19 June and the replies will be analysed after that date.

Eurostar: Ashford Kent

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has had from local interest groups regarding the Ashford International Eurostar service in the last 12 months. [143146]

Mr. Tom Harris: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 14 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1270-1W.

FV Gaul Inquiry

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of the FV Gaul Inquiry. [143714]

Dr. Ladyman: The total cost to the Department of the Re-opened Formal Investigation (RFI) was approximately £6.5 million.

FV Trident Inquiry

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated cost is of the FV Trident inquiry; who has responsibility for chairing the inquiry; and when he expects it to report. [143719]

Dr. Ladyman: Estimates for the total cost of the Trident RFI are around £2 million. The Sheriff Principal for Grampian, Highland and Islands will be chairing the inquiry. The timing of the inquiry is dependent upon the production of technical evidence required by the experts advising legal parties, and the report will follow thereafter.

Galileo Project

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the overall change in the projected cost of the Galileo Satellite Navigation System was in each of the last three financial years; what assessment he has made of the impact of those changes on the business case for the project; and if he will make a statement. [140413]

Dr. Ladyman: Galileo is a European Community project which the Government accept should be managed at European level.

The EU, and member states of the European Space Agency (ESA) jointly fund the design and development programme for Galileo. The ESA estimate for the cost of the development phase (in orbit validation or IOV) has increased by €136.7 million, in 2001 prices, over the last three years:

cost in 2005: €1,557.4 million (€1,452.0 million in 2001 prices);

cost at March 2007: €1,788.4 million (€1,588.7 million in 2001 prices).

At the last meeting of the ESA programme board which deals with Galileo, in May 2007, the ESA executive informed its member states that it is assessing issues which may affect the costs of the programme. These relate to the contracts for the second test satellite, GIOVE-B, and the IOV phase. They were not yet able to define the costs.

The Nice European Council of December 2000 decided on a public private partnership (PPP) for the deployment and operation phase. This was to be one-third EC, two-thirds private funding, with a 20-year concession.

The draft EU Financial Regulation currently allocates €900 million, at 2004 prices, towards the deployment and operation of the system.

On 8 June Transport Council Ministers concluded that the current negotiations have failed. The Commission has been requested to submit to the October Council for decision detailed alternative proposals for taking the project forward. These should be based on an additional thorough assessment of costs, risks, revenues and timetable. The need for competition in a procurement strategy has been emphasised. The Commission was also requested to bring forward proposals for strengthening the public governance of the programme. The UK, jointly with the Netherlands and supported by Slovakia and Cyprus, submitted a minutes statement stressing our commitment to the PPP principle for major infrastructure projects, our concerns on the potential increased costs of public procurement, the need for a reassessment of the business case for Galileo, competitive procurement, sound risk management, and ensuring that any extra funds are kept within the current EU financial perspective. The cost of this phase will not be known until Council makes that decision.

The European Commission's Communication of 16 May 2007 does not provide an assessment of the impact of cost changes on the business case for the project.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the expected cost-benefit ratio of the Galileo Satellite Navigation System was in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06 and (c) 2006-07; [140414]

(2) what limit the UK Government have set for (a) the maximum level of funding that it would approve for the Galileo project and (b) the cost-benefit ratio at which it would withdraw its support for the project. [140415]

Dr. Ladyman: No annual cost-benefit ratios have been produced by the Commission. Cost information has been updated from time to time. At the beginning of the programme, the Commission engaged Price Waterhouse Coopers. Their report of November 2001 identified a positive benefit-cost ratio of 4.6:1.

The conclusions of the December 2004 Transport Council asked the Commission to submit a reasoned analysis of the results of the public private partnership (PPP) negotiations, including on risk allocation and final costs, before any final decision was made. The UK, supported by Austria, entered a minutes statement stressing the need for the proposed risk and cost allocations between public and private sector to be acceptable to Council.

In spring 2006, three studies were commissioned by the Galileo Joint Undertaking (GJU) and reported to member states at the GJU Supervisory Board. The studies covered revenues, costs, and the value for money of the satellite procurement: no overall cost-benefit analysis was produced.

The most recent Commission Communication, 16 May 2007, sets out 23-year net present values (NPVs) of:

(i) €1.8 billion for a PPP as foreseen, except that four of the deployment satellites would be procured by the public sector, as risk mitigation; and

(ii) €2.2 billion for the public procurement of 18 satellites, with a further 12 purchased by the private sector; and

(iii) €1.0 billion for the public procurement of 30.

On 8 June Transport Council Ministers concluded that the current negotiations have failed. The Commission has been requested to submit to the October Council for decision detailed alternative proposals for taking the project forward. These should be based on an additional thorough assessment of costs, risks, revenues and timetable. The need for competition in a procurement strategy has been emphasised. The Commission was also requested to bring forward proposals for strengthening the public governance of the programme. The UK, jointly with the Netherlands and supported by Slovakia and Cyprus, submitted a minutes statement stressing our commitment to the PPP principle for major infrastructure projects, our concerns on the potential increased costs of public procurement, the need for a reassessment of the business case for Galileo, competitive procurement, sound risk management, and ensuring that any extra funds are kept within the current EU financial perspective.

The Government have not set either a maximum level of funding that they would approve for the project, or a cost-benefit ratio at which they would withdraw their support. The latest information from the European Space Agency is that costs of the development phase are €1778.40 million to date (2007 cash terms). The draft EU Financial Regulation allocates €900 million, at 2004 prices, to the deployment phase.

The Government are strongly committed to the existing budget ceilings and to ensuring that there is no reopening of the Financial Perspective. The principle that member states would not be required to fund Galileo from national budgets for the deployment and operational phases of the programme was agreed at the March 2002 Transport Council. The Government remain committed to this principle.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what return he expects to receive on the UK's contribution to the Galileo project; and how it will be calculated; [140417]

(2) what evaluations he has made of the market opportunities and applications of Galileo; when those evaluations were made; and when they were last revised. [140500]

Dr. Ladyman: No calculation of UK return has been made for the programme as a whole.

ESA operates an industrial policy that provides for a geographical return based on member state contributions. The UK commitment to the ESA element of the design and development phase of the programme is €142 million. The value of contracts awarded to UK companies up to 15 May 2007 was €212.7 million.

The EU's contribution to the design and development phase is made from the EC budget and is estimated by the Commission to be €790 million. The UK makes its contributions to the EC budget as a whole and not to individual spending programmes within it.

There is not an identified UK contribution to the design and development phase of the programme via the EU budget.

The Government expect benefits from their investment in Galileo for companies that provide space technology and services, and for companies that exploit the technology in downstream applications. A study commissioned by the British National Space Centre (BNSC) in 2005 evaluated the economic impact of Galileo in the UK. It identified benefits for space segment industries and for downstream services and products.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the total cost is of the full number of satellites proposed under the Galileo project; how many there are at the moment; and how many are planned in the future; [141065]

(2) how many Galileo satellites will be purchased by the European Commission on behalf of the European Union under the new programme; and what percentage of the cost of a re-programmed and re-financed Galileo will be borne by the UK. [141053]

Dr. Ladyman: The Galileo global constellation is expected to comprise 30 satellites. The Commission has based its assessment and its proposals to the Transport Council on the provision of 30.

A first test satellite, GIOVE-A, was launched in December 2005 and is providing operational signals. A second test satellite, GIOVE-B, has been delayed and is scheduled to be launched by end 2007.

On 8 June Transport Council Ministers concluded that the current negotiations have failed. The Commission has been requested to submit to the October Council for decision detailed alternative proposals for taking the project forward. These should be based on an additional thorough assessment of costs, risks, revenues and timetable. The need for competition in a procurement strategy has been emphasised. The Commission was also requested to bring forward proposals for strengthening the public governance of the programme. The UK, jointly with the Netherlands and supported by Slovakia and Cyprus, submitted a minutes statement stressing our commitment to the PPP principle for major infrastructure projects, our concerns on the potential increased costs of public procurement, the need for a reassessment of the business case for Galileo, competitive procurement, sound risk management, and ensuring that any extra funds are kept within the current EU financial perspective. The timetable for the programme, its funding, and its organisation are subject to these decisions at Council.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are to strengthen the GNSS programme as referred to in the European Commission communication COM (2007) 261 of 16 May 2007; and by what mechanisms it will be strengthened. [141153]

Dr. Ladyman: In its Resolution of 24 April 2007, the European Parliament called on the Commission to:

> "make a proposal—together with the European Space Agency (ESA)—capable of solving the problem of better public governance by ensuring clear political responsibility and leadership on the part of the Commission."

The Commission Communication of 16 May 2007 refers to this request. The Communication proposes that the Commission be asked to bring forward proposals for stronger public governance of the project with clearer divisions of responsibility between the Commission, ESA and the European GNSS Supervisory Authority (GSA). On 8 June 2007 Transport Council asked the Commission to submit in September proposals for > "a sound public sector management structure of the programme on the basis of a clear division of responsibilities between Commission, ESA, GSA, member states and Council".

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the scope is of the European Union EGNOS programme; what the timetable is for its implementation; what its cost will be to the UK; how the programme is regulated; which British (a) nationals and (b) firms are involved in this initiative; and if he will make a statement. [141154]

Dr. Ladyman: The European Geostationary Navigation Overlay Service (EGNOS) is a satellite based augmentation system (SBAS) that will augment the two satellite navigation systems now operating, the US Global Positioning System (GPS) and the Russian Global Orbiting Navigation Satellite System (GLONASS) systems, and make them suitable for safety-critical applications such as flying aircraft or navigating ships through narrow channels.

It is a joint project of the European Space Agency (ESA), the European Commission and Eurocontrol (the European Organisation for the Safety of Air Navigation), with the involvement of the principal European Air Traffic Service Providers, including NATS plc. The programme is regulated as an ESA programme under its ARTES 9 programme. The integration of EGNOS into the Galileo programme was decided by Transport Council in its conclusions of June 2003.

The programme funding currently provides for the development and operation of the system by ESA until 31 March 2008. Arrangements and the funding of EGNOS after March 2008 are unlikely to be decided until the October 2007 Transport Council.

The ARTES 9 programme of ESA is funded by subscriptions from its member states. The European Community also contributes as have the principal European air traffic service providers. Since the start of the programme, UK contributions to ESA have been almost €35 million.

This industrial sector is international in nature but prominent firms operating in the UK that have been awarded contracts by ESA include British Telecommunications, Inmarsat UK, LogicaCMG UK, Thales (UK), and Vega UK.

Accordingly, accurate information on all specific British nationals and firms that have been involved in this initiative would be difficult to provide and only at disproportionate cost.

Galileo Project: Finance

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the (a) cost and (b) merits of funding the Galileo project through (i) public and (ii) private finance. [141149]

Dr. Ladyman: Galileo is a European Community project which the Government accept should be managed at European level.

The most recent Commission Communication, 16 May 2007, sets out 23-year net present values (NPVs) of:

i. €1.8 billion for a PPP as foreseen, except that four of the deployment satellites would be procured by the public sector, as risk mitigation; and

ii. €2.2 billion for the public procurement of 18 satellites, with a further 12 purchased by the private sector; and

iii. €1.0 billion for the public procurement of 30.

On 8 June Transport Council Ministers concluded that the current negotiations have failed. The Commission has been requested to submit detailed alternative proposals for taking the project forward to the October Council for decision. These should be based on an additional thorough assessment of costs, risks, revenues and timetable. The need for competition in a procurement strategy has been emphasised. The Commission was also requested to bring forward proposals for strengthening the public governance of the programme. The timetable for the programme, its funding, and its organisation are subject to these decisions.

The UK, jointly with the Netherlands and supported by Slovakia and Cyprus, submitted a minutes statement stressing our commitment to the PPP principle for major infrastructure projects, our concerns on the potential increased costs of public procurement, the need for a reassessment of the business case for Galileo, competitive procurement, sound risk management, and ensuring that any extra funds are kept within the current EU financial perspective.

The Department has not made a separate estimate of the costs and merits of funding the Galileo project through public and private finance.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the balance of risk between private and public sectors in the Galileo project is the same as that adopted by the Government in relation to domestic public private partnerships. [141150]

Dr. Ladyman: The proposed commercial public-private partnership (PPP) structure developed by the Galileo Joint Undertaking (GJU), and subsequently the European GNSS Supervisory Authority (GSA), on behalf of the European Community aimed to obtain best value for money by placing risks with those best able to manage them. Negotiations on risk allocation had not been concluded when the heads of terms, version 1, was signed in November 2006. On 8 June the Transport Council concluded that the PPP negotiations had failed and should be ended.

There are no UK PPPs directly comparable with the Galileo project.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of the total cost of the Galileo programme between 2007 to 2013 will be paid for by the UK. [141151]

Dr. Ladyman: The EC budget commitment for Galileo under the 2007-13 Financial Perspective will not be decided until after the summer.

The UK makes its contributions to the EC budget as a whole and not to individual spending programmes within it. Before taking account of the abatement, the UK contribution to the EC budget in 2007 is estimated to be 17.1 per cent. of the total. Over the period 2007-13, the draft EU Financial Regulation allocates €900 million, at 2004 prices, to the Galileo deployment phase.

The EU and the member states of ESA jointly fund the design and development programme for Galileo. As an ESA member state, the UK has committed €142 million to the design and development phase. This represents just under 17 per cent. of the subscription made to the programme by participating member states, and is comparable with contributions made by Germany, France and Italy. By the end of March 2007, payments to ESA amounted to just over half of the €142 million, leaving the remainder to be paid during 2007-13.

ESA has recently identified additional costs for the design and development phase. It is expected that the ESA executive will apply a rule that enables them to draw down up to 20 per cent. more than the original subscription made by the participating member state. ESA has also identified other additional requirements, the cost of which has not yet been scoped.

The principle that EU member states would not be required to fund the deployment and operational phases of the Galileo programme from national budgets was agreed at the March 2002 Transport Council. The Government remain committed to this principle.

M3

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will provide estimates of the level of noise between junctions five and seven of the M3 motorway in each of the last 20 years for which data are available further to the answer of 27 June 2005, Official Report, column 1261W on the M3. [142773]

Dr. Ladyman: Noise data are not available to estimate noise levels between junctions five and seven of the M3 for each of the last 20 years. As explained in the answers of 27 June 2005, assessments of noise severity are made using the "Calculation of Road Traffic Noise" (CRTN model) which use distance from source, exposure, obstacles and traffic levels. Each of these factors varies significantly at any point along the road length. The range would vary between less than 60 dB to more than 72.5 dB at the road surface.

The statement in the answer of 27 June 2005 that the noise level is likely to have increased by around 4.5 dB over the last 20 years was based on the approximate increase in traffic levels over the 20-year period.

To provide retrospective assessments would require assumptions to be made about many of the variable factors which would reduce the accuracy of assessments to an unreliable level.

The Highways Agency has conducted assessments using the CRTN model at specific "noise hotspots" and implementation of a programme of local noise mitigation measures is ongoing.

Motor Vehicles: Testing

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many MOT tests were carried out in each of the last three years in the UK. [144031]

Dr. Ladyman: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publish this information annually in an Effectiveness Report. The Effectiveness Report for 2005-06 is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk. A hard copy of the report for previous years is placed in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport section.

Motorcycles: Accidents

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of motorcyclists killed and seriously injured in the last five years had (a) passed their test through direct access, (b) passed their test less than two years previously and (c) taken advanced training; and if he will make a statement. [143738]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

MV Derbyshire Inquiry

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of the MV Derbyshire Inquiry. [143713]

Dr. Ladyman: The total cost to the Department of the Re-opened Formal Investigation (RFI) was approximately £11 million.

Paddington Rail Accident Inquiry

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of the Ladbroke Grove inquiry in 1999. [143706]

Mr. Tom Harris: £8.6 million.

Railways: Fares

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of total rail journeys were on tickets with unregulated rail fares for each train operating company in each year since 1998-99; and if he will make a statement. [143620]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport does not hold this information. However, approximately 40 per cent. of train operators revenue comes from fares which are regulated.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total change in (a) regulated and (b) unregulated rail fares was for each rail franchise in England for the period 1996-97 to 2007-08 inclusive; and if he will make a statement. [143621]

Mr. Tom Harris: Figures for average increases in fares can be found in "National Rail Trends" published by the Office of Rail Regulation and available from www.rail-reg.gov.uk. Standard class tickets increased by an average of 6 per cent. between 1995 and 2006.

Railways: Grayrigg

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the progress of the inquiry into the derailment at Grayrigg on 23 February 2007. [143615]

Mr. Tom Harris: The investigation by the Rail Accident Investigation Branch (RAIB) is continuing. RAIB currently plans to issue a second interim report later in the summer.

Roads: Accidents

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many unlicensed vehicles were involved in road traffic accidents in each year since 2000. [144029]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 589W, given to the hon. Member for Cannock Chase (Dr. Wright).

Roads: East Sussex

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding the Government has set aside for the construction of the Bexhill to Hastings link road; and if he will make a statement. [143147]

Gillian Merron: The proposed Bexhill to Hastings link road, a Local Transport Plan major road scheme, was granted Programme Entry in December 2004 with an agreed Departmental funding contribution of £47.120 million towards the cost of the scheme. This funding is subject to a number of provisions including the satisfactory completion of statutory procedures. In addition, we also awarded East Sussex county council £0.850 million in 2005 towards eligible preparatory costs for the scheme.

Skips

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving building skips on roads have taken place in (a) England and (b) Wiltshire in the last 10 years for which figures are available; and on how many occasions breaches of section 139 of the Highways Act 1980 have been recorded. [143335]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

Southall Rail Accident Inquiry

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of the Southall Rail Accident inquiry in 1997. [143704]

Mr. Tom Harris: £2.25 million.

Trains: Overcrowding

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on levels of rail overcrowding. [143406]

Mr. Tom Harris: The railway in recent years has been a success. Since privatisation, passenger numbers are up by 40 per cent.—driven by a strong economy, improving services, new trains and Government investment.

We will continue to increase capacity through the franchising process and in other ways. In particular, the Secretary of State announced on 14 March that the High Level Output Specification, to be published in the summer, will include a commitment to a thousand extra carriages. They will be targeted at the most congested routes on the network.

Vans: Safety Belts

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many serious injuries involving van drivers not wearing seat belts there were in each of the last five years. [142898]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is not available.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Basic Skills

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many (a) adults and (b) adults over 25 years received Skills for Life funding in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05 and (iii) 2005-06; [138365]

(2) how many (a) adults and (b) adults over 25 years receiving Skills for Life funding were given workplace training in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05 and (iii) 2005-06, broken down by the number of hours of workplace training given. [138366]

Phil Hope: Figures for adults funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) under the Skills for Life programme can be derived from the Individualised Learner Record (ILR).

Skills for Life tends to be described as a strategy rather than a funding stream. There are aims that are funded with and without a programme weighting for Skills for Life, which can all count towards the Skills for Life PSA target.

The following table shows the number of Further Education (FE) and University for Industry (UFI) LSC-funded adult learners (aged 19 and over) and adult learners aged 25 and over who could contribute towards the Skills for Life target in 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06.

	Thousand
	Adults	Adults aged 25+
2003/04	210.7	148.5
2004/05	256.9	185.1
2005/06	308.7	223.2

The ILR cannot robustly be used to determine the incidence of workplace training.

Adult Education: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many adult learners were in further education in Copeland in 2005-06. [133488]

Phil Hope: Figures for those participating in further education (FE) funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) can be derived from the Individualised Learner Record (ILR). There were 3,436 adult learners (aged 19 and over) in FE in Copeland parliamentary constituency (based on home post code of the learner) in 2005-06.

Basic Skills

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to meet the Leitch Review of Skills' objective to eradicate low skills among the adult working age population by 2020. [142683]

Phil Hope: We have accepted the very stretching skills ambitions for 2020 that Lord Leitch recommended in his skills review. Our current plans are to publish a full response in early July which will set out the coherent package of measures we will take to meet the ambition.

Book Trust: Finance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding his Department provided to the Booktrust charity in each year since 2001. [142753]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 14 June 2007]: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Financial year	Total funding for year
2001-02	290,000
2002-03	0
2003-04	150,000
2004-05	2,074,000
2005-06	8,584,000
2006-07	9,063,000
2007-08	13,018,000
Total amount to date	32,929,500

Departments: Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent by his Department on public relations in each of the last five years. [139413]

Alan Johnson: The Department employs public relations agencies for specific communications tasks, most commonly working alongside our press office to provide campaign support in local regional and specialist media. The amount spent on such activities in each of the last five years has totalled significantly less than 0.01 per cent. of total departmental spend and is as follows:

	Cost[1] (£)
2002-03	567,987
2003-04	1,105,207
2004-05	1,593,317
2005-06	914,163
2006-07	1,630,935

[1] These figures include contracts placed by the Department and by the Central Office of Information (COI) on our behalf.

In 2006-07 the spend has covered:

Work on the London Challenge including the 'London Schools Celebrating Achievement' campaign.

Promoting a wider awareness of foundation degrees among learners, while also helping employers to understand the benefits of these qualifications to their businesses.

Student Finance—a key objective of our activity in 2006-07 was to ensure that 16 to 19- year-olds and their parents were aware of, and understood, the new student support arrangements. This was important to help ensure that finance was not seen as a barrier to participating in HE.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's employee surveys for (a) 2002 and (b) 2004. [142026]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department undertakes a staff survey approximately every 18 months. The survey is a powerful tool which allows the monitoring of progress across a range of staff-related issues. The survey also enables the Department to compare itself with other UK organisations in both the public and private sector, including high-performing organisations.

The Department completed a survey in 2003 and 2005. The results of these surveys will be placed in the House Libraries.

Education: EC Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which (a) conferences, (b) seminars and (c) other events have been funded under bilateral EU-US funding for joint activities in higher education, training and youth. [133080]

Bill Rammell: This Department does not hold information on activities carried out under the EU's bilateral co-operation programmes which are funded and administered centrally by the European Commission.

Educational Institutions: Israel

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what assessment he has made of the likely impact on UK universities of the decision by the University and College Union to boycott contacts with Israeli academics and Israeli higher educational institutions; [141593]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely impact on scientific research in the UK of the decision by the University and College Union to boycott Israeli academics and Israeli higher educational institutions. [141594]

Bill Rammell [holding answers 11 June 2007]: The UK Government fully support academic freedom and are firmly against any academic boycotts of Israel or Israeli academics. While I appreciate the independence of the UCU, I am very disappointed that the union has decided to pass a motion which encourages its members to consider boycotting Israeli academics and education institutions. I profoundly believe this does nothing to promote the middle east peace process, in fact the reverse. Within both Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories there are both progressives and reactionaries. The problem with academic boycotts and the problem with what the UCU is proposing is that it makes the job of the progressives more difficult and it could reinforce the stance of those who take a hard line position.

I have recently returned from a visit to Israel where I met with both Israeli and Palestinian academics. These discussions have reinforced my view that a boycott would be inconsistent with the spirit of openness and tolerance that should inform public life. Education plays a vital role in developing and aiding understanding between different people. It is therefore all the more important to keep open channels of communication with academics and educational institutions during these difficult times.

As an independent body, the union would be free to take any action, within the law, voted for by its members. UCU members, like all HE employees, must behave in accordance with their institution's own anti-discrimination policies and the UK's wider legislative framework on employment and equality.

Educational Maintenance Allowance: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many young people were in receipt of educational maintenance allowance in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since its introduction. [130951]

Phil Hope: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the DFES and hold the information about take-up and payments made under the scheme. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive has written to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 11 April 2007:

I am writing in response to your recent parliamentary question that asked; "How many young people have been in receipt of educational maintenance allowance in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since its introduction?"

The answer to this question was covered in my letter dated 21 March 2007. I have enclosed a copy for your information.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 21 March 2007:

I am writing in response to your parliamentary questions 125444 and 125465 that asked: " How many people in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex have received an educational maintenance allowance" and; " How many young people in Eastbourne received an educational maintenance allowance in each year since the introduction of the allowance "

Information on the number of young people who have applied, enrolled and received one or more Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) payment is available at Local Authority level, but not at district level.

The following table shows EMA take-up for East Sussex local authority area during each academic year since the introduction of the allowance. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payments in the academic year

Take-up of EMA in each academic year

East Sussex	Number
2004-05	2,195
2005-06	3,854
2006-07 to end February	4,735

I hope this information is useful and addresses your question.

Foundation Degrees

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to his speech on Second Reading of the Further Education and Training Bill on 21 May 2007, Official Report, columns 994-1003, what modelling has been undertaken by his Department which shows that (a) more students will take foundation degrees if further education (FE) colleges are able to award them and (b) FE colleges will be able to respond more quickly to the needs of employers if the Bill is enacted. [141243]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 11 June 2007]: We have not undertaken "modelling" to show this. Our decision to introduce new powers for the leading colleges to award their own foundation degrees was based on discussions with providers and employers; and is consistent too with our general view that education providers in all sectors perform better the less they are subject to restriction. The legislation removes an unnecessary constraint on the leading providers of foundation degrees within the FE sector, while establishing strong safeguards to protect quality and the international reputation of our degrees.

Higher Education: West Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many entrants to university undergraduate courses came from West Lancashire constituency in each of the last five years. [143522]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is shown in the following table. Figures for 2006/07 will be available in January 2008.

Entrants to undergraduate courses[1] from West Lancashire parliamentary constituency, UK higher education institutions, academic years 2001/02 to 2005/06

Academic year	Number of entrants
2001/02	1,090
2002/03	1,100
2003/04	1,215
2004/05	1,200
2005/06	1,285

[1] Covers students on full-time and part-time modes of study.

Figures are on a HESA standard registration population basis and are rounded to the nearest five.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the participation rate in higher education was of people aged 18 to 21 years in West Lancashire constituency in each year since 1997. [143527]

Bill Rammell: The main measure for tracking progress on increasing participation is currently the Higher Education Initial Participation Rate (HEIPR). This is the sum of the HE initial participation rates for individual ages between 17 and 30 inclusive. It covers English-domiciled [redacted]-time entrants to HE courses, which are expected to last for at least six months, at UK higher education institutions and English, Scottish and Welsh further education colleges, and who remain on their course for at least six months. The initial participation rates for 18 to 21-year-olds can be derived from the HEIPR and the figures are shown in the following table:

HE initial participation rate for 18 to 21-year-olds

	18 to 21-year-old initial participation rate (percentage)
1999/2000	32 (32.4)
2000/01	33 (33.0)
2001/02	34 (33.6)
2002/03	34 (33.8)
2003/04	33 (32.9)
2004/05	33 (33.3)
2005/06	35 (35.1)

Note: The HEIPR is usually published to the nearest integer, but the figures are included to one decimal place to inform comparisons over time.

The HEIPR is available for English-domiciled students only, and it is not broken down by smaller areas.

The latest available figures on participation by local areas were published by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) in January 2005 in "Young Participation in Higher Education", which is available from the HEFCE website at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/pubs/hefce/2005/05_03/

The HEFCE report shows participation rates for young people who enter higher education aged 18 or 19 disaggregated by parliamentary constituency, local education authority (LEA) and Government Office Region for the years 1997 to 2000.

Figures taken from this report for the West Lancashire constituency, together with the comparable figure for England, are shown in the following table:

Young participation rate (YPR (A))

Percentage

Government office region/country	Year cohort aged 18 in: 1997	1998	1999	2000
West Lancashire	33	32	32	33
England	29	29	29	30

Lip Reading: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of the costs for lip-reading classes are met by the Learning and Skills Council; and whether individual funding of learners differs by (a) age of learner and (b) degree of disability. [132055]

Bill Rammell: There is an assumed fee contribution for all further education provision funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC), including courses in lip-reading. For 2007/08 the assumed fee element will be 37.5 per cent. meaning that LSC funding will continue to account for at least 62.5 per cent. of the cost of all LSC funded FE courses. A large number of learners also benefit from full fee remission including all 16 to 18-year-olds and those on means-tested benefits including those in receipt of the Pension (Guarantee) Credit.

Additional Learner Support (ALS) funding is available from the LSC in order for providers to meet the additional needs of their learners, including those with learning difficulties and/or disabilities. The LSC also funds placements in specialist colleges for learners with learning difficulties and/or disabilities based on the learning and specialist support they require.

With the exception of the rules on fee remission individual funding does not differ according to age, although providers have discretion over the level of the fees they charge and many providers will have their own local fee remission policies in place. For instance in 2004/05 more than 80 per cent. of lip-reading courses were free to learners either as a result of national policy or the discretion of the provider.

Learners who do not qualify for free tuition can still receive support from Learner Support Funds administered directly by colleges. Learners with learning difficulties and/or disabilities, including those with hearing impairments, are given priority for these funds especially where they are at risk of not taking up or continuing in Further Education.

Midwives: Qualifications

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 706W, on midwives: qualifications, if he will make a statement on the progress made in transposing the Recognition of Professional Qualifications Directive into regulations. [143161]

Bill Rammell: Transposing regulations have been drafted by all the Departments concerned. Consultation is at various stages. The Department of Health consultation runs from 25 May until 17 August.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what timetable he has for matching spending per pupil in the maintained school sector with funding for pupils in the independent educational sector. [142682]

Jim Knight: The Government's long-term ambition is for all pupils to have access to the same level of support and opportunities that are currently available to pupils in the independent sector. In this context, the Government will aim—over time, and adjusting for inflation—to increase levels of funding towards today's private sector day school levels.

The Comprehensive Spending Review settlement for education announced in Budget 2007 allows the Government to take a significant further step towards this ambition, with total per pupil resource and capital funding rising from under £2,500 cash in 1997-98 to £4,800 in 2005-06, £5,550 in 2007-08 and £6,600 in 2010-11.

Progress over future spending reviews will depend on the Government's fiscal position, demographic change, and progress by schools in continuing to deliver improvements in results and wider support for parents and pupils.

Science: Higher Education

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many university science departments closed in each of the last 10 years; and what steps he is taking to seek to prevent further closures. [143561]

Bill Rammell: Information on the closure, merger or opening of particular university departments is not collected by the Department. However, some science subjects are starting to become more popular and the measures we are taking to increase demand and the extra £75 million announced last year should help to sustain capacity as demand increases. We have consistently made clear that if a science department closes at one institution, the Higher Education Funding Council for England should seek to maintain capacity elsewhere and we announced last year that the Council should report to us on how provision can be maintained in this way.

The latest figures from UCAS for students applying to enter full-time undergraduate courses in 2007 show that applications for the main science subjects have risen significantly: Physics is up by 12 per cent., chemistry by 11 per cent. and biology by 6 per cent.

Sure Start Programme

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many Sure Start children's centres have been set up; and what assessment he has made of progress towards the Government's target to have 2,500 centres by the end of 2008. [143553]

Beverley Hughes: As of 14 June 2007 there were 1,306 designated Sure Start Children's Centres and we are on track to meet our target of delivering 2,500 centres by 2008. DfES have appointed the consortium, Together for Children, to work with local authorities to help build their capacity to plan, commission and project manage the roll-out of sustainable high quality children's centres. Support plans are being implemented with the agreement of all 150 local authorities, with the level and type of support tailored to their individual needs.

Vocational Education: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the impact on attendance rates in education to employment and other vocational courses of the replacement of training grants by educational maintenance allowances. [139287]

Phil Hope: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. Mark Haysom, the Council's chief executive has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 18 June 2007:

I am writing in response to your recent Parliamentary Question that asked "what assessment he has made of the impact on attendance rates in education to employment and other vocational courses of the replacement of training grants by educational maintenance allowances".

Attendance rate data was not recorded at a national level on programmes where training allowances were paid prior to the introduction of Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA).

Attendance rates of those learners in receipt of EMA have been recorded since its introduction. Attendance rate refers to the percentage of EMA payments made each week as a result of the learner meeting the agreed attendance criteria with their learning provider. The average weekly attendance rate on programmes where EMA replaced training allowances is 85.0% for the academic year 2006/07 to the end of April.

Vocational Guidance

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to establish an all-age strategy for career advice and guidance public service provision in England following the recommendations of the Leitch Review of Skills. [143120]

Phil Hope: We will set out the Government's response to the recommendations of the Leitch Review of Skills in an implementation plan to be published in the summer.

Westminster Kingsway College: Finance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect on (a) level 1 and (b) other entry level places available at Westminster Kingsway College of budget changes; and what assessment he has made of the financial position of Westminster Kingsway College. [139781]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 4 June 2007]: We have increased investment in further education by 48 per cent. in real terms between 1997 and 2006. In line with our Skills Strategy, first set out in the Skills White Paper 2003, public funding needs to be focused on helping those without the basic and level 2 skills for employment and further progression in learning. This is a planned and continuing strategy to respond to the skills challenges we have as a country. As part of this strategy, my Department recognises the importance of colleges maintaining provision at lower levels to support progression and flow through to higher levels.

The Department does not hold information on publicly funded post-16 places at local or regional levels. Mark Haysom, the Learning and Skills Council's Chief Executive has written to the hon. Member with the information you have requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 11 June 2007:

I am writing in relation to your request for information about the effect of budget changes upon Westminster Kingsway College and in particular the assessments of effect on level 1 and other entry level places, and the assessment of the financial position of the college.

The 2007/08 budget allocated to Westminster Kingsway College is £25.8m, which compares to £25.9m in 2006/07. Whilst this is a marginal reduction in recurrent funding between years, it should be noted that the college would need to meet the annual cost of living increase from within its budget.

In return for the budget, the LSC has agreed stretching targets with the college to increase the proportion of full Level 2 places in 2007/08. Across the college sector in London, there is a comparatively high volume of places at entry and level 1, in particular ESOL, but there are fewer places available at level 2. There is a high proportion of the adult population who are low skilled and the LSC with colleges is keen to support employability both amongst disadvantaged groups and those in low skilled employment. To do this, it is important that there is a balance of vocational programmes at lower and higher levels. In 2005/06, some two thirds of adult provision at Westminster Kingsway College was ESOL and we wish to work with the college to achieve a range of vocational places and different levels leading into employment and higher skills.

In recognition of this change and the impact on the existing profile of provision, the LSC with its partner, the London Development Agency, has agreed a £15m package of ESOL Support Funding to ensure that entry and level 1 ESOL places are sustained in 2007/08. The consequence of this additional funding will be that the budget for Westminster Kingsway College is unlikely to show a reduction in real terms against 2006/07. In view of this outcome, we do not envisage that the financial health of the college will be adversely impacted by the 2007/08 budget change.

If you have any further questions about this matter, do please contact Christopher Wright at the London Central area office on 0207 904 0729.

Young People: West Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what proportion of young people in West Lancashire constituency were not in education, employment or training in each of the last 10 years; [143520]

(2) how many people not in employment, education or training were aged (a) under 19, (b) under 21 and (c) under 25 years in West Lancashire constituency in each year since 1997. [143528]

Bill Rammell: The following table gives the estimated proportion of 16 to 18-year-olds not in education, employment or training (NEET) in the Lancashire local authority area in each of the last three years:

Proportion of 16 to 18-year-olds NEET

	Percentage
2004	7.9
2005	8.1
2006	7.7

These figures are drawn from the client management systems maintained by Connexions services. Local authority level information is available only from 2004, and is not available for the West Lancashire constituency area. Comparable figures are not available for older ages.

Connexions data relate to young people known to the service; those who attended independent schools or were at school outside England are unlikely to be included. The age relates to those of calendar year age 16 to 18 on the date of measurement.

These figures cannot be compared with the national figures published by the Department and used to measure the NEET PSA. Along with not covering the entire population, the Connexions NEET measure excludes those on gap years, or in custody. The PSA measure is for academic rather than calendar age 16 to 18.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to eradicate the poppy crop in Afghanistan; and if she will make a statement. [142719]

Dr. Howells: The UK is spending £270 million over three years in support of the Afghan Government's national drug control strategy (NDCS), to bring about a sustainable reduction in the cultivation, production and trafficking of opium. This includes £130 million on efforts to provide alternative legal livelihoods, introducing new, innovative and sustainable ways for farmers to make a living. The NDCS is a well balanced strategy with four key priorities—targeting the trafficker; strengthening and diversifying legal rural livelihoods; reducing demand; and developing state institutions. As Afghanistan's partner nation on counter narcotics we are helping the Afghans sharpen the implementation of the NDCS and encourage international partners to provide continued support and resources.

Burma: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to promote the passage of a resolution on Burma at the UN Human Rights Council in September. [142609]

Mr. McCartney: We have repeatedly raised our concerns about the serious human rights situation in Burma. We co-sponsored a UN Security Council Resolution on Burma in January. However the resolution was not adopted, as two permanent members of the Security Council—China and Russia—voted against, as did South Africa.

We agree that the UN Human Rights Council (HRC) should address the situation in Burma. On 13 March I raised the serious human rights situation in Burma in my address to the HRC in Geneva. The EU raised Burma at the HRC on 23 March, expressing concern about the situation and calling for the release of all political prisoners and an end to the systematic human rights abuses in Burma. The EU also took part in discussions with the UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights in Burma at the March session of the HRC.

We will continue to discuss with our EU partners about how to take the most effective action on Burma at the HRC.

Cambodia: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the (a) UK, (b) EU and (c) UN has pledged to aid the bringing to trial of those involved in the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia; and when she expects talks on procedural issues to be resolved. [143224]

Mr. McCartney: The UK is a strong supporter of the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia, also known as the Khmer Rouge Tribunal, established under an agreement between the Royal Government of Cambodia and the UN. The purpose of the Tribunal is to bring to trial those most responsible for serious violations of Cambodian and international law and custom during the period from 17 April 1975 to 6 January 1979.

The Tribunal is a hybrid model composed of national and international elements and costs are funded through voluntary contributions. To date, the UK has contributed £1.5 million. The UK is also active in meetings of interested states in New York and Phnom Penh. Other EU states (Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Luxembourg, Netherlands and Sweden) are also supporting the Tribunal and we encourage others to do so. The UN Office of Legal Affairs is closely involved in the management of the court.

A Plenary Session in Phnom Penh of national and international judicial officers unanimously adopted The Internal Rules of Procedure on 12 June, further paving the way for the process of holding fair and transparent trials.

Chad: Overseas Aid

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response the Government have made to France's request for EU partners to send a force of 12,000 troops to Chad to provide aid for civilians seeking refuge from the Darfur conflict. [142555]

Mr. McCartney: We support renewed French efforts to improve the humanitarian situation in eastern Chad. The UK has long supported the proposal for a UN deployment to Chad, including through adoption of UN Security Council Resolution 1706, and welcomes initial preparatory work in this direction by the UN Secretary-General. The UK is prepared to consider other proposals to move the situation forward, including the possibility of an EU role, although no formal request for such a role has yet been made and force numbers have not been discussed.

We remain very concerned about the humanitarian and security situation in eastern Chad. We are particularly concerned about: increasing levels of internal displacement due to inter-ethnic fighting and cross-border attacks from Darfur; the protection of refugees and internally displaced people; the security environment for humanitarian agency operations; and the fragility of the natural resource base to support displaced populations. We and our international partners continue to urge the Chadian government to accept a UN mission.

Chad: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the UK has made (a) unilaterally and (b) multilaterally through the (i) UN and (ii) EU to encourage Chad to allow international peacekeeping troops to deploy along its common border with Sudan. [143229]

Mr. McCartney: Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and our high commission in Yaounde (which represents our interests in Chad) visit Chad regularly, most recently at the beginning of June, and raise the issue of UN deployment. A UK delegation, including the UK Ambassador-at-Large for the Sudanese Peace Proce[illegible] visited N'Djamena in February. The delegation met the Chadian Foreign Minister and senior officials of the Government of Chad and took the opportunity to impress on them the need for Chad to accept a UN mission.

On 16 April my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for UN Security Council agreement to a UN peacekeeping operation in Chad, as called for under UN Security Council Resolution 1706. We are working with the UN and partners in the Security Council to seek to address any concerns raised by the Government of Chad about the possible deployment of a UN peacekeeping force, including by sending a UN team to visit Chad. The UK and EU partners have supported a UN mission to Chad in the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council conclusions, for example on 23 April, calling for its urgent deployment.

China: International Relations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has held with representatives of the Chinese Government on the situation in (a) Darfur and (b) Burma. [143231]

Mr. McCartney: We regularly discuss Darfur with the Chinese Government, including at the UN. We want China to use its influence with the Sudanese Government to ensure Khartoum supports the deployment of joint UN peacekeeping forces in Darfur, as well as committing to a ceasefire and renewed political process. We gave this message to the Chinese Government before President Hu's visit to Africa earlier this year. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised Sudan with the Chinese Government during her trip there last month, as did my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister during his visit to China in April.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the Chinese Government about Burma. However, she urged China, in a speech to the Central Party School, to use its influence to improve the situation in Burma when she visited Beijing on 17 May. I discussed the human rights situation in Burma with the Chinese Government on 20 June 2006 and again during my visit to Beijing in July 2006.

Cyprus: Military Bases

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place in the last 12 months between the UK Government and the Government of Cyprus on the status of the British Sovereign base areas in Cyprus. [143051]

Mr. Hoon: No formal discussions have taken place in the last 12 months between the Government and the Government of the Republic of Cyprus on the status of the Sovereign Base Area (SBAs). The UK's sovereignty over the bases, reaffirmed in the 1960 Treaty of Establishment, is not in question.

The offer under the Annan Plan to cede part of the territory of the SBAs to a reunited Republic of Cyprus fell away following the failure of the plan. But we will look favourably on renewing the offer as part of a future settlement.

The Sovereign Base Area administration maintains open and regular dialogue with the Republic of Cyprus, with excellent co-operation on a range of issues.

Departments: Mittal Steel

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which events held by (a) her Department and (b) UK embassies have been sponsored by Mittal Steel since 1997. [141910]

Mr. McCartney: The Indian company Mittal Steel has not sponsored any events held at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, at our High Commission in New Delhi, or at other British diplomatic posts in India. Information on sponsored events hosted at British diplomatic posts is not held centrally; to conduct a survey of other posts throughout the world would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Official Engagements

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) external and (b) internal appointments (i) she and (ii) her Ministers attended in each week of March 2007. [130987]

Margaret Beckett: Ministers and civil servants meet a large number of people and groups in the course of their official duties. Cabinet, Cabinet Committee and parliamentary commitments of Ministers are already in the public domain. Details of all Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Ministers' meetings with external interest groups for the period the right hon. Member has specified follow. However, it is not standard practice for Ministers to disclose details of internal meetings and meetings with foreign governments and international organisations as this may prejudice the effective conduct of public affairs and formulation of Government policy.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Lord Triesman of Tottenham)

22 March—Members of the National Executive Committee—(to discuss Columbia).

Departments: Remploy

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) services and (b) products her Department has procured from Remploy in the last 12 months; and at what cost. [143795]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has no record of procuring services or products from Remploy in the last 12 months.

Deportation

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether HM High Commission in Kingston has (a) served a notice of refusal against revocation of a deportation order on Mr. E.A., husband of Mrs. J.A. of Aylesbury (reference A505053), and (b) supplied Mr. E.A. with information about his rights of appeal. [142630]

Dr. Howells: Our high commission in Kingston has not served a refusal notice or any associated appeal papers to Mr. E.A. against the revocation of his deportation order; the high commission has not yet received the refusal notice from the Home Office Border and Immigration Agency.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether HM High Commission in Kingston has received from the Home Office Immigration and Nationality Directorate the notices of refusal and associated papers concerning the application for revocation of a deportation order by Mr. E.A., husband of Mrs. J.A. of Aylesbury (reference A505053). [142631]

Dr. Howells: Our high commission in Kingston has not received the refusal notice or any associated papers from the Home Office Border and Immigration Agency concerning the application for revocation of a deportation order by Mr. E.A. UKvisas has contacted the Border and Immigration Agency to request a new copy of the refusal notice for the high commission to serve to Mr. E.A. as soon as possible.

Diplomatic Relations

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which nations have been in breach of the Vienna Convention in their dealings with UK citizens since 1 May 1997; and if she will make a statement. [143044]

Dr. Howells: Under the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations, states are under an obligation, when requested to do so by a foreign national arrested or detained, to notify their consular representatives and that consular representatives shall be free to communicate with nationals of the sending state and to have access to them.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not keep a central record of those states which may have breached this obligation. But we take very seriously any complaint that signatories to the Convention have not fulfilled this obligation, and we will continue to make representations with host Governments on a case by case basis. We also work with host Governments to promote greater awareness of their obligation with regard to British nationals among their law enforcement authorities, for example poster campaigns where posters are displayed in local police stations.

East Timor: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to assist in ensuring that parliamentary elections in East Timor are free and fair. [143227]

Mr. McCartney: The UK is working through the UN Security Council to ensure that the East Timorese parliamentary elections are held in a free and fair manner. We supported the Security Council statement which was issued following the successful presidential elections, calling upon all parties in East Timor to ensure that the upcoming parliamentary elections scheduled for 30 June take place in a free, fair and peaceful environment.

The EU has deployed an Election Observer Mission, including one British national, to East Timor for a period of five weeks, to observe and report on the forthcoming elections.

In addition an official from our embassy in Jakarta will visit East Timor shortly to stress the importance of ensuring that the elections are free and fair.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings the British ambassador in Jakarta has had with (a) the UN Mission in East Timor and (b) the East Timorese Government to discuss the conduct of the parliamentary elections. [143228]

Mr. McCartney: Our ambassador in Jakarta has not had any meetings with the UN Mission to East Timor (UNMIT) or the East Timorese Government specifically to discuss the conduct of the forthcoming parliamentary elections in East Timor. An official from our embassy in Jakarta will visit Dili shortly and plans to raise this issue with UNMIT and the East Timorese Government, and highlight the importance of ensuring the elections are conducted in a fair and peaceful manner.

We welcome the fact that all the 16 competing parties have signed both an electoral Code of Conduct and a Political Party Accord, committing themselves to due process in the elections and democratic principles of governance after them. We continue to work through the UN, and with EU partners, to support the democratic process in East Timor.

European Constitution Treaty

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her (a) Polish and (b) Czech counterparts on the EU Constitution. [140220]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have frequent contact will all our EU counterparts, including Polish and Czech Foreign Ministers. Discussions cover a wider range of issues, including the way forward on EU institutional reform.

G8

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will (a) place in the Library copies of all documents circulated by the United Kingdom at the G8 Heads of Government meeting in Heiligendamm, (b) publish those documents on the appropriate departmental website and (c) give the URL of each document so published. [143308]

Mr. McCartney: The German G8 Presidency circulated all documents at the G8 Heads of Government meeting in Heiligendamm. Copies of all final summit communiqués have been placed in the Library of the House. Further copies can be found at: http://www.g-8.de/Webs/G8/EN/G8Summit/SummitDocuments/summit-documents.html.

India: Burma

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has held with representatives of the Indian Government on the situation in Burma. [143232]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no recent discussions with the Indian Government about Burma.

We raise Burma at official level with the Government of India as part of our regular dialogue with the Indians on regional security. We encourage India to use their contacts with the regime to make strong messages on the need to restore democracy and respect human rights.

Most recently, I raised Burma with the Indian Minister of State in the Ministry of External Affairs in New Delhi on 27 November 2006.

Saudi Arabia: Detainees

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK citizens were held at the Mabatha Interrogation Centre in Saudi Arabia in each year since 1990; and if she will make a statement. [143053]

Dr. Howells: Our embassy in Riyadh is unaware of a specific place called the Mabatha Interrogation Centre, but is aware that UK citizens have been detained by the Mubahith, the General Investigations Department of the Ministry of Interior, which has offices across Saudi Arabia. Although consular records are only retained for three years, we are aware of at least nine cases since 2001.

Saudi Arabia: Diplomatic Relations

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions since 1995 the Saudi Government has refused to grant UK consular access to UK citizens held in custody in Saudi Arabia; and if she will make a statement. [143054]

Dr. Howells: Consular records are only held for a period of three years. Although we are aware of delays in getting consular access to detained British nationals during this period, to our knowledge the Saudi Arabian Government has never refused access.

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions since 1 May 1997 the UK Government has made representations to the Government of Saudi Arabia about human rights abuses; and if she will make a statement. [143045]

Dr. Howells: We regularly discuss our concerns about human rights with the Saudi authorities at all levels. Human rights are also raised on our behalf by the European Union, which has decided to keep the details of these discussions confidential.

Saudi Arabia: Terrorism

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the funding which has been accrued by the Al Qaeda terrorist network from charitable bodies in Saudi Arabia; and if she will make a statement. [143046]

Dr. Howells: Preventing the misuse of charitable organisations for the financing of terrorist groups, including Al-Qaeda, is an important part of the international counter-terrorism effort.

Our international counter-terrorism partners, including Saudi Arabia, are concerned that terrorists are able to send and receive funds, often through abuses of the charitable sector, from sources in many countries. A number of Saudi Arabian based charities are currently designated on the UN Consolidated List established and maintained by the 1267 Committee with respect to Al-Qaeda, Osama bin Laden, the Taliban and other individuals, groups, and entities associated with them.

The Saudi Arabian authorities are committed to tackling the threat from terrorism and we work closely with them on all aspects of the counter-terrorism agenda.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is currently funding a £1.2 million International Programme run by the UK Charity Commission that works to reduce the risk of misuse of the charitable sector for terrorist financing. They provide technical assistance and capacity building for the regulatory systems in a number of countries, including Saudi Arabia.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether investigations by the UK Government and their agencies have shown that any terrorist activities since 11 September 2001 have been funded by groups based in Saudi Arabia; and if she will make a statement. [143269]

Dr. Howells: The Government are concerned that terrorists are able to send and receive funds from sources in many countries. As a matter of course, we do not comment in detail on ongoing counter-terrorism investigations.

The authorities in Saudi Arabia have introduced and are developing a programme to take action to tackle terrorist financing. They have introduced tighter banking regulations and are seeking to ensure that donations from charitable organisations in the Kingdom are directed in accordance with international requirements. Saudi Arabia is one of the UK's key partners in counter-terrorism and we enjoy a high level of co-operation across the spectrum, including countering terrorist financing.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the human rights situation in Sri Lanka; and if she will make a statement. [142949]

Dr. Howells: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Edmonton (Mr. Love) on 5 June, Official Report, column 460W.

The disgraceful abduction and murder of two Red Cross volunteers, whose bodies were discovered on 2 June, and the constant reports of disappearances in Colombo and Jaffna suggest a continuing deterioration in the situation. There is no justification for terrorism or the abuse of human rights no matter which side is responsible for them.

Thailand: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the (a) likely date for a general election in Thailand and (b) dissolution of Thai Rak Thai political party. [143237]

Mr. McCartney: A referendum on the new constitution is due to be held on 19 August. The general election is due to take place on 23 December.

On 30 May the Constitutional Tribunal ruled that the Thai Rak Thai (TRT) party was guilty of violating the Political Party Act. As a consequence, the tribunal dissolved the TRT and revoked the political rights of all their executive members at the time of the 2 April 2006 general election for five years. The only right they retained is the right to be an ordinary member of a political party.

Uganda: Corruption

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports she has received on the theft in Uganda of $1.6 million from Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunisation. [142889]

Mr. McCartney: On 22 May, arrest warrants were issued for three former Health Ministers (Jim Muhwesi, Mike Mukula and Alex Kamugisha) and a former State House official (Alice Kaboyo) for the misappropriation of Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunisation funds. This followed an investigation carried out by the Ugandan Inspector General of Government. The accused have been charged with various offences including abuse of office, theft, and forgery, and their trial is due to commence on 16 July. I cannot comment further as the matter is sub judice.

Corruption remains a serious problem in Uganda and we welcome all steps taken by the Ugandan authorities to investigate thoroughly corruption allegations and to seek prosecutions where the evidence allows. Our High Commissioner in Kampala most recently discussed the need for action against corruption with President Museveni on 10 May.

Vietnam: Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the Government of Vietnam for assurances that it will not enforce the instructions to local authorities to compel Protestants in the northern highlands to recant their religious beliefs. [143238]

Mr. McCartney: We, with our EU partners, regularly discuss human rights issues, including religious freedom, with the Vietnamese Government. The biannual EU-Vietnam Human Rights Dialogue, which was established in 2003, is the main forum for raising our concerns. The most recent dialogue was held on 20 December 2006. Freedom of religion, restrictions on religious organisations and the situation of ethnic minority Protestant groups were among the issues raised by the EU. The next EU-Vietnam Human Rights Dialogue is scheduled to take place on 28 June.

We are aware of reports of the continued harassment of some religious groups in some areas. We have urged the Vietnamese authorities to increase awareness and capacity among local authorities and to guarantee the right of all religious groups to practise their faith freely in the community through full implementation of the appropriate legislation and to adhere to its international human rights obligations. Regulations in force since 2004 establish criteria for the recognition of hitherto non-sanctioned religious groups. We remain concerned that progress in registering congregations in the northern uplands in particular remains slow.

On 18 May, senior officials from our Embassy in Hanoi, and several other EU missions, raised our specific concerns with the Vietnamese Government authority responsible for registering religious organisations. Additionally, I raised human rights issues at a recent bilateral with Vietnamese Vice Minister Le Cung Phung during the EU/Association of South East Asian Nations Foreign Ministers Meeting on 14 and 15 March.

Western European Union

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to ensure that UK contributions to the Western European Union Parliamentary Assembly are paid when due. [143767]

Mr. Hoon: UK contributions to the Western European Union (WEU) are paid twice yearly on request from the WEU. Our latest payment was delayed because there is no record of the original WEU request being received. To help avoid delayed payments in the future, we have asked the WEU to establish a system for monitoring the delivery of payment requests.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: Consultants

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what expenses are paid to consultants working for his Department in Burma in addition to their basic pay. [142604]

Mr. Thomas: Expenses paid to consultants are to reimburse reasonable expenditure necessary for undertaking the assignment—for example, travel and subsistence costs. These are specified in the contract agreed in advance with each consultant.

Burma: Corruption

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what monitoring and auditing of UN Development Programme projects in Burma funded by his Department takes place to counter corruption and to ensure that funds do not end up in the hands of the regime. [142605]

Mr. Thomas: All UN Development Programme (UNDP) work in Burma is carried out in compliance with guidelines established by its Executive Board. These stipulate that all UNDP assistance to Burma should be clearly targeted towards programmes having grass-roots-level impact in a sustainable manner, particularly in the areas of primary health care, the environment, HIV/AIDS, training and education and food security.

In order to deliver this mandate, UNDP has established the Human Development Initiative (HDI), funded by DFID and other donors, with the objective of meeting basic needs and alleviating poverty in some of the poorest areas of Burma. In accordance with the Executive Board restrictions, UNDP does not transfer funds to the Burmese authorities. However, like other international organisations operating in Burma, UNDP has been required to purchase items such as fuel and telecommunications services and pay rent for its premises, and the authorities remain the sole provider of such services.

UNDP has a network of approximately 1,500 national staff based in the 57 townships in which the HDI operates in Burma. These staff—at the state/division level, township level and community level—undertake extensive routine process monitoring for all project activities. They are involved in all aspects of implementation, verification of accounts and expenditures, review of problems, and provision of technical support to ensure effective implementation. Their monitoring is supplemented by national programme managers, which in turn is overseen by UNDP international staff who also regularly visit programme sites. No difficulty has been encountered in such monitoring on account of any Government control or restrictions. National staff can travel freely; they do not have to ask for travel permission and are not accompanied by counterpart or local officials in the performance of their project work. Internationals do have to ask for permission but there has been no case when permission has been denied. Furthermore, the formulation of the Operating Guidelines by the Government (February 2006) has not had any significant impact on UNDP's ability to engage effectively in the field, or to abide by its Executive Board mandate, adhering to humanitarian principles.

On the basis of their programme monitoring, UNDP provides DFID with periodic written progress reports on HDI activities. This includes substantive information on activities, achievements, challenges/issues and recommendations as required, as well as budgetary information. A detailed financial report accounting for the previous tranche of support from DFID is necessary before the next tranche is provided to UNDP. Donors themselves carry out an annual joint assessment mission to review the HDI programme. Further ad hoc fieldtrips are made by donors to project sites—in DFID's case, about four times a year.

Finally, in order to ensure compliance with the Executive Board mandate, independent assessments of the HDI are carried out regularly and reported to the Executive Board. The assessment teams include a team of external consultants who undertake 3-4 week field trips to prepare their report. The report for the period May 2006 to April 2007 is now being finalised and will be presented to the Executive Board in September 2007. The initial findings conclude that the HDI programme is in full compliance with the Executive Board mandate and addresses the needs of the poor and vulnerable in rural areas of Burma with humanitarian assistance. The 2006 Assessment—covering the period 2005-06—also echoes the conclusion of previous reports, namely, that the HDI programme effectively provides humanitarian support on a large scale and that "all projects operate independently of the Government and target the village-level groups and needs described in the [EB] mandate."

The full report can be found on the Executive Board website at:

www.undp.org/execbrd/adv2006-second.htm

Burma: International Assistance

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many grants have been given to the UN Development Programme for projects in Burma in the last four years; for what purposes; and to what value. [142606]

Mr. Thomas: In the last four years, DFID has funded the following projects implemented by the UN Development Programme in Burma:

£10 million over four years (2003 to 2007) support to the Fund for HIV/AIDS in Myanmar—which was managed by UN Development Programme—to enhance capacity for the prevention and care of people living with HIV/AIDS.

£4 million over four years (2005 to 2009) to the UN Development Programme's Human Development Initiative to strengthen the capacity of poor communities to address their basic needs, particularly those of the poor and disadvantaged.

£110,000 (2004) and £67,000 (2006) to part-fund a liaison officer within the UN Development Programme to improve coordination and effectiveness of development agencies providing assistance to Burma.

Burma: Overseas Aid

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects to announce the annual budget from his Department for Burma for 2008-09. [142607]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's 2008-09 budget is subject to the conclusions of the Comprehensive Spending Review, which is expected to be announced in October 2007. Subsequent individual country programme budgets are expected to be announced in January 2008.

Colombia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to make aid available to Colombia following recent flooding in Antioquia province. [143236]

Mr. Thomas: We have been monitoring the flooding in Colombia. The Colombian authorities have announced that they are providing relief and have not requested international assistance. There has been no international appeal for help by the international agencies. Should any such request be made we will consider a response.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much revenue his Department received from advertisements on its (a) public information leaflets and (b) public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [142340]

Mr. Thomas: The only publication that DFID has received advertising revenue from is the free quarterly magazine "Developments". Due to changes in accounting practices, figures are only available from 2003 onwards. To establish figures from 1997 onwards would incur disproportionate cost. "Developments" magazine only accepts advertising from educational or training institutions. The figures are given in the following table.

2003	19,787.00
2004	30,455.66
2005	29,025.80
2006	42,524.20

Figures are not yet available for 2007.

DFID has never run any adverts on its corporate website.

Developing Countries: Construction

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding and resources the UK has pledged to the construction sector transparency initiative. [142533]

Mr. Thomas: Working with partners internationally and in a number of developing countries, DFID has led the development of the construction sector transparency initiative (CoST).

Corruption and inefficiency caused by corruption wastes billions of dollars of public money and leads to poor quality schools, hospitals and roads which do not meet people's needs.

CoST aims to make sure people get good quality, sustainable infrastructure at a reasonable price from the money which Government spend on their behalf. The starting point will be provision of clear information which allows the public to compare original contract commitments about price and quality of planned infrastructure with the actual results—allowing them to ask the right questions about any wastage or poor, or non-existent, work.

Working with stakeholders in Vietnam, Ghana and Tanzania, as well as international partners (European Commission, World Bank, and others), industry and international civil society, we now have an outline design ready to be tested through country pilots.

CoST builds on the success of the extractive industries transparency initiative (EITI) by applying principles of transparency and accountability to construction procurement.

Application of EITI principles to other sectors was supported by G8 countries at the recent Heiligendamm summit, and their specific application to the construction sector was a commitment in the 2006 International Development White Paper.

DFID has committed £0.5 million this year to support the CoST design and pilots. As pilots progress we will assess the wider resources needed and DFID will work with other donors and development partners to secure the necessary resources to support CoST.

A major meeting for CoST partners will be held on 20 June, and be addressed by the Secretary of State. An official launch will take place in October, with the launch of pilots in around three countries to develop a model approach to increased transparency in construction procurement.

Developing Countries: Education

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many 10-year agreements under the Education for All initiative announced in April 2006 have been signed with developing countries since then; how much of the $15 billion fund earmarked has been delivered; and how many extra pupils are in education full-time in those countries. [142593]

Mr. Thomas: The authoritative source of global education data is the Education for All Global Monitoring Report. The 2007 report was published by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation in November 2006. It includes statistics by country of primary aged children enrolled at school up to the year 2004. This is the most recent source of global data available. Statistics up to the year 2005 will be available in the 2008 report which is due to be published by December 2007. Therefore, it is too soon to report on the additional numbers of children receiving an education in particular countries since the UK's education initiative launched in April 2006.

The UK education initiative involves the provision of long-term predictable support to education through a commitment of £8.5 billion over a 10-year period from April 2006. The amount of bilateral aid disbursed in support of education in developing countries for the financial year 2006-07 will be reported in DFID's Statistics on International Development to be published in October 2007. DFID's total spend on education also includes funds disbursed via multilateral organisations.

In launching the UK education initiative, we asked governments to prepare ambitious 10-year education sector plans to which donors should contribute funding support. In Africa, 25 countries are involved. Of these, to date, 17 have produced their plans. The Education for All Fast Tract Initiative (FTI), supported by 15 donors, is also supporting the development of education sector plans. The FTI's Education Programme Development Fund provides technical assistance to help with the preparation of plans and the Catalytic Fund for the implementation of endorsed plans. 31 countries have obtained FTI endorsement since its inception in 2002 and a further 30 countries are working towards endorsement in 2007 and 2008. The UK is contributing some £150 million through the FTI.

Since April 2006, the UK has announced 10-year agreements to support education plans in Ethiopia, Ghana, Mozambique and Tanzania totalling £646 million. The UK has also made recent commitments to support education plans in Burundi, DRC, India, Nepal, Sierra Leone and Somalia.

Developing Countries: Medical Treatments

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on his Department's proposals on a Medicines Transparency Alliance. [142532]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is working with a wide range of partners, including the World Health Organisation, developing country Governments, pharmaceutical companies and non-governmental organisation on the development of the Medicines Transparency Alliance (MeTA).

MeTA seeks to increase transparency over vital information on the price, quality and availability of essential medicines in developing countries so as to help tackle high prices, challenge corruption and address inefficiency. One third of the world's population lacks access to essential medicines. The prices patients pay are often much higher than the price agreed at procurement, with cumulative mark-ups of 300 per cent. not being uncommon as medicines move from procurement through storage, supply, distribution and ultimately to health centres and pharmacies. In addition, up to a third of medicines on the market in developing countries are fake.

Procurement and supply systems are generally opaque, meaning excessive price mark-ups, corruption and inefficiency can go unchallenged. Most people have little idea about what medicines should cost, or what a good-quality medicine looks like.

MeTA seeks to change this by securing high-level political commitment to increased transparency and accountability over medicines procurement and supply in countries that choose to take part, and by bringing the right people around the table—Government Departments, civil society organisations, companies and others—to agree ways of disclosing information on the price, the quality and the availability of essential medicines into the public arena, with the aim of ultimately reducing the cost, improving the quality and increasing the availability of medicines.

MeTA builds on the success of the extractive industries transparency initiative (EITI) by applying principles of transparency and accountability to medicines procurement and supply. Application of EITI principles to other sectors was supported by G8 countries at the recent Heiligendamm summit, and their specific application to the health sector was a commitment in the 2006 International Development White Paper.

A major stakeholder meeting for MeTA was held on 18 April, attended by all relevant groups and addressed by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development. An official launch will take place in the summer, with the launch of pilots in around five countries to develop a model approach to increased transparency and accountability in medicines procurement and supply.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Defence Equipment: Exports

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether export licences for military equipment are required by a (a) private individual and (b) museum or collection for the export of historic former military aircraft. [142129]

Malcolm Wicks: The requirement for an export licence is determined by the nature of the goods being exported, not the exporting entity. In general, military equipment, including historic former military aircraft, is highly likely to require an export licence but a definitive decision can only be given where detailed information is made available by the exporting entity in order to allow for a full assessment against the "UK Military List".

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many export licences for arms and other military equipment were applied for in the last three years for which figures are available; and how many applications were refused. [142132]

Malcolm Wicks: For the last three years for which figures are available, the Government received 5,385 (2004), 5,378 (2005) and 6,003 (2006) applications for Standard Individual Export Licences (SIELs), 486 (2004), 449 (2005) and 364 (2006) applications for Open Individual Export Licences (OIELs); for arms and other military equipment. In addition, there were 703 (2004), 434 (2005) and 354 (2006) registrations for Open General Export Licences (OGELs) for dual-use and military listed items.

The Government publishes detailed information on its export licensing decisions, including the total number of licences refused, in its Annual and Quarterly Reports on Strategic Export Controls. The Government's Annual Reports are available from the Libraries of the House and the DTI Export Control Organisation website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/europeandtrade/strategic-export-control/index.html

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much revenue his Department received from advertisements on his Department's (a) public information leaflets and (b) public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [140669]

Jim Fitzpatrick: These records are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140785]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department uses the guidelines for "Company Reporting on Greenhouse Gas Emissions" produced by DEFRA. These guidelines provide a set formula for calculation of carbon emissions from a variety of activities listed within the guidelines schedule.

To demonstrate the commitment and achievement in carbon reduction, up to year end March 2006, the Department and its executive agencies have made a 17 per cent. reduction since the base year 1999-2000, as published by BRE.

Dietary Supplements: EC Law

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his estimate is of the value of the specialist natural health product (a) manufacturing and (b) retailing sectors; what recent discussions he has had with representatives of these sectors on the regulatory and economic impact of European regulations on food supplements and associated issues; and if he will make a statement. [141950]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has recently carried out an informal consultation on an initial regulatory impact assessment that sets out the current position in the United Kingdom with respect to food supplements and seeks information from stakeholders to measure the potential impact in advance of future European Commission proposals for setting daily dosage levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements. The information will be used to inform the draft regulatory impact assessment, which will then be subject to a formal consultation process.

Based on the information provided by 25 May 2007, the FSA has not concluded on an estimate of the value of the natural health product sectors to date. I met with the specialist manufacturing and health food retail sectors in March 2007, to discuss the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals under Article 5 of the Food Supplements Directive and associated issues.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many civic amenity sites there are in England and Wales; and how many such sites will have facilities to collect waste electrical and electronic equipment under the EU Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [142772]

Malcolm Wicks: There are 807 civic amenity sites in England and Wales all of which will have facilities to collect waste electrical and electronic equipment. How much they collect will vary according to the size of the site.

Energy Technologies Institute: Wales

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 336W, on Energy Technologies Institute: Wales, in what ways the Welsh Energy Research Centre fell short against the selection criteria; and whether he expects there to be opportunities for the Welsh Energy Research Centre to collaborate with the Energy Technologies Institute in the future. [142442]

Malcolm Wicks: The submissions to host the Energy Technologies Institute (ETI) Director were considered in confidence by a group of representatives of the industrial and public sector funding partners. The group has already indicated that it will provide feed-back to those organisations which made a submission, if they so request.

There will be opportunities for energy research organisations to engage in the research activities of the ETI as the technical priorities begin to emerge over the course of the year.

Exhaust Emissions: Aviation

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if his Department will commission research and development into minimising (a) carbon dioxide emissions and (b) general environmental impacts caused by commercial aircraft engines. [140603]

Margaret Hodge: The DTI is currently funding a number of research programmes to assess the environmental effect of aviation emissions and to explore developments in technology to reduce their harmful effects. In particular, the OMEGA project being led by Manchester Metropolitan University and supported with a £5 million HEFCE grant, covers, among other things, characterising aviation emissions (Particulate Matter, NOx, CO_2), airframe and engine design for low carbon emissions and alternative fuels and bio-fuels. Another recent project with Airbus and academic partners has developed trade-off modelling for aircraft design and climate impact.

The Government are also working closely with industry to ensure that the UK's aerospace industry responds to environmental concerns. The most recent project, known as the "Environmentally Friendly Engine" is supported with funding of £95 million of which £30 million is being provided by DTI. This research will develop specific technologies to improve engine efficiency and thereby minimise CO_2 emissions from future aircraft.

The DTI will continue to consider the need for additional research to address the environmental impact of aviation and to ensure the competitiveness of UK aerospace companies and their European partners.

India: Intellectual Property

Ms Gisela Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress he has made on the creation and development of an intellectual property rights agreement between the UK and India; and if he will make a statement. [139651]

Malcolm Wicks: The Joint Statement of Intent was signed in June 2006. Under the JETCO agreement between India and the UK, we are currently developing a bilateral action plan with the Indian IPR authorities in order to put in place a technical assistance programme for Indian government officials dealing with IP.

Iran: Export Credit Guarantees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1816W, on Iran: Export Credits Guarantee, in what way the Export Credits Guarantee Department has restricted the availability of cover for Iran; for what reasons; and for how long. [138554]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD undertook a review of its cover policy for Iran in December 2005. Taking account of the prevailing risk outlook, cover capacity was reduced in order to contain growth in exposure. Cover is decided on a case-by-case basis and priority is given to UK goods and services. More recently, an arrangement has been made whereby Ministers will be consulted before cover is committed for any particular transaction.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1816W, on Iran: Export Credits Guarantee, what steps are being taken to seek clarification of the applicability of the UN Security Council Resolution 1747 to the provision of export credits to Iran. [138555]

Malcolm Wicks: Representatives of HM Government have been consulting European Union member states in the light of the Council Common Position (2007/246/CFSP) dated 23 April to clarify the applicability of UN Security Resolution 1747 to the provision of export credits to Iran.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2007, Official Report, column 1816W, on Iran: Export Credits Guarantee, how many applications for export credits to Iran were made in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [138556]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD has received 153 applications for export credits to Iran in the last five years. The following table details how many applications were received in each of the financial years.

Financial year	Number of applications
2002-03	26
2003-04	50
2004-05	33
2005-06	24
2006-07	20
Total	153

Nuclear Power: International Cooperation

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had with the United States Administration on participation by the UK in the Global Nuclear Energy Partnership. [142805]

Malcolm Wicks: There have been no recent discussions between UK Ministers and the US Administration on UK participation in Global Nuclear Energy Partnership (GNEP).

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will publish a timetable for the removal from the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority of responsibility for the setting of packaging standards for radioactive waste. [141795]

Malcolm Wicks: Currently, advice is provided to nuclear operators on packaging of radioactive waste via a system known as the "Letter of Compliance" system. This is administered by the Radioactive Waste Management Division of the NDA (RWMD). This packaging advice is used by operators in developing safety cases which must be approved by the independent safety regulators. The work of the RWMD in administering the Letter of Compliance system is also overseen by the independent regulators.

In due course we anticipate that the future operator of a geological waste disposal facility will take on the responsibility for setting and administering formal acceptance criteria for all waste to be disposed of in the facility. This will continue to be done under the scrutiny of the independent statutory regulators.

Working Hours

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to improve the balance of working and non-working hours for people in full-time employment. [142684]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In April we extended the right to request flexible working to carers of adults. Over six million employees are now eligible to work flexibly. Latest data (summer 2006) show that 80 per cent. of all requests are agreed and that 87 per cent. of all employees are satisfied with their current working pattern.

Last week we laid regulations before the House to increase the holiday entitlement to give time off for bank holidays. These regulations will benefit six million workers who currently get less than 28 days' holiday a year, pro rata for part-time staff.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2007, to the hon. Member for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth), Official Report, column 1132W, on Air Passenger Duty, if he will publish the econometric analysis used to assess the impact of changes in air passenger duty rates on passenger and flight numbers. [112555]

John Healey: The HMRC econometric analysis suggests that the annual suppression of air passengers as a result of the air passenger duty decision announced at pre-Budget report will be around 5 million out of a total 140 million passengers by 2010-11. Translating this figure into flights and emissions reductions suggests that the emissions saving as a result of the decision will be in the range of 0.2-0.5 million tonnes of carbon (MtC) per year. Taking into account the effect of the other, non-carbon dioxide emissions of aviation suggests that there will be an annual climate change impact equivalent to saving 0.75 million tonnes of carbon by 2010-11 from the change to air passenger duty.

Child Benefit: Armed Forces

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to which partner child benefit is payable in circumstances where a member of the armed forces and his wife are posted overseas while in receipt of child benefit. [143139]

Mr. Timms: Child benefit continues to be payable to the same member of the couple who was receiving payment prior to the posting.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what powers are available to representatives of the Valuation Office Agency in conducting investigation for valuation purposes. [142355]

Dawn Primarolo: Valuation Officers and Listing Officers of the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), and those members of their staff authorised by them, have powers, under Section 26 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992, and powers to request the supply of information about property under Section 27 of the same Act.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 196W, on departmental expenditure, what payments have been made by his Department to (a) Opinion Leader Research and (b) other opinion research companies since December 2006. [136309]

John Healey: In December 2006, the Economic Secretary commissioned Brian Pomeroy, chairman of the Financial Inclusion Taskforce, to undertake a review of commercially run hamper schemes and savings clubs to consider whether the savings needs of consumers of such products might be better met by mainstream financial providers. As part of the review, HM Treasury commissioned Opinion Leader to carry out two half-day workshops with consumers of these types of products to gain first hand evidence to support the review at a cost of £50,955 including VAT. A response to (b) could be provided only at disproportionate cost as the nature of a supplier's business is not recorded in the Treasury's accounting system and may not be self evident from the supplier's name.

Departments: Advertising

Mr. Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue his Department received from advertisements on his Department's (a) public information leaflets and (b) public websites in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [142726]

John Healey: The Treasury has not received any advertising revenue from its public information leaflets or public websites in the last five years. Information on advertising revenue, if any, in the earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate cost due to a change in accounting system in 2002-03.

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by HM Revenue and Customs on flights within England in 2005. [125783]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC promotes sustainable transport policies and the use of video conferencing as transport alternatives.

However, where travel is essential, the Department encourages staff to use the most cost-effective and efficient means of travel.

Total expenditure on flights during 2005 by HMRC was £860,810.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140783]

John Healey: The Treasury calculates carbon emissions by using carbon emission conversion factors provided by the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA). This can be can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/business/envrp/gas/envrpgas-annexes.pdf

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) purpose and (b) value was of each payment made by his Department to Professor Iain Maclean of Oxford university since 1997. [141297]

John Healey: The Treasury has made no payments to Professor MacLean. Professor MacLean gave an unpaid seminar on regional issues for which he was reimbursed £51.20 for Travel expenses in February 2006.

Departments: Credit Cards

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department have corporate charge cards. [133314]

John Healey: HM Treasury does not generally issue staff with corporate charge cards (e.g. American Express cards). However, 201 staff—generally frequent travellers—are currently issued with corporate credit cards to pay for expenses, generally for transport and accommodation. They are required to submit travel expense claims on their return and produce receipts for all transactions.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by his Department on legal fees in each of the last five years. [139389]

John Healey: The Treasury's spending on external legal advice in 2006-07 was £698,000. For the earlier years, I refer to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Monmouth (David T.C. Davies) on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1738W.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which recruitment agencies (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have employed to provide services since 1997. [141909]

John Healey: The information requested is as follows:

Department	Agencies
HMT	Accountancy Additions, Badenoch and Clark, Brook Street, Campion Willcocks and Associates Ltd., Hudson Global Resources Ltd., Huntress Search Ltd., Josephine Sammons Ltd., Macdonald and Company, Methods Consulting Ltd., Michael Page International, Office Angels
DMO	Veredus, BMI, Hays City Response Advertising International Ltd., ComputAppoint, Practicus, Hays Accountancy and Finance, Computer People, Morgan Hunt, Orgtel Communications, The Whitehall and Industry Group, Mission Testing Europe Ltd., Barclay Simpson Associates Ltd., Odgers Ray and Berndtson, Hudson Shribman, KPMG LLP, RDF Resources Ltd., Marks Sattin
OGC	Adecco UK Ltd., élan Computing Ltd., Reed Personnel Services, Computer People Ltd., Spring Technology Staffing Solutions

Departments: Sign Language

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the merits of providing British Sign Language (BSL) videos on his departmental website for the benefit of those whose first language is BSL. [142501]

John Healey: The departmental website is compliant with accessibility guidelines set out the Cabinet Office's Guidelines for government websites:

http://archive.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/e-government/resources/handbook/html/htmlindex.asp and provides transcripts for any audio content.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter of 2 May 2007 from the hon. Member for North-East Milton Keynes on MKSnap, a charity based in Milton Keynes. [143196]

Dawn Primarolo: Receipt of the correspondence referred to could not be traced. A copy has been supplied by the hon. Member and a reply will be sent shortly.

Pension Funds

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total value is of assets held in (a) self-administered private sector occupational defined benefit schemes, (b) self-administered private sector occupational defined contribution schemes, (c) self-administered public sector defined benefit schemes, (d) insured occupational defined benefit schemes, (e) insured occupational defined contribution schemes, (f) group personal pensions, (g) group stakeholder pensions, (h) individual personal pensions and (i) individual stakeholder pensions. [141552]

James Purnell: I have been asked to reply.

Information on the total value of assets held in each category of pension scheme is not available. The market value of self-administered pension funds in total is collected by ONS as part of the annual balance sheet survey to self-administered pension funds and published as part of the Business Monitor Investment by insurance companies, pension funds and trusts on the National Statistics website. The market value is the difference between their asset holdings and short-term liabilities such as borrowing and other creditors. The latest published figure is £970 billion for end 2005.

The value of other private pension funds is included in aggregates collected by ONS in the annual balance sheet survey to long-term insurance companies. However, the aggregates cover all long-term business, including life assurance, pensions and other business, written by the companies. A split of the insurance companies' funds between pensions and other business is not available. Consultation with insurance companies has indicated that this split would be too difficult for them to produce on a company basis and that the respondents would not be confident of any data provided on this basis.

Population

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the population in England live in (a) London boroughs, (b) two-tier areas, (c) unitary areas and (d) metropolitan areas. [142374]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 18 June 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question regarding the proportion of the population in England living in (a) London boroughs, (b) two-tier areas, (c) unitary areas and (d) metropolitan areas. I am replying in her absence. (142374).

Table 1 shows these data for mid-2005. Mid-2006 population estimates will be published on 22 August 2007. The City of London has been included in the London Boroughs category and the Isles of Scilly have been included in the Unitary Areas category.

ONS is making improvements in August 2007 to the methods used to distribute international migration figures to local areas as part of its "Improving Migration and Population Statistics" work programme. The figures quoted will therefore be subject to revision.

Table 1: Percentage of mid-2005 Population in England by type of area

Area	Percentage of population
London boroughs	15
Two tier areas	47
Unitary areas	17
Metropolitan areas	22

Note:
Percentages are rounded to the nearest whole number, and may not sum to 100 due to rounding.

Office for National Statistics

Registration: Databases

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the estimated total expenditure (a) by the Office for National Statistics and (b) from local authority contributions was on the new computer database for registry offices; [142370]

(2) what assessment he has made of the causes of the IT problems with the local authority registry offices' new RON computer database. [142372]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 18 June 2007:

As National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales, I have been asked to reply to your recent questions concerning what assessment has been of the causes of the IT problems with the local authority registry offices' new RON computer database and what the estimated total expenditure by the Office for National Statistics and from local authority contributions was on the new computer database for registry offices. (142370, 142372)

A team of experts has been looking at the system and have identified a proposed resolution plan of activities. A full independent review is to be undertaken in due course.

The total cost of the new system (known as "RON") was estimated as just over £6m, of which some £3.5million is for the software, £2.5 million is for IT infrastructure. Local Authorities have not directly contributed to its development.

Smuggling: Drugs

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) arrests were made and (b) convictions were secured by HM Revenue and Customs for (i) drugs trafficking and (ii) associated criminal finance in each year since 1998, broken down by offence. [131611]

John Healey: This information is not available in the format requested.

Tree Preservation Orders

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether tree protection orders may be placed on a tree or series of trees prior to a planning application that would result in the trees being removed or cut down. [142169]

Ruth Kelly: I have been asked to reply.

A tree preservation order (TPO) may be made to safeguard trees on a potential development site in the interests of amenity. This ensures that the effect of any proposed development on trees would be properly considered by the local planning authority alongside other material considerations. If full planning permission is subsequently granted, the TPO would not prevent any felling or pruning needed to implement the approved development.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2007, Official Report, column 2134W, on the Valuation Office Agency, what the purpose was of the visits to (a) America, (b) Malaysia, (c) Japan, (d) Thailand, (e) Spain, (f) France, (g) China and (h) Belgium. [142403]

Dawn Primarolo: All overseas travel by the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service code. Overseas travel is typically undertaken in order to share international expertise in the field of property valuation. Detailed information on each visit is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Valuation Office Agency: Assets

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which datasets maintained by the Valuation Office Agency are held on the Government's Information Asset Register. [141808]

Dawn Primarolo: None.

VAT: Registration

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of complete and accurate VAT registration applications were processed within 21 days of receipt in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [142798]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 14 June 2007]: HM Revenue and Customs currently record processing time for all applications and no longer distinguish between those that are either complete or incomplete. The latest available monthly figures are as follows:

Month	Percentage of applications processed within 21 days of receipt
2006
April	60
May	56
June	57
July	57
August	59
September	71
October	88
November	85
December	79
2007
January	58
February	63
March	60

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints HM Revenue and Customs received on the time taken to process VAT registrations in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [142799]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 14 June 2007]: HMRC registers over 280,000 new businesses every year. Over the past 12 months less than 1 per cent. of these businesses have complained about registration delays.

The recent increase in the number of complaints is the result of the introduction of more rigorous pre-registration checks designed to combat MTIC fraud. HMRC are working to reduce the number of registration delays.

The number of complaints received about registration delays is as follows:

Month	Number of complaints
2006
June	109
July	96
August	92

VAT: Repayments

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of HM Revenue and Customs' performance in repaying VAT to claimants where claims are properly claimed and payments are properly payable; [142795]

(2) what the percentage of cases is in which the extended verification process for VAT repayments have been determined by HM Revenue and Customs to be (a) connected with missing trader intra community fraud and (b) otherwise incorrectly claimed or improperly paid. [142796]

John Healey: The vast majority of VAT repayment claims are paid promptly. However, in response to the rapid increase in missing trader intra-community fraud activity in late 2005 and early 2006, HM Revenue and Customs are actively checking a greater number of suspect claims. HMRC have deployed an additional 700 staff in 2006-07 to ensure that verification of these claims can be carried out as effectively and efficiently as possible.

The latest data indicates that over 95 per cent. of traders, whose returns are subject to the current verification programme, have so far been found to be participating in, or profiting from, MTIC fraud, or there is sufficient suspicion to warrant further investigation. Only 1 per cent. of the VAT withheld under this programme has been found to be properly payable. To date, the courts have found that HMRC's actions have been proportionate and reasonable.

HMRC does not hold centralised information relating to "(b) otherwise incorrectly claimed or improperly paid". VAT incorrectly claimed or improperly paid can result from a diverse number of factors, including other fraud, avoidance or error and gathering such data would incur disproportionate costs.

Welfare Tax Credits: Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in West Lancashire constituency received tax credits in each of the last five years. [143537]

Dawn Primarolo: New tax credits were introduced in April 2003, and are currently in their 5th year of operation.

Statistics of finalised annual tax credits awards for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 and provisional estimates as at April 2007 by constituency are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many appeals against repayment of overpaid tax credits remain unresolved due to computer or other technical issues; and how many of the outstanding cases have been unresolved for (a) one to three months, (b) three to six months, (c) six to 12 months and (d) over 12 months. [142477]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs has around 19,500 disputed overpayment cases that cannot be fully resolved due to technical issues.

A breakdown of this figure in the requested format is not readily available and could be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what definition he uses of the sub-category of toxicological procedure Substances used in the Household in the context of his Department's Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals; and whether this sub-category applies to both finished household products and their ingredients. [141929]

Joan Ryan: The information published in the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals in Great Britain on toxicological procedures is classified according to the nature of the substance tested. There is no authoritative definition of the term 'household products' within toxicology and it is not defined in any national or international legislation.

However, in the context of the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals, regard is paid to the definition of finished household products as set out in the 2002 publication on The Use of Animals in Testing Household Products produced by the Boyd Group, a forum encompassing a wide rage of expertise and perspectives concerned with the use of animals in scientific procedures. As part of the quality assurance process for compiling the statistics each return for the use of household products is scrutinised to ensure appropriate categorisation.

All products that are primarily intended for use in the home fall within the sub-category 'Substances used in the household' and would include such products as detergents and other laundry products, household cleaners, air-fresheners, toilet blocks, polishes, paper products such as infant nappies, paints, glues (and removers), other furnishing and DIY products and household pesticides. The sub-category applies to both finished household products and their ingredients, although in practice mainly the latter are tested.

Procedures for toxicological purposes accounted for 14 per cent. of all procedures started in 2005 and, of that, 0.005 per cent. of procedures were for the evaluation household products. The number of procedures for the testing of household products remains very small and has reduced dramatically from 1,032 procedures in 2002 to 21 in 2005, a fall of 98 per cent. It is anticipated that it will always be the case that only very small numbers of animals will be used for this purpose.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many meetings he had with hon. Members to discuss the reconsideration of tribunal verdicts on the expulsion of failed asylum seekers in each month of 2006. [118673]

Mr. Byrne: I meet with hon. Members, both formally and informally, on an almost daily basis to discuss issues relating to representations made by hon. Members.

Asylum: Deportation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with which countries' agencies the immigration and nationality directorate co-operated in order to return failed asylum seekers in the last 12 months. [141403]

John Reid: The 1944 Chicago Convention on Civil Aviation, to which some 190 states are signatories, underpins the framework within which those, who no longer qualify to remain on the territory of a particular country, can be removed. Those arrangements generally operate successfully on a day- to-day basis, but there may be a need to enter into discussions or secure more formal arrangements with individual countries to enhance our ability to return. As part of strengthening this process we have signed Memoranda of Understanding (MoUs) on returns with Afghanistan, Azerbaijan, China, India, Iran, Iraq, Nigeria, Pakistan, Somaliland, United Arab Emirates (Dubai) and Vietnam. The UK has also opted-in to decisions to mandate the EU Commission to negotiate 16 readmission agreements on behalf of member states. In addition, we have bilateral readmission agreements with Albania, Bulgaria, Romania and Switzerland. An agreement has been signed with Algeria and is currently in the process of ratification.

In effecting the removal of those who do not qualify to remain in the United Kingdom (UK), we do not distinguish between failed asylum seekers and other immigration offenders.

Asylum: Employment

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of individuals awaiting a decision on their asylum claim are refused the right to work. [142271]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested cannot be provided except by examining individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Community Support Officers

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the recruitment and retention of police community support officers. [143035]

Mr. McNulty: The target of 16,000 new police community support officers employed by forces by the end of April 2007 has been achieved. This met the very challenging target set out in the 2006 Budget, requiring in total almost a doubling in the numbers of PCSOs over a seven-month period. This represents a considerable achievement for forces.

Community Support Officers: Kent

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers were originally planned to be in post in Kent in March 2008; and how many are now expected to be in post on that date. [143440]

Mr. McNulty: To achieve a national target of 24,000 police community support officers (PCSOs) Kent Constabulary would have employed 571 PCSOs by March 2008. A written ministerial statement on 27 November announced changes to this plan in the light of the progress that the police service has made towards delivering neighbourhood policing and requests from the service for greater flexibility. Kent Constabulary were accordingly due to have 382 PCSOs by 30 April 2007 as their share of the national target—which the police service achieved—of 16,000 PCSOs.

It is open to Kent and other forces, depending on local circumstances and resources, to increase the number of PCSOs further if they consider it appropriate to meet the neighbourhood policing needs of their communities, but there is no expectation on them to do so. The aim now is to have a dedicated neighbourhood policing team embedded into every area in England and Wales by April 2008.

Community Support Officers: Manpower

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what changes he plans to make to the numbers of police community support officers in (a) Essex, (b) Hampshire, (c) Kent, (d) Surrey, (e) East Sussex and (f) West Sussex; and if he will make a statement. [143351]

Mr. McNulty: It is for Chief Constables to determine the deployment of Police Community Support Officers (PCSOs) within their force area. The following table gives the number of PCSOs that these forces were due to have by 30 April 2007 as their share of the national target—which the police service achieved—of 16,000 PCSOs. It is open to all forces, depending on local circumstances and resources, to increase the number of PCSOs further if they consider it appropriate to meet the neighbourhood policing needs of their communities, but there is no expectation on them to do so. The aim now is to have a dedicated neighbourhood policing team embedded into every area in England and Wales by April 2008.

Police force target number of PCSOs at 30 April 2007

Essex	362
Hampshire	333
Kent	382
Surrey	222
Sussex	354

Departmental Reorganisation

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total costs incurred by his Department from the departmental split resulting in the formation of the Ministry of Justice have been. [140204]

Mr. Byrne: There will be no additional costs to the Home Office arising from the establishment of the Ministry of Justice; certain agreed costs incurred by the Home Office as part of this process will be reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice.

Departments

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent staff are working on priority legacy cases. [141120]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 7 June 2007]: In presenting a report on IND Reform to House on 25 July last year, the Home Secretary set out priorities for the asylum legacy programme. The director general of IND (now chief executive of BIA) then wrote to Home Affairs Committee on 19 February with update on legacy programme. This letter confirmed that a new directorate had been established to deal specifically with legacy cases and had been in operation since 1 November last year, with significant case working capability.

Further casework resources will progressively come on stream over coming months.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what methodology is used by his Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140788]

Mr. Byrne: To account for its carbon emissions the Home Office measures the consumption of electricity, gas and fuel oil across the estate and converts these figures into carbon equivalents with the assistance of the Building Research Establishment. Carbon emissions from road travel undertaken by Home Office staff are accounted for in accordance with DEFRA's guidance to business on environmental reporting. We measure the amount of travel by hire cars, pool cars, private vehicles and taxis and take account of vehicle fuel type in calculating emissions. These figures are submitted for inclusion in the Sustainable Development in Government report published annually by the Sustainable Development Commission.

Separately the Department participates in the Government's carbon offsetting scheme, which calculates the carbon dioxide emissions created by official air travel. Central data are provided to DEFRA who then adjust these to take into account the total impact that aviation imposes on climate change and purchase credits from projects which prevent or remove an equivalent amount of emissions from the atmosphere.

Departments: Contracts

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what payments his Department made to MVA Limited in each of the last three years; and what the purpose was of each payment. [125957]

Mr. Byrne: The Department has records of one payment made to MVA Limited, of £68, in May 2004. The purpose of the payment could be determined only by incurring disproportionate costs.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what official (a) lunches, (b) dinners and (c) receptions he has hosted in each of the last six months; and what the (i) location, (ii) total cost and (iii) purpose was of each event. [133324]

John Reid: I have hosted numerous lunches, dinners and receptions regarding Home Office business during the last six months. Details of the exact location, total cost and purpose of each event could be obtained only by reviewing the records of each meeting. This could be done only at disproportionate costs.

In each case, any hospitality was provided in accordance with the departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years; [139314]

(2) what properties his Department (a) owned and (b) rented in each of the last five years; [139354]

(3) how much was received by his Department from the letting of its properties in each of the last five years; [139333]

(4) what the cost of leasing buildings and office space for (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in each of the last five years. [139469]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the ownership, rents, and disposals is not collected centrally and would require a review of individual historical records. This could be done only at disproportionate cost. Following the Machinery of Government changes of 9 May, the Home Office has reduced its estate so that it does not include properties relating to the National Offender Management Service including Prisons and Probation. In future years, a new central unit within the re-focused Home Office will collate and hold data on its property portfolio.

Departments: Publications

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was to his Department of the unpublished research paper Sizing the Illegally Resident Working Population. [129042]

John Reid: The report into the 'Sizing of the Illegally Resident Working Population', released as part of Freedom of Information Act release FOI 3517, was technical in nature and the relevant aspects of this research are already contained in the published RDS online report 58/04—'Sizing the illegal population in the UK'. The research cost £20,020.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to his Department was of the unpublished research paper Development of a study into the impact of Government policy on asylum flows. [129079]

John Reid: The report 'Development of a study into the impact of Government policy on asylum flows' was released as part of Freedom of Information Act release FOI 3517. It was not previously published because it had not been developed into a report of publishable standard and there was not a sufficiently strong case for putting further resource into improving the report, given the rapid pace of change in asylum pressures and processes. The cost of the research is not available centrally.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to his Department was of the unfinished report Enforcement of warrants. [129083]

John Reid: The report into the 'Enforcement of Warrants' was released as part of Freedom of Information Act release FOI 3517 and was previously released with limited distribution. The research was produced internally and separately identifiable costs are not available.

Departments: Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 17 April 2007, Official Report, columns 599-600W, how many Home Office reviews have been instigated or agreed to by Ministers since 5 May 2006; what the subject matter was of each review; and what the outcome was of each review. [134214]

John Reid: As soon as I became Home Secretary, I undertook three major reviews of (a) the Home Office as a whole; (b) the immigration and asylum system; and (c) the criminal justice system. The outcomes of each of these reviews was published in July 2006. In addition, the Prime Minister asked me to instigate a review of counter terrorism, but there is a limit to what I can report on the results of this review due to national security considerations. Finally, I have recently instigated a review of policing, led by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Constabulary, Sir Ronnie Flanagan. My drive to improve delivery in the Home Office's objectives means that a wide range of other reviews of policy and operational issues have been undertaken and continue to be undertaken (such as a review of deportation of foreign national prisoners and Sir Ian Magee's review of the criminal records of offences committed abroad by UK nationals). To identify every one could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Travel Agents

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139895]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not hold the information, at the requested level of detail, in a readily accessible form. An answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Detainees: Religious Practice

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to ensure the right to religious observance is upheld in immigration removal centres. [141401]

John Reid: The Detention Centre Rules 2001 require arrangements to be in place for ministers of religion to conduct religious services for detainees.

Each centre is monitored by an on-site Border and Immigration Agency team and is subject to scrutiny by the Independent Monitoring Board. Both are able to pursue any issues where it is felt that the right to religious observance is not being upheld.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines his Department has issued on collective worship in immigration removal centres. [141402]

John Reid: All centres have in place arrangements where detainees can attend collective prayers. The Detention Centre Rules 2001 require arrangements to be in place for ministers of religion to conduct religious services for detainees.

Detainees: Transport

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on moving asylum claimants between immigration removal centres in each of the last five years. [141394]

John Reid: The contract price for in country escorts is inclusive and covers all required escort movements for immigration detainees including inter-detention estate transfers.

Driving Offences

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many roadside enforcement checks dealing with (a) speed, (b) drink driving, (c) driving under the influence of drugs, (d) use of seat belts and child restraints, (e) mobile telephone use and (f) vehicle safety have taken place in each police force area in the last 12 months. [142963]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the driving population has been stopped by the police for a roadside check to deal with (a) speed, (b) drink driving, (c) driving under the influence of drugs, (d) use of seat belts and child restraints, (e) mobile telephone use and (f) vehicle safety in the last 12 months. [142964]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number and purposes of vehicle stops carried out by the police is not collected centrally. Information on the number of screening breath tests carried out by the police and on the number of motoring offences detected is contained in the annual publication "Motoring Offences and Breath Test Statistics, England and Wales" available in the Library and at:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pubsstatistical.html

Firearms: Crime

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents involving the use of ball-bearing guns have been reported in the last five years; and what action he intends to take to tackle the misuse of such guns. [142508]

Mr. Coaker: Available figures relate to the use of BB guns. A BB gun is a low powered weapon which fires pellets (rather than ball bearings) at a low velocity.

Statistics on the number of offences involving BB guns have only been collected separately since April 2004.

There were 2,864 and 2,753 BB gun offences during 2004-05 and 2005-06 respectively.

The Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 will double the maximum custodial sentence for possessing an imitation firearm in a public place without reasonable excuse to one year. It will also make it illegal to sell any imitation firearm to a person under 18 and will ban the manufacture, import and sale of realistic imitation firearms. We intend to commence these provisions with effect from 1 October.

Fulbright Fellowship in Police Studies

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) civilian staff applied for the Fulbright Fellowship in Police Studies' scheme in each year since its introduction. [143242]

Mr. McNulty: A breakdown of applications received for the Fulbright Fellowship from police staff for the period 2004-05 to 2006-07 is shown in the following table.

Previous records do not show a breakdown whether the applicant was a police officer or police staff, however, awards made in 2006-07 went to a detective inspector and a member of police staff.

			Number
	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07

Identity Cards

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in which locations facilities are (a) in existence and (b) planned for (i) the manufacture of identity cards and (ii) the processing of identity card applications. [142735]

Joan Ryan: The Identity and Passport Service will be responsible for the issue of identity cards to British citizens alongside the issue of British passports. However, no final decisions have yet been taken on the precise arrangements for the processing of applications or the manufacture of identity cards and this will depend on the outcome of future procurements.

Immigrants: Health

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what systems his Department has put in place for monitoring the response made in immigration decisions to the advice of medical inspectors. [142056]

Mr. Byrne: As part of the implementation of the Port Health Review recommendations, a survey was conducted at Heathrow and Gatwick at the end of last year to determine the part the medical inspector's advice plays in making immigration decisions. The results of the survey are still being considered.

Immigrants: Health Services

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what formal arrangements his Department has made for the health care of sick travellers detained by the immigration service. [142057]

Mr. Byrne: Any passengers subject to immigration control detained by the immigration service would normally be kept in holding rooms at ports only for short periods.

There is no on-site health care provision in those holding rooms without sleeping accommodation. In the event of a medical emergency, an ambulance is called. Where medical advice is required (for example relating to medication) arrangements are in place for detention custody officers to phone an advice line similar to NHS Direct, who advise on what further medical attention is required. Detainees held in immigration removal centres have access to on-site health care.

Immigrants: Tuberculosis

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Government tests those who wish to enter the UK for a period of six months or more from countries with a high prevalence of tuberculosis in their country of origin. [142052]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Warley (Mr. Spellar) on 8 May 2007, Official Report, column 80W.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of people from countries with a high prevalence of tuberculosis and seeking entry into the UK for a period of six months or more were tested for tuberculosis at ports of entry in the last period for which figures are available. [142054]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics are not recorded in this form.

Immigration Controls: Russia

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Russian citizens have been refused entry into the United Kingdom on the grounds of a threat to national security in the last 12 months. [141245]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 11 June 2007]: As a matter of policy we do not comment on matters relating to national security. However, all applicants for entry clearance must meet the requirements of the immigration rules and associated policies, as set out on the UKVisas website at www.ukvisas.gov.uk .

Immigration: Applications

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-English speaking immigrants applied for residency in the UK in each year since 1997. [129390]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not available. The Border and Immigration Agency do not hold any details of the language(s) spoken by applicants who apply for indefinite leave to remain or enter in the United Kingdom. Changes to the immigration rules were announced on 4 December 2006 and took effect on 2 April 2007. These will require persons subject to immigration control and in a category that leads to settlement to demonstrate knowledge of the English language and of knowledge of life in the United Kingdom before settlement can be granted.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Walsall, North of 8 May regarding a constituent, ref: M10538/7. [142658]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 14 June 2007]: I wrote to my hon. Friend on 13 June 2007.

National Identity Register

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effect of omissions and errors in the postcode address file on the proposed national identity scheme; and if he will make a statement. [135844]

John Reid: It is proposed that the national identity scheme will make use of the postcode address file as a method of address validation. However, it will not be the sole source of validation and provisions will be made to permit non-PAF compliant addresses to be recorded appropriately.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) injured and (b) killed as a result of knife crime offences in (i) Suffolk, (ii) Bedfordshire, (iii) Cambridgeshire, (iv) Essex, (v) Hertfordshire and (vi) Norfolk in each year since 1997. [140688]

Mr. Coaker: The information available centrally relates to homicides by sharp instrument recorded by the police and is given in the table. Data for 2006-07 is not yet available.

Police Cautions: Children

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children were cautioned by police in each year since 1997, broken down by age of child. [132926]

John Reid: Information from the Cautions database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of juveniles aged 10 to 17 cautioned by the police for all offences in England and Wales from 1997-2005, broken down by age, are provided in the following tables. Both cautions and convictions have increased since 1997.

Number of offenders aged 10 to 17 cautioned in England and Wales, by age, 1997-2007[1,2,3,4]

Police: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on police funding in Cambridgeshire. [144067]

Mr. McNulty: Cambridgeshire police authority, like every other police authority in England and Wales, has received a sustained increase in police funding over the last 10 years. Total grants to Cambridgeshire have increased by nearly £30 million (51.2 per cent.) since 1997-98.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Wrexham (Ian Lucas) of 18 May 2007, Official Report, column 960W, on police complaints, when he last met the Independent Police

Complaints Commission (IPCC) to discuss the number of complaints made to the IPCC. [141789]

Mr. McNulty: I have met the IPCC on a number of occasions to discuss issues around the police complaints system, the most recent being in March 2007 when complaints statistics were discussed.

Police: Death Benefits

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assistance he provides to the dependants of fallen police officers; and if he will make a statement. [143204]

Mr. McNulty: The Police (Injury Benefit) Regulations 2006 provide for certain awards and gratuities to be paid by the police authority for the force where the officer last served to his or her dependants where the officer died as the result of an injury received without default in the execution of his or her duty as a constable. A surviving spouse or civil partner will receive a pension of up to half the officer's pensionable pay plus a lump-sum gratuity of up to either five times the officer's pensionable pay or four times the officer's total remuneration for the last twelve months of his or her service, whichever is the lesser amount. Other awards are available for surviving children and adult dependent relatives, subject to eligibility, the amount of any such award depending on the circumstances.

Police: Electronic Equipment

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made in providing front-line police officers with electronic hand-held devices to assist in reducing officer time away from such duties. [142198]

Mr. McNulty: Many forces are trialling the use of hand held devices, with support and guidance from the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA). Through the NPIA, the Home Office has directly funded mobile data trials in progress in six forces.

These trials will enable national standards to be created and provide valuable assessments of operational benefits; the time saved by officers not having to return to the station; and the differences between the bearers and devices in different situations.

Police: Finance

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received on the use by police authorities of the allocation of receipts from taxation on second homes and the allocation of such funds to the district from which they were collected. [143762]

Mr. McNulty: We have received no such representations.

Police: Health

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding has been allocated to police authorities to enable police officers to maintain high levels of physical fitness in 2007-08. [143252]

Mr. McNulty: Police authorities are responsible for setting their own budgets and therefore determining how the funds received from central and local government are spent.

Police: ICT

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces are equipped with National Strategy for Police Information Systems in respect of (a) custody and (b) case preparation; when he expects the remaining police forces to adopt such systems; and if he will make a statement. [143206]

Mr. McNulty: 23 police forces have implemented the National Strategy for Police Information Systems (NSPIS) electronic custody management application in at least one site. 18 of these have the system deployed in all relevant sites. 26 forces have the NSPIS electronic case management application in live use in at least one site, with full implementation completed in 20 forces.

The implementation programme is now entering its final stages and will be completed in all forces—other than the Metropolitan Police (MPS)—by the end of 2007. The MPS will complete their implementation in 2008.

Police: Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much each police authority operating in West Lancashire constituency spent on training (a) police officers, (b) police community support officers and (c) special constables in each of the last 10 years. [143684]

Mr. McNulty: Spending on local staff training is an operational issue for the chief constable of Lancashire constabulary.

Police: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to reduce the levels of road accidents involving police response vehicles. [143201]

Mr. Coaker: In responding effectively to emergency situations the police must have due regard to the safety of other road users. We welcome the guidance given in this area by ACPO and have been co-operating with the current inquiry into police related road traffic incidents being carried out by the Independent Police Complaints Commission. We look forward to its report and acting, with the police, on any lessons to be learned. The Home Office Scientific Development Branch is also currently working to enhance police driver training through a project to develop a simulator. This will enable trainees to develop their skills for pursuit and emergency response in realistic scenarios off-road.

Police: Ports

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the cost of policing the UK's borders and entry points in the last year for which figures are available. [120408]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information is not held centrally by the Department.

Police: Road Traffic

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces do not have a dedicated roads policing division; and what the title is of the units and divisions in each force which have responsibility for roads policing among their other duties. [142959]

Mr. McNulty: Force organisation and deployment of resources are matters for individual chief officers and such information is not collected centrally.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average number of roads policing officers on duty at any given time was in each police force in the last period for which figures are available; and what percentage of the force's total number of officers on duty each figure represents. [142961]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not available centrally.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what average number of roads policing officers on duty at any given time in each of the police forces in the last period for which figures are available were (a) carrying out patrolling duties and (b) carrying out roadside enforcement checks. [142962]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally.

Police: Terrorism

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 265W, on the police: terrorism, how many police officers are planned to be equipped with specialist training skills in order to deal with a terrorist attack under the Chemical, Biological, Radiological or Nuclear Resilience Programme. [143248]

Mr. McNulty: As part of the Chemical Biological Radiological and Nuclear (CBRN) Resilience Programme the police currently intend to increase the number of officers specially trained in CBRN to approximately 12,000. This total is driven by operational requirements and as such is kept under review and may change.

Ports: Health

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action his Department has taken with the Department of Health and the Health Protection Agency to publish an explanation of accountabilities and responsibilities for stakeholder organisations and staff with regard to port health; and where this written explanation is available. [142055]

Mr. Byrne: An explanatory document entitled Health activity relating to people at ports, airports and international train stations in England was published on 31 July 2006 on the Department of Health website at:

http://www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_4137780 and on the Home Office and Health Protection Agency websites in early August 2006 at:

http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/6353/6356/healthactivity.pdf

and

http://www.hpa.org.uk/porthealth/who_is_responsible_for_what_at_ports.pdf respectively.

Safer Neighbourhoods Programme

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much each London borough contributed to safer neighbourhood teams match funding in each of the last three years. [143023]

Mr. Coaker: We do not collect this information centrally. Local authorities, among other partners, are encouraged to provide matched funding to enhance community safety. Partnership working is key to successful delivery of neighbourhood policing and the more matched funding forces acquire, the better placed they will be to invest further in policing their local communities.

Stop and Search: Vehicles

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people whose vehicles have been stopped and searched under the Terrorism Act 2000 have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted of (i) a notifiable offence and (ii) a terrorism-related offence; and if he will make a statement. [142730]

Mr. McNulty: The stops and search statistical collection, held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, identifies vehicles and occupiers searched under s44(1) of the Terrorism Act 2000 by resultant arrests only.

The information is not linked with details of any subsequent prosecutions and convictions.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many vehicles were stopped and searched in each police force area in England in each year from 1997-98 to 2007-08; how many of these vehicles in each year were stopped and searched under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000; and if he will make a statement. [142731]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is given in the following tables from 1998-99 to 2004-05 (latest available). Information on "vehicles only" searches is not available for 1997-98.

n/a = Not available. "Vehicles only" searches not separately identifiable from other searches recorded.

[1] Total searches includes searches: under s1 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984; Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 and the Firearms Act 1968; also included are other legislation which relates to searches under other powers, such as under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989 s15 (which since 19 February 2001 has been replaced by section 43 of the Terrorism Act 2000); various poaching and wildlife conservation legislation; the Aviation Security Act 1982, s27(1); the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979, s163 and 164; and the Sporting Events (control of Alcohol, etc) Act 1985; s60 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994; and s44(1) and 44(2) of the Terrorism Act 2000 (formerly s13A and 13B of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989.

[2] Searches may be conducted on vehicles only, occupants only or both may be searched. Where a vehicle and driver occupier are searched simultaneously the search is recorded against the driver (occupant). Any other passengers searched are recorded as occupants. Data given in the table are where a "vehicle only" has been searched.

Sussex Police: Finance

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the percentage change in Government funding for Sussex police has been over the last 10 years. [141827]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Sussex police—funding

	1997-98	2007-08
General Government grants (£)	127,990,358	161,716,484
Percentage change in general Government grants	—	26.4
Specific grants and capital provision (£)	4,258,000	36,110,087
Total Government grants (£)	132,248,358	197,826,571
Percentage change in total Government grants	—	49.6

Theft: Dogs

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice he has given to police forces on the policing of dog thefts. [142151]

Mr. McNulty: Where dog thefts emerge as a local crime issue it is for the police, in consultation with their local Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership, to take appropriate action.

There is no national strategy to manage dog theft and we have no plans to issue guidance to police forces.

Vetting: Maladministration

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people's Criminal Records Bureau checks were incorrect in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007; [139224]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number and percentage of people whose Criminal Records Bureau information is incorrect. [139225]

Joan Ryan: The following table illustrates the number of disclosures issued where the applicant details were matched by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) to an individual who had a criminal record due to the similarities in the personal details. In these cases, the details were challenged by the applicants and their disclosures were subsequently amended.

		Upheld matching disputes
Financial year	Disclosures issued	Number	Percentage
2004-05	2,434,290	1,181	0.048
2005-06	2,772,929	678	0.024

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Aerials: Planning Permission

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications for telecommunications masts were approved by the Planning Inspectorate in each of the last five years. [141680]

Meg Munn: The number and outcome of planning appeals relating to telecommunications masts dealt with by the Planning Inspectorate in each of the last five years is set out in the following table.

Financial year	Allowed	Percentage allowed	Dismissed	Percentage dismissed	Total
2002-03	127	58.53	90	41.47	217
2003-04	73	55.30	59	44.70	132
2004-05	63	55.75	50	44.25	113
2005-06	126	52.28	115	47.72	241
2006-07	81	45.00	99	55.00	180

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she (a) has taken and (b) proposes to take during the next 12 months to secure implementation of her response to the Report of the All Party Parliamentary Inquiry into Anti-Semitism; and if she will make a statement. [142817]

Mr. Woolas: The Government welcomed the All-Party Parliamentary Inquiry into Anti-Semitism and published their response in March this year. In order to take the recommendations forward, we have set up a cross-government working group. Jewish stakeholders and others have been invited to the first meeting which will take place on the 20 June.

Best Value

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the Comprehensive Area Assessment will differ from the Comprehensive Performance Assessment and Best Value. [143630]

Mr. Woolas: Unlike the Comprehensive Performance Assessment (CPA) which was established to bring together views on the current performance of a local authority, the new risk assessment will look at risk and will focus more on areas rather than just institutions. The risk assessment will be undertaken jointly by all local services inspectorates and will be the primary source for determining future inspection programmes allowing a better targeted, more proportionate approach. The majority of existing rolling programmes of inspection will cease during 2008-09.

Under best value local authorities are required to secure continuous improvement in they way they exercise their functions having regard to a combination of economy, efficiency and effectiveness. Evidence of how well authorities complied with or achieved best value was considered as part of CPA and will continue under the new CAA. The Audit Commission will continue to have powers to inspect under Best Value, with any inspection in future being triggered by the risk assessment.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to prevent increases in council tax valuations arising from the making of environmental improvements to properties. [137479]

Mr. Woolas: Making environmental improvements will have no effect on the current council tax banding of a property. If a property is sold, any environmental or other improvements may have a positive or negative effect but only if they are such that they push the value of the property into the next band range.

Departments: Equality Act 2006 (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2007

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what public awareness-raising activities her Department is planning to increase understanding of the Equality Act (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2007. [143123]

Meg Munn: Officials have attended a wide range of events in order to raise awareness of the regulations, which came into force on 30 April. These have included presentations to lesbian, gay and bisexual rights groups such as Stonewall and the Intercom Trust, as well as taking part in a sexual orientation law event, open to members of the public.

This awareness raising activity will be ongoing in advance of the Commission for Equality and Human Rights opening its doors this October, with officials participating in events in Birmingham, Leicester, Gateshead and Manchester, which will highlight the effects of the new regulations alongside other anti-discrimination measures. Officials are also organising outreach events specifically directed at improving understanding of the regulations among service providers and faith groups.

The Government published guidance on the regulations on 30 April and further information, including a 'quick guide' to the regulations and answers to 'frequently asked questions' are also available on the Department's website.

Departments: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff in her Department received bonus payments in 2006-07; what proportion of the total work force they represented; what the total amount of bonuses paid was; what the largest single payment was; and if she will make a statement. [143103]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government made bonus payments to 561 staff under the terms of the 2006 pay settlements. This represents 24 per cent. of the total work force as at 1 April 2006. This does not include staff in Government offices.

The total amount paid as bonus payments under these arrangements in 2006 was £838,250 and the largest single payment was £12,000.

The Department has a Special Bonus Scheme to reward exceptional performance over a limited period, in particularly, demanding tasks or situations. The maximum bonus under these arrangements is £600 but records are not yet available to show the number of payments made under this scheme in 2006-07.

The Department has not yet reached agreement on the level and award of bonus payments for 2007.

Empty Property

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department's Electronic Survey of Empty Homes Data Collection Scheme records Empty Dwelling Management Orders issued by local authorities. [143631]

Yvette Cooper: No.

Empty Property: Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty or abandoned properties there were in the Elevate area of East Lancashire when the body was established; and how many there are now. [142793]

Yvette Cooper: Elevate, the Housing Market Renewal Pathfinder for East Lancashire, was formed in 2003. In December of that year they submitted their first strategic plan for housing market renewal, which indicated that there were 8,000 empty properties in the Pathfinder intervention area. These are properties that have been empty for six or more months. At the end of the financial year 2006-07 there were 6,017 empty properties.

Fire Service: Contracts

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to inform fire-fighters of changes to the terms and conditions of those retained under a second contract. [142888]

Angela E. Smith: Firefighters are employed by fire and rescue authorities who have a duty to inform them of any changes to their terms and conditions of service. Communities and Local Government provides authorities with guides to the pension and compensation arrangements which are made under statutory powers and these should be made available to employees.

Fire Services: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the full combined costs are of all the interim solutions needed for the (a) FireControl and (b) FireLink projects. [142954]

Angela E. Smith: These costs are contractually and commercially confidential and cannot be disclosed.

Home Information Packs

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the market price of a home information pack, including VAT, excluding the Home Condition Report element. [128549]

Ruth Kelly: Estimates of the cost of compiling a Home Information Pack are set out in the Impact Assessment that was published alongside the Home Information Pack Regulations.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether details of energy performance certificates will be held on the Home Condition Report database. [129251]

Ruth Kelly: There will be separate registers for Energy Performance Certificates and Home Condition Reports.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's latest estimate is of the average market cost of a home information pack, including VAT, (a) with a home condition report and (b) without a home condition report following the publication of the Home Information Pack Regulations 2007. [137570]

Ruth Kelly: Estimates of the cost of compiling a Home Information Pack are set out in the Impact Assessment that was published alongside the Home Information Pack Regulations.

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many accredited home information pack inspectors are ready to operate in (a) the UK and (b) the South West; and how many are expected to be ready by 1 June 2007. [138411]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the Secretary of State on 22 May 2007, Official Report, column 1107, and the answer given to the hon. Member for Banbury (Tony Baldry) on 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 817W.

Housing

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the number of four bedroom properties likely to be placed for sale on the housing market between 1 August and 31 December 2007; and if she will make a statement. [140691]

Yvette Cooper: As the Secretary of State said in her statement on 22 May, properties with four bedrooms or more represent approximately 18 per cent. of total housing stock.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many owner occupiers in each of the Housing Market Renewal Pathfinders in England have had their properties demolished and are now in a new home with greater mortgage or loan costs than before. [142794]

Yvette Cooper: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not collect this data.

Since the Housing Market Renewal programme began, over 38,000 properties have been refurbished and approximately 9,000 demolished. The Pathfinders operate a wide range of loan and grant schemes to support those who relocate.

Housing: Advisory Services

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what resources have been provided for the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit to deliver its mission; how many staff are employed in the unit; whether there are any plans to expand the unit's staffing; and what assessment she has made of the unit's performance to date. [143690]

Yvette Cooper: The National Housing and Planning Advice Unit was established on 7 November 2006 and became fully operational in March. An expert board of six members is steering the work programme of a small technical unit of 12, which includes Economists, Planners and Statisticians. There are no current plans to alter this staffing arrangement.

Funding from the Department for Communities and Local Government for the year 2006-07 amounted to £1.056 million. Funding for 2007-08 has not yet been finalised.

The Unit's first publication, "Affordability Matters", was released as part of the Unit's official launch on 7 June 2007. This document is welcomed by government, and provides compelling evidence of the need to increase housing supply to address affordability problems across the country.

Housing: Newcastle upon Tyne

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Ministers agreed the target of 25 per cent. of new affordable homes for the Strategic Commission areas in West Newcastle set by the Newcastle Gateshead Pathfinder. [141652]

Yvette Cooper: No. Decisions on detailed affordability targets for specific areas within a pathfinder are taken locally, and are agreed by the relevant local authority, in this case Newcastle city council.

Housing: Private Finance Initiative

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department has taken to increase the effectiveness of the housing private finance initiative programme. [143465]

Yvette Cooper: Since the early Pathfinder schemes were accepted onto the Housing Private Finance Initiative (PFI) Programme, the Department has made a number of changes, both to regulations and in respect of internal resourcing, to increase the effectiveness of the programme.

We have made two legislative changes, one to allow the sub-contracting of housing management functions and the other to provide new financial freedoms to build new social housing in Housing Revenue Account PFI schemes.

We have improved the guidance and tools available for PFI by publishing the Housing PFI Procurement Pack and issuing a new housing PFI financial model, increasing certainty about costings and affordability and streamlining the data required from authorities. In addition, more emphasis is now placed on improving the scoping and costings of proposals at an early stage.

We have also established a departmental Central Private Finance Unit (CPFU) to strengthen PFI governance, ensure consistency in programme management and provide commercial and management advice and support to PFI policy teams.

We are in the process of reviewing the costs of new build housing PFI schemes and we are currently undertaking further work with a number of local authorities and the Housing Corporation on new build costs.

Housing: Rents

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the outstanding arrears of rent on council-owned (a) residential and (b) commercial property are in each London borough. [143026]

Yvette Cooper: The outstanding arrears of rent on council-owned residential property in each London borough are available in the following table. This information for council-owned commercial property is not collected centrally.

Infrastructure: Planning

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will provide financial or other resource support to members of the public and voluntary stakeholder groups to participate in the consultation on draft national policy statements on infrastructural planning. [143781]

Yvette Cooper: Paragraph 1.44 of the White Paper, "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (cm 7120) states that, alongside the introduction of the new infrastructure planning system, the Government intend to increase grant funding for bodies such as Planning Aid to ensure members of the public get the advice and support they need to get involved on site-specific proposals in national policy statements, and in the planning inquiries on major infrastructure projects.

Local Authorities: Cost Effectiveness

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) Gershon Review and (b) annual efficiency savings were set for local authorities in each year since their introduction. [143458]

Mr. Woolas: The Gershon Review identified scope for 2.5 per cent. per annum efficiency gains in local government during the 2004 Spending Review period, and this figure was adopted by the Government as a target for every local authority. This equated to £1 billion of new efficiency gains from councils in each year. At least half of these gains had to be cashable, i.e. release cash that could be reallocated by councils to meet local priorities. The Gershon Review set no targets for headcount reduction in local authorities.

Councils reported that they achieved £1.2 billion of new efficiency gains during 2005-06, of which £0.9 billion were cashable. They are due to report on the new gains achieved during 2006-07 in the summer. Information on the efficiency targets for individual councils, and the gains they have achieved so far, is available on the Department's website at:
http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1134484

Local Government Finance Funding Changes Independent Inquiry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department is planning to produce a formal response to the Lyons inquiry; and what the timetable is for considering the report's recommendations. [141797]

Ruth Kelly: Sir Michael Lyons' work played a major contribution in the development of the Local Government White Paper, which is being implemented through the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill. His report and recommendations will continue to inform the development of Government policy.

Local Government Finance: Greater London

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if the Government will provide additional financial assistance to central London local authorities with large numbers of arrivals from A8 nations. [139054]

Mr. Woolas: The Government have made available over £600,000 to central London local authorities in recognition of the pressures on their homelessness services caused by A8 nationals. In particular to support work to tackle rough sleeping.

Local Government: Greater London

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received recommending local government restructuring in Greater London in the last 12 months. [141732]

Ruth Kelly: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has not received any representations on this issue in the last 12 months.

Local Government: Pensions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for publishing the valuation of the Local Government Pension Scheme. [141817]

Ruth Kelly: Local authority pension funds in England and Wales underwent an actuarial valuation of their funds from 31 March 2007, as required by the Scheme's regulations. The outcome for each fund will not be known until later in the current financial year. Details of individual fund valuation results may be requested directly from each local authority who has responsibility for a pension fund.

The Department has not, in the past, published the results of the Scheme's triennial valuations, but discussions with interested parties will commence shortly to explore the scope for publication.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the Treasury's estimate was in 1997 of the financial cost to the Local Government Pension Scheme per year of abolishing tax credits on dividends; [142173]

(2) what estimate she has made of the gross financial cost to the Local Government Pension Scheme in (a) England and (b) Wales of the effect of the abolition of dividend tax credits in each year since 1999-2000. [142360]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 16 February 2006, Official Report, column 2211W, to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles).

Local Government: Reform

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account was taken of the local election purdah period in setting the timetable for the consultation on local government restructuring; and what guidance has been produced for local authorities on statements that may be made on such restructuring during the purdah period. [141847]

Ruth Kelly: In deciding the consultation period, the Secretary of State had regard to the date of the local elections. The code of practice on local authority publicity makes it clear that local authorities should not at any time use public funds to mount publicity campaigns whose primary purpose is to persuade the public to hold a particular view on a question of policy, and that authorities must take particular care when publicity is issued immediately prior to an election. In particular, where publicity is used to comment on the proposals or policies of central Government or other local authorities the content should be objective, balanced, informative and accurate.

Multiple Occupation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of (a) discretionary and (b) mandatory licensing of houses of multiple occupation on the (i) buy-to-let and (ii) housing market. [141798]

Ruth Kelly: The Building Research Establishment (BRE) was commissioned to undertake a baseline survey on Houses in Multiple Occupation prior to licensing. This will be published shortly. BRE have also been commissioned to conduct a follow up study on the practical implication, effectiveness and impact of mandatory and discretionary licensing and this research is due to commence in early 2008.

North Lincolnshire Council

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the capital allowance to North Lincolnshire Council was in each of the last 10 years. [110019]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 19 December 2006]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Planning

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she plans to take to improve parliamentary scrutiny of national planning policy statements following paragraph 1.44 of the planning white paper, Cm 7120. [139956]

Yvette Cooper: Paragraphs 3.27 and 3.28 of the White Paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (Cm 7120), explain that as Ministers would no longer be taking decisions on individual applications, it believes that draft national policy statements should be subject to parliamentary scrutiny, and that further work is needed to identify the most appropriate mechanism for ensuring parliamentary scrutiny. The White Paper consults on what mechanisms might ensure appropriate parliamentary scrutiny.

Planning Obligations

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps her Department is taking to support the development of a landowner and developer tariff for infrastructure delivery in growth areas as an interim measure pending the introduction of the proposed Planning Gain Supplement; [143167]

(2) what assessment her Department has made of the effectiveness of existing landowner and developer tariff schemes as a means of capturing land value and securing funds for infrastructural development; [143168]

(3) what definition her Department uses of a landowner and developer tariff for the purposes of infrastructure delivery. [143169]

Yvette Cooper: Communities and Local Government does not use a definition for landowner and developer tariffs. In practice landowner and developer tariffs are planning obligations negotiated between the landowner, developer and the local planning authority under section 106 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 as amended by section 12 of the Planning and Compensation Act 1991.

Communities and Local Government has provided support to local planning authorities and local delivery vehicles in the growth areas:

(i) they have submitted a bid for funding from the Growth Area Fund towards studies underpinning the schemes,

(ii) our costs contribute to specific infrastructure projects in the Growth Areas which meet our strategic objectives, and;

(iii) through advice and expertise provided via English Partnerships.

For example, in Kent Thameside, Communities and Local Government has been working in partnership with Local Planning Authorities, Kent County Council, Highways Agency and Department for Transport to develop a solution enabling local and regional transport infrastructure to support development aspirations.

Planning Policy Commission

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements are in place for taking account of the views of Ministers in the devolved administrations in decisions on the Planning Policy Commission, where those decisions potentially have an impact on Wales, Scotland or Northern Ireland. [142445]

Yvette Cooper: Chapter 10 of "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (cm 7120) explains that decisions on major energy infrastructure projects in Wales presently made by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry would be transferred to the independent planning commission. Decisions on all other major infrastructure projects would continue to be made within Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

The commission would consult Welsh Ministers during its consideration of any energy scheme within Wales, including at the decision stage.

The Government will also work with Scotland and Wales to put in place effective arrangements for any cross border projects which need to be jointly determined by the commission and Scottish or Welsh Ministers.

Planning: Housing Improvements

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations her Department has received from the Federation of Master Builders on the proposals in the Planning White Paper to amend the planning regime for household extensions. [143637]

Yvette Cooper: We have received no representations from the Federation on this issue. However officials have arranged to meet the Federation to discuss the Government's consultation proposals.

Rescue Services: Finance

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much financial support was made available for urban search and rescue teams in each fire authority area in each financial year for which support was made available. [143158]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government (CLG) has provided financial support direct to fire and rescue authorities (FRAs) to assist urban search and rescue (USAR) teams through grants under section 31 of the Local Government Act 2003. Details of all these grants are published in Fire Service Circulars. The following table summarises this funding, the amounts provided to individual FRAs and the financial year they were paid.

Government have also funded over £8.7 million in new USAR training facilities at the Fire Service College to enable USAR teams to undertake generic and specialist training. To date over £6.8 million has been spent on training courses for USAR technicians primarily at the college.

Other funding, paying for the initial purchase and maintenance of equipment hosted by the USAR teams, has been undertaken collectively with other New Dimension assets and it is not possible to separate out the USAR costs in isolation.

Notes:
1. Crewing Grants were provided to cover the employment costs of crewing the USAR teams.
2. PPE Grants were for the provision and maintenance of personal protective equipment for USAR technicians.
3. Accommodation Grants were given to cover the costs associated with housing USAR equipment at fire stations.
4. The Timber Grant covered the cost of replenishing wood required for shoring.
5. The Local Training Facilities Grant was for the purchase of a training rig to allow USAR teams to undertake maintenance of skills training at their own fire stations.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding is available for the provision of urban search and rescue teams; and if she will make a statement. [143159]

Angela E. Smith: Communities and Local Government (CLG) has already provided fire and rescue authorities (FRAs) with over £32 million in funding under section 31 of the Local Government Act 2003 to support urban search and rescue (USAR) teams. For a summary of this funding, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today. CLG has also paid over £8.7 million directly to the Fire Service College for the provision of USAR training facilities and over £6.8 million for USAR technicians on training courses.

We would expect to announce funding to support USAR teams in financial year 2007-08 around half way through the year, after discussion with the Chief Fire Officers Association (CFOA) and the Local Government Association (LGA).

Second Homes

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the use of receipts from the local taxation of second homes. [143271]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 15 June 2007]: Communities and Local Government does not hold a record of representations received about the use of receipts from the local taxation of second homes. Since 1 April 2004, billing authorities have had the freedom to reduce the council tax discount on second homes from 50 per cent. to 10 per cent. In 2005-06 authorities raised an additional £92 million from the reduced second homes discount. The use of that revenue is a matter for individual authorities to decide in light of local priorities.

Tenants: Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers are available to (a) local authorities, (b) the police and (c) other agencies to evict tenants causing antisocial behaviour when the landlord refuses to co-operate. [143329]

Yvette Cooper: Where the property is let by a private sector landlord there are provisions in the Housing Act 2004 that enable local authorities to make a special interim management order.

Powers are available to the police, through an order of the court, to enable the temporary closure of properties taken over by drug dealers and users of class A drugs, which cause disorder or serious nuisance to the local community. These orders are called crack house closure orders.

In addition, both antisocial behaviour orders (available to range of agencies including the police and local authorities) and antisocial behaviour injunctions (available to social landlords) can carry powers to exclude persons from their place of residence for a specified period under certain circumstances.

Travelling People: Planning Permission

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to require all local planning authorities to report biannually to her Department on (a) the details of all applications for planning permission for Gypsy and Traveller sites, (b) the outcome of those applications, (c) details of planning appeals and enforcement appeals and (d) the outcomes of appeals. [142405]

Meg Munn: From October 2007 local planning authorities will be required to provide information on the number of planning applications for Gypsy and Traveller sites and their outcome as part of their PS1 and PS2 (planning statistics) returns. This information is published on a quarterly basis. Details of planning and enforcement appeals and their outcomes are maintained by the Planning Inspectorate.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to (a) monitor and (b) publish the details of progress by local planning authorities in fulfilling, through pitch allocation and site provision, the needs identified by Gypsy and Traveller accommodation assessments. [142406]

Meg Munn: Local authorities must allocate sufficient sites for Gypsies and Travellers in site allocation development plan documents. Section 35 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act requires every local authority to make an annual report to the Secretary of State containing information on the implementation of the local development scheme, which includes development plan documents, and the extent to which policies set out in local development documents are being achieved.

Travelling People: Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she has given to local planning authorities on the provision of Gypsy and Traveller sites ahead of the adoption of regional spatial strategies. [142348]

Meg Munn: Advice to local planning authorities on the provision of Gypsy and Traveller sites is provided in ODPM Circular 01/2006 "Planning for Gypsy and Traveller Caravan Sites". The circular advises that where there is a clear and immediate need, local authorities should bring forward development plan documents containing site allocations in advance of any regional consideration of pitch numbers, in a regional spatial strategy.

Waste Disposal: Planning Permission

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many civic amenity sites have had to amend planning permission as a result of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive; and what the estimated cost was of such amendments. [142771]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally.

Waste Management

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what research her Department and its agencies has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the operation of joint waste authorities; [141715]

(2) what research the Audit Commission has conducted into the merits of (a) joint waste authorities and (b) alternate weekly collections of household rubbish; [141716]

(3) what research (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has conducted into joint waste authorities. [142254]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

No research has been commissioned or evaluated by my Department, or its agencies, specifically relating to joint waste authorities (JWA). I am not aware of any similar research undertaken by the Audit Commission on JWAs or on alternate weekly collection.

However, AEA Technology has carried out work on DEFRA's behalf to examine potential economies of scale in waste management and barriers to achieving them. This highlighted the importance of authorities sharing waste disposal facilities if we are to meet our environmental objectives. The final report, "Economies of scale: waste management optimisation study", is available from DEFRA's website. This gives examples of a number of joint working models that could be used by local authorities, including JWAs.

In addition, a report on 'Joint working on wastes management', published by the Innovation Forum, highlights the benefits of joint working in two tier areas, citing possible efficiency savings of around £150 million nationally. The report identified the limited legal basis for joint working as one of the key barriers to joint working on waste. In response to this report, the Government have introduced clauses in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill to allow the establishment of JWAs to enable local authorities to put their waste partnerships on a statutory basis if they wish to do so.

The Audit Commission has published a number of guidance documents containing advice to local councils on how they can meet their statutory requirements with regards to waste by improving their waste management and adopting best practice. The Audit Commission also examines the performance of councils and the services they provide, including waste, through the Comprehensive Performance Assessment, and provides recommendations for improvement.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what incentives will be provided to local authorities to join joint waste authorities. [141728]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are not proposing to provide specific incentives to local authorities to create joint waste authorities (JWAs).

The new powers and freedoms, announced earlier this year as part of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, were requested by local authorities and will allow authorities that wish to put joint working on a statutory footing to create stronger partnerships in delivering their waste services.

Joint working between local authorities is becoming increasingly important as a means of delivering quality services to residents and meeting the UK's environmental objectives. Joint working is particularly important in two-tier areas, where responsibilities for waste collection and waste disposal are split between different authorities. Partnership working and integrating collection and disposal services also have the potential to generate efficiency savings.

We will consider whether there is a case for making some funding available to help local authorities to set up the first JWA.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Bereavement Benefits: Eligibility

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will commission a study to find out how many people are eligible for bereavement benefits. [143763]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions is keen to ensure that people claim their full entitlement to state benefits. The Bereavement Benefit Scheme is well known and has been in operation for some time with a high public profile. We are, therefore, confident that the Department's publicity of the scheme is sufficient to alert individuals who have been bereaved.

For this reason we do not believe that the proposed study is necessary.

National Insurance Contributions: Rebates

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the number of people in contracted-out defined benefit schemes in each year from 2001-02 to 2015-16; and if he will make a statement. [141206]

James Purnell: The information is in the following table.

Membership of contracted-out defined benefit schemes

Tax year	Estimates of number of people contracted out (million)
2001-02	7.7
2002-03	7.6
2003-04	7.6
2004-05	7.6
2005-06	7.6
2006-07	7.6
2007-08	7.5
2008-09	7.5
2009-10	7.4
2010-11	7.3
2011-12	7.2
2012-13	7.1
2013-14	7.0
2014-15	6.9
2015-16	6.8

Notes:
(i) Source: Actual figures from Second Tier Pension Provision Statistics for 2001-02 2003-04 and then estimates.
(ii) Figures are for UK.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the cost of contracted-out rebates for (a) defined benefit and (b) defined contribution pension schemes in each year from 1997 to 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [141207]

James Purnell: The information is in the following table:

Estimated cost of contracted out rebates

Tax year	Defined Benefit	£ billion Defined Contribution
1997-98	4.9	2.8
1998-99	5.1	2.8
1999-2000	5.2	3.1
2000-01	5.5	3.3
2001-02	5.7	3.4
2002-03	6.5	4.1
2003-04	6.7	3.7
2004-05	6.7	3.2
2005-06	7.0	2.9
2006-07	7.3	2.7
2007-08	7.8	1.9

Notes:
1. Rebate expenditure is estimated in all years.
2. Figures are for UK and expressed in cash terms.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the average pension value for individuals in defined benefit schemes of the contracted out rebates for each year from 2007-08 to 2050-51. [141569]

James Purnell: Due to the way the funding of contracted-out defined benefit schemes works, the value of the rebate does not necessarily equate to a pension value. The information requested is not, therefore, available.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what advice he has received about the prospects for removing legal obstacles to the use of automatic enrolment in group personal pensions and group stakeholder pensions. [141550]

James Purnell: European law prohibits inertia selling of financial products, including personal pensions. This means that it is not possible to automatically enrol individuals into workplace personal pension arrangements, such as group personal pensions and group stakeholder pensions.

The DWP is consulting on how best to ensure that such arrangements can continue in the run-up to 2012 and beyond, when our reforms to the UK private pensions system come into effect. DWP officials continue to work closely with industry representatives to understand the issues involved and to devise pragmatic solutions.

Inertia selling is the provision of unsolicited services with a demand for payment.

Pensioner Poverty

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate (a) how many pensioners were living in deep poverty, defined as a household income below 40 per cent. of median household earnings and (b) how many such pensioners were not claiming the full pension credit or minimum income guarantee they were entitled to in each year since 1997-98. [113565]

James Purnell [pursuant to the reply, 29 March 2007, Official Report, c. 1721-24W]: The most common and internationally recognised threshold to measure poverty is income below 60 per cent. of median. We do not present information covering 40 per cent. of median income in our Households Below Average Income series as it is not a good measure of poverty. This is because households stating the lowest incomes to the Family Resources Survey (FRS) may not actually have the lowest living standards. Many people who report very low incomes appear to have high spending. Hence any statistics on numbers in this group may be misleading.

Specific information regarding low income for the United Kingdom is available in "Households Below Average Income 1994-95 to 2005-06" (HBAI). This annual report, which is a National Statistics publication, includes the numbers and proportions of individuals, children, working age adults and pensioners with incomes below 50 per cent., 60 per cent. and 70 per cent. of median income, and the proportions in persistent poverty.

Pension credit has been highly successful in reducing pensioner poverty; since its introduction, the number of pensioners in relative poverty has fallen by over 700,000. Now, for the first time in a period of sustained economic growth, pensioners are less likely to be in poverty than the population as a whole, after housing costs are accounted for.

We continue to make every effort to ensure that pension credit goes to those who are entitled to it. It is more challenging to reach those entitled to smaller amounts, or to the savings credit only, who may be less familiar with the entitlements available to them. The Pension Service has contacted pensioners to encourage them to take up entitlement to pension credit many times already as part of extensive marketing activity. Over 70 per cent. of those pensioners who appear to have entitlement to pension credit have been contacted over five times already. And around 25 per cent. of customers visited about pension credit say that they do not want to make a claim.

However, we are committed to improving take-up and are continually looking at further ways to target these groups and encouraging them to apply.

The information requested for pensioners in Great Britain is shown in the following tables. Estimates of entitled non-recipients of MIG or pension credit should be treated with caution. This is especially the case given that we are looking at the extreme of the income distribution and so are less sure of pensioners' modelled entitlement. Results are based on small sample sizes and have not been corrected for biases that may be inherent in estimates of entitlement to income related benefits—that is, they may be based on the data for those who appear to be entitled non-recipients but will not all actually be entitled non recipients and vice versa. Figures are therefore presented as proportions of the total pensioner population below the 40 per cent. of median household income.

Table 1 : Number of pensioners living in households with less than 40 per cent. of contemporary median household income, and as a proportion of all pensioners, for the years 1997-98 to 2005-06, Great Britain

	After housing costs (million)	As a proportion of all pensioners (percentage)
1997-98	0.47	5
1998-99	0.49	5
1999-2000	0.49	5
2000-01	0.46	5
2001-02	0.51	5
2002-03	0.47	5
2003-04	0.51	5
2004-05	0.45	4
2005-06	0.46	4

Notes:
1. Figures are presented after housing costs as this is our preferred measure for pensioners.
2. The table shows number of individuals in millions, rounded to the nearest 10 thousand.
3. These figures are not National Statistics and caution must be applied because those people stating the lowest incomes in the FRS may not actually have the lowest living standards.
4. Estimates cover the private household population of Great Britain. The data source is the Family Resources Survey.
5. These figures are calculated using OECD equivalisation factors. Prior to 2002-03 they are based on a GB median and from 2002-03 it is based on a UK median. This is consistent with low income estimates published in the latest edition of Households Below Average Income. The GB median is similar to the UK median.

Table 2: Proportion of pensioners living in households with income below 40 per cent. of contemporary median household income who were also living in a benefit unit that is entitled but not receiving IS/MIG/PC, Great Britain

Percentage

	After housing costs	As a proportion of all pensioners
1997-98	36	2
1998-99	35	2
1999-2000	42	2
2000-01	45	2
2001-02	57	3
2002-03	55	3
2003-04	50	2
2004-05	64	3
2005-06	60	3

Notes:
1. Figures are presented after housing costs as this is our preferred measure for pensioners.
2. Estimates of the pensioner population cover those above state pension age (60 for women and 65 for men). The estimates therefore exclude some men aged 60 to 64 and partners of pensioners aged under 60, who may have been eligible but not claiming pension credit.
3. Estimates also exclude those cases where respondents have reported they are awaiting the outcome of a claim for a benefit and have been modelled as entitled to that benefit.
4. Estimates cover the private household population of Great Britain. The data source is the Family Resources Survey.
5. These figures are calculated using OECD equivalisation factors. Prior to 2002-03 they are based on a GB median and from 2002-03 it is based on a UK median. This is consistent with low income estimates published in the latest edition of Households Below Average Income. The GB median is similar to the UK median.
6. Minimum income guarantee (MIG) was introduced for pensioners in April 1999 paid through income support.
7. Pension credit (PC) was introduced mid-way through 2003-04; therefore, estimates for 2003-04 cover those pensioners who were entitled but not receiving either MIG or PC. As this relates to the first six months of pension credit the figures should be treated with some caution.
8. For the purposes of this analysis, benefit unit based data (take-up statistics) were combined with household equivalised income based results (Households Below Average Income statistics).
9. Estimates for 2000-01 and 2003-04 onwards incorporate the results of a data matching exercise, which links the Family Resources Survey with DWP administrative data in order to identify 'hidden recipients' of MIG-PC, i.e. those people who tell the FRS they do not receive pension credit, but actually do.
10. Estimates are presented as proportions of the total pensioner population below the 40 per cent. of median household income, as the analysis is based on single-year survey data and the absolute numbers of such pensioners who were not claiming the pension credit or minimum income guarantee they were entitled to might be biased due to small sample sizes.
11. These analyses have not been corrected for the biases that may be inherent in estimates of entitlement to income-related benefits—that is, they may be based on the data for those who appear to be entitled non recipients (ENRs) but will not all actually be ENRs and vice versa—and so they should be treated with some caution.
12. The estimates relate only to those who were modelled as entitled to receive benefit but were not identified to be in receipt of any amount of benefit. It therefore does not include cases where a pensioner is in receipt of some benefit, but this is less than the amount they are truly entitled to. Including these cases may not give a reliable indication of full take-up due to the potential error that exists in modelling entitlement.

Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many defined benefit schemes reduced the cap on indexation of pensions in payment from 5 per cent. to 2.5 per cent. for accruals from April 2005; and how many active members there are in aggregate in these schemes. [141526]

James Purnell: The information is not currently available. Information on the indexation of pensions in payment after April 2005 was requested in the Office for National Statistics' 2006 Survey of Occupational Pension Schemes, work on which is continuing.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will break down the figures in table 7.12 of the Family Resources survey to show the proportion of working age private sector employees with pension provision in 2005-06; and what the comparable figures were for each year since 1996-97. [141537]

James Purnell: This information is not available.

The Family Resources Survey does not collect information about employment sector. Employees are asked to identify the main activity at the place where they work but these broad industry classifications are not robust enough to provide an accurate breakdown of public and private sector employment.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of (a) schemes and (b) members included in the sample of defined benefit schemes analysed in the Purple Book were in the public sector; [141541]

(2) if he will publish the figures which form the basis of chart 3.11 of the Purple Book indicating how many defined benefit schemes in the sample closed in each year since 1995. [141570]

James Purnell: This is not a matter for the Secretary of State.

The Purple Book was a joint study by the Pensions Regulator and the Pension Protection Fund (PPF). The statistics were generated through analysis of information collected by the Pensions Regulator from pension scheme returns. Some of this information was further processed by the PPF in collaboration with the Government Actuaries' Department so that valuation information was as at a common date.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the figures illustrated by the graph in figure 8 of Security in retirement: towards a new pension system. [141548]

James Purnell: The following table gives the updated numbers from Figure 8 of Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system. Since the White Paper these numbers have been updated to 2007-08 earnings terms and include state second pension simplification policy.

Income for a median earner retiring in 2050-53 (current system/reform)

	Basic state pension	State second pension	Pension credit	Private pension	Total
Reform with saving	81	71	0	86	237
without saving	81	71	0	0	151
Current with saving	36	73	38	37	184
without saving	36	73	53	0	162

Notes
In 2007-08 earnings terms, income shown before tax. Assumes a median earner works from age 25 to SPA, retiring in 2050 at age 65 under the current system and at age 68 in 2053 under reform. Under the current system it is assumed that saving is five per cent of salary between the Primary Threshold and the UEL into a stakeholder pension, with a 1.5 per cent. annual management charge. This is equivalent to employee-only contribution rate into the new personal accounts. After reform it is assumed that saving is 8 per cent. of salary between the primary threshold and the UEL into a personal account (which includes 3 per cent contribution, and has 0.5 per cent. annual management charge). Amounts may not sum due to rounding.

Pensions: Rebates

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has to review the level of contracted out rebates for pension schemes from 1 April 2008; and if he will make a statement; [141089]

(2) what plans he has to revise the level of contracted-out national insurance rebates for (a) April 2008 and (b) April 2012; and if he will make a statement; [141172]

(3) what plans he has to review the levels of the contracted-out rebates for pensions; what plans the Government has to make further changes from April 2008; and if he will make a statement. [141181]

James Purnell: There is a legal requirement to review the level of contracted-out rebate rates at least every five years—the next review is due to set rates from 2012 to 2017. However, the Secretary of State can, if he considers it necessary or appropriate, review rebate rates more frequently.

The Government have considered the timing of the next review, taking account of both the current fiscal circumstances and of the pension reforms being introduced in the Pensions Bill. As a result, we do not believe it is necessary to review the rebate rates in the short term. However we will continue to monitor the impact on contracting out of the various pensions reforms, in particular the decision to abolish contracting out for defined contribution schemes. These factors will be taken into account when considering the timing of future reviews.

Personal Savings

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assumption has been made on the annual uprating of the contribution limit for personal accounts in the stochastic modelling described on pages 113 and 114 of the Regulatory Impact Assessment to Personal Accounts: A New Way to Save. [141528]

James Purnell: To estimate the impact of the personal accounts contribution limit on individuals' pension income it was assumed that the limit would be uprated in line with average earnings.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions to what year the figures in table 5.2 of the Regulatory Impact Assessment to Personal Accounts: A New Way to Save pertain. [141533]

James Purnell: The figures in table 5.2 refer to the financial year 2003-04. It was erroneously labelled as being data from 2005-06. The correct title of the table should be "Personal and stakeholder pensions: average contribution by status and earned income in 2003-04. The full table and notes can be found at

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/7-10-200405.xls

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the average contributions to personal and stakeholder pensions detailed in table 5.2 of the Regulatory Impact Assessment to Personal Accounts: A New Way to Save include contracted-out rebates. [141534]

James Purnell: Table 5.2 is replicated from HMRC Pensions Table 7.10 which can be found at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/7-10-200405.xls .

Footnote 5 states that these contributions include minimum contributions, which is another name for contracted-out rebates.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his answer of 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 2004W, on pensions, how much state pension and savings credit would be received by a median earner working continuously from the age of 25, reaching the age of 68 in 2053, and saving in line with the assumptions in figure 8 of security in retirement: towards a new pension system (a) with pension reform and (b) without pension reform but with collection of state pension deferred until the individual turns 68. [141436]

James Purnell: Under reform a median earner who works from age 25 reaching state pension age at 68 in 2053 and saves in line with the assumptions set out in "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system" could expect to receive around £152 a week in state pension. They would not receive any savings credit but could expect to receive around £86 a week in private pension income. In total they would receive around £237 a week under reform.

Without reform a median earner who worked and saved in the same way reaching state pension age at 65 in 2050 and then deferred their state pension for a further three years until they reached 68 could expect to receive around £143 a week in state pension. They could also expect to receive around £17 a week in savings credit and around £37 a week in private pension income. In total they would receive around £197 a week under the current system.

Notes:

1. In 2007-08 earnings terms, income shown before tax.

Assumes a median earner works from age 25 to SPA, retiring in 2050 at age 65 and deferring until the age of 68 under the current system and retiring in 2053 at age 68 under reform.

2. Under the current system it is assumed that saving is 5 per cent. of salary between the primary threshold and the upper earnings limit (UEL) into a stakeholder pension, with a 1.5 per cent. annual management charge. This is equivalent to employee-only contribution rate into the new personal accounts.

3. After reform it is assumed that saving is 8 per cent. of salary between the primary threshold and the UEL into a personal account (which includes 3 per cent. contribution, and has 0.5 per cent. annual management charge). Amounts may not sum due to rounding.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Disciplinary Proceedings

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many grievance procedures have been initiated in his Department in the last 12 months. [135152]

The Deputy Prime Minister: None.

Departments: Internet

Mrs. May: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 354W, on Departments: internet, what the cost was of (a) establishing and (b) maintaining the websites for which he is responsible. [138469]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Cabinet Office and for Social Exclusion and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Hilary Armstrong) on 23 October 2006, Official Report, column 1624W.

Departments: Legal Costs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how much has been spent by his Department on legal fees since its establishment; [139405]

(2) how much has been spent by his Department on public relations since its establishment; [139412]

(3) which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations have supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for his Department since it was established; and what the cost of these services was; [139432]

(4) how much has been spent on advertising by his Department since its establishment. [139535]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department and its agencies paid in travel agencies' fees in each year since 1997. [139904]

Mr. Francois: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department has paid to recruitment consultants since its establishment. [140029]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Expenditure will be accounted for in the departmental resource accounts in the usual way.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many of his Department's special advisers were on (a) paid and (b) unpaid leave in order to assist with party political matters under section 22 (iii) of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers on 16 May; and how many days' leave each adviser was granted. [140114]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Special advisers' involvement in party political matters is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers, including section 22 (iii), and the guidance issued by the Cabinet Secretary in December 2006 and May 2007, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what properties his Department has (a) owned and (b) rented since its establishment; [139359]

(2) what recent estimate has been made of the value of his Department's property portfolio; [139381]

(3) what the cost of leasing buildings and office space has been for his Department since it was established. [139455]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Since its creation on 5 May 2006, my Office has been based in 26 Whitehall. This is a Cabinet Office building and I refer the hon. Member to the statement given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office and for Social Exclusion and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Hilary Armstrong) on 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 12WS.

Departments: Training

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department has spent on (a) anti-bullying training and (b) diversity awareness training since its creation. [137661]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Staff in my Department are seconded from Communities and Local Government and take part in that Department's diversity and respect training in the same way as other members of staff.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 568W, on abortion, on what date the Annual Abortion Statistics 2006 will be published; if she will place copies in the Vote Office; and if she will make a statement. [142835]

Caroline Flint: "The Abortion Statistics, England and Wales: 2006" will be published on 19 June 2007. Copies will be placed in the Vote Office and the Library.

Acute Beds

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate her Department has made of the number of acute beds required in (a) one year, (b) two years and (c) five years time; and if she will make a statement. [143278]

Andy Burnham: Decisions on the number of acute beds required are made locally.

Aerials: Health Hazards

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what studies her Department has carried out into the health effects of mobile telephone masts since March 2006; and if she will make a statement. [142806]

Caroline Flint: The Stewart Report in 2000 comprehensively reviewed the scientific literature and concluded that

'the balance of evidence to date suggests that exposures below international guidelines do not cause health effects to the general population'.

However, the report also recommended further research as part of an overall precautionary approach to the use of mobile phone technology pending the availability of more robust scientific research results. Further information is available at www.iegmp.org.uk.

The independently managed Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) programme, jointly funded by Government and industry, was set up in 2001 in response to the Stewart Report recommendations. It is currently supporting a number of studies into the possible health effects of technology relating to mobile telephones and masts. A description of all the individual studies can be found on the MTHR website at www.mthr.org.uk. Individual studies under the MTHR programme relating directly to base stations include:

1. A measurement study on microcell and picocell base stations carried out at the Health Protection Agency, and published in the Journal of Radiological Protection (Cooper etal. J. Radiol. Prot. 2006 Vol. 26, 199-211).

2. A study of cancer incidence in early childhood near mobile phone base stations being carried out at Imperial College London. This study started in April 2003 and is ongoing.

3. A study of symptoms associated with radio frequency electromagnetic field exposure carried out at the University of Essex. This study was completed at the end of 2006 and publication is expected in the near future.

4. A study of electrical hypersensitivity in relation to exposures typical of those from terrestrial enhanced trunked radio base stations started in January 2007 at the University of Essex. As this study has recently started, it will be some considerable time before results are published.

Ambulance Services: Pay

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what financial rewards for performance ambulance services were eligible for in the financial years (a) 1991-92 to 1997-98 and (b) 1998-99 to 2006-07; and what financial rewards for performance ambulance services will be eligible for in the financial years 2007-08 to 2010-11. [139002]

Andy Burnham: Information is not available in a single central place in the format required, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Such information as is available is as follows:

From 2001-02 to 2003-04, national health service trusts that received three stars in the NHS performance ratings received a capital allocation of up to £1 million to support service development. Ambulance trusts received a rating for their performance across a range of areas, including ambulance response times.

The Department launched two capital incentive schemes to reward NHS ambulance trusts for marked performance improvement against the Category A 8-minute standard, one for 2004, the other for 2006-07.

No future financial rewards for ambulance trust performance have been considered by the Department for 2007-08 to 2010-11.

Cancer: Medical Treatments

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to make sutent available in England for the treatment of cancer. [141215]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Sunitinib (sutent) is licensed for use in the treatment of renal cell carcinoma and gastrointestinal stromal tumours.

The Department is currently considering referring Sunitinib for renal cell carcinoma to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) for appraisal.

In the meantime, it is for local primary care trusts to decide whether to make Sunitinib available to patients. In doing so, they need to take into account the available evidence. It is not acceptable for national health service organisations to refuse to fund a treatment simply because it has not been appraised by NICE.

Community Care: Expenditure

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the annual expenditure on home care services was per care recipient of each local authority in England with social services responsibilities in 2006-07; [141433]

(2) what average annual charge was paid to each local authority in England with social services responsibilities by home care services users that contribute towards the cost of their care in 2006-07. [141434]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information for the financial year 2006-07 is being collected and is due to be published in February 2008.

Table one shows the annual expenditure on home care services for each local authority for 2005-06.

Table two shows the actual income recouped via sales, fees and charges to clients receiving home care services funded fully or in part by councils with social services responsibilities for each local authority for 2005-06. Both tables have been placed in the Library.

Information is collected only on the total number of people receiving services. Data on the number of those who are contributing to the funding of their care are not collected separately and so the average annual charge requested cannot be calculated.

Community Development: Essex

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what factors the North Essex Primary Care Trust took into account in deciding to fund a community development worker to liaise with Colchester and Tendring Black and Minority Ethnic Partnership; and how much she expects to be spent on the worker; [141392]

(2) what guidelines her Department has issued on the appointment of community development workers by primary care trusts (PCTs); what account a PCT is expected to take of the financial position of its other mental health provision in making a decision on whether to appoint a person to such a post; and what discussions her Department has had with North East Essex Primary Care Trust on its recent decision to appoint such a worker. [141596]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is a local matter. It is the responsibility of primary care trusts (PCTs) to ensure that the services they commission meet the needs of the communities that they serve.

The PCTs decision to appoint a community development worker (CDW) is in accordance with the 2007-08 operating framework for the national health service that states that PCTs are expected to recruit 500 CDWs nationally by December 2007. The appointment of CDWs is a leading priority for mental health services and the Department has supported recruitment with £16 million per annum in PCTs' baseline financial allocations.

There have been no discussions with North East Essex PCT on the subject.

Community Hospitals: Finance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the communities hospitals fund budget has been allocated to projects in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [143698]

Andy Burnham: 25 schemes were submitted in wave two. We approved and announced details of 10 schemes, including two that were carried forward from wave one, on the 11 April 2007.

This funding was allocated in 2007. To date, £49.976 million of the communities fund budget has been allocated to community hospitals projects in 2007-08.

The schemes announced on the 11 April are listed in the following table.

Strategic Health Authority	Primary care trust	Amount awarded (£ million)
South Central	Southampton City PCT (Royal South Hampshire hospital)	6.079
East of England	Suffolk PCT (Felixstowe Community hospitals)	1.76
London	Barking and Dagenham PCT (Barking Hospital)	5
London	Richmond and Twickenham PCT (New health and social care centre—Teddington Memorial hospital)	3.98
London	Haringey PCT (Hornsey Central hospital)	1.658

Strategic Health Authority	Primary care trust	Amount awarded (£ million)
Yorkshire and Humber	Calderdale Kirklees PCT (Redevelopment of Sites, Huddersfield)	13.79
Yorkshire and Humber	Rotherham PCT (Primary care centre, Rotherham)	0.96
East Midlands	Nottinghamshire County PCT (Redevelopment of Ashfield hospital)	1.149
South West	Bristol PCT (South Bristol community hospital)	3.9
South East Coast	Hastings and Rother PCT (Station Plaza Primary Health Centre)	11.7
	Total	49.976

Dental Services

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of (a) adults and (b) children are registered for NHS dentistry in (i) Milton Keynes, (ii) the south east and (c) England. [142488]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since April 2006, patients no longer have to be registered with a dental practice to receive national health service care and treatment.

The closest equivalent measure to registration is the numbers of patients receiving NHS primary dental services (patients seen) in a given area over a 24-month period, expressed as a percentage of the estimated population for that area. Numbers and proportions of adult and child patients seen in the 24-month periods ending 31 March, 30 June, 30 September and 31 December 2006 in England, NHS south central and Milton Keynes Primary Care Trust, are available in Section F2 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England Q3: 31 December 2006 report. Copies are available in the Library and at www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-for-england-q3:-31-december-2006.

Data for the 24-month period ending March 2007 will be published on 19 June 2007.

Dental Services: Barnsley

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis the allocation of funding for orthodontic services for Barnsley for 2006-07 was calculated. [138734]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The primary dental service resource allocations awarded to primary care trusts for 2006-07 took into account expenditure on general dental services and personal dental services pilots in each area during the reference period October 2004 to September 2005. This captured payments for both general dental services and specialist services such as orthodontic services. The allocations also included adjustments to reflect nationally agreed increases in dentists' remuneration, provision for growth plans previously submitted to and approved by the Department, and some margin to accommodate any new services that may have started during or after the reference period but could not be fully reflected in the calculation of reference period earnings.

Dental Services: North Eastern Region

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total value of orthodontic treatment was carried out during the reference period of (a) October 2004 and (b) October 2005 in (i) Barnsley, (ii) Doncaster, (iii) Rotherham and (iv) St. Helens. [138736]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The reference period used in calculating funding levels for the new primary dental service arrangements was 1 October 2004 to 30 September 2005. The following table sets out the total payments during that period for courses of treatment which included orthodontic care. The Department does not have data on the value of treatments carried out during the reference period but submitted for payment later.

Primary care trust name	Orthodontic earnings 1 October 2004 to 30 September 2005 (£)
Doncaster, Central	895,608.83
Doncaster, East	109,620.51
Doncaster, West	137,177.76
Rotherham	80,205.19
St. Helens	59,398.90
Barnsley	207,375.93

Notes:
1. The data relate to claims from dentists working under the terms of the former general dental services (GDS) only. They exclude orthodontic work carried out within former personal dental service (PDS) pilots, where the value of orthodontic as opposed to general dental treatments can be less easily identified. The Department is aware of at least two specialist orthodontic practices, in Doncaster Central and Rotherham, which converted to personal dental service pilots either before or during the reference period, which would mean the GDS data above are not fully representative of all elements of orthodontic care.
2. The data are presented by the primary care trust (PCT) areas that were operational during the reference period, rather than the new PCTs that assumed responsibility for services from 1 October 2006.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what methodology is used by her Department to account for its carbon emissions. [140789]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department collects energy consumption data from its buildings. We also collect data on official air travel, taxi use and the use of personal vehicles for business purposes. These data will be used to calculate our total carbon emissions, using Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs guidance.

Departments: Epilepsy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people with epilepsy are employed by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [139911]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department holds records of those staff who have declared a disability. However, this is not broken down by reason, therefore epilepsy cannot be separately identified. When staff are absent from work due to an epileptic episode, this is recorded on the Department's sickness absence database as a neurological condition and not specific to epilepsy.

Departments: Newspaper Press

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which regional newspapers are regularly monitored by her Department. [141290]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department commissions regional press cuttings using a press cuttings agency and Government News Network. The following regional newspapers are read by the agency and News Network on the Department's behalf:

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in her Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141959]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No Ministers in the Department are allocated a ministerial residence.

Departments: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which (a) advertising agencies and (b) other organisations supplied consultancy services for advertising campaigns for (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these services was; [139436]

(2) how much was spent on advertising by (a) the Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [139518]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Consultancy services for advertising campaigns should be understood as the provision of strategic advice on campaigns, not their delivery. Most Government advertising is bought through the Central Office of Information (COI) and under the terms of COI framework agreements advertising agencies are contracted to supply advertising services only, i.e., creative products based on a communications strategy. Advertising agencies (on COI's roster) do not supply broader consultancy services. On occasion wider ranging consultancy projects may inform campaign work but the costs would not be attributed to the campaign.

Where consultancy is provided by other organisations it usually results in a range of communication activities which may or may not include advertising; so it is not possible to distinguish the cost of providing consultancy for advertising from that for other forms of communication.

With reference to the second question (139518), the following table shows the advertising spend on information campaigns commissioned by the Department's Communications Directorate in the last five years.

Financial year	Advertising expenditure (£ million)
2002-03	23.13
2003-04	38.98
2004-05	37.80
2005-06	32.19
2006-07	26.46

We have no central record of advertising spend by Departmental agencies and could not obtain these without incurring disproportionate costs.

The budget for recruitment advertising below senior civil service level has been delegated to directorates over the period in question. The costs of advertising, as opposed to the other elements of recruiting, could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For appointments to the senior civil service (SCS), recruitment advertising costs cannot be provided within cost threshold for 2004-05. In 2005-06, the total amount spent on recruitment for SCS posts was £859,000 and in 2006-07 to date £571,000. However, this is not just monies spent on advertising but on assessment centres, head-hunting and advertising.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library copies of her departmental employee surveys for (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007. [141982]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The results of the Department's 2005 staff survey can be found at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/news/staff_survey/index.asp

The 2006 survey report will be posted to this website shortly, and the 2007 report will also be posted when it is published in the summer.

The Department sees staff surveys as a valuable means of helping to increase performance by identifying both what is working well and areas for improvement. It has used them successfully alongside other indicators of performance and sources of feedback to increase employee engagement and identify priority areas for action.

Dietary Supplements: EC Law

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment the Food Standards Agency has made of the impact of the implementation of the Food Supplements Directive on (a) the specialist manufacturing sector and (b) the specialist health food retail sector; [141948]

(2) what conclusions the Food Standards Agency has reached in relation to the implications for consumer choice following their recent consultation on the Draft Regulatory Impact Assessment of the Food Supplements Directive; [141949]

(3) what her Department's objectives are with regard to the promotion of the interests of the specialist natural health product manufacturing and exporting sectors; what (a) meetings have been held and (b) other steps taken by officials and Ministers in her Department in relation to the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and foods under Article 5 of the Food Supplements Directive; and if she will make a statement. [142115]

Caroline Flint: A regulatory impact assessment (RIA) was carried out in 2002 on the implementation of the Food Supplements Directive, and this included input from the specialist manufacturing sector and the specialist health food retail sector.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has recently carried out an informal consultation on an initial RIA that sets out the current position in the United Kingdom with respect to food supplements and seeks information from stakeholders to measure the potential impact in advance of future European Commission (EC) proposals for setting daily dosage levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements. The information will be used to inform the draft RIA, which will then be subject to a formal consultation process. Conclusions will not be available until the end of the formal consultation process.

The Government's objectives with regard to promotion of the interests of the specialist natural health product manufacturing and exporting sectors are to ensure that consumer choice and protection are maintained.

I met with the specialist manufacturing and health food retail sectors in March 2007, and have written to and met with the director of DG SANCO at the EC in relation to the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals under Article 5 of the Food Supplements Directive. Officials have previously held meetings with their European counterparts, including a meeting with German officials in March.

Disabled: Funding

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Government plan to provide public funding for local access groups which provide advice services in relation to accessibility for people with limited mobility. [142485]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Section 64 General Scheme of Grants to Voluntary Organisations is the Department's main funding source to voluntary organisations. Although this year's round has now closed, if local access groups are considering making an application in the future they can obtain information about the scheme from www.dh.gov.uk/section64.

The 2008-09 applications window has not yet opened. It is likely that we will now place the funding priorities on the Department's website in the week commencing 18 June, with a view to opening the scheme to applications on 2 July. This should provide organisations with the opportunity to familiarise themselves with the 2008-09 funding priorities before we open for applications.

Local access groups may also wish to approach the National Council for Voluntary Organisations and the Institute of Fundraising, who may be able to offer advice on other possible sources of funding.

Drugs: Counterfeit Manufacturing

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library a copy of the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency's anti-counterfeiting strategy aimed at disrupting those enterprises engaged in the importation, wholesale, distribution and supply of counterfeit medicines. [141980]

Caroline Flint: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency is currently developing a comprehensive anti-counterfeiting strategy which will take into account developments in the trade in counterfeit medicines. A copy will be placed in the Library when the strategy is published.

East Riding of Yorkshire Primary Care Trust: Management Consultants

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the East Riding of Yorkshire Primary Care Trust has spent on management consultants since its inception; and if she will make a statement. [142141]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Fit for Future Programme

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much had been spent up to 4 June 2007 on the Fit for Future programme; and how much has been paid to McKinsey and Company for work undertaken as part of the Fit for Future programme. [141768]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not held centrally. Any proposals for major service change are a matter for the national health service locally.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Rice

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the plans are for the Food Standards Agency's review of its handling of the GM rice

(LL601) contamination incident following the judicial review of the Food Standards Agency by Friends of the Earth; when the review will take place; whether the input of external stakeholders will be sought; and who will lead the review. [142092]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency will be carrying out a review of its handling of the genetically modified rice contamination incident. It will seek input from key external stakeholders. Details of the review are currently being finalised.

Headaches: Medical Treatments

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision is available on the NHS for occipital nerve stimulation for cluster headaches; and whether the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has been consulted on the provision of the treatment. [141423]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Recent trials involving the use of occipital nerve stimulation for the treatment of cluster headaches have shown some promise. It is the responsibility of health professionals to consider whether this treatment should be made available to those patients where existing drug treatments prove ineffective.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has not been consulted on the provision of this treatment.

Health Services: East Riding

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 1 May 2007, Official Report, column 1603W, on health services: East Riding, what her Department's definition is of emergency treatment; whether a visit to a general practitioner is classed as emergency treatment; and if she will make a statement. [137340]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not define emergency treatment precisely as this is a decision for clinicians. However, the Department would expect that emergency treatment is treatment which cannot be delayed without risking serious harm to a patient, arising out of a sudden or unexpected change in their condition.

Under their contracts, general practices are required to treat anyone, regardless of whether they are registered with the practice, if they require emergency or immediately necessary treatment.

Regulation 15 paragraph 6 of the NHS (General Medical Services Contracts) Regulations 2004 (2004/291) states that:

"A contractor must provide primary medical services required in core hours for the immediately necessary treatment of any person to whom the contractor has been requested to provide treatment owing to an accident and emergency at any place in its practice area."

Paragraph 7 also states that:

"In paragraph (6), 'emergency' includes any medical emergency whether or not related to services provided under the contract".

Health Services: Sex

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on training for sexual health and pregnancy advisory services on effective multi-agency working and disclosure to protect children and young people from abuse in 2006-07. [141003]

Caroline Flint: Effective joint working and information sharing between agencies and professionals are cornerstones of the Government's policy to ensure that children and young people are effectively safeguarded from abuse. Where there is evidence or a reasonable cause to believe that children and young people are suffering from or at risk of suffering from significant harm then action must be taken. Revised guidance, 'Working Together to Safeguard Children' produced in April 2006, provides detailed guidance about responding to child welfare concerns involving alleged crimes, including where there is under-age sexual activity. Information on how much money is spent locally on training staff is not collected centrally.

Health: Ports

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions her Department has had with (a) the Health Protection Agency and (b) the Board of Airline Representatives on (i) agreeing a system for routine data systems to be established and (ii) where data on travellers can be made readily available in response to a public health incident or risk as recommended in the Port Health and Medical Inspection Review Report published by the Health Protection Agency in March 2006. [142059]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) is leading on this operational matter. The HPA has held discussions with airline representatives, through the Department for Transport's Facilitation Stakeholders Forum, on the sharing of information in relation to public health incidents. Airlines have responded, on an international basis, that they consider routine collection of further information to be not feasible but have accepted the principle of using World Health Organisation passenger locator cards in the event that information is required in response to a public health incident.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has (a) prepared and (b) implemented a national financial framework for expenditure in port health as recommended in the Port Health and Medical Inspection Review Report published by the Health Protection Agency in March 2006. [142060]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency, as the operational lead in this area, has been working actively in collaboration with primary care trusts and local authorities to establish the financial framework for these services as part of its port health quality and governance arrangements. This work will continue within the agency's overall business planning system.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which international travel terminals have (a) implemented and (b) evaluated and amended their port health risk assessments as recommended in the Port Health and Medical Inspection Review Report published by the Health Protection Agency in March 2006 over the last 12 months; [142061]

(2) what steps her Department has taken to ensure the Port Health risk assessment is published and made available to those within the Health Protection Agency responsible for port health as recommended in the Port Health and Medical Inspection Review Report published by the Health Protection Agency in March 2006. [142062]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) has developed a draft risk assessment for ports and is currently consulting on this with the Association of Port Health Authorities and with ports and carriers via the Department for Transport. Following the consultation the HPA plans to publish these risk assessments once they have been completed, subject to agreement with stakeholders.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many entrants at ports of entry into the UK were referred to NHS facilities in the last five years for which figures are available. [142066]

Caroline Flint: The Department does not hold this information.

Heart Diseases: Young People

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funds have been allocated within the NHS to research (a) the cause of and (b) treatment for cardiac risk in the young. [140683]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. These organisations have reported spending from this funding in support of coronary heart disease as follows:

	£ million
2002-03	35
2003-04	53
2004-05	59
2005-06	59

The Department does not collect specific expenditure data. Details of individual projects supported in the NHS can be found on the national research register at:

www.dh.gov.uk/research.

Implementation of the Department's research strategy 'Best Research for Best Health' will result in an expansion of our research programmes and in significant new funding opportunities for health research. In particular, the University College London Hospitals (UCLH) Biomedical Research Centre and the Oxford Biomedical Research Centre, formed this year, plan to undertake work on sudden cardiac death. The centrally funded budget for the cardiovascular disease research theme at UCLH is £5.1 million over five years and for the heart research theme at Oxford is £3.1 million over five years.

Homeopathy

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will list the primary care trusts which have stopped all funding for homeopathic treatment; and if she will make a statement; [142268]

(2) what cost-benefit analysis has been carried out on NHS homeopathic treatments; and if she will make a statement. [142269]

Caroline Flint: The Government consider that decision-making on individual clinical interventions, whether conventional, or complementary/alternative treatments, has to be a matter for local national health service providers and practitioners as they are best placed to know their community's needs. In making such decisions, they have to take into account evidence for the safety, clinical and cost-effectiveness of any treatments, the availability of suitably qualified practitioners, and the needs of the individual patient. Clinical responsibility rests with the NHS professional who makes the decision to refer and who must therefore be able to justify any treatment they recommend. If they are unconvinced about the suitability of a particular treatment, they cannot be made to refer.

The Department recognises that the health needs of a community can differ from area to area and primary care trusts (PCTs) would reflect these needs in developing these policies. We would expect the PCTs to carry out their own cost-benefit analysis of any treatment or service they were considering commissioning.

Hospital Wards: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of NHS beds in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex were in mixed wards in each year since 1997. [141892]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Maternity Services: Royal Shrewsbury Hospital

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to prevent adverse changes to the level of services provided for neo-natal care at the Royal Shrewsbury Hospital. [135188]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Decisions about the size and locations of neonatal networks, including the number of hospitals and the levels of care provided, are for local decision and should reflect local need and geography.

NHS West Midlands reports that the proposed changes to neonatal services provided by hospitals in the Staffordshire, Shropshire and Black Country Neonatal Network will be subject to a public consultation. The Network will be publishing the process for consultation shortly.

Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2007, Official Report, column 721W, on drug analysis, (1) what the time scale is for the planned programme for the resolution of the technical and data issues relating to the production of drug analysis prints; and when the problems are due to be resolved; [141059]

(2) what assessment she has made of the implications of the technical problems experienced by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) Yellow Card Scheme on the MHRA's commitment to pharmaco-vigilance and the provision of information to the general public on adverse drug reactions. [141060]

Caroline Flint: Drug Analysis Prints (DAPs) are reports that collect together information on suspected adverse drug reactions submitted to the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) through the yellow card scheme. The programme for resolving the technical and data issues relating to the production of DAP on the MHRA website is ongoing. This is a high priority for the Agency and full resolution is planned by the end of the 2007-08 business year. The Agency does provide anonymised information on suspected adverse drug reactions upon request to the general public, health professionals, and pharmaceutical companies, interim measures are in place for providing these data ad-hoc in an equivalent, non-automated, format to the DAP.

The MHRA continue to have total commitment to its pharmacovigilance function and the provision of data on adverse drug reactions. The technical issues experienced at the MHRA have however had an impact upon the format in which these data are presented. The resolution of these issues and full utilisation of the future Sentinel system will enable the Agency to further enhance the pharmacovigilance capabilities and continue to be a world leader in the provision of authoritative, high quality drug safety information by maximising the best technologies available.

Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency: Manpower

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff funded by the public purse in the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency are classified as people without posts. [141641]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: None.

Midwives: Insurance

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what relevance (a) existing and (b) proposed European Union directives have to her Department's decision to require independent midwives to have professional indemnity insurance. [141081]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 7 June 2007]: European directive 2005/36 on the recognition of professional qualifications allows (but does not require) regulatory bodies to demand evidence of indemnity insurance from incoming European migrants, provided that they demand the same information from United Kingdom nationals. The directive is not therefore directly relevant to Government policy, which is to include provision for compulsory indemnity cover as a condition of registration in legislation for each profession, as the opportunity arises in wider legislative change.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1317-18W, on midwives: insurance, if she will clarify the information included in the White Paper. [141083]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 7 June 2007]: The White Paper "Trust, Assurance and Safety - The Regulation of Health Professionals in the 21st Century" states in paragraph 6.3

"In response to a government initiative, indemnity insurance is also becoming a requirement".

Government policy is to include provision for compulsory indemnity cover as a condition of registration in legislation for each profession, as the opportunity arises in wider legislative change.

The introduction of compulsory professional indemnity cover for midwives will require secondary legislation. A three-month public consultation will form part of that legislative process. No specific date for this has yet been set.

Muscular Dystrophy: Research

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has to fund elsewhere in the UK research initiatives similar to the Translational Research Centre of Excellence for Neuromuscular Diseases in London. [141447]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is the main body through which the UK Government support initiatives similar to the Translational Research Centre of Excellence. The MRC currently funds 21 such centres, including six new translational centres last year, and will continue to support centres of excellence in priority areas. MRC has set aside this year's funding for centres in lifelong health and ageing.

NHS Alliance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was provided to the NHS Alliance from (a) her Department's budget and (b) the NHS budget in each financial year since 1997-98. [116825]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not provide any core funding to the NHS Alliance. However, the Department does hold contracts with the NHS Alliance to provide services for the Department. The annual totals for payments made by the Department of Health to the NHS Alliance since 2002 are as follows:

	Payments made to NHS Alliance (£)
2002-03	67,006.25
2003-04	69,597.60

	Payments made to NHS Alliance (£)
2004-05	58,750.00
2005-06	85,197.50
2006-07	112,647.25

It is not possible to provide figures prior to 2002-03 without incurring disproportionate costs.

Information about the amount of funding that is provided to the NHS Alliance from national health service organisations budgets is not collected by the Department.

NHS Foundation Trusts

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many of her Department's staff have been (a) recruited by and (b) seconded to designated foundation trust hospitals. [137667]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We do not record any information relating to an individual's future employer when they leave the Department. This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

There are currently six staff from the Department on secondment to foundation trust hospitals across England. In addition, we have 10 staff seconded to strategic health authorities (SHA). However, we do not maintain records of previous secondments to either foundation trusts or SHAs.

NHS Numbers

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS numbers are in issuance. [139968]

Caroline Flint: National health service numbers are currently issued and controlled by the national health service central register (NHSCR). At close of business on 5 June 2007 the total number of records held by NHSCR on the central health record inquiry system (CHRIS) was 74,581,472. This included a number of deceased patients (9,166,168), and number of invalid records (355,735). The total of NHS numbers 'in issuance, at that point was therefore 65,059,569.

The in issuance figure includes a further 7,903,001 numbers where the patient entry contains an exit or cancelled flag. There can be a number of reasons for this, such as where patients are known to have left the country on a permanent basis, armed forces personnel, and unregistered, the majority of which will be of notified births that have not yet been registered with a general practitioner.

As part of the Department's NHS Connecting for Health Agency's demographics migration programme the personal demographics service (PDS) will replace the following existing NHS demographics services:

the NHS Central Register (CHRIS);

demographic functions of the national health applications and infrastructure services (NHAIS);

the NHS strategic tracing service (NSTS); and

NHS number for babies (NN4B).

Moving to the PDS becoming the single authoritative source of demographics will enable the existing national demographic systems to be shut down, resulting in reduced operational costs.

The PDS is an essential element of the NHS care records service, underpinning the creation of an electronic care record for every registered NHS patient in England. It will serve as a gateway to the clinical record, enabling authorised healthcare professionals to locate quickly the clinical record that is uniquely associated with each demographic record. Unlike the previous services, this single authoritative source of demographics is already accessible throughout the NHS and is integrated fully with the other applications and services delivered as part of the national programme for information technology. It provides more convenience for patients as they need only notify one authorised healthcare organisation of a change of address, and this change will be then available to all healthcare organisations as and when the patient's records are accessed.

The demographics migration programme is also endeavouring to eliminate use of NHS temporary, and old-format numbers. These peaked in November 2004 at some 273,578 temporary, and 8,474 old-format numbers. By May 2007 nationally these figures had reduced to some 78,997 temporary, and just 30 old-format numbers. The elimination of use of all temporary and old-format numbers within the NHS is on target to be achieved by spring 2008.

NHS: Complaints

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints were made against the national health service in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [142142]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The following table gives numbers of written complaints made between April 1997 and the end of March 2006, and these are the latest available audited data.

The data reflect complaints made through the national health service complaints procedure and do not include complaints made to the General Medical Council or other professional bodies.

Hospital and community services and family health services, written complaints in England, 1997-2006

	Number of written complaints
1997-98	126,850
1998-99	124,870
1999-2000	126,261
2000-01	140,176
2001-02	133,274
2002-03	133,867
2003-04	133,469
2004-05	133,820
2005-06	138,396

NHS: Drugs

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the proposals contained in her Department's consultation, Arrangements for the remuneration of services relating to appliances within

Part IX of the Drug Tariff, would restrict the ability of firms to choose the prices of the services they provide to NHS patients; and if she will make a statement. [140412]

Caroline Flint: In reviewing Part IX of the Drug Tariff, the Department is trying to ensure that there is transparency for the national health service between the reimbursement price for items and remuneration for services provided; there is none today. The aim is also to ensure that the NHS, and the taxpayer, is getting value for money—and, most importantly, that patient care is maintained or, where appropriate, improved.

This is why there have been two recent consultations. One set out proposals for reimbursement levels for item price—"Arrangements for the reimbursement pricing of stoma and incontinence appliances under Part IX of the Drug Tariff".

The other, "Arrangements for the remuneration of services relating to appliances within Part IX of the Drug Tariff", set our proposals relating to service provision; both what that service should be and the remuneration that the NHS would make for such services. Here the intent was to ensure fair remuneration of valued services provided by the pharmacy and appliance contractors. It was also designed to make sure that the services provided by all dispensing contractors are to the same standard no matter where in England a user of appliances may live.

The underlying costs of the services they provide is a commercial matter for providers.

As previously advised, the volume and complexity of the responses to the consultation are such that the Department has decided that it needs more time to analyse the information provided. Consequently, no changes will be implemented in July 2007 as proposed in the consultation documents.

NHS: Freedom of Information

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on private firms seeking to use the Freedom of Information legislation to obtain details of management decisions or discussions by primary care trusts and other NHS bodies. [140772]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information about Freedom of Information requests made to the national health service is not collected centrally. Primary care trusts and other NHS organisations are public authorities and are consequently obliged to comply fully with the law, including the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the value has been of her Department's forward payments to local service providers under the National Programme for Information Technology since the programme's inception. [137391]

Caroline Flint: Forward payments have been made to the National Programme for Information Technology (NPfIT) suppliers to reduce contract costs. All forward payments are repayable in the event of subsequent non-commencement of services and are protected by bonds or charges against assets, which enable the payments to be withdrawn on demand. Moreover, forward payments are typically made after the contractor has already incurred the costs to which the payments relate. This prudent approach has subsequently been adopted as an option in guidance issued by the Office of Government Commerce in respect of the procurement of IT-enabled services from the private sector.

The value of forward payments made to local service providers (LSPs) since inception of NPfIT, as at 31 March 2007 are shown in the following tables. Forward payments are depleted as the supplier successfully delivers the contracted solutions. Instead of being paid as the projects go live, suppliers are allowed to recognise the appropriate amount of the forward payment for that project. The principle of payment on delivery is thus maintained.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 1 November 2006, Official Report, column 490W, on NHS IT systems, when the results of the review will be published. [139019]

Caroline Flint: We expect to publish the results of the review shortly.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff funded by the public purse in NHS Connecting for Health are classified as people without posts. [141642]

Caroline Flint: None.

NHS: Negligence

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS spent on lawyers' fees in respect of negligence claims in each of the last five years; and how much compensation was paid in respect of negligence claims by the NHS in each year. [141688]

Andy Burnham: The Department does not collect information on the total amounts spent by the national health service on either lawyer's fees or compensation in respect of negligence claims. The NHS Litigation Authority collects details of the amounts spent by the NHS on lawyer's fees and compensation for claims made under clinical and non-clinical NHS schemes. Data for these schemes for the last five years are in the following tables.

Legal fees[1]

Financial year	Clinical	Non-clinical	£000 Total
2005-06	151,030	15,097	166,127
2004-05	134,441	16,637	151,078

NHS: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has met the Chairman of the Labour Party to discuss NHS service provision since 3 July 2006. [131857]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State meets her Cabinet colleagues regularly to discuss a range of issues, but has not met the chair of the Labour party to discuss national health service provision since 3 July 2006.

Osteoporosis: Drugs

Christine Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps are being taken to ensure that the recent National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance on drugs to treat osteoporosis is being fully implemented; [143113]

(2) what steps are being taken to (a) encourage osteoporosis patients to comply with their medication and (b) inform patients of alternative products which allow for less frequent treatments; [143114]

(3) what education and treatment programmes are being introduced to stem the anticipated future rise in osteoporosis; [143115]

(4) what (a) (i) guidance and (ii) training she is providing to medical practitioners and (b) guidance she is providing to the public to mitigate the effects of the expected rise in the incidence of osteoporosis. [143116]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There is a statutory duty for health bodies to provide funding for drug treatments recommended by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) within three months of the guidance being issued.

Osteoporosis can often be prevented by maintaining a healthy lifestyle and, through a range of initiatives, the Department is raising awareness of the importance of regular exercise, a balanced diet, smoking prevention/cessation and a responsible attitude to alcohol consumption in the prevention of a range of conditions, including osteoporosis.

The Department has also asked NICE to produce a clinical guideline on the assessment of risk fracture and prevention of osteoporotic fractures in individuals at high risk.

The training of medical practitioners is the responsibility of the royal colleges. The National Library for Health clinical knowledge summaries website at www.cks.library.nhs.uk offers advice on the management of a range of conditions and symptoms, including osteoporosis, that are commonly seen in primary care. The guidance is advisory and has been developed to assist healthcare professionals, together with patients, make decisions about the management of the patient's health.

It is the responsibility of health professionals to provide patients with information on the most appropriate treatment regime based on a clinical assessment of their individual situation. This information should also include the importance of compliance with medication and any recommended lifestyle changes.

Patient Choice Schemes

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 May 2007, Official Report, column 621W, on patient choice schemes, for what reasons the total number of bookings made through both direct and indirect bookings in the period since July 2004 are different in table two and in table one. [139583]

Caroline Flint: The information in table one was accurate to 31 March 2007. Due to an administrative error the figures in table two included some information relating to April 2007. Arrangements have been made for amended tables to be placed in the Library.

Patients: Surveys

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health to whom the breakdown by practice of the GP patients' survey is made available. [142721]

Andy Burnham: Results of the general practitioner patient survey will be available on the Department's website shortly.

Pharmacy

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which dispensing appliance contractors hold a market share of more than 5 per cent.; and what percentage market share each holds. [140410]

Andy Burnham: There are two distinct sectors in the dispensing appliance contractor market: incontinence and stoma. Given this, the number of contractors in each sector that have more than a 5 per cent. share of the dispensing appliance contracting market is as follows:

	Number of companies with > 5 per cent. share of market
Incontinence[1]	4
Stoma[1]	3

[1] These figures are based on the net ingredient value for the period January 2005 to June 2006.

The names of these companies—and their specific market share—are not publicly available, as the information is commercially confidential.

Pharmacy: North East Region

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pharmacists were making independent prescriptions in (a) Gateshead East and Washington West, (b) the North East and (c) England in the latest period for which figures are available. [140644]

Caroline Flint: The Department obtains information from the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain (RPSGB), which shows the number of pharmacists who have qualified and registered as pharmacist independent prescribers in Great Britain. The figures for May 2007 show that 68 pharmacists had registered their qualification with the RPSGB.

The Department does not have information at a local level.

Smoking

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines have been issued to local authorities on ensuring enclosed public spaces have no smoking signs at all entrances. [142168]

Caroline Flint: In March 2006, guidance on the implementation of smokefree legislation was published by Local Authority Co-ordinators of Regulatory Services. The purpose of the guidance, which includes specific sections on no-smoking signs, is to support local council regulatory officers in successfully implementing smokefree legislation which will be enforced in England from 6 am on Sunday, 1 July 2007.

The Department has also provided a two-phase training programme for local authorities on smokefree legislation and will shortly launch an e-learning facility so local authority officers can complete training at their workplace. Training also includes references to no-smoking sign requirements and has been provided to develop a standardised approach to the enforcement of the new smokefree law across England, and has been provided free of charge to local authorities.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many council officers have been trained to enforce the forthcoming smoking ban, broken down by local authorities; and what the cost has been to both central and local government of implementing this training. [142333]

Caroline Flint: The Department has provided a two-phase training programme for local authorities on smokefree legislation and will shortly launch an e-learning facility for local authority officers to complete training at their work place. Training has been provided to develop a standardised approach to the enforcement of the new smokefree law across England, and has been provided free of charge to local authorities.

The first phase of training was conducted between October to December 2006 for service planners within local authorities to assist the development of local smokefree implementation strategies. Some 450 officers attended this training. The second phase of training is currently being delivered for local authority regulatory officers to provide knowledge, practical skills and competencies so they can build compliance with the new law in their local areas. Some 1,150 places have been made available for local council officers for this training. The two-phase programme of training has been delivered to local councils free of charge by the Chartered Institute of Environmental Health (CIEH) on a regional basis.

An e-learning facility has also been developed to provide training on the new smokefree law for local council officers. This facility has been developed by the Trading Standards Institute, will be freely available to any local council officer across England who requires training on the new law and will be launched shortly.

The total cost of developing and providing training on smokefree legislation for the Department is £445,600. An estimate of the costs to local authorities could only be made at disproportionate cost. The Department cannot precisely determine the number of local authority officers who have received training on the new smokefree law— some local authorities have made additional arrangements directly with the CIEH for the delivery of training programmes, many local councils have undertaken in-house training and the smokefree e-learning system is expected to be popular.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures have been taken by (a) central Government, (b) local authorities and (c) NHS trusts to inform the public of the forthcoming smoking ban; and what the (i) planned and (ii) eventual cost was of these measures. [142334]

Caroline Flint: Through the Smokefree England campaign, the Department is delivering a major communications campaign to support businesses to be prepared for the implementation of smokefree legislation on 1 July 2007. Recent surveys by the Department show levels of awareness amongst businesses and the general public have improved significantly.

Information on the new law is available from the freephone Smokefree England information line on 0800 169 169 7 and on the Smokefree England website at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk.

Presently, the Smokefree England website receives approximately 100,000 visits a week, while the phone line receives 6,000 calls a week.

The Department has developed a range of guides on the new law. A Smokefree England information pack, including a guide, no-smoking signs and other support materials has been sent to all registered, actively trading businesses in England that employ staff during April. Guidance documents can be downloaded from the Smokefree England website, and are available in a range of different languages and accessible formats, including an MP3 audio version.

The Department also continues to work closely with a diverse range of organisations across the country to increase awareness of the new legislation among their constituents.

In May, the Department commenced a national advertising campaign using a range of media to inform members of the public about what the legislation will mean when it comes in to force. While 93 per cent. of the overall population are aware of smokefree legislation, 45 per cent. don't know that it comes into force on 1 July 2007. Therefore the campaign has been developed to assist the public to know when the law will be implemented, where the law will apply and what the penalties are for non-compliance.

Local authorities are also working to build compliance in their communities through a diverse range of activity. Local businesses are advised to contact their local council for advice and support in implementing smokefree legislation. National health service trusts and local NHS Stop Smoking Services are also working in different ways to promote the new smokefree law.

The total budget allocated to the Department of the smokefree communications campaign is £8.5 million. The costs to local authorities and NHS trusts of their efforts to promote the new smokefree legislation could be made only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the new no smoking sign cost to design; and what estimate has been made of the production costs of all new no smoking signs. [142474]

Caroline Flint: The Health Act 2006 requires no-smoking signs to be displayed in smokefree premises and vehicles that comply with the requirements set out in the Smoke-free (Signs) Regulations 2007.

To support those with management responsibilities for smokefree premises, the Department has designed and made freely available no-smoking signs that comply with the requirements of smokefree legislation. The total design cost of no-smoking signs being made available as part of the Department's Smokefree England campaign was £1,270.

Based on the current costings and volumes, no-smoking signs for premises cost the Department 0.04p each to produce.

Smoking: Listed Buildings

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received from those responsible for listed buildings on the appearance and placement of the new no smoking signs; and what recent discussions she has had with church leaders on the issue. [142328]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 326W.

Sunbeds

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what petitions have been received by her Department from the unstaffed sunbed salon industry operators in opposition to further regulation; [141901]

(2) what representations she has received from the unstaffed sunbed salon industry on usage of sunbeds by people under the age of 16; [141931]

(3) whether she has met representatives of the unstaffed sunbed salon industry in the last two years. [142079]

Caroline Flint: The Department has received copies of a petition signed by customers of the Consol Supercenter chain of coin-operated sunbed salons. Officials have had discussions with representatives from Consol at which the issue of access by those under 16 years to Consol's sunbed parlours were discussed. I met representatives of Consol on 29 March 2007.

Surgical Dressings

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients were treated with maggot debridement therapy within the NHS in each year since 1997, broken down by NHS trust; and if she will make a statement; [127742]

(2) what assessment has been made of the potential effect on costs of the use of maggot debridement therapy in the NHS; and if she will make a statement; [127746]

(3) what recent representations her Department has received on maggot debridement therapy; and if she will make a statement; [127749]

(4) what (a) clinical trials and (b) other studies have taken place on maggot debridement therapy; how much was spent on such activity in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement; [127752]

(5) what assessment has been made of potential adverse side effects of maggot debridement therapy; and if she will make a statement. [127753]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested regarding the numbers of patients treated with maggot debridement therapy (MDT) is not held centrally. However, there is one such medical grade maggot which is now available on prescription in the United Kingdom so that general practitioners can use MDT in the community. There were around 1,100 prescriptions written for dispensing in the community for LarvE (the commercial brand name for the sterile maggots) in 2005, which does not include hospital use.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has advised the national health service that the choice of debriding agent for difficult to heal surgical wounds should be based on comfort, odour control, other aspects relevant to patient acceptability, the type and location of the wound and total costs. The actual costs of treating difficult to heal wounds have not been measured. If specific services for the management of difficult to heal surgical wounds were to be developed throughout the NHS, there would be organisational and cost implications, which would need to be evaluated.

My noble Friend, the Minister of State for Health (Lord Hunt), has received an invitation from the hon. Member for Bridgend (Mrs. Moon) to visit Zoobiotic Ltd. My hon. Friend the Minister of State for Public Health (Caroline Flint) has received a letter from the right hon. Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn) regarding the issue of MDT.

The Health Technology Assessment Programme funded a trial of MDT to be undertaken by the Department of Health Sciences of the University of York. The study started on 1 June 2004, involving 600 patients with venous leg ulcers who were randomised to one of three treatment groups to compare their effects on healing and debridement times. The Government, through the Health Technology Assessment Programme, agreed to fund this study, which had been several years in the planning and cost over £700,000. The report of the research is expected in early 2009.

MDT may cause pain or discomfort, particularly in patients already experiencing wound pain. This usually occurs about 24-36 hours into therapy and worsens as the larvae grow larger, Painkillers should help to relieve the pain; otherwise removing the maggot dressing provides immediate relief. The maggots should be contained within the wound. If they escape onto unprotected skin around the edges of the wound, the larvae secretions can cause a rash on the skin which resembles a superficial burn.

Tomography: East Sussex

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many computerised tomography scanners are operational in the NHS in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex. [141893]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not collect information on the operational use of the computed tomography (CT) scanners. However, I am informed by NHS South East Coast that there are two CT scanners installed in trusts in East Sussex, one at Eastbourne District general hospital and another at the Conquest hospital, Hastings.

Tuberculosis: Immigrants

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether new entrants at ports of entry with symptoms of tuberculosis are referred to NHS facilities near the port of entry or their intended destination as recommended in Port Health and Medical Inspection Review Report published by the Health Protection Agency in March 2006. [142058]

Caroline Flint: If the new entrant at a port is identified to have symptoms suggestive of tuberculosis they will be assessed by a medical inspector and will be referred either to an appropriate national health service facility near the port or to an NHS facility at their intended destination, depending on the nature of their symptoms as assessed by the medical inspector.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has carried out a review of the benefits of X-ray screening for tuberculosis at ports as recommended by the Health Protection Agency in Port Health and Medical Inspection Review Report published in March 2006. [142063]

Caroline Flint: The Health Protection Agency has this matter under review and is now looking in more detail at how screening new migrants for tuberculosis could work in the future.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which ports of entry into the UK undertake tuberculosis screening by X-ray machine; and what arrangements are in place for multi-terminal ports that have only one such machine. [142065]

Caroline Flint: Only Heathrow and Gatwick airports have on-site X-ray machines. Where necessary, the immigration service makes arrangements for transporting people referred for medical examination between terminals.

University of Liverpool Cancer Research Centre

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to expand the University of Liverpool Cancer Research Centre; and if she will make a statement. [142251]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The Medical Research Council currently provides support to the University of Liverpool Cancer Research Centre through response-mode grants. The MRC welcomes applications for support into any aspect of human health and they are judged in open competition with other demands. In addition, the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council has provided one equipment grant to the centre.

X-rays

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the additional money earmarked for dual X-ray absorptiometry scans has been allocated to health authorities; and how much has been spent on additional scanning capacity. [140506]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In 2005-06, the Department allocated £3 million revenue funding on a non-recurrent basis to 14 strategic health authorities (SHAs) for the purchase of DXA scans from the independent sector, or other national health service providers where this represented better value for money. Expenditure against these allocations has not been monitored centrally.

Capital funding of £17 million has been made available in 2006-07 and 2007-08 to improve NHS capacity through investment in new DXA scanning equipment. This additional funding was included in the overall strategic capital allocation to SHAs and the Department does not monitor how SHAs' strategic capital is spent.

Since January 2006, the Department has been collecting waiting time and activity data for 15 diagnostic tests or procedures, including DXA scans. In April 2007, the latest date for which figures are available, 683 patients have been waiting more than 13 weeks, and 14 patients more than 26 weeks, for a DXA scan. This represents a reduction of 92.7 per cent. and 99.6 per cent. respectively from the baseline figure.

JUSTICE

Community Justice Centres: Public Appointments

Mr. Allen: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 374W, on community justice centres: public appointments, what meetings have taken place between the district judge and the community about the appointment of the district judge; and if she will make a statement. [143218]

Ms Harman: District Judge Cooper has had two meetings with local residents, a meeting with community based organisations and has also met local MPs.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Simon: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what make and model of car (a) she and (b) each Minister in her Department selected as their official ministerial car; and what criteria were used when making the decision in each case. [141997]

Ms Harman: Ministers in my Department have selected ministerial cars as follows:

	Make/model
Lord Falconer	Jaguar XJ
Harriet Harman	Toyota Prius
David Hanson	Mondeo Zetec
Bridget Prentice	Toyota Prius
Baroness Ashton	Toyota Prius
Vera Baird	Toyota Prius
Gerry Sutcliffe	Toyota Prius

For the second part of the question I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by the Minister of State for Transport on 14 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1268-69W.

Departments: Official Residences

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will list the official ministerial residences allocated to Ministers in her Department; and what the total annual cost is of running each. [141964]

Ms Harman: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given by the Prime Minister on 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1263W. Information for the last financial year relating to the use of the Lord Chancellor's residence, including costs, will be published shortly.

Departments: Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much was raised from the sale of departmental property in each of the last five years. [139312]

Ms Harman: Information on how much the Department has raised from the sale of departmental property is shown in the following table.

	£ million
	Sale proceeds
06-07	34.66
05-06	25.25
04-05	25.96
03-04	91.18
02-03	10.19

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what recent estimate has been made of the value of the Department's property portfolio. [139373]

Ms Harman: The total property portfolio was valued at 31 March 2007 to be £9,728.547 million.

Departments: Public Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how much money her Department plans to spend in the 2007-08 financial year on public relations. [141793]

Ms Harman: The Ministry of Justice was created on 9 May 2007. Its planned expenditure on public relations through external public relations companies from 9 May 2007 is:

£25,000 to increase the public's understanding of the work of courts and their role in the justice system;

£50,000 to increase public awareness of the new Mental Capacity Act 2005;

£12,500 for a public awareness campaign about the legal status of cohabitation;

£12,500 to publicise the Family Mediation Helpline;

£55,000 for a public awareness campaign on human rights.

The Ministry's press office also undertakes proactive public relations activity as part of its wider media relations remit, but this activity cannot be costed out separately.

Driving Offences: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many people in the London Borough of Bexley have received fixed penalty notices for using a mobile phone whilst driving in each of the last five years. [14277]

Mr. Hanson: Data on police action for the offence of use of hand held mobile phone while driving are not collected centrally by local authority area.

Family Courts

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on family courts. [143728]

Ms Harman: I have regular discussions and meetings about the family courts with the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, who has responsibility for Children, Young People and Families. My hon. Friend is also a member of the Ministerial Group on Care Proceedings, which meets quarterly and which I chair.

We both attended a meeting of the London Family Justice Council on 11 June 2007 to observe the work of the council.

Judges: Public Appointments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many (a) Crown court, (b) County court, (c) High court and (d) Court of Appeal judges have been appointed in each of the last five years; how each was appraised; what criteria are adopted for each appointment; whether consideration is given to a candidate's political views; how many candidates were rejected; and if she will make a statement. [142822]

Ms Harman: The following tables set out the numbers of applicants for, and appointments to, full-time judicial posts (not including magistrates) in the courts system for the five-year period 2001-02 to 2005-06, plus appointments to the fee-paid position of recorder. It is not possible to identify separately appointments to the Crown court and county court as judges on the Circuit Bench and recorders are deployed to either. District judges sit in the county court only. Members of the full-time judiciary are not subject to formal appraisal after appointment.

In addition to the minimum criteria set out in law for appointment to each level of post, applicants must demonstrate that they have the qualities and abilities needed to successfully take on judicial office, including relevant knowledge and experience, independence, professionalism, judgment and people skills. Information about candidates' political views is neither sought nor taken into account in the selection process. Since April 2006, the independent Judicial Appointments Commission has had the responsibility for appointments and has set out the qualities and abilities it believes are necessary for judicial office. These are: intellectual capacity, personal qualities, the ability to understand and treat fairly, authority and communication skills and efficiency.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice if she will list the (a) primary legislation and (b) statutory instruments which regulate (i) the appointment and (ii) renewal of appointment of (A) Crown court, (B) county court, (C) High court and (D) Court of Appeal judges; what changes have been made to each since their enactment; what further amendments are planned; and if she will make a statement. [142823]

Ms Harman: The principal legislation which regulates the appointment and renewal (where relevant) of salaried and fee-paid judicial office holders to the Crown court, county court, high court and Court of Appeal is set out as follows:

The Courts Act 1971
The Supreme Court Act 1981
The County Courts Act 1984
The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990
The Constitutional Reform Act 2005

Sections 76-84 of the Constitutional Reform Act govern the selection process for Lords Justices of Appeal. Sections 85-93 of the Constitutional Reform Act govern the selection process for the appointment of high court judges, circuit judges, recorders and judges who preside in the county court.

Appointments to salaried judicial office in the Crown court, county court, high court and Court of Appeal are made until the statutory retirement age is reached. For fee-paid appointments ie recorders and deputy district judges, it is usual for these appointments to be made on a five-year renewable term until retirement under section 21 of the Courts Act as amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act and the Constitutional Reform Act.

Changes in the qualifications for appointment to these offices are contained in the Tribunals Courts and Enforcement Bill currently before this House. There are currently no plans to further amend the legislation regulating the appointment and re-appointment of judges to the courts listed.

Legal Services Bill

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what discussions she has had with Ministerial colleagues in HM Treasury on the impact of the Legal Services Bill, if enacted, on the competitiveness of the British legal services industry. [143166]

Bridget Prentice: Officials have been in regular contact with their opposite numbers in other departments regarding the Government's proposals to reform the regulation and delivery of legal services. There has also been Ministerial contact where appropriate.

While the Treasury are clearly concerned to ensure that the appropriateness of the financial provisions in the Bill, they are also concerned to ensure that the Bill provides for greater competition and innovation in the legal sector. Specifically on competitiveness, in summer 2006 my officials participated in a series of high-level discussion groups organised by HM Treasury aimed at examining the international competitiveness of London as a financial centre. This included a focus on legal services and forthcoming changes such as the Legal Services Bill. It is of course paramount to all in Government that we ensure the continued competitiveness of UK legal services industry, both domestically and internationally.

Magistrates

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many magistrates are expected to leave the magistracy in financial year 2007-08. [142332]

Ms Harman: 710 magistrates are expected to retire during the financial year 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008. The number of magistrates leaving for all reasons (including resignation, death etc.) varies widely but averages approximately 1,500 per annum.

Police Custody

Simon Hughes: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) what the cost has been of Operation Safeguard in 2007; how many police force invoices have been (a) received and (b) paid; and how many more police force invoices she expects to receive; [142746]

(2) how much has been paid so far under Operation Safeguard to keep court cell accommodation available for prisoners; for what period these payments have been made; and how many prisoners were accommodated in court cells during that period; [142747]

(3) for how many nights court cell accommodation has been available under Operation Safeguard for prisoners; how many cells were available on those nights; and how many prisoner-nights have been spent in court cells in 2007; [142748]

(4) for how many nights court cell accommodation made available under Operation Safeguard her Department has not already paid; [142749]

(5) when she expects Operation Safeguard to end; and what estimate she has made of the likely final cost of (a) police and (b) court cell accommodation under Operation Safeguard. [142750]

Mr. Hanson: Use of court cells does not form part of Operation Safeguard, which is an agreement with the police to hold prisoners overnight in police cells.

81 invoices for the use of police cells under Operation Safeguard since October 2006 have been received. To date, 54 of these have been paid to the value of £6,681,300. As different police forces may submit monthly, bi-monthly or consolidate invoices, the number expected is not known.

Since the beginning of 2007 current data shows that court cells have been used on 373 occasions (as at 13 June 2007) over 16 nights. This does not correspond precisely to the number of prisoners: one occasion means one prisoner night in a court cell.

To date, one invoice to the value of £120,000 (excluding VAT) has been paid to cover the contingency of having places available in court cells between 17 January and 6 February. 12 prisoner nights were spent in court cells during this period.

Use of police cells to hold prisoners and of court cells to hold prisoners as a last resort will continue until operational capacity in prisons has increased to a level where all prisoners can be accommodated safely. NOMS is increasing prison capacity and has announced 8,000 new places by 2012.

We estimate that it costs around £385 per place per night to hold a prisoner in a police cell, and around £300 for every place in a court cell (this cost is incurred whether the cell is used or not).

Prison Service: Industrial Disputes

Colin Burgon: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what steps she has taken to ensure the Joint Industrial Relations Procedure Agreement process is followed regarding the dispute with the Prison Officers Association on the issuing of batons; and whether she intends to forward the dispute to an ACAS appointed arbitrator. [143356]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A Consent Order was signed by both the Prison Service and the Prison Officers' Association (POA) on 3 May 2007 clarifying the disputes process under the Joint Industrial Relations Procedural Agreement. The POA wrote to the Prison Service on 8 June asking that it review its position on a number of disputes (including the issuing of extendable batons) in light of this order. This review is currently taking place and I will write to the hon. Member on its completion.

Residence Orders

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (1) how many and what percentage of sole residency orders were given to the (a) mother and (b) father in each region in England and Wales in each year since 1997; [142655]

(2) how many and what percentage of joint residency orders were given in each region in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [142656]

Ms Harman: The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Information is available on the overall number of residence orders made under section 8 of the Children Act 1989, but the courts in England and Wales do not collect information about who the order is made in favour of from each case record.

The number of residence orders made in all types of court in England and Wales for the years 1997 to 2005 is as follows.

	Residence orders
1997	26,883
1998	30,398
1999	21,286
2000	25,809
2001	29,546
2002	30,006
2003	31,996
2004	31,878
2005	26,523

The numbers of residence orders made broken down by region are only available for the years 2003 to 2005. They are as follows:

Area	2003	2004	2005
Principal Registry of the Family Division	1,460	1,335	970
London	1,897	2,889	2,008

Wales and Chester	2,436	2,339	1,951

Road Traffic Offences: Foreigners

Chris Grayling: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many motoring offences were committed by overseas registered vehicles in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion of fines levied in relation to such offences remain outstanding. [142094]

Ms Harman: The information is not collected centrally.

Sentencing: Appeals

Simon Hughes: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many sentences handed down by each judge in England and Wales were successfully appealed against in each of the last five years. [142705]

Ms Harman: Information on the number of sentences handed down by each judge in England and Wales which have been successfully appealed against in each of the last five years is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many and what percentage of sentences successfully appealed against by (a) the Attorney-General and (b) the convicted person were (i) increased and (ii) reduced in each of the last five years. [142706]

Ms Harman: The information requested is in the following table.

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Attorney-General unduly lenient sentence applications
A-G sentence applications received	153	100	158	122	162

Percentage of sentence applications received that were successful	22.4	29.7	23.2	29.6	27.4

Trials

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice how many trials have been abandoned on technical grounds in each of the last five years, broken down by category of offence; and what the estimated cost to the public purse was of those abandoned trials and the investigations which preceded them. [142303]

Ms Harman: This information is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Young Offender Institutions: Crimes of Violence

Colin Burgon: To ask the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice what steps she is taking to ensure that prison officers in juvenile offender institutions are protected from assaults with pool cues and other implements which could be used as weapons. [143353]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service takes prisoner and staff safety seriously and every prison is required to have in place a violence reduction strategy which requires establishments to do all they can to minimise violence. Additionally, Prison Officers in juvenile offender institutions are given the same defensive training in control and restraint techniques as officers in non-juvenile establishments who face similar risks.
